"The whole of the Banff valley and adjacent mountains, to the extent of 100,000 acres, have been set apart by the Dominion Government as a national park for ever. They have voted various sums of money, in all about £16,000, for the making of roads and footpaths through the dense forests to various points of attraction, and will continue to vote further sums until the work is satisfactorily completed. I had two conversations with Mr. G. A. Stewart, the National Park Ranger, who explained to me all that he intends doing, and the work could not be in better or wiser hands. He will let nature alone as much as possible; he will strictly preserve all the wild beasts and birds, carefully regulate the fisheries, and content himself with making good roads and pathways through and through the reserve to all points of interest. He will also endeavour to acclimatise forest trees not indigenous to the soil. No land speculator can smirch the beauty of the place, as no land will be sold, only leased under strict terms and for specific purposes. When Mr. Stewart has completed his labours, the Canadian National Park will be one of the most attractive holiday resorts on the globe.

"The park will be twenty-four miles long and nine wide. Within its area will be found fifteen miles of the Bow River, of which nine are deep water, capable of navigation by a small steamer, six miles of the Spray River, a clear crystal mountain stream falling 100 feet within the limits of the park, which travels through a forest which just now is one blaze of orange, vermilion and gold. The Ghost River and the Cascade River, the Forty Mile Creek, and half a dozen other brooks, combine altogether a great wealth of the finest river scenery, in infinite variety. The area of the park also contains the Devil's Lake, twelve miles long and two wide, and the Vermilion Lakes. The water of these fine sheets is deep and clear, and mountain ranges on each side, rising thousands of feet above their surface, present scenery of the greatest beauty. The Vermilion Lakes are linked together by short streams navigable by light canoes, and are the resort of a great variety of wild fowl."

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Mr. Dumble as a Farmer.

Police Magistrate Dumble has received a letter from his partner, Mr. Argue, who is is the Northwest managing the farm of which they are joint owners. The letter says that off twenty acres of summer fallow, one thousand and forty-two bushels of wheat was gathered, fifty-two bushels to the acre. The crop gathered off the farm consisted of five thousand bushels of wheat, two thousand two hundred bushels of oats, and seven hundred and fifty bushels of barley. The grain is all of the best quality. The farm is situated in the Souris district, south of Brandon.

Resolution of Condolence.

At the Annual meeting of the East Durham Conservative Association, held in Millbrook on Monday, it was moved by Mr. H. A. Ward, M. P., seconded by Mr. John Martin,—That this Association desires to express and place on record its deep sense of the serious loss the Conservative party in this Riding has sustained since our last meeting, in the sudden and lamented death of the late Mr. H. B. Weller, who had been for several years most intimately connected with us in everything relating to the work of our organization. In him we have lost a staunch and reliable friend, an energetic and industrious worker, and a wise and distinguished counsellor; while the community at large will miss an amiable and worthy citizen, an honorable and useful man. To his bereaved widow and parents we would respectfully tender our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their sad affliction and distress.

NEW SUMMER HOTEL.

To Be Built in the Chemong Lake Park During the Coming Summer.

The fine natural advantages which the Chemong Lake Park possesses as a summer resort are to be improved, and the place is to be linked to Peterborough with such communication as will enable people to come and go at pleasure.

A joint stock Company has been formed for the purpose of erecting a fine summer hotel, boat houses, bath houses and for furnishing all the appointments requisite for a first class summer resort. Thirty acres of land, out of the seventy-five which the park contains, has been purchased and the building will be put up as soon as the weather permits. The shares of the company are divided into 100 at $100 each, and 40 are already taken. The new hotel will be a large building of a strikingly handsome design, the plans of which are now in the hands of Mr. J. E. Belcher, architect. It will accommodate about two hundred guests.

The grounds will be laid out by a competent landscape gardner in winding walks, drives, parterres, flower beds, and no expense will be spared to make it a resort par excellence at which business men and their families may enjoy the benefits of an outing while being only an hour's drive from their homes in Peterborough. The new resort will be extensively advertised in Canada and the United States, and there is no doubt that with capable management it will come at once into popular favor.

The method of communication between town and the Park Hotel is a novelty which all will enjoy. Four-in-hands will be kept in regular service and the coaches will leave the hotel four times a day. If, as it is quite probable, the Grand Trunk Railway build the line out to the lake and bid for the passenger traffic, a little steamer will be placed on the lake in connection with the hotel to meet the trains which will arrive two miles up the lake from the hotel.

The establishing of a summer hotel in the Park will be a perfect boon to those who have lots and have built lodges about the lake. The project deserves the support of the citizens, and no doubt will receive a liberal amount of it when it gets in running order.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

The Rubidge-Fuller Case Disposed of—The Presentment.

RUBIDGE VS. FULLER.

Mr. Fuller lives at Sandy Point and is the tenant of Mr. Tom S. Rubidge, the late chief engineer of the Trent Valley Canal There is a pathway leading through the woods from Fuller's dwelling out toward the road to Burleigh. Early in the autumn on a Sunday afternoon a boy carrying milk to Mr. Fuller's house was warned to go by some other way. The boy, however, returned the way he came and was stopped by Mr. Rubidge. Mr. Fuller a short time after went down this path and Mr. Rubidge barred his progress, first having summoned by a whistle Peter Whelan and Toker Barlee to his assistance. With the help of a walking stick Mr. Rubidge stopped Mr. Fuller. The latter believed his right invaded. The result was that in the scuffle Mr. Rubidge fell and received some contusions. Mr. Rubidge then brought Mr. Fuller before Mr. Hull, J.P., on a charge of assault. Fuller was fined. The case was appealed and came before His Honor Judge Weller and a jury on Tuesday. Mr. Rubidge was the first witness called. He said that he had been kindly relieved by the government of the charge of the construction of the work on this canal so that he might devote his attention wholly to the survey and that he was now Chief Engineer of the Trent Valley Survey. He deemed Fuller's right of way over the path also alleged that he had been shamefully assaulted. The evidence was in part very conflicting. Fuller said that he hit Rubidge because Rubidge hit him first, but denied the malice and Rubidge's statement of the melee. Mr. Aylmer's evidence for the defence was comparatively unimportant. He stated that he had no connection with the affair whatever from its beginning.

The counsel, Mr. Burnham for Mr. Fuller and Mr. Edwards for Mr. Rubidge, addressed the jury. His Honor then read the charge. After explaining the law in a very lucid manner His Honor said that in looking at the case in a general way he could not help referring to one point. He did not know what Mr. Rubidge might think of it, but he could not help that. After Mr. Rubidge had told the boy not to come back over the path he whistled for Pete Phelan. Now, what did he want Pete Phelan for? He wanted his assistance. What for? To commit or cause to be committed a breach of the peace if necessary to carry out his wishes. Any man of common sense could see that it would be for nothing else. He wished to put the boy off the path if he came back that way. If he merely wanted to order the boy off it would not have been necessary to have called Phelan. He thought it was strange that this right of way had never been disputed before by Mr. Rubidge. Mr. Fuller had been a tenant of the Canada Company's for five years before Mr. Rubidge claimed the land, and for three years previous to last May he had been living as a tenant of Mr. Rubidge's, and during that time he had not been prevented from using this way. It was strange that on a quiet Sunday evening in August, people living all in quiet together, that he should have disturbed them, because he must have known, that if the boy came back, a breach of the peace would be committed.

The jury brought in after being out 10 minutes a verdict for Fuller.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

December Sessions, 1887.

ONTARIO, COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH.—The Grand Jurors of the County of Peterborough, beg to present to you Honor that they fully agree with your Honor that it is a matter of congratulation that this County has at last been freed from the duty of defending themselves against the payment of the unjust claims put forward by the Grand Junction railway company and by Mr. Bickford.

We also deem it a matter of congratulation that this county is, as it has been for so many years past, free from the commission of any very serious crime.

We have examined the gaol and gaol premises, and find everything clean and well kept and find that everything needful is being done and provided for those there confined.

Dated at Peterborough this 13th Dec., 1887.

GEO. MUNRO,
Foreman.

His Honor replied briefly and dismissed the Grand Jury.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER.

Mr. E. J. Toker Entertained by Past Master Masons.

On Tuesday evening the large and spacious dining room of the new Masonic hall on Water street was filled with a jolly company of Past Masters of the Masonic order assembled to do honor to W. Bro. E. J. Toker on the eve of his departure for Toronto. The supper was served in excellent style by Mr. F. Hall and it reflected credit on him as a caterer. The chair was taken at 9 o'clock by V. W. Bro. J. J. Lundy, Chairman of the Past Masters' Association having the guest of the evening, W. Bro. E. J. Toker, on his right. The vice chair was filled by R. W. Bro. C. D. Macdonald. A number of prominent members were present and letters of regret on account of being unable to be present were read from several others. The Chairman proposed the following toasts:—"The Queen and the Craft," followed by the National Anthem; "The Grand Master of England and Canada, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and M. W. Bro. H. Robinson, LL.B." the "Grand Lodge of Canada," responded to by R. W. Bro. B. Shortly and R. W. Bro. E. H. D. Hall.

The Chairman then proposed the toast of the evening, "W. Bro. E. J. Toker, health and prosperity in his new home," all the brethern joining in singing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." W. Bro. Toker replied very feelingly, expressing his regret that circumstances had arisen that would cause him to leave Peterborough, but he said that his connection with Masonry in Peterborough would still be continued. He thanked the brethren for the honor done him.

"The newly elected officers of the Past Masters' Association," was responded to by V. W. Bro. J. J. Lundy, W. Bro. J. Alexander, W. Bro. R. E. Wood, W. Bro. D. Bellegham, W. Bro. H. Rush and V. W. Bro. C. Cameron. The "Past Masters Present, Visiting and Otherwise," was ably proposed by R. W. Bro. E. H. D. Hall. This toast brought nearly all present to their feet and many kind allusions were made to the guest of the evening. "The Peterborough Masonic Board of Relief" was proposed by W. Bro. R. E. Wood. W. Bro. H. Rogers replied, as did also V. W. Bro. C. Cameron who gave some reminiscences of the time he "rode the goat" 25 years ago. W. Bro. Peck gave some interesting recollections of some 40 years ago when the lodge was held in the old Court House, remarking that very few of the old land marks were living now. The last toast was proposed by R.W. Bro. C. D. Macdonald, acting as J. W., "Happy to Meet, Sorry to Part and Happy to Meet Again." The brethren dispersed after singing "God Save the Queen" and "Auld Lang Syne." The committee of management, W. Bro. R. E. Wood and W. Bro. H. Rush, are deserving of considerable praise for perfecting the arrangements for the supper on such short notice, and a general wish was expressed that the Association hold an annual dinner.

The death as recorded in another column of Mr. James Mackey, of Otonabee, at the advanced age of 60 years. Deceased was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1827, and came to Canada during 1850, settling in the township of Seymour, Northumberland County. Twenty-two years were spent, engaged in farming, after which he moved to Douro, where he remained for some time with his brother Mr. H. Mackey. Later on deceased moved to Otonabee, where he resided at the time of his death. He was at all times very highly respected and gained the esteem of a large circle of friends. Three brothers and four sisters still survive him. The funeral takes place on Friday morning, with interment at the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

THE CENTRAL BANK.

A STORMY MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS AND DEPOSITORS.

Over a Million Dollars Lost in Three Years—Startling Disclosures — Shareholders Will Be Out to Double Liability—Prospects of Depositors—How the Money Disappeared.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.

The meetings of the shareholders and creditors of the Central Bank of Canada held in Toronto yesterday developed some startling facts, among them the following:

That the bank has lost at least a clean million in its three years' operations.

That the shareholders will lose their paid up stock, $500,000, and will have to pay up another $500,000.

That the depositors will do well if they realize the bulk of their deposits. But to do this will require time. They will have to take it in instalments, as the assets are realized.

That the bill holders will get dollar for dollar. That the notes can be redeemed just as fast as they are presented. There is money now in the treasury for this purpose.

That the bank increased its circulation above the legalized amount. The circulation issued "shall never exceed the amount of its unimpaired paid up capital." How much the excess was is not yet known.

That the management resorted to the expedient of "shoving out" a lot of its notes when trouble was anticipated, and that some of the persons entrusted with this matter did not make full returns.

That of the directors only one is not a debtor of the bank.

That the directors had advances made to themselves without sufficient security.

That the bank was victimized out of about $100,000 by a clever sharper named Roland Israel Barnett.

Mr. Campbell was called upon and read this report:

Gentlemen: My first effort in connection with the affairs of the Central Bank was to make arrangements with the other banks for the redemption of the notes of the bank in circulation, then very much urged by holders. Failing to make satisfactory terms, I decided upon taking as much as our funds then on hand and to come in would cover, and commenced doing so, with the sanction of the directors, on Dec. 1, afterwards sanctioned by the Court.

We have redeemed since over $200,000, and we have on hand as balance to our credit in banks here, about $120,000 available to pay notes as presented. I have now no doubt that our funds will keep pace with any demand of this kind that is likely to be made upon us. The outstanding circulation is now less than $300,000. It will of course be necessary to accumulate and hold an amount equal to this before any can be set aside for the general creditors, and you will observe we would fall short of that yet.

Much of the discounted paper held by the bank is not promptly paid, I am sorry to say, and have been, while extremely occupied looking after the redemption of the circulation and attending to inquiries and application of various kinds from debtors and creditors of the bank, consequently my time for investigation into the position of the bank has been very limited indeed.

I am therefore unable to present to this meeting a statement showing an estimate of the value of the assets as I would desire. Such a statement would require much time, as any person in the least acquainted with the mass of a bank's assets, amounting in this instance to $2,591,300, knows of how multifarious a character they are. They consist, for instance, chiefly of notes and bills made by almost all sorts of people in every kind of business, and some not in any kind of business, ranging in amounts from $10 to $100,000 or more, spread over the entire Dominion, and extending into the United States. Some of such paper is secured by collateral, and other notes made by different parties, of course, if possible still harder to arrive at their value. Some are secured by collateral of warehouse receipts of goods of almost every description and quality, stored at many various places in the province; some by mortgages on real estate and stocks, values of which can only be ascertained by frequent enquiries and consultations with experts. There is also some real estate held, which the bank had to take for debts, otherwise unrealizable, as the best that could be done, and not of that character easily realizable upon to advantage. There is besides the very large mass of paper depending for security on the names each bill bears, the financial standing and ability to pay has to be weighed and determined.

I refer to these different subjects, to convey some idea of the importance and magnitude of an investigation such as the one under discussion, and the time necessary to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion.

During the short period of time I have been able to give the subject I found that hopeless losses to a considerable amount have been sustained by the bank. There are other accounts not by any means abandoned, the value of which it is impossible for any person to say at present, but which will result in losses more or less. These accounts will require constant and active attention and that at the earliest possible moment, to produce the best results. In that event the creditors in my opinion should have no reason to feel disappointed except with the delay which must necessarily take place in liquidating the estate.

Mr. Campbell also submitted this general statement:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Notes in circulation | | $ 389,000 |
| Due to other banks in Canada | $137,500 | |
| Due to banks in United States | 31,000 | |
| Due to banks in London, Eng. | 20,100 | |
| | | 188,600 |
| Outstanding drafts, held principally by other banks | | 5,600 |
| Deposits | | 1,725,800 |
| Profits accrued | | 65,000 |
| Capital stock | | 500,000 |
| Rest | | 45,000 |
| Total liabilities | | $2,908,000 |
| Notes and checks of other banks on hand | $ 26,000 | |
| Due from other banks in Canada | 142,700 | |
| Dominion Government stock | 29,700 | |
| Loans | 2,591,300 | |
| Bank furniture | 16,400 | |
| Total assets | | $2,806,000 |
| Assets immediately available from other banks | | $119,000 |

The amounts owed by officials are as follows:

|---|---|
| President Riach | $ 16,000 |
| Vice-President Trout | 6,000 |
| Director D. Mitchell McDonald | 124,000 |
| Director C. Blackett Robinson | 25,000 |
| Director Kenneth Chisholm | 24,000 |
| Solicitor Henry O'Brien | 6,000 |
| Total | $199,000 |

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

As his strong common sense arrived at this facetious conclusion he became aware of a lady, dressed entirely in black, who was observing him with marked attention. "Am I right in supposing you to be Mr. Francis Westwick?" the lady asked at the moment when he looked at her.

"That is my name, madame. May I inquire to whom I have the honor of speaking?"

"We have only met once," she answered, a little evasively, "when your late brother introduced me to the members of his family. I wonder if you have quite forgotten my big black eyes and my hideous complexion?" She lifted her veil as she spoke, and turned so that the moonlight rested on her face.

Francis recognized at a glance the woman of all others whom he most cordially disliked, the widow of his dead brother, the first Lord Montbarry. He frowned as he looked at her. His experience on the stage, gathered at innumerable rehearsals with actresses who had sorely tried his temper, had accustomed him to speak roughly to women who were distasteful to him. "I remember you," he said. "I thought you were in America."

She took no notice of his ungracious tone and manner; she simply stopped him when he lifted his hat and turned to leave her.

"Let me walk with you a few minutes," she quietly replied. "I have something to say to you."

He showed her his cigar. "I am smoking," he said.

"I don't mind smoking."

After that there was nothing to be done (short of downright brutality) but to yield. He did it with the worst possible grace. "Well," he resumed. "What do you want of me?"

"You shall hear directly, Mr. Westwick. Let me first tell you what my position is. I am alone in the world. To the loss of my husband has now been added another bereavement—the loss of my companion in America, my brother, Baron Rivar."

The reputation of the baron and the doubt which scandal had thrown on his assumed relationship to the countess were well known to Francis. "Shot in a gambling saloon?" he asked, brutally.

"The question is a perfectly natural one on your part," she said, with the impenetrably ironical manner which she could assume on certain occasions. "As a native of horse-racing England, you belong to a nation of gamblers. My brother died no extraordinary death, Mr. Westwick. He sunk, with many other unfortunate people, under a fever prevalent in a western city which we happened to visit. The calamity of his loss made the United States unendurable for me. I left by the first steamer that sailed from New York—a French vessel, which brought me to Havre. I continued my lonely journey to the south of France. And then I went on to Venice."

"What does all this matter to me?" Francis thought to himself. She paused, evidently expecting him to say something. "So you have come to Venice?" he said, carelessly. "Why?"

"Because I couldn't help it," she answered. Francis looked at her with cynical curiosity.

"That sounds odd," he remarked. "Why couldn't you help it?"

"Women are accustomed to act on impulse," she explained. "Suppose we say that an impulse has directed my journey? And yet, this is the last place in the world that I wish to find myself in. Associations that I detest are connected with it in my mind. If I had a will of my own I would never see it again. I hate Venice. As you see, however, I am here. When did you meet with such an unreasonable woman before? Never, I am sure!" She stopped, eyed him for a moment, and suddenly altered her tone. "When is Miss Agnes Lockwood expected to be in Venice?"

It was not easy to throw Francis off his balance, but that extraordinary question did it. "How the devil did you know that Miss Lockwood was coming to Venice?" he exclaimed.

She laughed—a bitter, mocking laugh. "Say I guessed it."

Something in her tone, or perhaps something in the audacious defiance of her eyes as they rested on him, roused the quick temper that was in Francis Westwick. "Lady Montbarry——" he began.

"Stop there!" she interposed. "Your brother Stephen's wife calls herself Lady Montbarry now. I share my title with no woman. Call me by my name before I committed the fatal mistake of marrying your brother. Address me, if you please, as Countess Narona."

"Countess Narona," Francis resumed, "if your object in claiming my acquaintance is to mystify me, you have come to the wrong man. Speak plainly, or permit me to wish you good evening."

"If your object is to keep Miss Lockwood's arrival in Venice a secret," she retorted, "speak plainly, Mr. Westwick, on your side and say so."

Her intention was evidently to irritate him; and she succeeded. "Nonsense!" he broke out, petulantly. "My brother's traveling arrangements are secrets to nobody. He brings Miss Lockwood here, with Lady Montbarry and the children. As you seem so well informed, perhaps you know why she is coming to Venice?"

The countess had suddenly become grave and thoughtful. She made no reply. The two strangly associated companions, having reached one extremity of the square, were now standing before the church of St. Mark. The moonlight was bright enough to show the architecture of the grand cathedral in its wonderful variety of detail. Even the pigeons of St. Mark were visible, in dark, closely packed rows, roosting in the archways of the great entrance doors.

"I never saw the old church look so beautiful by moonlight," the countess said, quietly. Speaking, not to Francis, but to herself, "Goodby, St. Mark's by moonlight! I shall not see you again."

She turned away from the church, and saw Francis listening to her with wondering looks. "No," she resumed, placidly picking up the lost thread of the conversation, "I don't know why Miss Lockwood is coming here; I only know that we are to meet in Venice."

"By previous appointment?"

"By destiny," she answered, with her head on her breast and her eyes on the ground. Francis burst out laughing. "Or, if you like it better," she instantly resumed, "by what fools call chance."

Francis answered easily out of the depths of his strong common sense. "Chance seems to be taking a queer way of bringing the meeting about," he said. "We have all arranged to meet at the Palace hotel. How is it that your name is not on the Visitor's List? Destiny ought to have brought you to the Palace hotel, too."

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare, If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

BULLETS DOWN THE LINE.

AN AWFUL SCENE ON THE C.P.R. PLATFORM AT MYRTLE.

George Brown, a Port Perry Bartender, Shot Down By a Scott Act Detective—Three Bullets in His Body—No Hopes of His Recovery.—A Lively Three Minutes.

MYRTLE STATION, Dec. 14.

One of the most dramatic and lively scenes that ever occurred in these parts took place on the platform of the railway station at Myrtle at just exactly 7.09 last evening. Myrtle is composed of a station house and a watertank, and is in a lonely spot on the Ontario and Quebec Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, forty miles east of Toronto. At 6.30 last evening half a dozen or so persons were gathered in the little public room of the station waiting for the up express for Toronto, which passes Myrtle at 7.12. These were Mr. J. A. Mulligan, President of the Toronto Branch of the Irish National League (Mr. Mulligan had gone down on the 5 o'clock train to meet his wife, returning from home); an elderly and stout old lady; James Forest, an old English farmer; W. C. McCrea and J. S. Dennen, Scott Act detectives; Joseph Scott, the station agent, and a reporter reporter. There were one or two loungers beside who were probably at the station merely out of curiosity.

Outside on the platform two men were walking up and down with measured pace. One of them was enveloped in a great coonskin coat. He was a large sized man. The other was a small man, well dressed, with an ordinary overcoat and a cloth cap. They seemed to be discussing some subject with considerable earnestness. They had not been at the station long, having arrived, shortly before the reporter noticed them, in a buggy, coming from the direction of Port Perry, which is seven miles to the north.

Inside the station house McCrea and Dennen paced the floor nervously. McCrea said on one or two occasions: "Well, I will sleep in Toronto to-night, and not out in this God-forsaken country." Both he and his companion seemed very anxious for the arrival of the express which was to carry them to the city. They were well-dressed men and both carried watches, which they consulted every few minutes.

Presently the small man who was pacing the platform came to the waiting-room door and beckoned the two Scott Act officers towards him. They responded and stepped outside.

Then followed the scene. The little man caught Dennen, who is a stout, well-built fellow of 27, by the lapel of the coat and said: "Come and take a walk with me." This Dennen positively and peremptorily refused to do, and jerked himself loose of the other man's hold. Quick as a flash two revolvers were drawn, one by each man. McCrea, who was standing near by, also drew a revolver. There was a rapid clatter of exploding fire arms, which much resembled the popping of a bunch of firecrackers. Just who fired the first shot the reporter, who was an eye-witness to the affair, is unable to say. Dennen and his antagonist began peppering at each other at close quarters. Then the antagonist sank to the platform with three bullet holes in his body, two in the breast and one in the leg.

Three or four men rushed from the back of the station, all with revolvers in their hands. Click, click, click, click went the weapons. Over a dozen shots were fired. And it was all over in less than three minutes. The wounded man lay groaning on the platform. His supposed companions fled in the darkness behind the station. McCrea and Dennen rushed into the waiting-room with their smoking weapons in their hands. Dennen also carried the revolver of the man who had fallen, having wrestled it from his grasp. The little crowd inside didn't know which way to turn or what to do. The station agent had locked his office and was nowhere visible. All attempts to get into his apartment proved futile.

The affair was so sudden, so startling and so mysterious to the people in the waiting-room that they were paralyzed with fear.

In the meantime the man in the coonskin coat picked up the wounded man and carried him to the back of the station, and he sank down on a doorstep. He groaned heavily and gasped for breath. Then it became known that he was George Brown, bartender at the St. Charles Hotel in Port Perry. Light began to dawn on the reporter and the others around the platform. It had been a lively fusilade between liquor men and two Scott Act detectives. The reporter asked the man in the coonskin coat what Brown was doing at the station. He said: "Oh, he came over from Port Perry to see a friend off on the Toronto train. I drove him over in a buggy."

"Who were the parties that ran off"

"I don't know anything about them," replied Mr. Coonskin.

Then Mr. Coonskin held a lamp before the wounded man's face and said "Poor George." Brown lay there still breathing heavily and groaning.

"Go for a doctor," shouted three or four people. No one seemed to know where a doctor was to be had. The nearest one was at Brooklin, five miles distant. Mr. Coonskin had a buggy tied to the platform but he made no move toward summoning a doctor.

No one can imagine how it was, considering the number of shots that were fired, that only Brown was wounded. Perhaps some of those that ran off had bullets in them.

While all this lively commotion was going on, and while the bullets were yet flying in the air, the headlight of the express train could be seen down the track. She came thundering along and soon reached the water-tank. McCrea and Dennen were preparing to board her. They had their tickets, and no effort was made to prevent them going on board. There was no officer of any kind around. The train pulled up from the water-tank. All the Toronto passengers got aboard, and McCrea and Dennen took seats in the smoking car. Some one yelled to Agent Scott: "Telegraph to Toronto to have them arrested." These instructions Agent Scott carried out.

The train sped on to the city and the greatest excitement prevailed amongst the passengers, the word having been passed around that a murder had been committed at Myrtle Station and that the murderers were on the train. Old Farmer Forest, who was very much excited, was surrounded by a large crowd in the smoking-car, and kept repeating the story of the shooting. About all he could say was that it put him in mind of a bunch of firecrackers going off. Conductor Rogers and his crew walked up and down past McCrea and Dennen, eyeing them suspiciously.

The reporter, after the train left Myrtle, put himself in active communication with the two detectives. They talked freely. Dennen claimed that if it were his bullets that struck Brown, it was done in self-defence.

"Brown drew on me first," he said, "and I had to shoot in self-defence. Seven or eight shots were fired at me, and one of the gang struck me with a club. They certainly wanted to kill McCrea and myself. There must have been four of them altogether."

"Who were they and what was the trouble?" asked the reporter.

"Well," began Dennen, who displayed no signs of nervousness, "you see my partner and myself have been making numerous Scott Act convictions in the County of Ontario. We have been at work a couple of weeks and have scared the life out of the whole liquor trade of the county. We finished our work in Brooklin to-day with several convictions and we were going to start in at Port Perry to-morrow. You know the Whitby and Port Perry railroad runs through Myrtle, and when the evening train passed through for the Port the brakesman saw us standing on the platform. As soon as he got to Port Perry he reported that the two Scott Act detectives who had been doing Brooklin, and who were due in the former town on Thursday, were at Myrtle station. It was then that the gang was organized at Port Perry to come over to Myrtle to murder us. It is not their fault that they did not succeed. You saw yourself how near they came."

McCrea and Dennen held several close conferences as to what they should do when they got to Toronto. After the train left Green River they called the reporter over to them and said: "We have determined to give ourselves up when we get to Toronto. There is one thing we dread, however. We will be taken to Whitby for trial, and it as much as our lives are worth to be locked up in that jail. We would be mobbed or lynched. Besides, we might be kept in jail for six months waiting for a trial, and it was all done in self-defence. Brown and his gang tried to murder us. We know we would get no justice in Whitby and it is a pretty hard matter to think of giving ourselves up."

Dennen especially reviewed the case with intelligence, and he stoutly maintained that the shooting was done in self-defence. He freely answered all questions put to him by the reporter.

At Agincourt, the first station east of North Toronto, the men made a move as if to leave the train. They could easily have done so. No one would have prevented them. However they took up a position at the forward end of the smoking car, evidently intent on making the best of an emergency. Then they took another walk down the car, and McCrea said to Dennen: "We will get off the train, take a walk around for an hour or so, and then give ourselves up." Dennen replied that he expected that there would be plenty of police at North Toronto depot to arrest them. The pair then went outside and stood on the north steps of the car. The train was nearing North Toronto. The brakesman stood on the city side of the train ready to spring to the platform and inform the officers that the pair had jumped from the other side.

Slish went the train over Yonge-street. She began to slacken. Dennen and McCrea jumped and the latter stumbled. Detective McGrath, G. T. Detective Spence and half a dozen policemen were scurrying about the yard. McCrea and Dennen had taken to their heels. Policeman Archibald was quick enough to grab McCrea, but Dennen got away. McCrea, surrounded by the entire force, was escorted to the North Toronto Station and locked up. He had given his revolver to Dennen, and in the little satchel that he carried was a number of "patented" appliances, which he said he used for Scott Act infringers. These he explained to the police in the station. McCrea said he was sure Dennen would give himself up, but up to an early hour this morning he had not done so, nor had he been arrested.

The telegram from Myrtle to the police to be on the look out for McCrae and Dennen was slow in reaching the city. It was sent to North Toronto. The station master here telephoned down to the Yorkville Station, and from there a message was telephoned to Headquarters. Detectives McGrath and Spence were in the station, but they did not reach North Toronto until the train was just swinging over Yonge-street. By this time the men had jumped. The detectives were not up soon enough to surround the train.

It is impossible for Brown to recover. He has two bullets in his breast and one in his leg. Dr. Starr of Brooklin arrived to his assistance about 9 o'clock and was doing everything in his power for him. At 1.30 this morning The World received a message from Myrtle saying that Brown could not possibly live through the night. His wounds were undoubtedly fatal. He was being cared for in the office of Agent Scott.

2.30 a.m.—Brown is sinking rapidly and cannot recover.

The news had spread rapidly throughout Ontario County, and word was received in the city that the most intense excitement prevailed throughout the district. The great question asked was: "Who were the men that accompanied Brown to Myrtle and where did they come from?"

A Toronto gentleman who reached the city from Whitby last night said that the excitement there when he left was intense, and that if McCrea or Dennen could be got hold of they would undoubtedly be killed. That a man who was so well known there should be shot by a "whisky detective" was considered an infamous crime, and there were people there who would wreak quick vengeance. The first intimation that was received at Whitby was at 8 o'clock, when Brown's brother received a telegram telling of the shooting and asking that Dr. Warren, a popular physician of that town, proceed to Myrtle at once. Dr. Warren was at that time in consultation with a gentleman at a hotel, but he immediately started for Myrtle.

BAD NEWS FROM SAN REMO

THE CROWN PRINCE'S THROAT HAS SUDDENLY BECOME WORSE.

The Cancerous Growth Has Re-appeared Accompanied by Swelling, and the Symptoms Are Said To Be Alarming—A Consultation To Be Held.

SAN REMO, Dec. 14.—The doctors in examining the Crown Prince last evening discovered symptoms of a fresh growth and an increase in the swelling. A special consultation of medical experts was determined upon. Dr. Mackenzie will attend at the request of the Crown Prince.

Alarming Symptoms.

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—Despatches received here report that the condition of the German Crown Prince's throat has suddenly become worse, and that a special medical consultation has been called at San Remo. This, the report says, explains Dr. Mackenzie's hurried departure from England.

Deplorable Results.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A despatch from San Remo says the Crown Prince's symptoms are alarming. The tumor has spread rapidly with deplorable results.

THE ORANGEVILLE OUTRAGE.

A Man Who is Suspected of Knowing Something About the Dynamite Explosion.

ORANGEVILLE, Dec. 14.—George Robinson was yesterday arrested at Hillsburgh on a warrant issued by Mr. Gray, Police Magistrate of the County of Dufferin, and lodged in Orangeville jail under a charge of having been implicated in the dynamite outrage at the house of License-Inspector Anderson on the night of Nov. 15 last. The prisoner had been in Orangeville for several months, but went to Hillsburgh about the time of the explosion. His life recently has been somewhat reckless, spending his time about the lowest groggeries in the society of the most depraved characters. The Ontario Government is doing all in its power to bring to justice the guilty parties. Detective Rogers has been here for some time past working up the case.

The prisoner was taken before Mr. Gray, Police Magistrate, this morning. J. P. Macmillan, County Attorney, appeared for the Crown, and had the prisoner remanded for three days. Other arrests will shortly be made. The County Attorney is reticent as to the character of the evidence against the prisoner. Startling developments are likely to come to the surface within the next few days.

TO REGULATE IMMIGRATION.

A Bill to Exclude Criminals, Paupers and Idiots From the United States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The bill to regulate immigration introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator Reagan authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint inspectors of immigration who shall have the power to board vessels and remove immigrants therefrom in order to ascertain whether they are prohibited from landing under this act. The master of the vessel must produce a certificate for each immigrant, showing that such immigrant is neither a criminal, a pauper nor an idiot, and is not an "assisted immigrant," nor under contract to labor in the United States. It is made unlawful for anybody interdicted by this act to enter the country. All such unfit persons shall be returned at the expense of the owners of the immigrant vessel.

A Letter from Boulanger.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 14.—The Novoe Vremya publishes in its Paris correspondence a letter from General Boulanger to M. Sasinl, member of the Chamber of Deputies, declining the latter's offer to surrender his seat in General Boulanger's favor. The General writes that he considers it a patriotic duty to adhere to his military position in view of the fact that he expects a war and concludes by declaring that France has a greater need of generals than of deputies.

The West Middlesex Case.

STRATHROY, Dec. 14.—The inquiry into the charges of the petition to unseat Dr. Roome was resumed to-day before Judge Falconbridge, several of the charges were dismissed. The judge ordered the arrest of Samuel Carroll of Adelaide for perjury while giving testimony upon one of the charges. The hearing will be resumed to-morrow.

Mr. Fenwick W. Hamilton Wants Damages.

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—Fenwick W. Hamilton has taken an action for $10,000 damages against the proprietors of The Star for alleged libel in connection with Mrs. Middleton's leaving Ottawa.

Held on a Charge of Murder.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—John and Charles Carroll, farmers of the township of Caradoc, near Strathroy, were arrested to-day charged with having murdered the wife of the last named prisoner on Oct. 1. Mrs. Carroll was found hanging dead in a barn, and the prisoners are suspected of killing her to get her property. They have been remanded till Tuesday.

A Crown Princess in a Critical Condition.

LISBON, Dec. 14.—The Crown Princess was to-day delivered of a daughter. The infant lived only two hours. The mother is in a critical condition. The Crown Princess, who is a daughter of the Count of Paris, is 23 years old and was married to the Crown Prince on May 22, 1886.

Powderly Needs Rest.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 14.—General Master Workman Powderly was resting comfortably at his home in High Park this evening. His physician says his case is not a serious one. He only needs rest.

For forty years, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been demonstrated to be the most reliable remedy in use, for colds, coughs, and lung diseases. Slight colds should not be neglected. The Pectoral will prevent their becoming chronic.

ARMED EUROPE.

Cable dispatches have for some days been telling of a war scare on the boundary between Russia and Austria. Russia, it is said, is massing troops in that quarter and Austria is watching their movements carefully.

War rumors arise regularly, and sometimes it does not require much to start them. It may be, and probably will be, that this rumour will end as others have done—in reports different from those made by the discharge of firearms and artillery. Yet the large number of men kept continually armed is a menace to the peace of the world. If not only the jealousy of the nations that may cause disputes and an outbreak of hostilities. The powers are not only jealous of their neighbors increasing their influence by acquiring additional territory, but frequently something like a fear of an invasion on the part of one into the territory of another is seen.

The scene where hostilities are expected or feared shifts ripidly. Now it is Germany and France that are at daggers drawn, then trouble is feared between England and Russia, again Russia and Germany are on anything but familiar terms, and now Russia and Austria are jealously watching each other. It is worth noticing that Russia causes the most anxiety. Russia should be checked, and the triple alliance, which included Germany, Austria and Italy with England behind them, was believed to have checked the bear, but if his growl is actually heard on Austria's frontier the alliance may not be as effectual as was hoped in securing continued peace.

The number of people born into the world goes on increasing over the number who die and it is only a question of time before there will not be room enough for everybody, unless some of them either live underground or climb up trees—Toronto Telegram.

The "question of time" robs this statement of much of its power to alarm. The digging of underground abodes may be postponed for a century or two yet—except in Dakota, where a cyclone cellar is often very useful on account of the overgrown storm.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Lumber Dues.

Mr. J. M. Irwin, of Peterborough, and Mr. M. M. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, formed part of a large deputation of lumbermen that waited upon the Hon. O. Mowat at Toronto on Wednesday. The dues have been doubled and the ground rent increased from $2 to $3. The lumbermen complained of this, as when they purchased they had calculated on the dues and rent then in force, and they asked that the present rates be fixed for twenty years. Mr. Mowat gave reasons why the Government thought the request could not be complied with.

After the ceremony lunch was taken at the residence of the bride's mother and Mr. and Mrs. Nethercott went to their new home on Edinburgh street. The wedding presents were exceedingly handsome, including a fine one from the Examiner office, where Miss Chrow was employed, and from the Giant T. from Mr. Nethercott's employer.

MRS. YOUMANS ON TEMPERANCE.

A Meeting Held in Bradburn's Opera House by the W. C. T. U.

A meeting was held in Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which was addressed by Mrs. Youmans, the well known temperance lecturer,

There were on the platform:—Mrs Kendry, Mrs. Fitzgerald, Miss Sanderson and others.

Dr. FIPS occupied the chair and said that this meeting was held by the W.C.T.U. In introducing the speaker of the evening he spoke of protection. He said that some years ago the "protection" wave swept over Canada. Everything was now protected, manufacturers and farmers, and even fish and game. They came to agitate for protection for boys and girls and those who were tempted to be drunkards.

Mrs. YOUMANS was introduced. She commenced by the announcement that each year there were seven thousand drunkards regularly going down to the grave in Canada—every year. The Bible told them that no drunkard could enter the Kingdom of Heaven. How could they get this idea right down into their hearts. She thought that if seven thousand funerals were to pass by, or if seven thousand coffins were brought in, if seven thousand spirits of the departed drunkards were to arise and present themselves, it would help them to realize this awful fact. It would be her duty to-night, not to present anything new, but to try to get the people to put what was in their heads down to their hearts and to have it come out through their lives. They believed the Bible, but they did not seem to get the belief down to the heart. She mentioned a town in Ohio where it struck her the people believed the Bible. If a man came to the town to open a saloon or billiard room the people would not let him do business. The women crusaded him and the men dogged him till he left town She gave a description of alcoholic beverages and cited authority to show that they were one and all poison and had no strengthening power in them. She spoke of the regulations prevailing in regard to the sale of poisons and stated that this Scott Act was one of them. It should be as rigidly enforced as any other. She asked if any one wanted to see the Scott Act repealed. If there were let the man stand up. No one stood up. She then discussed the objections made to the Scott Act. Some wanted the liquor traffic regulated. Might as well try to regulate the yellow fever or cholera. Some wanted the groggeries suppressed. It was her opinion that the high-toned hotels were the worst. Some said that you couldn't make men sober by Act of Parliament. Yes, you could. There were about three hundred men made sober by Act of Parliament in the Central Prison. And who were those who wanted the Scott Act repealed? The liquor men. But why? They said that there was more liquor sold under the Scott Act than under the license law. Why were they so anxious to get it repealed? She was afraid that there was a missing link somewhere. She spoke of the advance of temperance interests and the workings of prohibitory measures in Canada and the United States. She concluded with advising the electors to vote in the coming municipal election according to the dictates of their conscience.

HOORA FOR THE BENEDICTS.

The State of the Married Man is the Acme of Happiness—So It's Said.

On Wednesday night there was quite a large company of people assembled in the Murray Street School house to hear the oratory of the speakers which the Debating Society in connection with St. Peter's Cathedral is bringing to the front.

The subject of debate was:—"Resolved—That the state of the married man is preferable to that of the single man." Councillor Cahill took the floor in behalf of the benedicts, being supported by Mr. P. Begley, Dr. Collins and Mr. J. J. Sheehy were the young men who tried to convince the audience of the supernal bliss of bachelorhood.

Councillor CAHILL made a great oration. He took his audience by the hand and led it away back over the centuries till he came to the shadowy dawn of creation. He rested here and pointed out the divine origin of the married state and then by degrees brought the audience back to the present day. During his meandering he gave the audience several glimpses of the married man's joys and at the same time threw a shadow upon the thorny pathway which the unhappy bachelors were compelled to tread. His conclusion was made up of arguments both conclusive and original.

Mr. P. BEGLEY endorsed every word the leader had said. He gave the young fellows advice as to the importance of getting the nupital knot tied as soon as possible.

Dr. COLLINS made a determined stand for the bachelors. The slings and arrows of the married man's outrageous fortune were set before the audience in all their glaring bareness.

Mr. SHEEHY seemed to argue on the losing side. He was quite confident of being able to hold up the end of the argument for the bachelors successfully till Councillor Cahill's eloquence was heard. This seemed to break him up altogether. He is to be credited, however, with giving the best possible presentation of his side of the question, considering the circumstances and the fact that there were a large number of handsome young ladies in the audience.

Mr. MCILMOYLE, the Chairman, after weighing the arguments, found that the scale went in favor of the married men with a great deal of emphasis.

A recitation was given by Mr. John O'Meara, songs by the Misses Dunn, Dr. Collins and Miss McDonald, and a reading by Dr. Collins. The company dispersed after spending a very pleasant evening.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. Robert Rowe Falls in a Swoon—His Death Almost Immediate.

The sudden death of Mr. Robert Rowe, an old and respected citizen, caused serious concern among the townspeople this morning. It was only yesterday afternoon that, as was his custom, he was in Mr. Stevenson's office chatting and chaffing with those employed there. At ten o'clock last night he was taken ill with an old standing kidney trouble. Dr. Pigeon was called in and relief was given. Mr. Rowe bade the doctor good night, going as far as the door to light him out. He went to bed and this morning at about eight o'clock he arose and walked into the bathroom. He was found there prostrated and when medical aid arrived he was just gasping his last.

The deceased was born in the County of Wexford, Ireland, being the son of the late Robert Rowe, gentleman, of Newton-Barry of that county. Bishop Pounding, of the Church of England, was his uncle. When but a lad he left home, crossed the Atlantic and spent his early manhood in the Maritime Provinces. He came to Peterborough in 1841 and carried on business as a contractor. Many of the buildings, the business buildings especially, were erected under his direction. The whole of the west side of George street, from Hunter street to Simcoe street, was built by him. His occupation during the late years of his life was that of lending money.

In the year 1852 he married Isabella Marshall, aunt of Mrs. (Edgcombe) Pearce. His widow alone survives him.

As a citizen Mr. Rowe was much respected. He was careful and shrewd in business and conservative in his habits. The confidence of the townspeople in him was shown by his unanimous appointment for many years to the office of Assessor, the duties of which office he voluntary gave up. He was an English churchman in religion and a Liberal-Conservative in politics.

Only a few days ago Mr. Rowe and another old resident were walking up Water street together. The conversation turned on the town's appearance some forty years ago. Mr. Rowe then counted over those who still remained of those who at that time resided here, and only about twelve could be named. He little thought then that he would so soon be numbered among the majority.

THE MARKET REPORTS.

Local and Foreign Markets.

REVIEW OFFICE, Dec. 15th, 1887.

The local market during the week has been fairly active, although a considerable quantity of barley has been marketed. Notwithstanding cargo deliveries already made a good deal yet remains in the hands of farmers who have inferred that prices would advance—a contingency not likely to take place. Prices for barley are steady, but it is recognized that malsters on the other side have laid in the bulk of their supply. Wheat is coming in in fair amounts, but from facts ascertained by local buyers it is felt that the quantity to be marketed in the county is below the average in quantity while up in quality. For local uses some Manitoba wheat is being brought which has some influence in regard to prices. Local millers are using a large quantity of home grown wheat, the balance taken in being for shipment. The ruling price for wheat in the local market stands at 82 c. Produce is in good demands; butter, eggs, poultry and vegetables, are picked up at good prices.

Chicago grain market reports continue to show a decrease in the supply available compared with receipts up to same date of last year. Both Chicago and New York grain markets are reported weaker and prices have dropped. Liverpool market is reported as firm with wheat in demand.

Montreal Live Stock Market.

The Gazette of Tuesday says:—At Point St. Charles cattle yards this morning an active business was done in cattle, and there was a better feeling as the offerings were not large and the quality was better. The demand for export cattle during the past week has been slow while the offerings have been light, and we do not hear of any sales being made, but prices are steady and holders asking 4c @ 4¼ c per lb. live weight. There was an active demand for butchers' cattle and a brisk business was done, consequently the market was stronger and prices advanced ½c on inside figures, and at the advance most of the cattle were bought up, in fact some buyers could not fill their wants with the right class of cattle, and sales were made freely at 3c at 3½ c per lb. live weight. There was also a good demand for sheep, of which the supply was fair and an active business was done with prices steady at 3c @ 3½ c per lb. live weight.

British Live Stock Trade.

The Gazette Cable of Tuesday reports:—Receipts from Canada and the United States have been light, but the offerings from other quarters fairly glutted the markets, resulting in a dragging trade at barely steady prices. Prime Canadian steers were at 10½c, good to choice at 10 c, poor to medium at 9 c, and inferior and bulls at 6½ c @ 8c. The offerings of sheep have continued excessive, and owing to the poor demand as compared with the supply prices have dropped one cent.

Fire in a Swamp.

The following are the circumstances of the Lynn-Rose case tried by the County Court:—John Rose, of the Township of Dummer, during last summer set a fire in a log in one of the fields on his farm. The fire spread; but it was confined within narrow limits for two months. Finally a high wind rose and blew the embers all over the neighborhood. Mr. Rose's swamp and those of Messrs. Moore and Smith were burned. The fire also got into Joseph Lynn's swamp and did damage. Mr. Lynn brought a action for damages against Mr. Rose, to recover $200. The jury after hearing the evidence, brought in a verdict for $85. Mr. Stone for plaintiff; Mr. Burnham for defendant.

Personal.

The Port Hope Times contains an account of a presentation from the Methodist church of Canton to Mr. Joseph Jones, previous to his departure for Peterborough. Mr. Jones, who was leader of the choir, was presented with an address and an easy chair and Mrs. Jones with a silver fruit dish. Mr. Jones is spoken of as being excelled by none as a builder of mills.

THOS. KELLY'S

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry goods over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practic to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

TUHRSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1887.

NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Return of Hon. Mr. Foster from the Washington Conference.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—In the Supreme Court this morning judgment was given in the Prince Edward Island election case of Hackett v. Perry, the appeal being dismissed and Perry (Liberal) confirmed in his seat. Chief Justice Ritchie, in delivering judgment, said he did not consider it necessary to go into the question of the resignation of a member elected to sit in the Local Legislature of Prince Edward Island between the time of his election and the first meeting of the House, as the fact that Perry had become interested with Crossman in a ferry contract with the Local Government, vacated his seat in the Local House, and rendered him eligible to run for the Commons. All the judges concurred except Judge Taschereau, who was absent, but who is understood to have dissented. The following judgments are also given: McKinnon v. Kerosck, motion to quash for want of jurisdiction dismissed with costs. On the merits the appeal was dismissed without costs, the Court being equally divided. McKercher v. Sanderson, appeal allowed with costs. The Queen v. Farwell, appeal allowed with costs. This case was founded on a claim upon certain lands near the Columbia River, in the Kootenay district, under a grant and letters patent executed by the Province of British Columbia.

Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, returned from Washington to-day, being the first of the Canadian contingent to reach the city. Hon. Mr. Thompson is expected to-morrow, and Sir Charles Tupper, who is in Winnipeg, will be here on Dec. 20. With regard to the Commission, Mr. Foster said: "The Commissioners held many meetings, when the different points were thoroughly discussed. As to what progress has been made, this is a matter known only to them. I understood, however, that some progress had been made and that the prospects of an agreement being reached are not forbidding. The reports telegraphed abroad regarding the sittings are rather absurd."

MONTREAL'S DETECTIVE CROOKS.

Maxwell in His Evidence Shows That He is Employed by the Grand Trunk.

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—Detective Fahey denies that he made any such statements as are contained in one of the papers here, purporting to be his line of defence, which charges him with stating that Pinkerton's men sent him a photo of an escaped convict who had been sentenced to a seven years' term, and asked the Montreal detective to be on the look out, and that when Wilson appeared here he was spotted by Fahey as the man wanted, and so they were leading him on to see how far he would go.

Detective Maxwell continued his evidence to-day, and it is learned that he stated that he was formerly City Marshal of Valparaiso, Ind., leaving that position to become chief detective of the Chicago and Grand Trunk, and that he had often been arrested but never convicted in connection with cases, the same as in this one.

Mr. Fahey's chief clerk received a telegram from R. A. Pinkerton, in which he states that he does not know Wilson or Maxwell or any detective mentioned in the newspapers as being connected with Fahey's arrest.

BANDED ASSASSINS.

The London Times Warns the Authorities That Murder is Afoot.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The Times states on the authority of a Parnellite, who stipulates that his name must not be disclosed, that Dr. Hamilton Williams of New York succeeds O'Donovan Rossa in the leadership of the extreme Nationalists in New York, and that Williams has a fund of £200,000 at his disposal to organize assassination and dynamite explosions by sending to England Irish-American agents, who do not work directly, but endeavor to find men among the criminals of large towns to assassinate public men and conduct dynamite explosions. These men are now at work, and are well supplied with funds. The Times' informant also states that two hundred weight of dynamite has been stored in London, but he professes to be unaware of its exact locality. The Times hopes that the police, on the strength of this statement, will be able to discover the dynamiters.

The War Scare Abated.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The war scare has completely abated. The National Zeitung and other papers are raising a protest against semi-official newspapers continuing to disturb the public mind to the detriment of business. The only apparent object, says the National Zeitung, of the recent press campaign, was to startle Austria from her comforting military optimism.

The Landlords' Last Chance.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14.—At the convention of land lords here Mr. Trench, agent of Lord Lansdowne, advocated state advances to landlords to enable them to pay mortgages, accepting rentals as security. Mr. Everard favored the proposal and said it was the landlords' last chance.

An Ontario Liberal Unseated.

PICTON, Ont., Dec. 14.—Judge Patterson to-day declared the election of J. A. Sprague, Liberal, representing Prince Edward in the Ontario Legislature, void with costs to petitioner.

The Member ... Unseated.

MORRISBURG, Dec. 14.—The election of Dr. Chamberlain to the Ontario Legislature was voided to-day on the grounds of bribery by agents. The court opened yesterday, and this morning the lawyer for the respondent gave up the case, and the petition was sustained with costs.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

She abruptly pulled down her veil. "Destiny may do that yet!" she said. "The Palace hotel!" she repeated, speaking once more to herself. "The old hell transformed into the new purgatory. The place itself!" She paused and laid her hand on her companion's arm. "Perhaps Miss Lockwood is not going there with the rest of you!" she burst out with sudden eagerness. "Are you positively sure she will be at the hotel?"

"Positively! Haven't I told you that Miss Lockwood travels with Lord and Lady Montbarry!" And don't you know that she is a member of the family! You will have to move, countess, to our hotel."

She was perfectly impenetrable to the bantering tone in which he spoke. "Yes," she said, faintly, "I shall have to move to your hotel." Her hand was still on his arm; he could feel her shivering from head to foot while she spoke. Heartily as he disliked and distrusted her, the common instinct of humanity obliged him to ask if she felt cold.

"Yes," she said; "cold and faint."

"Cold and faint, countess, on such a night as this!"

"The night has nothing to do with it, Mr. Westwick. How do you suppose the criminal feels on the scaffold while the hangman is putting the rope round his neck? Cold and faint, too, I should think. Excuse my grim fancy. You see destiny has got the rope round my neck—and I feel it."

She looked about her. They were at that moment close to the famous cafe known as "Florian's." "Take me in there," she said.

"I must have something to revive me. You had better not hesitate. You are interested in reviving me. I have not said what I wanted to yet. It's business, and it's connected with your theatre."

Wondering inwardly what she could possibly want with his theatre, Francis reluctantly yielded to the necessities of the situation and took her into the cafe. He found a quiet corner in which they could take their places without attracting notice. "What will you have?" he inquired, resignedly. She gave her own orders to the waiter, without troubling him to speak for her.

"Maraschino. And a pot of tea."

The waiter stared; Francis stared. The tea was a novelty (in connection with maraschino) to both of them. Careless whether she surprised them or not, she instructed the waiter, when her instructions had been complied with, to pour a large wineglassful of the liquor into a tumbler and fill it up from the teapot. "I can't do it for myself," she remarked, "my hand trembles so." She drank the strange mixture eagerly, hot as it was. "Maraschino punch—will you taste some of it?" she said. "I inherit the discovery of this drink. When your English queen, Caroline, was on the continent my mother was attached to her court. That much injured royal person invented in her happier hours maraschino punch. Fondly attached to her gracious mistress, my mother shared her tastes. And I, in my turn, learned from my mother. Now, Mr. Westwick, suppose I tell you what my business is. You are manager of a theatre. Do you want a new play?"

"I always want a new play—provided it's a good one."

"And you pay, if it's a good one?"

"I pay liberally—in my own interests."

"If I write a play will you read it?"

Francis hesitated.

"What has put writing a play into your head?" he asked.

"Mere accident," she answered. "I had once occasion to tell my late brother of a visit I paid to Miss Lockwood when I was last in England. He took no interest in what happened at the interview, but something struck him in my way of relating it. He said: 'You describe what passed between you and the lady with the point and contrast of good stage dialogue. You have the dramatic instinct—try if you can write a play. You might make money.' That put it into my head."

These last words seemed to startle Francis. "Surely, you don't want money!" he exclaimed.

"I always want money. My tastes are expensive. I have nothing but my poor little four hundred a year—and the wreck that is left of the other money. About £200 in circular notes, no more."

Francis knew that she was referring to the £10,000 paid by the insurance offices.

"All those thousands gone already!" he exclaimed.

She blew a puff of air over her fingers.

"Gone like that!" she answered, coolly.

"Baron Rivarl!"

She looked at him with a flash of anger in her hard black eyes.

"My affairs are my own secret, Mr. Westwick. I have made you a proposal—and you have not answered me yet. Don't say no, without thinking first. Remember what a life mine has been. I have seen more of the world than most people, playwrights included. I have had strange adventures; I have heard remarkable stories; I have observed; I have remembered. Are there no materials here in my head for writing a play—if the opportunity is granted to me?" She waited a moment and suddenly repeated her strange question about Agnes. "When is Miss Lockwood expected to be in Venice?"

"What has that to do with your new play, countess?"

The countess appeared to feel some difficulty in giving the question its fit reply. She mixed another tumblerful of the maraschino punch and drank one good half of it before she spoke again.

"It has everything to do with my new play," was all she said. "Answer me." Francis answered her.

"Miss Lockwood may be here in a week. Or, for all I know to the contrary, sooner than that."

"Very well. If I am a living woman and a free woman in a week's time—or if I am in possession of my senses in a week's time (don't interrupt me; I know what I am talking about) I shall go to England, and I shall write a sketch or outline of my play as a specimen of what I can do. Once again, will you read it?"

"I will certainly read it. But, countess, I don't understand."

She held up her hand for silence, and finished the second tumbler of maraschino punch.

"I am a living enigma—and you want to know the right reading of me," she said. "Here is the reading, as your English phrase goes, in a nutshell. There is a foolish idea in the minds of many persons that the natives of the warm climates are imaginative people.

BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH

THE VICTIM OF THE MYRTLE STATION AFFAIR STILL LIVES.

Intense Excitement in the County of Ontario—The Party Who Accompanied Bartender Brown—Their Claim They Were Unarmed.

MYRTLE STATION, Dec. 16.

Hovering between life and death, and tossing nervously on a couch in a darkened room in Vernon's little hotel, near Myrtle Station, was to be found George Brown, the victim of the platform fusilade, at 7 o'clock last evening. All day long Brown had given unmistakable evidences of the pain he was suffering, notwithstanding that he had been put under powerful opiates. The reporter had seen him at 10.30 in the morning, and his condition was unchanged when he called in the evening at the hour named. Dr. Starr and Dr. Warren of Brooklin and Dr. Clemens of Port Perry had been with him from late Wednesday evening until early yesterday morning. Dr. Warren was the last to leave yesterday. In answer to the reporter's enquiries as to Brown's chances of recovery, he shook his head ominously. All efforts to find the bullets which entered the chest have proved ineffectual. The doctors make no secret that his chances of recovery are very, very doubtful. He may live for some days. His wife, little boy and two brothers were at his bedside almost throughout the day.

There is still a wide diversity of opinion as to how the shooting started and how many were engaged in it. Even the eye-witnesses of the affair, so sudden and unexpected was it, are puzzled about its origin. As far as we could learn yesterday, it was the original intention of the liquor men of Brooklin to give McCrea and Dennen a good thrashing ere they left that town, but the "detectives" managed to give them the slip, and then to reach Myrtle. It is now said that a commercial traveler carried the word to Port Perry that the two men were at Myrtle chuckling over their success in Brooklin and their prospective conquests in the Port. This seems to have exasperated the wet apostles in the Port, and so the party was organised to go to Myrtle and warm the "detectives."

The party, as far as could be learned, was composed of William Lattimore, Fred Corbin (better known as the "Jersey Lily"), Tom. Trebell and the wounded man. All of these men, except Brown, stoutly maintain that they were unarmed, and that they ran off the platform as soon as the firing began. They say that the spectators of the affair were so confused with what was going on that they could not tell who was really firing. Trebell claims that while he was running from the platform McCrea deliberately fired at him. He also says that he had taken no further part in the row than to catch hold of Dennen and try and make him desist firing. Trebell says he was unarmed.

County Crown Attorney Farewell sent a couple of telegrams to Myrtle during the day enquiring whether the wounded man was in a condition to make a statement. No favorable answer having been sent Mr. Farewell did not put in an appearance. However, during the afternoon Magistrate M. G. Robinson of Port Perry went to Vernon's Hotel and took the wounded man's statement. To The World in the evening Brown gave a similar statement, adding that he "might never live to see morning." He said Dennen wrested his revolver from him before he had a chance to fire. "Besides," added the wounded man with great pain, "my pistol was not loaded. I had cartridges in my pocket, but there were none in the revolver. This is the truth. I was shot by both men. Dennen shot me first in the chest, then McCrea shot me a second afterwards, an inch below Dennen's wound. I was not hit in the leg as the doctors at first supposed. I had a scuffle with Dennen, but did not mean to shoot him. I merely wanted to ask him why he intended to prosecute me after I had used him so well."

"Were your companions armed and how many shots did they fire?" asked the reporter.

"If they had revolvers I did not see them fire. I think the people on the platform were so excited that they did not know who did the firing."

To a friend of his who called in the morning, the wounded man complained very bitterly about his companions deserting him when he had become disarmed and was in close quarters.

Numerous comments were elicited during the day from the Scott Act element in different parts of the county. Many of these were prone to believe that more of the Port Perry crowd than Brown were armed. They took the ground also that the party had no right to go to Myrtle to even threaten the "detectives" by their presence. The fact of Brown having a pistol at all was an indication that they meant mischief and intended harm to Dennen and McCrea. Said one prominent Scott Acter: "They should have allowed the 'officers of the law' to depart in peace."

The affair has engendered a more bitter feeling than ever between the wet and dry parties.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning Dennen entered the detectives' room at Toronto Police Headquarters and surrendered himself, handing over a "Defender" revolver with all the seven chambers loaded, and which he said was his own; also a "Lone Star," with five of seven chambers emptied, which he said he had taken from Brown. Dennen said that Brown had three times snapped a pistol in his face without it exploding. McCrea and Dennen appeared in the Police Court yesterday and were remanded to jail to await warrants from Ontario County.

A great deal of speculation was indulged in throughout the county because of Dennen and McCrea being so heavily armed. The men claimed at Myrtle, after the shooting, that they had been told by Police Magistrate Horne that they could "carry all the guns they wished in the county."

A message from Myrtle received at 1.30 this morning says that the wounded man was then "resting easy." A doctor was in attendance.

IN RUNNING ORDER AGAIN.

The New French Ministers' Declaration—It Promises Retrenchment in Expenditures and other Reforms.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, on motion of M. Sarrien, Minister of the Interior, the discussion of the alleged revolutionary plotting among the members of the Paris Municipal Council was adjourned for a month.

M. Sarrien declared that the facts were exaggerated. The Government would enforce respect for the laws in Paris, and in every other part of the country.

The declaration of the Ministers was read. It declares that the Cabinet's sole ambition is to continue the work of concord begun on Dec. 2. The country will perceive that this policy will ensure the pledge of internal peace. The declaration cites the military, financial and economic administrative and social measures that the Government will submit.

The declaration promises a financial equilibrium through retrenchment in expenditures, measures for the repression of frauds injurious alike to the treasury and to French trade, bills dealing with the responsibility for accidents in workshops and factories, and the regulation of the hours of labor of children and women, bills providing for a superannuation fund for miners, reform of the bankruptcy laws and the safety of miners, and bills relating to benefit societies, savings banks; organized poor relief in rural districts, and for the extension of agriculture and the completion of the rural code. Finally the declaration demands the united Republican vote upon the ministerial scheme of military legislation. The reading of the declaration was received with indifference.

The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 521 to 13, passed the appropriation asked by the Government.

THE QUEEN HAS GOOD NEWS.

The Reports Regarding the Crown Prince Are Exaggerated.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Official Court Circular says that the Queen has received a reassuring report from San Remo concerning the German Crown Prince's condition and that the newspaper telegrams about the Prince are inaccurate or exaggerated.

Dr. Mackenzie at San Remo.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—Dr. Mackenzie reached San Remo this evening and immediately visited the Crown Prince. After examining the throat Dr. Mackenzie declared that he found no dangerous symptoms.

The Queen to Visit San Remo.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Villa Evelina at San Remo has been taken for the Queen, who will go there either the middle of next month or about the third week of March. Prince Christian, who left Windsor on Sunday evening for Berlin, is charged by the Queen with a private mission on family affairs to the Emperor William.

THE GERMAN PARLIAMENT.

The Cereal Bill—A Bill to Exclude Socialists From the Reichstag.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The Reichstag to-day approved the second paragraph of the Cereal Bill, including Dr. Windthorst's proposal that the bill take effect from Nov. 26 last, with a provision that importations under contract before that date be admitted at the old rates until Jan. 15.

The Bundesrath has approved the recommendations of the committee for amending the Socialist law, including a provision for the exclusion from the Reichstag of men proved to be Socialists.

IMMIGRATION INCREASING.

Department Returns for November—Ottawa County Election Case.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—The immigration returns up to the end of November, published by the Department of Agriculture, show a considerable increase over the same period last year, both of arrivals and the number settled in Canada. The arrivals for the year have been 138,162, an increase of 28,670, and the number of settlers 73,541, an increase of 11,656. The number of arrivals in November was over 11,000, an increase of 4000 on last month.

The preliminary exceptions taken by Mr. Rochon in the Ottawa County election case have been taken before Judge Wurtelle, who took the matter en delibere, and promised to give his decision at the conclusion of the Criminal Court at Aylmer.

Another effort is being made to get the County of Ottawa divided for local purposes. Both the eastern and western members of the council favor the division on account of the great size of the county.

Mr. M. D. Perley, M.P. for Eastern Assiniboia, has reached the city, and will remain until after the close of the session. He says the Northwest is "booming." The people are happy and contented, and feel satisfied that the future of the country has been solved without any future experiments.

The MacDonald arbitration was continued to-day before Mr. John Page, Engineer of Canals. Mr. C. Keefer, engineer for the contractors upon the works, is being examined as to the quantities of work done in connection with the various portions of the canal. A. F. Manning, one of the contractors, was present during two days' hearing. Mr. Keefer's examination will be followed by that of Mr. MacDonald himself. There are a number of witnesses to be examined on both sides.

In Defiance of the Police.

DUBLIN, Dec. 15.—The Board of Guardians of Kildesart resolved to grant the use of the board room for a meeting of the National League in defiance of the police authorities. The meeting will be held with locked doors.

McHenry and the Banker.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Magistrate has dismissed McHenry's suit against Mr. Bischoffshein, the banker, holding that the charges of false pretenses were entirely unproven.

THE WAR CLOUD IN RUSSIA.

IT IS NOT AS OMINOUS AS MANY HAVE SUPPOSED.

The St. Petersburg Military Gazette Says So—Austria, While Maintaining a Sharp Lookout on the Frontier, Will Wait Developments.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15.—The Military Journal, commenting on the concentration of troops on the frontier, says: Notwithstanding the manifest danger, Russia considers that a European war would be a terrible misfortune to all mankind. She was the first who, amidst her neighbors' feverish armaments, did not increase but decreased her defensive forces. In 1881 and 1882 Russia reduced her peace effective nearly 100,000 men. True, she raised it again in consequence of the Afghan affair and the necessity of improving her readiness to mobilize when her neighbors unremittingly raised their fighting strength. Nevertheless the peace effective of the Russian army is now 75,185 less than in 1881, while her neighbors in the same period have raised their peace effective 75,000. Doubtless Russia, in the event of war, will assemble a mighty army, the concentration of which on the frontier will be incomparably more difficult for her than will be the concentrations by her neighbors of their forces at the same place. During the last ten years 2828 kilometres of railway have been constructed in the Western Provinces of Russia.

In the German and Austrian Eastern Provinces during the same period 9300 kilometres have been built. Moreover, the area in which Russia has constructed railways is twice as large as that in which her neighbors have built such lines. The Russian railways nowhere pass outside the defensive lines of the triangle formed by St. Petersburg, Warsaw and Odessa. Our neighbor's lines, however, run straight out to the Russian frontier. It is easy to understand that they are not constructed for advanced posts, but for the concentration of troops. A glance at the map will suffice to show that a close network of railways covers the district along the Russian frontier. Compared with the insignificant number of railways that Russia can rely upon, not only from the German, but from the Austrian frontier Russian territory is menaced with rapid invasion. The most effective measure against this danger would be to extend the Russian railways until they attain the proportions of our neighbors. But for this enormous expense time is required and, therefore, there is only one course, to improve our defences and fortresses and increase the number of troops on the frontier and thereby guard against surprise.

Our neighbors, increased military preparations in 1886 compelled Russia to devise counter measures, which will be gradually executed. The transfer of a few cavalry regiments on the Vistula might certainly be made the pretext to excite the press and public opinion to charge Russia with warlike intentions. German and Austrian military authorities understand the defensive character of this measure. They can calmly calculate how many corps Russia will have to send to the frontier while peace is undisturbed, so that after concentrating at any given point the forces and means at her disposal might suffice to place Russia on a footing of equality with her opponents. They can also calculate the strength of the forces with which in the event of war Russia could be rapidly invaded. They can still hope by sudden action to win comparatively cheap laurels, but high Russian military officers, who do not fear the ultimate issue of a conflict even if the whole forces of the Peace League moved out against Russia, nevertheless openly recognize that the defence of Russian territory is not yet assured, and if the Peace League considers itself justified in developing its defensive measures so far as to bring certain Russian districts under the range of the guns of its most advanced forts, Russia has the undoubted right to provide for her defense and to take every measure to uphold her honor and maintain the inviolability of her territory.

Austria Will Await Developments.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—The article which appeared in The St. Petersburg Military Gazette to-day on the military movements of Russia and her neighbors, has excited great attention here. In official circles the opinion is expressed that the article will cause no change in the attitude of Austria. The Government, it is believed, before taking actively responsive measures of defence, will wait to see whether Russia continues her threatening military preparation. A long interview during the week between Count Kalnoky and the German ambassador led to accord between the two Governments on the decisions of the Austrian military council.

The serious character of the situation has never been underestimated in Austrian official circles. The Government has never been unmindful of the duties which the German alliance imposes, and in the face of the Russian armaments the authorities have never for a moment been idle. The Government is anxious to avoid as long as possible measures capable of being interpreted by Russia as acts of provocation. Preparations are complete for the despatch of reinforcements of cavalry to Galicia in the event of fresh movements of Russian troops. The erection of huts is now proceeding actively along the line of defence. Timber which has been lying in readiness since the spring is being utilized and accommodations for reinforcements will soon be provided.

A DISASTER IN CHINA.

Ten Cities Completely Inundated by the Overflowing of the Yellow River.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—The steamship City of Sydney arrived to-day from Hong Kong and Yokohama. Chinese papers give details of a disaster occasioned by the Yellow River overflowing its banks in the Provinces of Hanau, and describe it as one of the most appalling disasters in loss of life and property recorded in recent times. The river broke its banks on the evening of Sept. 29, southwest of the city of Ching Chow, and not only completely inundated that city, but also ten other populous cities. The whole area is now a raging sea ten to thirty feet deep. It was once a densely populated and rich plain. The former bed of the Yellow River is now dry and the present lake was the bed of the river centuries ago. The loss of life is incalculable, and the statement is made by missionaries that millions of Chinese are homeless and starving.

THE ENQUIRY PROCEEDING.

Magistrate Dugas Makes Public His Evidence Against the Montreal Detectives.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—Constable Plante, who is accused of conspiracy in the robbery of a ring from Mr. Dufresne with Detective Naegele, and who has been admitted to bail, has been suspended from his functions as special constable and night watchman.

Detective Maxwell concluded his evidence to-day and Detective Flynn and Judge Dugas have also been examined.

Judge Dugas has made his evidence public. It is in effect that the witness had been informed that Bureau wanted to see him and he was consequently taken into the witness' private room, where, after being warned that every admission he would make would be voluntary and would be used against him, he stated that Fahey had one day asked him for the key of the vaults and subsequently Naegele got the key. The robbery was committed on that day, and Naegele afterwards gave him (Bureau) $35, but he got no share of the money. Bureau afterwards withdrew his admission in Fahey's presence, stating that he had been influenced by Flynn and others to make that confession. That he had been offered his liberty in four days if he would do so and was also promised money for his wife if he would say that Fahey and Naegele were guilty.

Mr. C. Glackmeyer, jr., Clerk of the City Registration Office, was called before Judge Desnoyers and made a verbal deposition and explanation of the circumstances surrounding the safe robbery in the registration office, and the alleged connection which Fahey and Naegele had with it. Before leaving the room the magistrate enjoined silence upon him as towards the press.

The Work of the Note "Raiser."

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The officials at the sub-treasury were thrown into a state of consternation to-day by the appearance in large numbers of $2 silver certificates, which had been altered to fives. The altered notes seem to have been put into pretty general circulation.

A Liberal Victory.

A SPIRITED MEETING.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL PROMOTERS IN SESSION.

They Make Arrangements to Supply the Commissioners with Evidence—Some Rather Emphatic Speaking.

A meeting of delegates from different parts of the Midland District was held in the Council Chamber, Peterborough, for the purpose of considering the best means of placing evidence before the commission on the Trent Valley Canal, recently appointed, so as to enable them to decide upon which would be the best section of the canal to next lay under contract.

There were present: Mayor Stevenson, Peterborough, in the chair, Messrs. A. Hudspeth, J. Dobson, Thos. Watters, Col. Deacon, Lindsay, Rev. J. Logan, S. Swanton, Fenelon Falls, Geo. Bick, Capt. Bottom, J. L. Read, W. Kennedy, I. Junkin, A. McIntyre, A. Trotter, J. T. Robinson, Bobcaygeon; Chas. Fairbairn, Verulum; C. Carveth, Capt. Dion. Geo. McIlmoyle, Lakefield; John Findlay, Norwood; Jos. Hicks, Harvey; Geo. Hilliard, ex-M.P., John Carnegie, ex-M. P. P., Councillor McNeil, Councillor Moore, Councillor Cahill, Councillor Kelly, J. E. Belcher, R. B. Rogers, Geo. Giroux, E. Bowie, A Allison, D. Allison, Peterborough; John Burnham, Reeve of Ashburnham, Councillor Calcutt, H. T. Strickland, Ashburnham; A. Urquart and G. W. Ostrom, Trenton, Geo. Stewart, Warden of the County of Peterborough.

The CHAIRMAN announced that the meeting had been called to consider what was the best way for them to proceed so as to place full and complete evidence before the commission recently appointed by the Government as to what was the best section to have laid under contract next. He said that the Government had given him assurances as to their intention to build the waterway completely.

The Rev. Mr. LOGAN, Fenelon Falls, asked what the corporate name of those present was. The meeting was called by the Secretary of "The Trent Valley Canal Association." He did not know of any association having been formed.

On motion the delegates present were formed into the Trent Valley Canal Association.

Mr. J. G. Macdonald was elected Secretary pro tem in the absence of Mr. Peck.

The SECRETARY read an Order-in-Council passed on October 8th in the preamble of which a sketch of the history of the canal was given. It concluded with the following paragraph:—

"The works needed for the immediate requirements of local navigation so far as the same have been authorized having been completed, the Minister is of opinion that it would be expedient to appoint a commission to further consider the question and determine whether any other local works are necessary, and whether it is advisable that an extension of the main work should be undertaken and if so to what effect."

SOME POINTED TALK.

The Rev. Mr. LOGAN asked what this paragraph meant.

Mr. John BURNHAM, ex-M.P., urged the appointment of a committee whose business it will be to carefully prepare evidence to submit to the committee so as to prove conclusively that it was absolutely necessary to proceed with the work.

Mr. Geo. Hilliard, ex-M. P., thought that the promises which the Government gave should be carried out literally. This canal was commenced 50 years ago. Estimates of cost were given and the Government promised to build the canal. There was not a shadow of doubt about that. Owing to want of funds the work was not carried forward after it was commenced and the matter laid in abeyance till 1880. Sir Chas. Tupper went over the route and stated that the canal would be built as soon as the finances of the country would admit of it. Naturally they sympathized with the Government on account of the press for funds and their hesitancy in incurring further debt, but as for the "advisability" of the building of the work there was no doubt at all. As for him he was prepared to make a political question of this. Every man along the Trent Valley Canal route should do so. He was prepared to sacrifice politics and continue that way till the canal was built. He would support the party that built the canal.

The Rev. Mr. LOGAN, of Fenelon Falls, said that he once declared himself a dyed-in-the-wool Tory, but now he had only one politic. That was Trent Valley Canal.

Col. DEACON, of Lindsay, said it should be the duty of the executive committee appointed some time ago to prepare the required evidence.

THE COMMITTEE AND ITS WORK.

After some discussion it was decided to appoint a special committee to prepare the evidence, and its members were named as follows:—Messrs. Carnegie, Peterborough; Boyd, Bobcaygeon; Crosse, Barrie; Murphy, Trenton; Strickland, Lakefield; Logan, Fenelon Falls; Dinwoodie, Campbellford; Fowlds, Hastings; Col. Deacon, Lindsay; and the Mayors of towns separated from counties, and the Wardens of counties along the route of the canal. The first named on the committee was made the converer.

Mr. CARNEGIE said that the duty of the committee in prepairing evidence had a three fold bearing. They would first have to show that there was an ample water supply; that the canal was of importance to the country and that the cost of construction was not so great as was estimated. When the first two points were clearly proved, the question of cost would be of secondery importance. He had not the faith in the Minister of Railways and Canals that the Mayor had in the Government. In fact he was of opinion that the appointment of this commission was a ruse of the Minister to attempt to thwart their efforts and break up the whole scheme. As far as he was concerned he would leave no stone unturned to put in evidence so massive and overpowering as to admit of no question of the advisability of the canal's being built ("hear, hear," and applause). The committee should show that there was not only abundance of water to supply the canal, but a supply sufficient to keep a whole line of manufacturies at constant work.

Mr. BURNHAM said that he was confident that they would have to contend with Mr. Rubidge's report. He learned that Mr. Rubidge put in an estimate of the cost of construction at $20,000,000. Even for an eight foot canal the largest estimate made was $9,000,000.

The Rev. Mr. LOGAN said that at the time Mr. Rubidge went over the route of the canal he called on him (the speaker) in Fenelon Falls and stated his belief in the canal. At that time he said that the canal would not cost more than $12,000,000, he could swear to that.

Mr. DUMBLE, who came in late, made an excellent address, covering the ground largely covered by previous speakers.

GETTING THE EVIDENCE.

The question of bearing the expenses of procuring evidence was discussed.

It was pointed out that it was very important to spare no reasonable expense on this head. One member suggested that $5,000 be raised.

The Rev. Mr. LOGAN said that the Government forced this commission affair upon them and the Government should bear the cost.

It was agreed that Mr. Stevenson, M. P., should apply to Parliament for funds.

The meeting then adjourned.

After the meeting the committee met and elected Mayor Stevenson as President, and Mr. John Carnegie as permanent secretary.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Cutting Prices.

On Saturday, Dec. 17th, you will find on the counter of H. S. Griffin & Co. goods at prices unsurpassed in the live town of Peterborough. Winter goods must be sold even at a loss and it is the decision of H. S. Griffins & Co to do so. Mantles at and under cost. Goods marked down to suit the times. When out buying call at the Crystal Block. d143.

TURNBULL is selling Heavy Costume Dress Goods, 54 inches wide, for 45 cts. a yard, beats anything I've had thrown at me, at supposed cost prices. I always find TURNBULL has the Bottom Prices.

Christmas Presents.

There is no need for Peterborough people to go out of town now for fine goods in china, silver, etc. China Hall has a stock equal to any in Canada. Chamber sets from $1.00 to $32.00, tea sets from $2 to $50, dinner sets from $8.50 to $65.00, silver pieces from 25c. to $200 in value. Every article in the two show rooms suitable for 'Xmas presents. A magnificent city stock at town prices. 6d143

To Christmas Buyers.

If you have not yet bought your Christmas presents give the subject of where you are to buy some consideration. It will pay you to do so. If you haven't time to consider turn at once to Routley's large advertisement and absorb some of the information there available. The lengthy list is only a partial catalogue of the immense variety offered. The store is crammed. The second floor is filled with an endless variety of new things any of which will make hearts glad at the gift. Mr. Bengough's Lecture.

Mr. J. W. Bengough, Grip's editor and artist, gave a lecture on Thursday evening in the Opera House under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. There was a large attendance. Mr. Bengough's talk appeared to be principally for the purpose of introducing his cartoons, which he drew while he talked, yet the lecture abounded in humour. He is a good speaker, and actor and a good mimic. Some of the sketches were very amusing, and the way they were "evolved," especially the one produced from the "moral hemispheres," added to the effect. The portraits of local personages were very good. The large audience appeared to be well pleased throughout the evening.

ALL READY FOR ACTION

HALL INNES & CO. INSTALLED IN THEIR PALATIAL PREMISES.

A Business Establishment of Completeness, Unsurpassed in Ontario—Artistic Decorations—Comfortable Furnishings—A Retrospect.

The incessant clatter of hurrying foot steps over the hardwood floors in Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co's new dry goods establishment has resounded for the past week. The whole staff has been employed during the day and into the night in arranging the goods in the different departments as they were brought over by the load from the Parlor rink block, which the firm has occupied temporarily while the improvements in their own block were in progress.

A RETROSPECT.

Fifty four years ago, on the corner of Water and Simcoe streets, just where the present handsome Ontario bank building is, there stood a little storey and a half building. The south end of it was fitted with two windows and a door. The window frames were filled with 8x10 glass, at that time considered a stylish size. Seven by nine was what was usually used. This place was a store, and the young man, twenty-two years of age, who kept it sold almost everything from a gallon of molasses to a sickle. Himself and his clerk, a raw youth of twenty, were both hard working men. They got up early and toiled late. When the business of the day was over they retired to a back office and worked at their books, and when completly tired out both turned into a little bedroom, off the office, and slept together. These young men were Robert Nicholls and Wm. Hall, both now deceased. In 1889 Mr. Nicholls took his clerk in as a partner. Together they built up a large business and at the time of their retirement from active commercial life they had three stores running, the main business on Simcoe street and two stores on George street. The citizens of Peterborough know of the wealth that both of the partners amassed, and how the business which they built up on Simcoe street has not only been held by the young firm that succeeded them but steadily widened.

A LARGER PLACE OF BUSINESS.

In May last Messrs. Hall, Innis, & Co., in order to keep pace with the requirements of the times and to afford adequate room for carrying on their business in a satisfactory manner, resolved upon increasing the size of their premises with a view to giving more definite divisions to the various departments. They found this to be a necessity notwithstanding that they then had one of the finest appointed places of business in the district. Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell, architects, of Toronto, drew the plans, and the ideas they expressed on paper, now materialized, show one of the most elegant, best equipped, and compact business houses in Ontario. Indeed there is not one that will surpass it. The work was carried out under the superintendence of Mr. John Douglas. The brickwork was done by Mr. J. J. Hartley, the painting by Mr. Wm. Lilly; the plastering, by Mr Geo. Brown; the gas fitting, by Messrs. McAndrew & Noble; the counters, by Mr. D. Belleghem, and the papering by Messrs. A. L. Davis & Co. All of these artisans have got through with their work and the place stands a real gem of beauty.

WHAT THE FRONT LOOKS LIKE.

The building has now a frontage of sixty eight feet and has, including the cellar, four flats. A striking feature in the facade is the amount of plate glass it contains. There is over twelve hundred square feet of plate glass in it. In the first flat there is fourteen large lights, including two which sweep into the main entrance with a great curve. The front is of double plate, that is one light in the front of the window and one in the back. On the second storey there is 340 square feet of plate glass in the front. All of this plate glass came from England. There was great excitement among the Plate Glass Insurance men as to who would get the risk. After a keen contest, in which infinite genius was exhibited Mr. W. A. Dixon was the lucky man. Another striking feature in the facade is the artistic Roman carving which fills the pannels. It was done by the Lindsay-Seldon Furniture Co. An elaborate sign done in raised gold letters placed at the top of the building, tells the name of the firm. The window dressing is simply a revelation. The profuse array of goods is displayed with much good taste and artistic grace.

THE DEPARTMENTS.

The departments of the business are as follows;—The dress goods, haberdashery and small wares, tailoring and gents furnishings and carpets; the millinery and mantles, on the second flat; the oilcloth and surplus goods store room on the top flat. There is also a reserve stock room in the cellar. The tailoring, habdashery and small wares, and dress goods departments are all in one large place with a frontage of 42 feet and a depth of 75 feet. The purchasers will be delighted with the capacity given for light. Good light is a matter of first importance in the selection of dress goods, and the architect seems to have given heed to it. The light of day is admitted not only through the expanse of plate glass in the front, but through the whole width of the rear also. When entering one pauses to admire the graceful columns which run down the centre of the place. They are graceful in proportion, colored with green and gold, and have pretty capitals ornamented with volutes and foliations. A prominent feature in the internal fixtures is the arrangement for the reception of cash. The cashier is situated on an elevated stand, in the centre of the place, which is reached by a winding stair. From this stand there goes out a number of wires in all directions, and on them run the cash carriers. There are six stations in the place, at each one of which there is a lever which compresses the air which is the motive power in running the carriers too and fro.

Shelving in cherry stain, runs round the three sides of the square and acurvin goval of counters encloses the pretty columns which run down the centre. Back of these counters is additional shelving a few feet high. This is the haberdashery and small wares department. The counters are all very finely finished in walnut and mahogany. On the polished maple floor stand comfortable chairs in front of the counters. There are two offices down at the rear of the place, one for the accountant and one for the cutter. The visitor can tell what they are used for by what is said on the beaten brass door plates. Both offices have cherry frames filled with ground plate glass copiously figured with the monogram of the firm. Ample provision has been made for light at night as well as by day. There are two electric lamps inside of this place and two outside of the front. In addition to this there is twenty jets springing from gaseliers fixed in neat centrepieces on the pure ceiling. Before leaving this well appointed room the wall decorations should be noted. The paper is of gold foliations, aligator pattern. It is set off at the top with a very handsome 18 inch frieze.

The carpet room is reached by two entrances cut through the thick wall and enclosed by heavy iron slides. This department has a sombre appearance. The rolls of carpet placed tier above tier stretch from front to rear. The wall decorations are of gold embossed paper with a cardinal flower running through it. The design of the border is lattice work in gold with a vivid colored flower twining through it. It is understood that this is Mr. Robt. Hall's "pet" department.

is accomplished by riding in the elevator (which is propelled by a water moter in the cellar) or by walking up the spiral staircase. The first getting off place is at the millinery department. It is a pleasant room. The tables, laden with millinery of all sorts, shapes and hues fill it. The carpet is quiet, the light good, the decorations are pretty, and the pretty girls—one can scarcely suppress a sigh as he passes into the beautiful parlor. The terra cotta idea runs through the furnishings here. The paper is terra cotta, the carpet harmonizes, the furniture is of terra cotta design and the ceiling paper, irridescent with gold and silver, gives a novel effect to it. The woodwork is of cherry. The intention is that those who visit town from a distance can make Hall, Innes & Co's their headquarters. To further this view a commodious refreshment room has been fitted up off the parlor and Mr. F. Hall, confectioner, has charge of it. Washrooms, a cloak room, a suite of fitting rooms all tastefully decorated in cream and white colors are in immediate connection with the millinery department. The workroom in connection with the millinery department is spacious, well lighted, and the and walls are decorated with sage green hangings of a handsome pattern.

The top flat of all is plainly, yet tastefully furnished. There are three rooms: the surplus store room, the oilcloth department and the tailoring work room.

The establishment throughout is well arranged, well furnished, well lighted, and well filled with the best goods the market affords. It is kept comfortably warm by steam fittings and is complete in every department. It is an establishment which would have filled the hearts of the founders of the business with pride had they lived to see it.

To-morrow morning Green's patent slat blinds will be drawn up and the public will be admitted.

A Pleasing Event.

On Thursday evening a pleasant party of young folks, with a sprinkling of older people, gathered at the residence of Mr. Jas. Alexander, the occasion being taken advantage of to present Miss L. E. Winter with a handsome silver tea set. Miss Winter has had for the past five years charge of the millinery department at Mr. Alexander's store. Here her ability as a modeste, and excellent taste and skill have been very much appreciated. The handsome gift was the joint contribution of employees of the establishment and the proprietor, and was furnished to order by Mr. W. A. Sanderson, jeweller. Accompaning the silver set was the following address which was read by Mr. James Alexander:—

"DEAR MISS WINTER,—It is with sincere regret that we (your employer and employees) have heard of your intention to leave us. During the five years you have remained in our midst we have always found you faithful in the discharge of your duties and one whom it is a pleasure to claim as a friend.

We cannot allow you to depart without giving you some tangible expression of esteem. We have much pleasure in presenting you with the accompaning supper and tea sett as in some degree manifesting our regard for you, and trust that it will serve as a pleasant reminder of the many kind friends you are leaving behind you in Peterborough.

Trusting that you may have a bright future before you, full of happiness and prosperity, and that the Most High may keep you under His protection all the days of your life."

Miss Winter received the beautiful present with thanks and a brief acknowledgement was made on her behalf by one of the company. After refreshments were served some time was pleasantly spent in a social way. Miss Winter leaves town next week and will make her home at Newmarket, it being understood as an open secret that the lady enters into a partnership where the happiest possible anticipations for the future are sure to be realized.

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

If You Come You'll Buy.

Everybody seems to think it the time to buy. So it is. You can't buy better nor cheaper, than at Muncaster's, the jeweller. Call and see the stock—Watches, Jewellery and Silverware. Some of the things do cost a little. Lots of the prettiest cost less. Prices of all are reasonable. Come and see. That's what is asked. You may not buy the costliest but you shall be served with what you select. Christmas presents in numberless shapes. All are reasonable, and wonderfully low in cost. d143

Do Him the Favor.

Muncaster asks the favour of a call and the opportunity to sell you some of the handsome articles he has ready for Christmas presents. No brighter, finer or more beautiful goods in town. He has ramsacked the shelves of the wholesale houses to obtain the assortment and the result is before you. The specialties are Watches, jewelery and silverware. Make a note of it. d143.tf.

A Silver Christmas.

Muncaster has done his level best to supply—if not a silver Christmas—silver enough to attract holiday buyers in his direction. Choice and beautiful articles of the most modern design crowd the show cases. The display is handsome and rich. Keeping well in mind that the season calls for something new and effective Muncaster has supplied that want. There is a satisfaction in buying from Muncaster, for he guarantees the excellency of his goods. It is one of the holiday sights to look over the brilliant array of watches and jewellery. Remember that prices are brought down to bed rock. d143-tf

Brevities.

—Mr. J. E. Jacques has been engaged as organist and choir master of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, and will take up his duties early in January.

I am going to TURNBULL'S to buy my Dry Goods. He always sells cheap, and just now, he has 100 Mantles to dispose of, at less than the usual cost.

—An advestisement in the REVIEW for a school teacher brought over a hundred applicants. The moral is that the REVIEW is a good advertising medium —From the centre of the ceiling of R. W. Muncaster's jewellery store hangs a mammoth parasol, a curious piece of Japanese handiwork. It spreads to an astonishing size and is nearly over twenty-five feet in circumference. Mr. Muncaster has attached to the ribs of the parasol Chinese lanterns and when the whole is illuminated the effect is very pretty. It is an unique piece of shop decoration.

—On Thursday afternoon Mr. Dingle, of Whitby, and who has applied for the position of organist at the George Street Methodist Church, gave a short rehearsal in the church by way of showing his ability as a master of the instrument. Mr. Dingle is a pupil of the famous Leipsic Conservatory and gratified those who were fortunate enough to be present with some very fine music, displaying excellent command of the organ and skill as a musician.

Go direct to TURNBULL'S, The Cheap Dry Goods House, for fine Wool Goods, Heavy Scotch Shawls, Table Linens, &c., &c., for the Christmas trade.

"OLD king Cole was a merry old soul," but we believe that kidd sells boots with BETTER soles on than ever old King Cole wore, in fact we KNOW it. 142

The Yosemite on Trust.

Have you ever done the Yosemite? If not, postpone your departure until the latest possible moment, and then stay where you are. Go to an art gallery and buy some views of the valley; they will give you more satisfaction than taking the journey and you will save money. Although we went under the most favorable conditions—our party of ten just filling the stage, with no outsiders and no crowding—still, unless one is blessed with a perfect digestion, no nerves, the patience of Job, the amiability of an angel, and the constitution of a gorilla, one had better take the Yosemite on trust.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Perfumes from Mummies.

Mummies beaten up into a powder and mixed with a little oil made for the artists in Egypt richer tones of brown than any other substance. Modern perfumers used to prepare the perfumes and spices found inside of mummies in such a way as to make ladies "dote on it." Paper manufacturers have used the wrappings of mummies to make coarse paper, and the cloth and rags have been used as clothing.—New York Sun.

Big Bids and Lively Sales—The Ottawa Men Hold Themselves Aloof—A Flow of Champagne—Two Michigan Buyers.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.

Whether or not the sumptuous repast furnished, which included unlimited quantities of Mumm and other brands of champagne, was the cause of the lively bidding at the Ontario timber sale in the Legislative Chamber yesterday, only the lumbermen can tell who were induced to respond to Auctioneer Peter Ryan's seductive and insinuating cries for bids. The lunch was at all events as big a success as the sale. The "Little Premier" was not to be seen within range of the sound of the popping corks, but Crown Lands Commissioner Pardee did the honors for the Government in good style.

The Ottawa lumbermen watched the sale interestedly, but made no bids. This was in pursuance of their determination to boycott the sale in the event of the Government's second refusal to fix a period wherein no increase of dues or ground rent shall be made. The Chaudiere owners had hoped to have influenced others in sufficient numbers to make the boycott effective. But when the Government yesterday morning gave another decided refusal to the demands of the lumbermen, the Ottawa men found it impossible to gather any large following in their attempt to defeat the sale. They determined, though, to abstain themselves from bidding. Mr. Joseph Rionelle, although a resident of Ottawa, is not a lumberman, nor did he join the boycott. Mr. Alex. Fraser, one of the largest buyers, lives in Westmeath, near Ottawa, and his action was commented on unfavorably by the Ottawa men, although they acknowledged that Mr. Fraser was not bound further than by his agreement to join in the original movement, started on Wednesday night, to boycott the sale, but which was abandoned.

The amount realized was $1,312,712.50. The largest price paid per square mile was $6350, by Callahan & Montrose of Alpena, Mich., and the next $5500, by Albert Pack, another Michigan lumberman, one of whose limits cost him $123,062.50. Mr. Alex Fraser's investments amounted to $252,025, or an average of $42,004 for the six limits bought. All the limits offered were sold except one.

The Prizes Awarded—Some of the Winners —Ald. Frankland Congratulated.

This exhibition closed yesterday. It has been a thorough success and the management are sanguine that the City Council and the agriculturists of the district will, before the next show, provide more suitable accommodation. The subject has been urged by members of the Corporation and the council of the Ontario Agriculture and Arts Association, and has been received with approbation by many prominent citizens. The judges did not complete their duties until yesterday afternoon, and considering the limited extent of the show the opinion was general that it would be desirable that the awards should be given before the admission of the public. The principal prize-winners were as follows: Cattle —J. Oke, Alvinston; Graham Bros., Ailsa Craig; Jas. Deans, Paris; John Kelly, Woodville; J. Denoon, Milton; Arthur Johnstone, Green wood; George Keith, Elora; Jas. Hunter, Alma; J. Russell, Brougham; Jas. King, Brampton; J. Kelly, Shakespeare; and J. & W. B. Watts, Salem. Sheep—Messrs. Rotherford, Laidlaw & Jackson, Oliver, Murray, Kelly, Johnstone, Denoon and Beatty. Hogs —Messrs. Denoon and Dorsey & Son. Poultry —Jas. Toulmin, Toronto.

During the show these gentlemen called on Acting Mayor Frankland at the Mayor's office and congratulated him upon the success of his efforts in making the show so interesting and profitable: Ira Morgan, Vice-President of the Agriculture and Arts Association; Joshua Legge, ex-Warden, Leeds; Mr. John Miller, Brougham, an extensive importer for the past fifty-two years; Mr. Morgan, Oshawa, exporter of cattle; Mr. P. Rennie, cattle breeder, Fergus; Mr. Downing, cattle exporter, Forest; Mr. Snell, President Agriculture and Arts Association; Mr. Drury, M.P.P.

Canadian Draught Horse Society.

At a numerously-attended meeting of agriculturists at the Albion Hotel yesterday afternoon a Canadian Draught Horse Society was formed. Mr. Charles Drury, M.P.P., was in the chair, and Mr. Henry Wade was secretary. The latter read a paper advocating the establishmens of the society, and a similar statement was made by Mr. A. Fanson of Toronto. Petitions were presented signed by 135 farmers asking for the formation of such an association. Mr. Lawrence, Collingwood, and others, spoke in its support, and after due discussion the society was formed with the following provisional officers: President, Charles Jackson, Cooksville; Vice-President, A. Fanson. Directors—John Gardhouse, Malton; John Vipond, Brooklin; Charles Lawrence, Collingwood; Douglas McLean, York Mills; W. A. Fanson, Toronto; F. T. Coleman, Arthur. Thomas Nattress, Mackville, and H. Wade, Secretary. The object is to keep a true record of the pedigrees of Canadian draught horses. Another meeting for further organization will be called at an early date.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

There never was a greater mistake. You will find no such unimaginative people anywhere as you will find in Italy, Spain, Greece and the other southern countries. To anything fanciful, to anything spiritual, their minds are deaf and blind by nature. Now and then in the course of centuries a great genius springs up amongst them, and he is the exception which proves the rule. Now see! I, though I am no genius—I am, in my little way (as I suppose) an exception, too. To my sorrow, I have some of that imagination which is so common among the English and the Germans—so rare among the Italians, the Spaniards and the rest of them! And what is the result? I think it has become a disease in me. I am filled with presentiments which make this wicked life of mine one long terror to me. It doesn't matter just now what they are. Enough that they absolutely govern me—they drive me over land and sea at their own horrible will; they are in me, and torturing me, at this moment! Why don't I resist them? Ha! but I do resist them. I am trying (with the help of the good punch) to resist them now. At intervals I cultivate the difficult virtue of sound sense. Sometimes sound sense makes a hopeful woman of me. At one time, I had the hope that what seemed reality to me was only mad delusion, after all I even asked the question of an English doctor! At other times, other sensible doubts of myself beset me. Never mind dwelling on them now—it always ends in the old terrors and superstition taking possession of me again. In a week's time I shall know whether destiny does indeed decide my future for me, or whether I decide it for myself. In the last case, my resolution is to absorb this self-tormenting fancy of mine in the occupation that I have told you of already. Do you understand me a little better now? And our business being settled, dear Mr. Westwick, shall we get out of this hot room into the nice, cold air again?"

They rose to leave the cafe. Francis privately concluded that the maraschino punch offered the only discoverable explanation of what the countess had said to him.

CHAPTER XX.

"Shall I see you again?" she asked, as she held out her hand to take leave. "It is quite understood between us, I suppose, about the play?"

Francis recalled his extraordinary experience of that evening in the renumbered room. "My stay in Venice is uncertain," he replied. "If you have anything more to say about this dramatic venture of yours, it may be as well to say it now. Have you decided on a subject already? I know the public taste in England better than you do—I might save you some waste of time and trouble, if you have not chosen your subject wisely?"

"I don't care what subject I write about so long as I write," she answered carelessly. "If you have got a subject in your head give it to me. I answer for the characters and the dialogue."

"You answer for the characters and the dialogue," Francis repeated. "That's a bold way of speaking for a beginner! I wonder if I could shake your sublime confidence in yourself if I suggested the most ticklish subject to handle which is known to the stage? What do you say, countess, to entering the lists with Shakespeare and trying a drama with a ghost in it? A true story, mind! founded on events in this very city, in which you and I are interested."

She caught him by the arm and drew him away from the colonnade into the solitary middle space of the square. "Now tell me," she said, eagerly. "Here, where nobody is near us. How am I interested in it? How? how?"

Still holding his arm, she shook him in her impatience to hear the coming disclosure. For a moment he hesitated. Thus far, amused by her ignorant belief in herself, he had merely spoken in jest. Now, for the first time, impressed by her irresistible earnestness, he began to consider what he was about from a more serious point of view. With her knowledge of all that had passed in the old palace, before its transformation into a hotel, it was surely possible that they might suggest some explanation of what had happened to his brother and sister and himself. Or, failing to do that, she might accidentally reveal some event in her own experience, which, acting as a hint to a competent dramatist, might prove to be the making of a play. The prosperity of his theatre was his one serious object in life. "I may be on the track of another 'Corsican Brothers,'" he thought. "A new piece of that sort would be £10,000 in my pocket at least."

With these motives (worthy of the single hearted devotion to dramatic business which made Francis a successful manager) he related without further hesitation, what his own experience had been, and what the experience of his relatives had been, in the haunted hotel. He even described the outbreak of superstitious terror which had escaped Mrs. Norbury's ignorant maid. "Sad stuff, if you look at it reasonably," he remarked. "But there is something dramatic in the notion of the ghostly influence making itself felt by the relations in succession, as they one after another enter the fatal room—until the one chosen relative comes who will see the unearthly creature and know the terrible truth. Material for a play, countess—first rate material for a play?"

There he paused. She neither moved nor spoke. He stooped and looked closer at her.

What impression had he produced? It was an impression which his utmost ingenuity had failed to anticipate. She stood by his side—just as she stood before Agnes when her question about Ferrari was plainly answered at last—like a woman turned to stone. Her eyes were vacant and rigid; all the life in her face had faded out of it. Francis took her by the hand. Her hand was as cold as the pavement they were standing on. He asked her if she was ill.

Not a muscle in her moved. He might as well have spoken to the dead.

"Surely," he said, "you are not foolish enough to take what I have been telling you seriously?"

Her lips moved slowly. As it seemed, she was making an effort to speak to him.

"Louder," he said, "I can't hear you."

She struggled to recover possession of herself. A faint light began to soften the dull, cold stare of her eyes. In a moment more she spoke so that he could hear her.

"I never thought of the other world," she murmured, in low, dull tones like a woman talking in her sleep.

Her mind had gone back to the day of her last memorable interview with Agnes; she was slowly recalling the confession that had escaped her, the warning words which she had spoken at that time. Necessarily incapable of understanding this, Francis looked at her in perplexity. She went on in the same dull vacant tone, steadily following out her own train of thought with her heedless eyes on his face, and her wandering mind far away from him.

OTHER PARABLES.

CRITICAL NOTES BY REV. GEORGE P. HAYS, D. D., LL. D.

Lesson XII of the International Series for Sunday, Dec. 18—Text of the Lesson, Matt. xiii, 31-33 and 44-53—Golden Text, Matt. xiii, 49.

Conversion is not directly taught in this chapter, yet it is implied in the first six parables. Neither field would bring forth a good harvest unless some one sows seed in them. The mustard seed is planted by another, and the leaven is hidden in the meal. The treasure was lost, and the pearl was in the market. In all these cases the course of nature was changed by some outside force. But the doctrine of conversion is more specifically taught in the parables of the leaven and the grain of mustard seed than anywhere else.

The proverbial small seed of ancient times was the mustard. It obtained this character from the disproportion between its own size and the size of the tree which grew therefrom. It is therefore an excellent example of that which the Saviour was here teaching, that results are oftentimes disproportionately large when compared with their causes.

When the seed is sown it is with the intention of bringing forth the tree. God means the ends accomplished by his small providences. When man plants a mustard seed he does it in faith in the vitality of the seed. If he did not believe the seed retained its vitality he would not plant it. This is sometimes called the faith of the mustard seed. See Matt. xvii, 20. It is really the faith some one has in the grain of mustard. Elsewhere this faith in the mustard seed is used to reprove those who, through a false humility, will not try to do their duty. God has promised the result of activity quite as surely as he has promised a tree in the vitality of the mustard seed. Growth is the only proof of life. This must be open, manifest, visible growth. A religion whose growth is not visible and manifest must be as dead as the mustard seed which issues in no tree. Birds of the air are sheltered in the tree, as irreligious and godless people are protected by the moral sentiment and good order which are due to a religious public sentiment.

V. 33.—The leaven is not originally in the meal. When it is put there it is with the specific intention that a change shall result. Leaven is yeast, and though it may be put in but one part of a lump, its effect will extend until the whole mass is leavened. Leaven in Scripture is generally a type of evil.

If we combine the lessons of these two parables, we have an admirable illustration of true religion. The growth of the mustard seed sets forth the visible effect of religion in the sight of our fellow men; and the hidden working of the leaven equally well sets forth the internal change which affects our inner life. In these two parables religion is set forth as if it were an unconscious force working in an unconscious being. But man is not unconscious like the meal, nor wrought upon like the mustard seed without any free agency of his own.

Conscious activity.—Christ now sets forth this side of human nature in the following parables. Here again are two prominent differences. Some men consciously seek what their souls need; others are conscious of a need, but do not seem to understand anything about the spiritual wants of their nature. The parables of the treasure and the pearl set forth these two sides of human experience. In both parables, however, the great final lesson is that those who would enter the kingdom of heaven must give up all for God.

The illustration of this parable (v. 44) is of a man stumbling unexpectedly on such a hidden treasure. With surprise he found that was valuable which others passed by. When he understands its value he dictates no terms, but, like the real convert, sells all that he has to buy that field. This last is God's condition of eternal life (Matt. xix, 21).

We turn now to the inquirer who knows what he wants. He is seeking definitely for the pearl of great price. The reason for the high price of pearls is that they are small in size and weight, and yet of great value. They were often swallowed to preserve them from the search of robbers. Pearls are more easily concealed and more easily carried than gold or silver. The hidden treasure is available for present use; the pearl is provision for future use. The pearl broken is destroyed; but the two parts of a lump of gold are worth just as much separate as the two together were when they were one lump. For some reasons gold was best and for others pearls were best. We need to combine both these features to get a full illustration of the amplitude of God's grace. No wonder, therefore, that this man should sell all that he had to buy that pearl.

If now we combine these four qualities, we shall have before us the symmetry of God's grace and man's experience. Like the mustard seed, it manifests its power externally. Like the leaven, it completely changes the character of the inner life. Like the treasure, it is more valued than all else, and is immediately available for all present wants. And like the pearl, while more valued than all else, it is an abundant guarantee of supply for all future wants. Like the treasure and the pearl, its possession is equally real and valuable whether stumbled on or sought for and found; and like the leaven and the mustard seed, its effects are equally real and valuable whether manifested externally or working within.

SUGGESTIVE APPLICATIONS.

BY THE REV. EDWIN W. RICE, D. D.

The least of all seeds, verse 32. You can scarcely get more than a very small grain of spiritual truth into the mind of that heedless scholar. He is very thoughtless; but you have discovered a single small spot or corner in his heart which seems to be fitted for an equally minute particle of divine truth. You drop this with little hope or expectation that so small a thing can ever grow, but out of that small seed may come a power which will eventually renew that soul and change that life. The result seems to be out of all proportion to the slight work of sowing, but it is according to God's order; it is one of the ways in which God encourages his servants to sow for him.

The whole was leavened, v. 33. The leaven was hid. It seems to be lost. Thus much of the teaching in the Sunday school often seems to have been buried out of sight. Not a trace of it can be discovered in the hearts of those who come to the weekly Sabbath study. It looks like wasted labor; but if the truth is there in the heart it is sure to work as secretly and as effectually as the leaven works in the dough in which it is hid.

Sold all that he had, and bought it, v. 46. There are some who seem to stumble upon the kingdom of God providentially; as the old prophet said, "I am found of them that sought me not." Christians see this prophecy fulfilled in many ways, but probably the more part come into the kingdom by seeking to enter. Even these can enter it only by giving up all as the price.

The angels shall . . . . sever the wicked from among the just, v. 49. The drag net gathered up every sort of fish, good and bad. So is it in the kingdom of heaven on earth and in our work for God. It is not strange that evangelists and preachers and Sunday school teachers should gather in among those who are good, who are truly Christian, not a few who are without that true life in Christ. The sifting time will come; the angels will gather the good, and they will easily discover the bad. It is for men to work; it is for God to judge.

HINTS FOR PRIMARY CLASSES.

BY ALICE W. KNOX.

Jesus taught many truths by parables. A parable is an illustration that is like the truth to be taught.

Write the topics on the board and number them: 1. The Mustard Seed. 2. The Leaven. 3. The Hid Treasure. 4. The Goodly Pearl. 5. The Fish Net.

Explain how very small the mustard seed is, and how strange that a great bush can grow from such a little seed. Show an acorn and describe the oak; or show an apple seed and call attention to the tree and its fruit. Try to use such illustrations as are familiar to the children. The leaven grows differently; it swells the dough and makes it fit for food. Illustrate by the process of making bread with yeast.

Little deeds of kindness,
Little words of love,
Make our earth an Eden
Like to heaven above.

Teach the children the importance of little things in spreading the Gospel. Children can help in many ways, such as by showing a Christian spirit when tempted to do wrong; by acts of kindness to others; by contributing of their pennies to send the Gospel abroad and to maintain it at home. Good examples help wonderfully to make others good.

The End.—There is an end to all the effort and all the strife. The good and the bad seed grow together until the harvest comes. The good and bad fish are found in the same net. But the reapers separate the wheat from the tares, putting the wheat in the barn and burning the tares; the fishermen gather the good fish into vessels, but cast the bad away. As the Golden Text says, "So shall it be at the end of the world; the angels shall come forth and sever the wicked from among the just."

Now is the time to choose where our place shall be. Jesus says come to me now. He wants to save us, God the Father wants to save us, and so does the Holy Spirit. But no one will be forced into the kingdom of heaven; we must choose it and ask to be taken into it and all who ask shall receive, and those who seek shall find.—Sunday School World.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN,—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137 f J. STEVENSON.

THE MAYORALTY FOR 1888.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN:—At the request of a large number of ratepayers, who have promised me their support, I am before you as a candidate for the Mayoralty for 1888. I ask you to give me your support, therefor, on the following platform:—

ECONOMY!
TEMPERANCE!
MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

If length of public service is deserving of recognition I may modestly claim your consideration. During the eighteen or twenty years which I have sat at your council board I have endeavored to faithfully advance the best interests of the town. I have spared neither time nor work to consistently carry out my pledges to my supporters and have worked to the best of my ability for the general good. If I have erred I have done so unknowingly.

I offer myself as—in particular—the workingman's candidate. I hope to receive the solid workingmen's support. I consider I am fairly entitled to it. I am a working man myself and if elected—will endeavour to repay the confidence by advancing their interests in every honest way.

I may say that in taking the field I am not actuated by any feeling of rivalry with the present occupant of the Mayor's chair, but I feel that with the many demands on his time and services that the position is not sought for. Should I prove correct in my inference, you cannot fairly overlook the claim that years of service has on your consideration.

I recognize thoroughly what the necessities of the town demand. Thorough economy in all departments of municipal expenditure must be the rule. A liberal policy to encourage the growth and establishment of new and existing industries. In this regard I am opposed to any money bonus being granted, but in favor of exemption from taxes and possibly free sites under proper restrictions. I shall—I elected—give particular attention to matters as outlined above.

Possibly one of the most prominent questions that will come before the ratepayers next year will be in connection with the enforcement of the Scott Act. I will maintain in this regard the position relative to temperance which I have held for the last 25 years. So long as the Scott Act remains in force I will to the extent of my ability and office, see that the law is strictly enforced, and that too through the proper officers of the town.

Such, gentlemen, are the grounds on which I ask your support. I may not have the opportunity of personally soliciting your favor, but venture to hope that the statement of my views will meet your approval.

Trusting that I may have your hearty support on the basis of

ECONOMY!
TEMPERANCE!
MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

I am, gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

d136-w49 A. RUTHERFORD.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SOUTH WARD,

of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours respectfully,

d137 H. C. WINCH.

TO THE ELECTORS of Ward No. 1.

FRIENDS.—Your vote and influence are respectfully solicited at the forthcoming Municipal Elections in my behalf as a candidate for the position of councillor.

An intelligent knowledge of municipal affairs, an extensive business experience, a property owner, an intense interest in the good government of the Town, and at the request of many ratepayers are my reasons for desiring to offer myself for election as your representative.

Fanaticism, injustice and extravagance will be systematically opposed, a fair distribution of town improvements advocated, and your interests and wishes shall be my guide if elected.

Yours respectfully,

g&d137 BANNELL SAWYER.

SAFE IN THE WHITBY JAIL

DENNEN AND M'CREA TAKEN TO THAT TOWN YESTERDAY.

The Preliminary Examination to Take Place To-day—Bartender Brown's Condition at Midnight—Reported That His Companions are to Be Arrested.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.

High Constable Calvelry and Constable Dodds of Ontario County presented themselves before Ald. Baxter, J.P., in the Police Court yesterday and claimed custody of W. C. McCrea and J. S. Dennen, the Scott Act "detectives" who shot Bartender George Brown during the affray at Myrtle Station on the evening of Dec. 14. The officers were armed with three warrants: One issued by Major (not a military major) Harper, Police Magistrate for the County of Ontario, charging them with wounding with intent to kill; and two by Magistrate M. G. Robson of Port Perry, one charging them with wounding with intent to kill Burns and the other with shooting at with intent to wound Thomas Trebell of Port Perry. Ald. Baxter backed the warrants and the "detectives" were handed over to the officers from Whitby.

They were taken to that town on the 1 o'clock train. The preliminary examination, it is expected, will take place at Whitby this afternoon, when Mr. N. Gordon Bigelow will defend the prisoners and make application for bail. Major Harper will be the presiding magistrate. Mr. Bigelow says he has no fear of a fair trial in the County of Ontario. "South Ontario," said he to The World last evening, "is composed of a rich, well-informed, intelligent class of people. We will get justice there."

McCrea yesterday exhibited to the Whitby officers a hole on the left side of his overcoat, in the region of the heart. He claimed that it was a bullet puncture.

All Quiet at Whitby.

WHITBY, Dec. 16.—McCrea and Dennen arrived here this afternoon in charge of two constables. There was a large crowd at the Grand Trunk Station, but no attempts were made to molest the prisoners. They were locked up in the county jail without any interference.

Burns' Condition Unchanged.

MYRTLE STATION, Dec. 16.—Midnight—George Brown, the wounded bartender, still lies at Vernon's Hotel, just across the path from the station. As this hour his condition is not materially changed, but he is very low and weak. No trace of the bullets has yet been discovered. Dr. Starr, who is in attendance, says he cannot tell much about the man's exact condition.

Arrests To Be Made at Port Perry.

PORT PERRY, Dec. 16.—It is reported here this afternoon that the three men who accompanied Brown to Myrtle Station, are to be arrested on a charge of attempting to wound or kill the two "detectives." The excitement in this part of the county is still great.

POWDERLY IS VERY ILL.

The Belief is That He is Much Worse Than His Attendants Desire to Make Known.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 16.—Grand Master Workman Powderly's condition has not improved during the past twenty-four hours, and the belief exists that he is much worse than his relatives and the attending physician desire to make known to the public. The intelligence from the bedside of the labor chief has been unsatisfactory for two reasons. In the first place reporters have been loth to annoy the members of Mr. Powderly's household by frequent visits and pressing questions which would have no other result than causing pain and distress where grief already rests heavily. The physician in the case, Dr. W. E. Allen, has, therefore, been relied upon chiefly for information concerning the sick man, and the secretiveness which is generally characteristic of members of the medical profession has been a formidable barrier to the inquisitiveness of the men of the press, who have taken Dr. Allen's statements concerning Mr. Powderly's condition as an indication that the patient's illness is of a trivial nature, and that complete recovery is but the question of a day or two.

The fact of the matter is that he is in a critical condition and has been so since his arrival here last Tuesday. Yesterday the symptoms were alarming, a severe attack of hemorrhage having set in, which continued with distressing effect until early this morning. Dr. Allen says this morning that Mr. Powderly is suffering great pain, the result of a rupture of a small blood vessel, but that if he remains quiet for a few days and gets rest he will probably recover.

The Collision at Allandale.

HAMILTON, Dec. 16.—Thomas Moore, engine driver on the Northern and Northwestern Railway, who was seriously injured about the back by the collision of a freight train which he was driving and an express at Allandale yesterday morning, was brought to this city on the mail train from the north at 8.55 o'clock last night and taken to his home on Barton-street, near Hughson. Moore was the only person injured in the collision, though both engines were terribly smashed. The accident was caused through a semaphore signal not being raised in time.

THE SUFFERING CROWN PRINCE.

The Medical Attendants Find a Slight Increase in the Swelling.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—The San Remo correspondent of The National Zeitung telegraphs: At the examination of the Crown Prince's throat to-day Drs. Mackenzie and Krause and the other physicians found a very slight increase of the swelling.

The Medical Journal's Report.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The British Medical Journal says it has the following trustworthy information from San Remo regarding the Crown Prince: A few days ago an excrescence the size of a hemp seed was detected on the left ventricular band, which had previously been free from disease. Two days later a second tiny speck was noticed near the first. They soon became fused, forming one warty looking mass and growing so quickly that the vocal chord on that side is now hidden from view. There is no immediate danger and the Prince suffers no pain, but the case in its purely medical aspects is one of great complexity.

Dr. McKenzie's Examination.

SAN REMO, Dec. 16.—Dr. McKenzie states that he considers the appearance of the Crown Prince's throat better than when he examined it the beginning of November. It is true a small growth has formed higher up in the throat, but it has not the malignant appearance of the growth which appeared toward the close of the Crown Prince's stay at Baveno, but which has since diminished. The swelling of the glands has entirely disappeared.

Dr. Mackenzie is about to make a professional visit to Algiers. He will return afterwards to San Remo. He would not go to Algiers if he considered the Crown Prince's case urgent.

THE ROBBER DETECTIVES.

Evidence Against Fahey and His Pals—Constable Plante Re-arrested.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.—The evidence of Detective Maxwell of the Grand Trunk Railway was furnished to the public by Judge Desnoyers to-day. The evidence gives details of the Bonaventure Depot robbery and from the time he registered at Balmoral as J. H. Craig and was introduced to Fahey and Naegele as a cracksman. Naegele had afterwards said it had been badly managed, but said they would do better next time. Fahey came in while Naegele was in the room, and till four of them, viz., Fahey, Naegele, Wilson and Maxwell engaged in conversation. During the talk Fahey said that where they only got $1200, they should have got $7000 or $8000, attributing the failure to Wilson, who, he said, had weakened. Fahey also detailed how they went to Phillips' house. Witness told how Fahey and Naegele took him and Hayner, otherwise Wilson, and showed them all the places they could burglarize. The witness was subjected to a very severe cross-examination, but it failed to shake his evidence in the least.

Detective Flynn was the next witness, and in his evidence he gave Detective Wilson a right name as Frank Hayner, and stated that he was an actor and was also formerly employed as shop-walker in Lord & Taylor's, New York. He admitted that he was not in the city at present; that he had left to enjoy a little repose from the annoyance and worry incident to this case, but that he would be forthcoming so soon as his evidence would be required in the Court of Queen's Bench. He also played in a theatrical troupe at the Royal here in 1885 under the name of Mitchell.

Plante, the policeman, who is charged with being connected with the robbery of a ring from Mr. Dufresne, and who was admitted to bail, was re-arrested to-day, charged with being concerned in the robbery of Lefebre's jewelry store in 1883.

CENTRAL BANK LIQUIDATORS.

The Names of the Nominees Submitted to Chancellor Boyd—Judgment Reserved.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.

In the Chancery Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall yesterday, Chancellor Boyd heard the argument on the report of President Blain of the Central Bank as to the meetings of the creditors and shareholders held on Tuesday. Mr. John Bain, Q.C., appeared for Mr. Robert Green, the original petitioner; Mr. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., for the bank; Mr. Hugh Scott and Dr. Pattullo represented the creditors, and Mr. Wm. Kersteman spoke for the shareholders.

Mr. Bain argued that as the creditors alone were interested in the bank's liquidation their nominees, Messrs. Campbell, Howland and Gooderham, should be appointed. Mr. Blake gave assent for the bank. Mr. Kersteman objected that, while the report made it appear that the shareholders desired that Mr. Gooderham and Mr. Stayner should be advisory liquidators with Mr. Campbell, the intention was that the three should have equal powers. Mr. Bain suggested that Mr. Campbell should be bound in $50,000 and the other two in $5000 or $10,000 each.

The Chancellor reserved judgment as to the nomination of the liquidators and also as to the form and amount of the bonds.

Not an Admirer of Wiman's Scheme.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.—George A. Drummond, President of the Board of Trade, has declined the invitation to a meeting in Boston for the consideration of commercial relations between the United States and British America. He concluded his letter as follows: "Holding as I do the most sincere desire to see increased harmony and most extended trade relations on fair terms between Boston and Canada, you will, I am sure, pardon my frank objection to being even by inference committed to Mr. Wiman's scheme, and asking to be permitted to decline your kind invitation."

Germany's War Upon Socialism.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—A new bill has been introduced in the Reichstag authorizing the expulsion of all Socialists who have incurred penalties for violations of the anti-Socialist law, or by belonging to secret societies which is forbidden by existing laws. In accordance with the provisions of this bill most of the Socialist members of the Reichstag may be expelled from Germany. The bill also permits the punishment of any one taking part in a Socialist congress.

The West Middlesex Election Case.

STRATHROY, Dec. 16.—The trial of the petition against the return of Dr. Roome, Conservative, M.P. for West Middlesex, closed to-day. All but two of the charges were dismissed. Judge Falconbridge will give his decision on those two in Chambers at Toronto.

THE NATIONS TALK OF WAR

THE ST. PETERSBURG GAZETTE'S ARTICLE CONSIDERED IRRITATING.

In the Event of Hostilities Roumania Will Remain Neutral—It is Believed That Russia Will Not Venture to Challenge the Triple Alliance.

PESTH, Dec. 16.—The Austrian press are unanimously of the opinion that the article published in The St. Petersburg Official Military Gazette, has greatly increased the acuteness of the situation. The Pesther Lloyd says Austria must make military preparations involving large expense. The paper also states that it is untrue that Roumania will, in the event of war, place two army corps on the Russian frontier. The Roumanians will, in any event remain neutral. Well informed persons believe that Russia may threaten, but that she will not venture to challenge the triple alliance.

Almost a Panic on the Austrian Bourse.

VIENNA, Dec. 16.—At the opening of the Bourse to-day there was almost a panic on the announcement being made that Premier Von Tieza of Hungary had been summoned to attend a council of Ministers at Vienna.

LATER.—The Journal de St. Petersburg's article disclaiming Russia's responsibility for the present state of affairs in Europe helped the recovery of the market. Still Austrian rentes closed at a decline for the day of 2 per cent., and Hungarian rentes at a fall of 1½ per cent. Anglo-Austrian bank shares, which sold yesterday at 103, opened at 94, but recovered to 96. Credit Anstalt, Lombards and Lembergs fell 2 florins.

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL.

The Minister of War Says the Army Must Be Put on a Strong Footing.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—According to The Reichsanzeiger's version of Gen. Von Schellendorff's speech on the Military Bill to-day the Minister of War said that the object of the bill could be perfectly summed up in the words of the Emperor on the opening of Parliament, that the empire, by God's help, should become so strong that it could meet every danger with calmness from whatever quarter it might be attacked. The Minister continuing said that danger threatened, not from the warlike disposition of the allied powers, for German people always leaned toward peace, but from attacks by other people. The Empire was strong and it had allies, but in war its might depended only upon its own strength. The bill aimed to increase considerably the numerical strength of the army through the extension of the term of service in the landsturm. The additional strength given will be of great value, and with the physical hardiness of the Germans no difficulty will be experienced in giving effect to the provisions of the bill. The Germans, he felt sure, would not be sparing of their powers when the time came for beating off the enemy. After referring to the technical military arrangements required under the bill, the speaker concluded by expressing the wish that the day [when it would become necessary to put the measure to practical use was far off. Still, he said, everything must be ready if an attack were made, for the German army to enter upon the war path armed in the most perfect manner, so that their flag would again lead the German people to victory.

MR. SHEEDY AGAIN ARRESTED.

The M.P. Sentenced to Three Months' Imprisonment in Clonmel Jail.

DUBLIN, Dec. 16.—Mr. Sheehy, M.P., who was arrested under the Crimes Act, was to-day sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labor. Notice was given of an appeal and Mr. Sheehy was admitted to bail. Upon being released he was again arrested on the charge of having participated in a meeting at Clonmel. Bail was refused and the prisoner was taken to Clonmel Jail.

A Political Secret Revealed.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Justin McCarthy, speaking at Hull last night, said before the last election Lord Carnarvon negotiated with Parnellites, with the object of ousting Mr. Gladstone. The negotiations were conducted solely by Lord Carnarvon and himself. The former agreed to the stipulation that Conservatives should be prepared to concede any measure of Home Rule desired by Mr. Parnell and himself. The negotiations collapsed because of the perfectly true report that Mr. Parnell considered Mr. Gladstone the best man to deal with.

Fire at Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, Dec. 16.—This morning about 4 o'clock a fire broke out in Mr. Jackson's grocery, a wooden range occupied by W. T. Jackson, grocer; Mrs. McMaster, millinery and fancy goods, and J. Cane, barber. The building was completely destroyed. It was owned by Dr. W. J. Roe and was insured in the Caledonian and Norwich Union, $600 in each, and the contents in the Lancashire and Glasgow and London. The loss is unknown.

Advance in Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The freight agents of the Chicago east bound railways yesterday agreed on an advance in export rates on all classes of business. The advance averages 15 per cent.

TYPHOID FEVER IN OTTAWA.

An Analysis of the City Water Shows it to be Pure and Wholesome.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—Professors Marsan and Tourchot have made their report on the analyses made by them of four samples of Ottawa River water taken at the front of the screen of the supply pipe at a depth of 11 feet 6 inches, two at the outlet of Rochester Creek (which has been charged with emptying a great quantity of sewage into the river), three at the waterworks pump house, and four at the Ottawa College. The results with the four samples were found to be practically identical. The analyses show a considerable percentage of organic matter, but this is found to be of a woody nature and due to the forests through which the river flows and the quantity of timber annually floated down the stream.

The professors say: "The quantity of ammonia is too small to show direct pollution of the water from sewage, as it does not equal the amount often found in rain water. Moreover, it is a well-known fact that snow precipitates ammonia from the atmosphere, prevents the evaporation of that developed in the soil, and in consequence concentrates it in the streams that drain the country. In the presence of a large amount of vegetable organic residue the sure detection of small quantities of animal matter becomes very difficult, but we are safe in concluding that the amount of it present in the water analyzed is so insignificant that it can have no deleterious effect."

In conclusion they say: "It does not belong to the chemist to determine whether a certain sample of water may contain germs of certain diseases. These do not change the chemical composition of the water and may be developed in the purest water. The only thing which we can conclude from the above analysis is that in respect of chemical purity the water supplied to the city may be ranked among the best potable water."

It would thus appear that impure water is not the cause of the epidemic of typhoid fever from which the city is suffering and the cause must probably be looked for in the drains.

COLLISION ON THE NORTH RIVER.

A Steamship Collides With a Ferry Boat, Injuring Many Persons.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 16.—A collision occurred on the North River to-night between the steamship Breakwater and the ferry boat Pavonia. The guards and a portion of the stern cabin on the gentlemen's side of the Pavonia were demolished. Three men were caught in the wreck and seriously injured. Frank Moriarty, 30 years, of Meaford, Mass., was hurt about the hips and chest; ex-Assemblyman David Henry, aged 50, was crushed about the knees and abdomen; Richard Coughlin, 75 years old, was hurt about the side and head and both of his ankles were broken. The excitement among the uninjured passengers on the ferry boat quickly subsided when it was ascertained that she was in no danger of sinking. Several of those who were slightly hurt left the boat at Jersey City with improvised bandages of handkerchiefs.

Sudden Death of a Comedian.

TROY, N.Y., Dec. 16.—John Howson, the comedian, dropped dead of heart disease in his room at the American House at 6.30 o'clock this evening. He has been playing as leading man for Lotta in "Pawn Tickets No. 210" this season, and the company was to have appeared at Rand's Opera House this evening. Howson was born in Australia 44 years ago.

Five Men Killed by an Explosion.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., Dec. 16.—The explosion of a boiler in the Edison Electric Company's works to-day caused the death of five persons and the injury of three others. The dead are Walter Embree, superintendent Elwood Beckett, Edward Schofield, Wm. H. Richardson and Wm. Allison.

There Was Poison in the Cake.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 16.—Twelve or fifteen persons were poisoned last night by eating poisoned cake at a party. The victims were all badly affected and a number are so ill in a serious condition.

To Establish a Parcel Post.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Mr. N. M. Bell, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, has gone to New York to meet Mr. McLelan, Postmaster-General of Canada, for the purpose of negotiating a parcel post convention between the United States and Canada.

Mr. Chamberlain Cannot Accept.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.—On Dec. 13 the Board of Trade telegraphed an invitation to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain to attend a banquet in this city. Mr. Chamberlain replied yesterday, thanking the board and explaining that as he would be unable to stop at Montreal on his way to Ottawa, he was unable to fix a date for the banquet.

The York Roads.

MARKHAM, Dec. 16.—A mass meeting of the ratepayers of Markham will be held at Unionville to-day to consider the question of the future maintenance of the York roads.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

SALE OF TIMBER LIMITS.

The Government of Ontario on Thursday disposed of four hundred and fifty square miles of timber limits by public auction. The demand for the limits seems to have been good and $1,350,000 was realized from the sale.

The prices paid may be considered good, but it should not be forgotten that if the limits sold in former years had been held they would have brought advanced prices. Even at the figures the limits reached on Thursday some of them did not go to lumbermen and will evidently be held for a rise. Limits sold in former years have been resold at higher prices and money made by the purchasers that might have been secured for the people.

If the receipts from these sales were funded for the benefit of the Province and the capital thus retained, though in another form, the matter would not be so serious for the people. But the proceeds are counted as current receipts and applied to meet ordinary expenditure, which means that the Province is encroaching upon and living on its capital.

Last year 55,641 acres of crown lands were sold and nearly $150,000 was received as bonuses on sales made in the previous year. These amounts, as have been the custom with the Ontario Government, were treated as ordinary revenue, and the large sums realized on Thursday will no doubt be entered in the same way. It should be an easy matter to make both ends meet when capital can be called in at any time to make up a deficiency, but even with this mine drawn upon, the Government borrows money and then is compelled to report deficits.

It looks farcical for the Government to incur expense in teaching the people to conserve the forests and to engage in tree planting, while they set the example of selling the timber of the Province to meet current expenditure.

Reports about the proceedings of the Fishery Commission and the reasons for its adjournment till January should be received with a large grain of salt. Its meetings were private and no authoritative accounts of what it did has been made public. The fact that the Commission is to meet again shows that the negotiators hope to arrive at a settlement.

AT THE GRANGE.

The Annual Session of this Division Held—The Business Done.

The annual meeting of the Northumberlan and Peterborough division Grange was held on Wednesday in the Foresters Hall.

There were a large number present.

Worthy Master Hugh Davidson occupied the chair and in opening the meeting made a few remarks, congratulating this division on its sussessful state, and also of the fair prospects of the Order. He said that a committee had been appointed to consider the question of Commercial Union and would report.

The auditors, D. Kennedy and W. J. Wiggins, reported on the finances of the division, showing that there was a handsome balance in hand.

The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—

|---|---|
| Hugh Davidson | Master |
| Wm Brisbin | Overseer |
| T. B. Carlaw | Lecturer |
| E. Weir | Stewart |
| G. J. Galvin | Asst. Stewart |
| Thos. Johnston | Chaplain |
| James Tindle | Treasurer |
| James Brock | Secretary |
| James Davidson | G. Keeper |
| Mrs. John Garbutt | Ceres |
| " Hugh Davidson | Pomona |
| " D. Kennedy | Flora |
| " Wm. Nicholls | Lady Assistant |

Executive Committe—Thos. McCamus, Thos. Medd, H. C. Garbutt, D. D. Henderson, J. F. Clew, Edward Weir.

The officers were installed by D. Kennedy of the Dominion Grange.

In the evening the meeting was again called to order. Messrs. D. Kennedy, T. B. Carlaw, and Jas. Moore, the committee on Commercial Union, reported in its favor.

A discussion followed after which the report was adopted.

New Station Building.

The Stirling News-Argus says:—"The new station building is now finished and is occupied by the agent, and for the accommodation of the public. Stirling can now boast of having the neatest and best station of the line between Belleville and Peterborough, if not on the whole Midland division, with the exception of Peterborough. The old station building is being removed."

Personal.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—"Geo. A. Morrison, of Wilson & Morrison, Peterborough, managers for E. O. Manufacturer's Life Ins. Co., was in the city. By referring to advt in another column it will be seen that the company require a first class man to represent them in this city. The popularity of this Company already points to its becoming one of the leading Companies of Canada."

The Severn Route.

The following resolution, the Packet says, was passed at the meeting in the Orillia Council Chamber on Thursday:—"That at the meeting held at Orillia to-day, in the interest of the Trent Valley Canal, the following municipalities were represented, Orillia, Midland, Orillia and Matchedash, and Morrison. It was unanimously agreed that the Government should push on the construction of the canal with all possible speed, and that we consider the North River or Severn route should be adopted, believing as we do that it will serve the best interest of the country. We would also ask that the Commission appointed by the Government have a sitting at the town of Orillia at an early date, when all possible information and evidence will be submitted by representatives of the municipalities interested in the above route, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Judge Weller, Peterborough, and James Stevenson, President Trent Valley Canal Association."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or otherwise. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

Mr. John Cousins has had a pretty tough time of it this last week trying to make ice while the mercury persisted in staying above freezing point. It was a grand ice morning yesterday morning though, and he made the best of it. He got one curling rink ready, with the tee marked out and all and he is going to fix the others right away. There was only three degrees of frost during to-day and the process of ice making was slow. If there is a good night's freezing to-night and to-morrow night it will not be long before the rink will be opened.

Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army meetings which have been in progress during the past two days came to a close on Friday night. During the day an officers council of war was held in the barracks at which the captains of the different corps throughout the district gave in reports as to the way the battle waged in their several localities. The council was presided over by Adjutant Bolton. In the evening there was a great march out in which the forty visiting officers and the full complement of the Peterborough corps took part. Banners transparencies, musical instruments and a brass band were in the procession. At the market square a number of evolutions were gone through, and afterwards the whole crowd marched to the barracks where addresses were delivered.

AT TURNBULL'S I find I can buy Dry Goods the cheapest of any place in town. They never force me to buy, nor represent goods to be what they are not.

THE HISTORY OF ESTHER.

Mrs. Youmans Again in Peterborough—An Answer to "Elector."

Mrs. Youmans gave another lecture on temperance in the Opera House on Friday evening. Mrs. Jas. Kendry, President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, presided, and several members of the Union occupied seats on the platform. A hymn was sung, Mrs. Youman's offered prayer, and the President read two chapters of the Bible

The PRESIDENT said that it was unusual for a woman to take the chair in Peterborough, but after the letter in the Examiner signed by "Elector," in which they were challenged to temperance work, each woman should do her part. Each woman having a vote should use it, for it was a great privilege. "Elector," made a mistake in saying that, if a woman did not vote for temperance councillors, when her drunken husband kicked her out she should say it was her own fault. Women who had husbands had not votes, and therefore "Elector" was in error.

Mrs. YOUMANS referred to the death rate caused by liquor, one every six minutes in Canada and the United States. What they licensed they wrapped the protecting folds of the country's flag around. The liquor traffic had great power, but she had confidence in the Bible and believed it would be put down. The power of the traffic was given it by the license, for with the license taken away it became disreputable criminal, dangerous. It soothed the hotel keepers conscience. She appealed to them to hold on to the Scott Act and to put no one in authority who was unfavourable to it. The licensed traffic was analagous to Haman's licence to kill his fellow men, and Esther, who was the first woman who went to the government to ask the repeal of an unjust law, was the prototype of the members of the W.C.T.U. She went over the story of Haman and Mordecai point by point showing the resemblance to the licensed liquor traffic. Haman's license was received from a despotic king; in Canada the electors gave the power. They wanted here, not an extended franchise, but a more intelligent franchise, and persons who sold their votes once should never be allowed to vote again. She referred to a murder which took place in Peterborough some years ago, when a man under the influence of liquor killed his wife, and said he got the liquor at a house licensed by the people. The temperance question was the only live question in politics or municipal affairs to-day. The fanaticism of yesterday was the reform of to-day and the triumph of to-morrow. Haman was hung on his own gallows and the families of liquor sellers seldom prospered. Esther was not satisfied till the edict to slay the Jews was out of the statutes, and they should not rest till they had prohibition. She believed that before long a wave of temperance would come with such an accumulation of waters as never struck the town before. She believed they would have prohibition, and then they could sing "Britons Never Shall be Slaves" and "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow."

The Rev. I. TOVELL made a brief speech and moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer

Mr. Thos. E. Bell, of Smith, seconded the motion, which was carried amid applause. Mr. Tovell engaged in prayer, after which the audience dispersed.

A. L. Davis & Co's Trade Booms

On as it has done in the past, and our customers can rely on securing from us all bargains offered in other stores. We are perfectly alive to the times. A merry 'Xmas. 7d144

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

Where the People Buy.

Local merchants have no reason to complain of to-day's trade. If streets thronged with people, if hurrying crowds pouring in and out of the shops, if parcel laden men and quick-stirring women indicate that business is booming, then our traders have done a heap of trade. The early trains were filled with people from the country—just the right sort of buyers to draw to town and hold to come again. By road large numbers reached town at a late hour and did their shopping. Given good weather and next week's business promises to add up an aggregate that will naturally cut down stocks.

The Churches.

The Rev. E. F. Torrance will preach the sermons in the St. Paul's Church to-morrow, in the evening continuing the sermons upon the Pilgrim's Progress. The subject will be "The Valley of the Shadow of Death." A collection for the Augmeration Fund will be taken up at both services to-morrow.

The Anniversary services of the George Street Methodist Church will be conducted at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. by the popular and eloquent pastor of the Queen St. Church, Toronto, the Rev. Benjamin Longley, B. A. Strangers welcome.

Grand 'Xmas Tree Entertainment.

You are invited to the 'Xmas Tree entertainment, in the Lecture Room of George St. Church, on Monday evening, Dec. 19th. The tree will be loaded with beautiful articles suitable for 'Xmas purposes, to be sold at reasonable prices. A programme of good music will be rendered. Refreshments, oysters, &c, will be served from six o'clock. Admission ten cents. 2d144.

A Prophecy.

The Oshawa Vindicator wishes to be ranked as a prophet. It says:—"A lively contest for the Mayoralty is looked for in Peterborough, the present mayor, Mr. Jas. Stevenson, being opposed by Mr. A. Rutherford, who poses as a temperance advocate. Mr. Stevenson will be re-elected."

Building.

Mr. T. Irwin is completing the building on the corner of King and George street, which has been put up for Mr. J. J. Lundy. The place is well built and comprises a spacious store and dwelling in the second and third storeys. An oil merchant is making arrangements to rent the building.

Y.W.C.T.U.

The regular meeting of the "Y" will be held in the hall, George street, Monday evening, (19th) at 7.30 sharp. The study of some of Mrs. E. B. Browning's poems will be commenced and all young women will be cordially welcomed.

THE MORTALITY RATE.

THE TRUTH TOLD ABOUT THE TYPHOID FEVER.

An Remarkable Absence of Zymotic Diseases—Resume of the Work Done This Year.

A meeting of the Board of Health was held in the committee room off the Council Chamber on Friday evening. There were present: Dr. Fife, Wm. Yelland, John McNaughton R. W. Errett and Dr. Clarke, the Medical Health Officer.

Dr. Clarke submitted his report of the season's work—which is as follows:—

To the Chairman and members of the Peterborough Board of Health.

GENTLEMEN,

In presenting the fourth annual report of the Medical Health Officer, I am proud to say that the town during the past year shows a lessening death-rate, a freedom from outside epidimics, and a lower ratio of infectious diseases than the majority of towns in the Province. The amount of sanitary work done has been large and it is only fair to assume that this has contributed to a great extent in producing so gratifying a state of affairs. The principal points demanding our attention are the following:—

SLAUGHTER HOUSES.—Two slaughter houses have been removed outside the town limits during the present season. Frequent inspections of those still remaining have been made and have shown that a great deal of pains is taken to keep things up to the standard. If an occasional bad odor is found, it is generally from unavoidable rather than from avoidable causes. The infrequency of complaints as to slaughter-houses is in marked contrast to the state of things two or three years ago.

HOG PENS.—This year, as in other years it has been necessary to order the removal of a good many. It often seems a hard step to those who have much kitchen refuse, but the development of scavengering has helped greatly in disposing of the latter. We may hope that before long, within the town limits during the summer, the genus hog will be practically extinct.

REMOVAL OF GARBAGE AND EXCRETA.—In no other division of the sanitary work of the year is so much improvement seen as in this. When the first Board of Health was inaugurated it was with difficulty that one man could be got to attend to this work. Now twelve or fifteen are engaged in it, and, as a natural result, it is pretty well done. A lot was obtained at the lower end of the town for the deposit of all kinds of refuse and has been made good use of. Indeed much harmless matter has been put there, that might as well have been used in filling up Spaulding's Bay. Clippings of glass, tin, and zinc, ashes, and such material would answer admirably for that purpose; but the difficulty is that occasionally a dead cat or rat is found in the heap, and, when exposed to putrefactive influences, tells some sensitive nostril that the town is in an alarmingly unhealthy condition. Hence it has been found advisable to prohibit almost all kinds of refuse from being deposited there.

WELLS.—I have analysed more than seventy samples of water during the present year. As a rule there was less organic matter than heretofore, but some wells were very bad and had to be closed. I should recommend filters to be used in every house. Good and cheap ones can now be easily obtained and are a great protection from the impurities which find their way into the best water.

COMPLAINTS.—Hundreds have been sent me throughout the year, the great majority having reference to the throwing of slops by families at their neighbor's doors. A good system of sewerage would, of course, remedy this and the necessity for such a system becomes apparent yearly. A bad state of things is found at the rear of the stores in spring from this cause. Snow accumulates, and, mixed with the slops periodically thrown out, is converted into a mass of ice several feet in thickness, which, shaded from the sun, does not melt away till June or July and makes spring clean impossible till then. Complaints as to offensive privies are much less frequent this year, owing, no doubt, to more efficient scavengering, all complaints have been remedied as promptly as possible. Acting-Chief Adams being the only Inspector on duty during the day had his hands full, still we managed to get through the work of the year pretty well.

TYPHOID FEVER.—When two or three well known persons are attacked with this disease, the many rumours connected therewith lead the public to suppose that hundreds of cases exist around them. The truth is that in Peterborough this year we have had very little more than our ordinary share of typhoid and much less proportionately than many towns in Ontario. An intensely hot July is probably accountable for the slight increase. Three deaths have occurred from typhoid and three from typho-malarial throughout the year.

DIPHTHERIA.—From 1st Dec., 1886 to 1st Dec. 1887 eight deaths have occurred from this disease, five of which were in last December. There have been no cases reported during the latter summer and fall, but within the last week or so a few have occurred The greatest care is taken by means of placarding, isolation and disinfection to prevent any communication. The proportion of cases is a good deal less than in the majority of towns during the year.

SCARLET FEVER.—Very few cases have occured and only one death.

DEATH RATE.—In 1886 there were 149 deaths to a population of 8,428. In 1887, 144 deaths to a population of 8,668. In other words, last year the death-rate was 17.6 per thousand, while this year it is only 16.6 per thousand, the lowest on record in Peterborough. The registrar-general of England fixed upon 17 per thousand as a kind of standard to be aimed at by sanitarians. In coming below even that, we have much reason for gratification.

MILK SUPPLY.—I have lately received circulars from the Provincial Board referring to this question. It is proposed to take comprehensive measures next year to ensure the purity of so important an artical of diet. Your officers notified several of the milk-vendors that their places might soon come under inspection. I may say that no complaints have been made as to impurity of milk sold in the town.

Appended is a synopsis of sanitary work done during the last year.

J. CLARKE, M.D.,
Medical Health Officer.

Synopsis of sanitary work done in Peterborough during the year 1887:—

When out buying call at the Crystal Block. d143.

Organ Recital.

On Friday evening an organ recital was given in St. Paul's Church by Mr. J. S. Parker, assisted by the choir. Mr. Baguley, Miss Vair and Miss Cottingham were the vocal soloists, and Mr. Parker the organ soloist. There was a large attendance. The first number on the programme was an anthem "Great is the Lord," Hadyn. It was given by the choir in a finished manner. The other choruses were also presented with good effect, though the tenor might, to give an even balance of parts, have been a shade more prominent at times. The singing of the choir was very pleasing throughout the evening, and Mr. Parker is to be congrtulated upon his efficiency as choir master. No. 2 on the programme was an organ solo, overture "Tancredi," Rossini. In No. 11 he gave "Hymn of Seraphs" Guilmant and in No. 13 "Allegro from Sonata," Archer. All three compositions are good selections and were well given. But his interpretation of of the "Hymn of Seraphs" was the event of the evening. The distinct contrasts, exquisite harmonic effects, and the emotion in the several passages, were clearly presented to the audience. The composition is of considerable length, but it was listened to throughout with much attention. Miss Vair and Miss Cottingham sang two duets; "Great Creator," Rossini, and "Faint Not," Smart. The movement in the first number is rather eccentric at times, but is very pleasing and affords abundant scope for fine shading of harmony. The vocalists in both duets acquitted themselves well. Mr. Baguley sang "Pro Peccatis," Rossini, in good voice. Miss Cottingham's solos were "O Rest in the Lord," Mendelssohn, and "Return O Lord of Hosts," in both of which she appeared to good advantage. Miss Vair sang "Mighty Pens," Hadyn, delighting the audience with her sweet, sympathetic voice. The recital closed with the choir's singing the National Anthem.

Presentation.

On Friday afternoon a deputation from St. Peter's Cathedral waited upon the Rev. Father Fayolle, who was about to remove to a parish in Minnesota for the benefit of his health, to bid him farewell. The deputation consisted of Messrs. Cahill, LeBrun, Dr. Crevier, Dolan, Kelly, Potvin and Brousseau. Mr. Cahill, in a neat speech, expressed the sentiments of the deputation and presented Father Fayolle with a well filled purse. Father Fayolle made a feeling reply. He regretted leaving Peterborough on account of the many warm friends he had in all classes of the community, but a change was necessary on account of his health. He hoped to return to Peterborough, but in any case he would always cherish the warmest feelings for the people of the town. Dr. Crevier and Mr. LeBrun spoke in French, and Father Fayolle replied in the same language, expressing his thanks and his regard for the people of Peterborough again.

We notice Messrs. Breeze & Bain are showing a very nice assortment of Tea Trays in sets and single for the Xmas trade. d139tf

It is the Opening Day.

Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co.'s dry goods house has been the scene of busy animation all day to-day. The place from top to bottom has been thronged with admiring visitors and crowds of purchasers. The clerks in the dress goods and haberdashery departments have been particularly busy, some of them not being able, on account of demands upon their services without cessation, to even go to the refreshment room for a cup of coffee. The elevator has been put into constant use all day in taking the customers and visitors from one department to another. The whole house will be in a blaze of splendor this evening, and the proprietors will be pleased to see, and to show through the building, all those who desire to have a look through it. 2d3

PARLIAMENT SUMMONED.

THE DOMINION HOUSE WILL MEET ON JANUARY 31.

The Government to Hold an Investigation of the Oriental Disaster—The Expected Visit of Mr. Chamberlain—The Scott Act in Halton.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—The question of an early session was settled at to-day's Council meeting by the summoning of Parliament for the despatch of business on Tuesday, Jan. 31. With the exception of 1884 and 1885, and the syndicate session of 1880-81 this will be the earliest date at which Parliament has met since confederation.

Mr. Risley, Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspectors, assisted by Capt. Taylor, has been ordered by the Marine Department to hold an investigation in Kingston into the causes of the Oriental disaster.

Before Mr. Registrar Cassels, acting as Judge in Chambers this morning, application was made by Mr. G. Stuart of Quebec, and Mr. McLean of Ottawa to dismiss an appeal entered in the Supreme Court for want of prosecution. Mr. Balderson opposed the motion. The action is one brought to define certain boundaries. Mr. Cassels refused the application, but the appellant has to pay costs.

Hon. Jos. Chamberlain is expected to arrive at Rideau Hall on Jan. 21.

Hon. Mr. Thompson, Minister of Justice, returned from Washington this morning.

Senator McKindsey is here to urge the fixing of a date for voting on the repeal of the Canada Temperance Act in Halton. There are now six petitions for the repeal of the act awaiting investigation in the Department of Justice. That department has been so hard worked lately with the fisheries case and other matters that it has been impossible to examine these petitions, which requires both time and care, but the press of work being somewhat relieved the petitions are being taken up, and will probably be reported upon in a few days.

Announcements in The Gazette.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—To-morrow's Canada Gazette will contain the following appointments: Benjamin Globensky of Montreal, Puisne Judge of the Superior Court of Quebec; Chief Justice Taylor and Judges Dubuc, Killam and Bain of the Court of Queen's Bench, Manitoba, to be commissioners per dedimus potestatem to administer oaths of office within the Province of Manitoba; Judge Benson, to be revising officer for East and West Northumberland; Chas. S. Rowe of St. Thomas, P.Q., to be preventive officer of Customs.

The return of Mr. John A. MacDonald for Victoria will be gazetted to-morrow.

The unrevised statement of inland revenue for the month of November is as follows: Spirits, $289,175; malt and malt liquor, $50,436; tobacco, $143,700; cigars, $43,912; other receipts, $9170; total excise, $536,393; canals, $28,545; rents, etc., $6203; total inland revenue, $571,141. Compared with the same month last year this shows the following increase: Spirits, $11,146; malt and malt liquors, $5173; canals, $701. The decreases are: Tobacco, $12,379; cigars, $2227.

The statement of circulation and specie on Nov. 30 shows the amount outstanding to be $15,725,907, an increase of $623,207 over October, but $67,085 less than November last year. The increase is entirely in bills of large denominations held by the banks. The excess of specie and guaranteed debentures is $1,072,672.

The following notices of applications to Parliament are given: By the Buffalo, Chippewa and Niagara Falls Steamboat and Railway Company for incorporation; by Messrs. Graham, Tupper, Borden and Parker, solicitors, of Halifax, for an act to incorporate the Eastern Assurance Company to carry on the business of fire insurance; by the Prescott County Railway for an extension of a line through the County of Russell and power to change the name of the railway; by the corporation of Kincardine for an act authorizing the municipal council to impose and collect certain tolls and dues at the harbor in the said town; by the Brantford, Waterloo and Lake Erie Railway Company and the corporation of the City of Brantford for an act to ratify and confirm a bylaw of the City of Brantford, grant a bonus of $25,000 to the Brantford, Waterloo and Lake Erie Railway Company, and to take stock in the said company to the extent of $25,000 or to ratify and confirm such part of the said by-law as may be required; the provisional directors of the Oshawa Railway and Navigation Company give notice of the opening of stock books in Kingston on Jan. 20.

Notices are given by the Bank of Hochelaga and the Bank of Yarmouth of their annual meetings, the former at Montreal on Jan. 16 and the latter at Yarmouth on Jan. 11.

A Fruit Tree Fedlar Punished.

SIMCOE, Ont., Dec 16.—Jas. Cavers, the young man from Galt who obtained notes for large sums from three German farmers of Middleton on small orders for fruit trees, was tried here yesterday evening at the general session before His Honor Judge Livingstone. There were three indictments against him and he was found guilty on each count. This morning His Honor sentenced him to three years in the Provincial Penitentiary at Kingston. Cavers is said to be respectably connected in Galt and to have previously borne a good reputation, but the evidence was most convincing as to his guilt.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

"I said some trifling event would bring us together the next time. I was wrong. No trifling event will bring us together. I said I might be the person who told her what had become of Ferrari, if she forced me to it. Shall I feel some other influence than hers? Will he force me to it? When she sees him, shall I see him too?"

Her head sunk a little, her heavy eyelids dropped slowly, she heaved a long, low, weary sigh. Francis put her arm in his, and made an attempt to rouse her.

"Come, countess, you are weary and overwrought. We have had enough talking to-night. Let me see you safe back to your hotel. Is it far from here?"

She started when he moved and obliged her to move with him, as if he had suddenly awakened her out of a deep sleep.

"Not far," she said, faintly. "The old hotel on the quay. My mind's in a strange state; I have forgotten the name."

"Danieli's?"

"Yes!"

He led her on slowly. She accompanied him in silence as far as the end of the Piazetta. There when the full view of the moonlit Lagoon revealed itself, she stopped him as he turned toward the Riva degli Schiavoni. "I have something to ask you. I want to wait and think."

She recovered her lost idea after a long pause.

"Are you going to sleep in the room to-night?" she asked.

He told her that another traveler was in possession of the room that night. "But the manager has reserved it for me to-morrow," he added, "if I wish to have it."

"No," she said; "you must give it up."

"To whom?"

"To me."

He started. "After what I have told you, do you really wish to sleep in that room to-morrow night?"

"I must sleep in it."

"Are you not afraid?"

"I am horribly afraid."

"So I should have thought after what I have observed in you to-night. Why should you take the room? You are not obliged to occupy it unless you like."

"I was not obliged to go to Venice when I left America," she answered. "And yet I came here. I must take the room and keep the room until"— She broke off at those words. "Never mind the rest," she said. "It doesn't interest you."

It was useless to dispute with her. Francis changed the subject. "We can do nothing to-night," he said. "I will call on you to-morrow morning and hear what you think of it then."

They moved on again to the hotel. As they approached the door Francis asked if she was staying in Venice under her own name.

She shook her head. "As your brother's widow I am known here. As Countess Narona I am known here. I want to be known this time to strangers in Venice; I am traveling under a common English name." She hesitated, and stood still. "What has come to me?" she muttered to herself. "Some things I remember and some I forget. I forgot Danieli's—and now I forget my English name."

She drew him hurriedly into the hall of the hotel, on the wall of which hung a list of visitors' names. Running her finger slowly down the list, she pointed to the English name she had assumed—"Mrs. James."

"Remember that when you call to-morrow," she said. "My head is heavy. Good night."

Francis went back to his own hotel, wondering what the events of the next day would bring forth. A new turn in his affairs had taken place in his absence. As he crossed the hall he was requested by one of the servants to walk into the private office. The manager was waiting there with a gravely preoccupied manner, as if he had something serious to say. He regretted to hear that Mr. Francis Westwick had, like other members of the family, discovered mysterious sources of discomfort in the new hotel. He had been informed in strict confidence of Mr. Westwick's extraordinary objection to the atmosphere of the bedroom upstairs. Without presuming to discuss the matter, he must beg to be excused from reserving the room for Mr. Westwick after what had happened.

Francis answered sharply, a little ruffled by the tone in which the manager had spoken to him. "I might, very possibly, have declined to sleep in the room if you had reserved it," he said. "Do you wish me to leave the hotel?"

The manager saw the error that he had committed and hastened to repair it. "Certainly not, sir! We will do our best to make you comfortable while you stay with us. I beg your pardon if I have said anything to offend you. The reputation of an establishment like this is a matter of very serious importance. May I hope that you will do us the great favor to say nothing about what has happened up stairs? The two French gentlemen have kindly promised to keep it a secret."

This apology left Francis no polite alternative but to grant the manager's request. "There is an end to the countess' wild scheme," he thought to himself, as he retired for the night. "So much the better for the countess!"

He rose late the next morning. Inquiring for his Parisian friends, he was informed that both the French gentlemen had left for Milan. As he crossed the hall on his way to the restaurant he noticed the head porter chalking the numbers of the rooms on some articles of luggage which were waiting to go up stairs. One trunk attracted his attention by the extraordinary number of old traveling labels left on it. The porter was marking it at the moment—and the number was "13A." Francis instantly looked at the card fastened on the lid. It bore the common English name, "Mrs. James!" He at once inquired about the lady. She had arrived early that morning, and she was then in the reading room. Looking into the room he discovered a lady in it alone. Advancing a little nearer he found himself face to face with the countess.

She was seated in a dark corner with her head down and her arms crossed over her bosom. "Yes," she said, in a tone of weary impatience, before Francis could speak to her, "I thought it best not to wait for you—I determined to get here before anybody else could take the room."

"Have you taken it for long?" Francis asked.

"You told me Miss Lockwood would be here in a week's time. I have taken it for a week."

"What has Miss Lockwood to do with it?"

"She has everything to do with it—she must sleep in the room. I shall give the room up to her when she comes here."

Francis began to understand the superstitious purpose that she had in view. "Are you, an educated woman, really of the same opinion as my sister's maid?" he exclaimed. "Assuming your absurd superstition to be a serious thing, you are taking the wrong means to prove it true. If I and my brother and sister have seen nothing, how should Agnes Lockwood discover what was not revealed to us? She is only distantly related to the Montbarrys—she is only our cousin."

"She was nearer to the heart of the Montbarry who is dead than any of you," the countess answered, sternly. "To the last day of his life my miserable husband repented his desertion of her. She will see what none of you have seen—she shall have the room."

University College Students Remove It From Their Reading Room.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.

The weekly meeting of the University College Literary and Scientific Society, held yesterday evening, was a lively affair. There was a large attendance of students, who all seemed to take great interest in a motion proposing to vacate Moss Hall in consequence of the refusal of President Wilson to allow political subjects to be debated, and to seek suitable accommodation elsewhere. The members who supported the resolution agreed that is behoved the society to look out for another place in which to meet, a place where they would not be hampered with such restrictions as those which Dr. Wilson so rigidly enforced. They wanted freedom of discussion; debates on political subjects would be instructive and interesting. Opponents to the motion pointed out the difficulties which would arise were it carried into effect. First, it would deprive them of their title as a University Debating Society, debar them from the privileges of the University Library, and possibly set them at variance with the Council. It was finally decided to adjourn the debate until the annual meeting.

A proposition was made that The Globe be removed from the reading-room of the society, the reason put forth being that it had shamefully misrepresented the society. Under the head of "Cap and Gown" the most extraordinary and groundless statements appeared concerning the college and the society. As a mark of their disapproval of such conduct, the students were asked to adopt the motion. The paper that would make such false statements concerning their proceedings should not be allowed a place in their reading room. The motion was carried by a large majority.

Presentation to Superintendent Gilkinson.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 16.—At the Indian Council House at Ohsweken, the other day, Superintendent Lieut.-Col. J. T. Gilkinson of the Six Nation Indians, in the presence of a large number of warriors and women, was highly honored. It was the occasion of the completion of twenty-five years of service as their chief head, and he was presented with a congratulatory address and an Indian sash of honor. The address alluded to the successful efforts of the Superintendent in the promotion of various projects for the advancement, welfare and prosperity of the Six Nations, and the general feeling of satisfaction and friendship toward that gentleman.

Superintendent Gilkinson made a happy reply, and shook hands with all the chiefs, warriors and women present.

Churchill's Estimate of Gladstone.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Lord Randolph Churchill made a speech at Stockport, in which, among other things, he said that Lord Hartington's statement that the alliance between the Unionists and Conservatives would continue to be a close one was the cardinal feature of the recess. He regretted to say that there could be traced in Mr. Gladstone's course every sign of age, except the possession of wisdom. The older that gentleman became, the further he went wrong. With reference to retrenchment, he calculated that the next budget would show an estimated surplus of from £2,000,000 to £3,000,000, and that in the following year the expenditure would be reduced to £85,000,000, or £5,000,000 less than the figures at which Mr. Gladstone left it.

ROTHSCHILD'S TERRIBLE REVENGE.

How Retribution Once Overtook the Bank of England—No Laughing Matter.

An amusing adventure is related as having happened to the Bank of England, which had committed the unpardonable sin of refusing to discount a large bill drawn by Anselm Rothschild, of Frankfort, on Nathan Rothschild, of London. The bank had haughtily replied that they discounted only their own bills, not those of private persons; but they had to do with one stronger than the bank.

"Private persons!" exclaimed Nathan when the fact was reported to him. "I will mak these gentlemen see what kind of private persons we are."

Three weeks later Nathan Rothschild—who had employed the interval in gathering all the £5 notes he could procure in England and on the continent—presented himself at the bank. He drew from his pocketbook a £5 note, and they naturally counted out five sovereigns, at the same time looking quite astonished that the Baron Rothschild should have personally troubled himself for such a trifle. The baron examined one by one the coins, and put them in a little canvas bag; then drawing out another note—a third—a tenth—a hundredth—he never put the pieces of gold into the bag without scrupulously examining them, and in some instances trying them in the balance, as the law gave him the right to do.

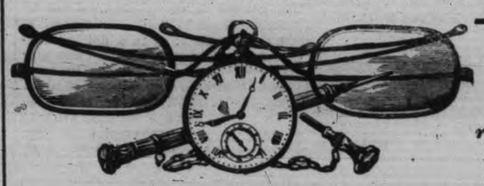
The first pocketbook being emptied and the first bag full, he passed them to his clerk and received a second, and thus continued till the bank closed. The baron had employed seven hours to change £21,000, but as he had also nine employes of his house engaged in the same manner, it resulted that the house of Rothschild had drawn £210,000 in gold from the Bank of England, and that he had so occupied the tellers that no other person could change a single note.

Everything which bears the stamp of eccentricity has always pleased the English. They were, therefore, the first day very much amused at the little pique of Baron Rothschild. They laughed less when they saw him return the next day, at the opening of the bank, flanked by his nine clerks, and followed this time by drays to carry away the specie. They laughed not at all when the king of bankers said with ironic simplicity:

"These gentlemen have refused to pay my bills. I have sworn not to keep theirs. At their leisure—only I notify them that I have enough to employ them for two months"——

"For two months!"

"Eleven millions in gold drawn from the Bank of England which they have never possessed."



The bank took alarm. There was something to be done. Next morning notice appeared in the journals that henceforth the bank would pay Rothschild's bills the same as their own.—Detroit Free Press.

Austrian Army Notions.

Titles of nobility are likely to become cheap in Austria before long. A new army minute provides that every officer of irreproachable conduct who has worn the imperial uniform for thirty years uninterruptedly, and has gone through at least one campaign, will, upon demand, be ennobled by the kaiser and the fees usually payable upon ennoblement will be remitted. Another regulation established by the same minute deals with a very different matter—the easy recognition of officers and men who fall in battle. In future, whenever the Austro-Hungarian army is mobilized, each combatant is to have delivered to him a small strip of parchment inscribed with his name, rank and regiment; and this ticket of identity is to be kept in a pocket which will be purposely made in every pair of breeches. After a battle the tickets would be taken from the bodies of the dead and forwarded to headquarters. Some such system has long been in operation in the German army.—St. James' Gazette.

It is said that the poet Goethe's death was hastened by his hearing an American pronounce his name.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

THE completion of the first year of publication, the success of which has never been equalled by a new magazine, is signalized by a beautiful Christmas number, with stories by BRET HARTE, H. C. BUNNER, S. O. JEWETT, T. R. SULLIVAN, poems by ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, AUSTIN DOBSON, EDITH M. THOMPSON, and many other contributions, with illustrations by WILL H. LOW, HOWARD PYLE, WILLIAM HOLE, J. W. ALEXANDER, F. S. CHURCH, SWAIN GIFFORD, and many others. During the year 1888 some notably interesting features have been arranged to appear; a prospectus will be sent on application. Mr. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute to every number, and will write in a familiar and personal way which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. An especially new important series of papers will be devoted to RAILWAYS their administrations and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels, passes, and, indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. There will be some most charming MENDELSSOHN LETTERS, now first published with unique illustrations, and the art-work throughout the Magazine will be of increased excellence. There will be many interesting contributions by new authors, while at the same time the most distinguished writers are largely represented.

TERMS. 25c. a number, $3.00 a year.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137tf J. STEVENSON.

TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

SOUTH WARD,

INTO A RIVER OF DEATH.

FRIGHTFUL CATASTROPHE ON A NEW BRUNSWICK RAILWAY.

An Engine and Snow-Plow Plunges Into the Water and Eight Men Lose Their Lives—Who the Victims were, Their Ages and Conditions.

BATHURST, N.B., Dec. 18.—A terrible accident occurred on the Caraquet Railway Saturday afternoon. While the train which left Caraquet at 2 p.m. for Gloucester Junction, in charge of Conductor Daniel Kearney and Driver Michael Lanigan, was near McKintosh's Cove bridge three miles west of Caraquet, the train men noticed heavy drifts of snow on the west side of the bridge. The train consisted of one passenger car, engine and snow plow. They had with them eight section men for the purpose of assisting in clearing the road of snow which fell during Friday's storm. They left the passenger car on the east side of the bridge. The section men, conductor, Brakeman Loudon and a young man named Frank Miller, with Driver Lanigan, and Fireman Boucher, thirteen in number were on the engine. They then started, but when they got on the bridge the plow and engine left the track and fell over into the river. Only five men could be found. The rest, eight in number, were pinned down under the engine, which was lying bottom up in the river.

The train was running slow at the time.

The following is a list of the killed:

Conductor Kearney of Douglastown, Miramichi, single, aged 25.

Driver Lanigan, Bathurst, married, four children, aged 31.

Felix Boucher, fireman, Bathurst, single, aged 24.

Joseph Viennseau, section man, Bathurst, married, five children, aged 30.

John Poulin, section man, Caraquet, married, large family, age 30.

Octave Pink, section man, Caraquet, single, aged 23.

John Carney, Bathurst, married, 5 children, age 30.

Frank Miller, Bathurst, single, aged 20.

Section men D. Patterson, Cormier, Fullam and E. Hackey escaped, as did also Brakeman Louden, who jumped through the cab window. They are all more or less injured, but not fatally.

As soon as the news reached Bathurst Drs. Meahan and Bishop were at once sent to the scene. By noon to-day all the bodies had been recovered. The wounded are doing well. Supt. W. H. Chisholm, Engineer W. Mann and P. H. Melvin of the Caraquet Railway were present and did everything that was possible.

The bridge is a good one and is uninjured.

NOTES FROM TORONTO.

There was $30 in the till of the box office of the Grand Theatre when Treasurer Herbert Sheppard locked up on Friday night. When the youthful Herbert came down on Saturday morning, prepared to do a rushing advance sale for either the minstrels or "Erminie," he found that "somebody had been there since he'd been gone." The money was missing and there was evidence of house-breaking work. The wire screen of a basement window had been torn off. Then the thief passed through the window, forced the lock of a door leading to the lobby, and gained an entrance to the box office by way of a trap window in the ceiling.

Chancellor Boyd has appointed Mr. Archibald Campbell, Mr. William Gooderham and Mr. W. H. Howland liquidators of the Central Bank. Each liquidator must furnish $20,000 security to the satisfaction of the Court. All moneys received by the liquidators must be paid into the Bank of Commerce, and the accounts of the liquidators must be passed half-yearly by the Master-in-Ordinary. The amount of remuneration remains to be settled.

Arrested for Perjury in an Election Trial.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Samuel Carroll of West Middlesex for perjury. Carroll was the principal witness on whom the Liberals relied in their attempt to unseat Dr. Roome, the Conservative member for the riding.

Anarchist Parson's Book Out.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—A. R. Parson's book, "The Philosophy of Anarchism" was issued yesterday in bright red colors. One chapter brings out some new points in regard to the trial of the Anarchists. It appears that Lawyer Foster and Capt. Black were fundamentally at variance as to the method of conducting the case, but Foster carried the day in the council and his way in court. Aside from this the book is devoted to the exposition of the author's social views. The book is printed by Mrs. Parsons.

A Big Assignment at Boston.

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—Cushman & Co., dealers in fancy dry goods, have assigned. Liabilities $60,000.

A Good Appointment for a Canadian.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 17.—Mr. Lingham, the well known cattle exporter of Belleville, has just received through Lord Dufferin the appointment as manager in India of the cattle estates of the Nizam of Hyderabad, who will be remembered as having given $2,000,000 towards the fortifications and defence of India a short time ago. Mr. Lingham received a cable yesterday afternoon to the effect that he would have a salary of £2000 sterling per annum. He is now in Montreal.

Sir Charles and the U. S. Quarantine.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—The Provincial Board of Health met yesterday afternoon, Dr. E. P. Lachapelle presiding. After he had given an account of the business done at the American Public Health Association at Memphis, a letter was read from Sir Charles Tupper promising to lay the question of the need of more effective quarantine regulations at United States ports before the proper authorities during his stay in Washington.

Expelled From the Loyalty Islands.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The London Missionary Society has received intelligence that Missionary Jones has been expelled from the Loyalty Islands by a force sent especially to the Islands from New Caledonia. He has arrived a Sydney, N. S. W., and has formally protested to the Governor against his expulsion.

Farmer Sexton Threatened.

DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—Farmer Sexton, at whose house Constable Whelahan was killed, has received a letter threatening him with death for not standing loyal to the accused.

Mr. Chaplin Won't Get There.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The report that the Government will create a Ministry of Agriculture and appoint Mr. Henry Chaplin minister, is declared to be without foundation.

GREAT MEN TALK OF WAR.

The Vienna Military Council—The Increase of Forces in Poland and Galicia.

VIENNA, Dec. 18.—The Military Council in this city to-day was presided over by the Emperor Francis Joseph. There were present Herr von Tisza, the Hungarian Prime Minister Count von Taafe, Minister of the Interior Count Kalnoky, Count Rylandt Rheydt, Imperial Minister of War; Herr von Kallay, Imperial Minister of Finance; Archduke Albrecht, Count von Wilversheimer, Minister of Defence of Austria, and Baron von Sepervary, Minister of Defence of Hungary.

Previous to and after the council Herr von Tisza had a conference with Count Kalnoky.

The council resolved that the unexpended portion of the credit of 52,000,000 florins, voted last spring, shall be applied to the purchase of equipments and the construction of huts for the troops in Galicia. No increase of the forces in Galicia has yet been decided upon, and if there is no further augmentation of Russian troops on the frontier Austria will adhere to the policy of observation.

Another military council has been summoned for to-morrow.

It is semi-officially stated that the Cabinet shares in the belief that good relations with Russia will be maintained. No differences exist except with respect to Bulgaria. Austria is ready to assist in a pacific solution of the question, but the announcement in The Invalid Russe that Russia proposes a whole series of military measures, of which the recent increase of forces in Poland is only a part, enjoins increased military vigilance. Austria must keep pace with Russian plans.

Count von Taafe and Herr von Tisza agree that the summoning of the delegations in the meantime would be inopportune.

The Bearer of Conciliatory Instructions.

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—The National Zeitung says that Gen. von Schmeinitz, the German Ambassador to Russia, returns to St. Petersburg with conciliatory instructions. Prince Bismarck, the paper says, counsels Austria while strengthening her military positions to avoid giving provocation to Russia. It is officially explained that the court circular announcing a meeting yesterday between the Emperor and Count von Moltke and others created the erroneous impression that a Military Council had been held. The Emperor, it is stated, did not hold a council, but merely gave a reception to Gen. von Moltke and other officers.

Will Put Up in Case of War.

VIENNA, Dec. 18.—It is reported the delegations will vote 20,000,000 florins to the Government in the event of preparations being made for war.

Couldn't Raise a Loan.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 18. Russia's endeavors to raise a loan here and at Amsterdam have failed.

THE PRINCE OF WALES SHOT.

An Accident While Hunting—Two Leaden Pellets in His Face.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—While the Prince of Wales and a party of gentlemen were shooting at Sandringham yesterday, a gun in the hands of one the sportsmen was accidentally discharged. One of the shots lodged in the Prince's nose, and another in his cheek. The injuries are slight and the pellets were easily extracted by a physician.

Another account states that the accident was caused by a defective gun, and that the shots scattered in several directions, the gentleman handling the weapon having himself been slightly wounded by the explosion.

VICTORIA AND THE POPE.

The Duke of Norfolk Conveys Her Majesty's Congratulations to Leo.

ROME, Dec. 17.—The Pope to-day gave audience to the Duke of Norfolk. The Duke expressed the congratulations of Queen Victoria on the Papal Jubilee and her thanks for the mission of Mgr. Scilla on the occasion of her own jubilee.

The Pope replied that he was deeply moved by these proofs of friendship on the part of the Queen, and hoped that the exchange of sentiments of friendship would not be limited to the present exceptional circumstances, but would also make its influence felt on other occasions. He was animated, he said, by feelings of the greatest affection for the English people.

The Pope recalled the friendship displayed by Queen Victoria in 1846, when at the conclusion of his nunciature at Brussels he delivered to her a letter from King Leopold.

Cardinal Howard has been stricken with apoplexy. He is a relative of the Duke of Norfolk.

The Duke of Edinburgh Visits the Crown Prince.

SAN REMO, Dec. 17.—The Duke of Edinburgh arrived here to-day, and was received at the railway station by the Crown Princess and Prince Henry. He dined in the evening with the Crown Prince and his family.

In the course of a conversation with the Duke, Dr. Mackenzie again stated that he was favorably impressed by the Prince's condition. He declared that the existence of cancer was more doubtful than on the occasion of his last visit, and in fact had never been proved.

Dr. Mackenzie will return to London in a week.

The Prince and Duke Take a Walk.

SAN REMO, Dec. 18.—The Crown Prince, accompanied by Prince Henry and the Duke of Edinburgh, took a long walk to-day.

Ferry's Assailant Sent to a Mad House.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Aubertin, the man who attempted to assassinate M. Ferry in the hall of the Chamber of Deputies, was arraigned before a magistrate for a preliminary examination to-day. While the examination was progressing the prisoner was attacked with dementia, and he was removed to a mad house.

To-night Aubertin is delirious and the doctors despair of his life.

The Reichstag Takes a Rest.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The Cereal Bill was passed to-day, 203 to 116, and the Reichstag adjourned until Jan. 17. When the House reconvenes the Military Bill will be expedited, after which the amended Socialist Law, the Five Years Parliament Bill and the measure for the assurance of old and invalid workmen will be the chief work of the session.

A Collision on the Clyde.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—During a gale on the Clyde last night the British steamer Manitoban Capt. Dunlap, from Philadelphia, collided with the British steamer Alcides, Capt. Rollo, from Baltimore. The Manitoban's bows were stove in and the Alcides was cut down to the water line. Both vessels were taken to the Tail of the Bank.

A British Minister of Agriculture.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—It is reported that the Government will create the post of Minister of Agriculture and that Right Hon. Henry Chaplain (Conservative), member of Parliament for the Sleaford Division of Lincolnshire, will be appointed to the office.

Premier Mercier Getting Better.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—Madame Mercier who arrived home from New York yesterday reports that the Premier's health is continually improving, so that he will soon be able to follow her.

An Assignment at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—Messrs. John Baird & Co., commission merchants, this city, have assigned with about $25,000. The assets are not yet known.

Surgeon-Major Cross Found Guilty.

CORK, Dec. 18.—Surgeon-Major Cross has been found guilty of the murder of his wife by poisoning and has been sentenced to death.

ARRESTS AT PORT PERRY.

THE COMPANIONS OF BARTENDER BROWN LOCKED UP.

The Fate of a Professional Party that Assembled at Myrtle Station—Physicians at Loggerheads—Two Constables' Midnight Drive in Search of Game.

WHITBY, Dec. 18.—The excitement over the Myrtle shooting affray on the night of Dec. 14 was further intensified in this town and in Port Perry by the arrest of the three men who accompanied Bartender Brown to Myrtle Station, at an early hour this morning. They were all taken in their beds at Port Perry and locked up in the county jail this morning.

Yesterday afternoon Lawyer N. Gordon Bigelow came down from Toronto just to look around and see what steps were to be taken in connection with the case. Mr. Bigelow has been retained to defend Dennen and McCrae. When he arrived here he found County Crown Attorney Farewell busily engaged at the Court of Quarter Sessions, which have been in session all week. Mr. Bigelow stepped over to the jail and had a conference with the prisoners.

On Friday Judge Burnham granted an order directing Mr. James Rutledge, barrister of this town, to proceed to Myrtle with a magistrate and examine the wounded man. The order was made under Sec. 220 of the Criminal Procedure Act, which permits of the taking of evidence of persons who are dangerously ill and unable to attend court. The accused, however, must have a full opportunity of cross-examination, otherwise the deposition is of no use. Upon being served with this order at the jail, the prisoners were informed that they would be taken to Myrtle to attend if they wished. However, they thought their presence was quite unnecessary at Myrtle, and said they were perfectly satisfied to leave their interests in Mr. Bigelow's hands.

When the Quarter Sessions adjourned last evening Mr. Rutledge, Mr. Farewell, Mr. Bigelow, Major Harper, Police Magistrate, and Dr. Warren drove over to Myrtle to make the examination under Judge Burnham's order. The party arrived there at 7.30 and found Vernon's Hotel full of the wounded man's relatives and friends. They peremptorily refused to allow any of the lawyers or magistrates to see Brown. Even Dr. Warren, who has been one of the physicians engaged in the case, was denied admission to the room. This, one of Brown's female relatives explained, was Dr. Clemens' explicit orders.

The party then awaited the arrival of Dr. Clemens, who was expected shortly from Port Perry. Dr. Clemens came along, and on meeting Dr. Warren, a wordy war took place between these two gentlemen over the patient and the visitors from Whitby. The two physicians are apparently considerably at loggerheads as to who is really the attending medical adviser. Both of them, it may be mentioned, have had considerable to do with the case since Brown was shot.

Dr. Clemens told Mr. Farewell and Mr. Bigelow that the patient was totally unfit to make a statement. The lawyers were in a predicament. Brown had been in a comatose state all day, accompanied by frequent fits of vomitting and weakness.

"What if he should die without telling his story?" they asked. They had Judge Burnham's order to see the wounded man, and they could have lawfully done so, but they did not want to create any undue excitement among his friends.

Then Lawyer Bigelow drew up this certificate, which was signed by Dr. Clemens and endorsed on the back of Judge Burnham's order:

I, George H. Clemens, of the village of Port Perry, a duly licensed medical practitioner, do hereby certify:

1. That I am the medical practitioner in attendance upon the within named George Brown.

2. That in my opinion he is not at present able to give a complete statement referring to the matters within mentioned and submit to cross-examination on the same, no matter how leniently soever it might be conducted.

Dated at Myrtle, Dec. 17, 10.30 p.m.

This settled that part of the program and the party returned to Whitby. Before leaving Vernon's Hotel it is said Brown told one of the Whitby party who did go into his room that it was McCrae, and not Dennen, who shot him.

Then the next great step in the case was taken. When Lawyer Bigelow got back to town he went straight to the jail and drew up an information against Wm. Lattimore, Thos. Trebell and Fred Corbyn ("the Jersey Lily") on the strength of statements supplied by Dennen and McCrae. Magistrate Harper subscribed to the information. It charged the three men with "unlawfully, wickedly and maliciously conspiring to assault and wound and do grievous bodily harm to C. S. Dennen and W. C. McCrae, and in pursuance of his conspiracy did wound and shoot at these two persons." The warrant was placed in the hands of Chief of Police McByrne and Constable Calverly, who at once secured a buggy and set out "ostensibly for Pickering." [This to throw the friends of the men in Whitby off the scent.] The officers started out in the direction of Pickering and drove to the first sideline, when they turned the horses heads towards the Port, where they arrived one hour after midnight. Under the cloak of dense darkness they wended their way through the quiet streets of the town to the different homes of the three men, who were all found in bed. They were greatly surprised on being confronted by the officers.

Lattimore, Corbyn and Trebel were allowed a little time to consult their friends, after which they were handcuffed and put into the rig and a start was made for this town, where the party arrived at 7.30. The men were locked up in the county jail, and seemed considerably surprised when informed that they could not get bail until after the preliminary examination. When it become known that they were behind the bars there was considerable excitement in town, and up till a late hour to-night it was the sole topic of conversation.

If nothing unusual happens the preliminary examination in all the cases will begin at 9 o'clock to-morrow afternoon before Magistrate Harper.

After Dennen and McCrae were locked up Friday night they sent down to the hotels to have their meals furnished at the jail, but all of them persistently refused to serve the detectives with grub. To-day, before Lawyer Bigelow left for Toronto, he saw some of the leading hotelkeepers of the town and told them they were acting indiscreetly in refusing the men meals, and the hotel men seeing it in this light promised to send them anything they wished.

Excitement at Port Perry.

PORT PERRY, Dec. 18.—When it became known here to-day that Lattimore, Corbyn and Trebell had been arrested there was considerable excitement and talk. Their friends are organizing to see them through.

Brown Feeling Better.

MYRTLE STATION, Dec. 18.—Midnight—The wounded man has had an easy day and night, and is feeling much easier now. Mr. Farewell saw him to-day and, it is understood, took a statement, which, however, would not be necessarily binding on the prisoners or Mr. Bigelow. It is understood that he said it was McCrae who shot him, that his pistol was unloaded and that he was disarmed by Dennen before there was a shot fired.

GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL.

Canadian "Broilers" for Boston—Mr. Hector Cameron and Carleton.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—The Canadian broiler is not waiting for Mr. Wiman's Commercial Union scheme to find it a market in the United States. Yesterday a train load of twenty-two cars of dressed turkeys and geese left this section for Boston. The poultry was purchased in the neighborhood of Carleton Place, Smiths' Falls and Perth and shipped by way of Rouse's Point, N.Y. The weight of the poulty was over 220 tons and its value upwards of $40,000.

Mr. M. S. Lonergan, Secretary of the Railway Commission, was here yesterday. He says the Commission concludes taking evidence this week, when a report will be prepared for presentation to Parliament at the coming session.

The latest name mentioned in connection with the representation of Carleton in the Commons is that of Mr. Hector Cameron.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—The Half-breed Commission has concluded its labors. Rogers Goulet and N. O. Cote, the two members, are daily expected from Winnipeg.

It is learned from Canadian Pacific Railway people here that the amount of Manitoba wheat which has so far been moved east from Winnipeg is about 5,000,000 bushels. About 4,000,000 bushels of this has passed through Ottawa in bond to Boston and New York for export.

The Canadian Pacific Railway officials here have been advised from the general offices of the company that the Algoma branch, from Sudbury to Sault Ste. Marie, will be open for traffic on Jan. 1.

THOSE MYSTERIOUS LETTERS.

The Case of the Accused Detectives—Documents Procured by "Wilson."

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—The only new feature in connection with the case of the accused detectives yesterday is the fact that the letters which are alleged to have passed between Wilson and others interested have been given to the public. The following are copies of the documents:

EXHIBIT B.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25, 1887.

SIR: Your note of Nov. 22 to hand, and in answer would state that everything is O.K. The road is clear, without any obstructions whatever. Come in at once with your partner, which, I understand, knows the business thoroughly. Bring on a small kit, as we may want to do some work in that line. That party's house is still vacant, and you can make use of it to live there, etc. The girls are anxious to see you, and, no doubt, you will make it pleasant for them when you come.

P.S.—A newspaper was addressed to you to the Adams House as well as the letter at the time. It was The Montreal Star.

EXHIBIT C.

BOSTON, Nov. 28, 1887.

DEAR SIR: Yours of Nov. 26 to hand. I will arrive in Montreal Wednesday evening. Answer as soon as you get this and tell me if you think it best for me to go direct to the house, or will I meet you at Harvey's the same evening. I would start to-day but have to wait to see my friend. Don't you think we can do that business with P. M., or perhaps you have other business that will pay you better. However, we will decide after my arrival. Remember me to Maggie. Tell him I am coming and I would like to see him the same night with you. Yours, F.M.

Adams House, Boston, Mass.

EXHIBIT D.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29, 1887.

I only received yours of Nov. 26 this morning, and haste to reply. As you request, I will be at Harvey's on Wednesday evening, waiting for you, and will endeavor to have our friend there. If you can possibly smuggle in the necessary outfit to do up a fire-proof, do so. Come on at once with your friend, or arrange things with him so that he can come on if we wire him.

EXHIBIT E.

UNITED STATES HOTEL, BOSTON, Nov. 30, 1887.

Thos. Flynn, Esq.: DEAR SIR: Find letter enclosed that I found at Adams House. You see it is dated Nov. 2. Although it is not signed it is from Fahey. I have just written him a long letter and will have an answer by Friday. I think I shall want you here on Friday, if so I will telegraph you on Thursday. Yours in haste,

FRANK HAYNES.

P.S.—The letter is just as I received it, with notice cut from Montreal paper. Write me on receipt of this to let me know if you can come on next week.

With reference to Plante's arrest the accused states that he gained the watch from Naegele at a game of cards, and the ex-detective reports that the watch was given him by Mr. Archambault. Mr. Lefebvre's clerk, in order that the officer might know if he should come across others of the same mark. Mr. Archambault says such a thing might possibly have been done, but he does not remember it. Mr. Kellert received the watch from Plante on Oct. 30, 1886. The dealer sold out all his pledges to Mr. Hirsh last July, and the year having expired Oct. 30, 1887, the watch was disposed of at a pawnbroker's sale with a lot of other goods, and in this manner came into possession of the man who took it to Lefebvre's store for repairs.

ANOTHER LOSS AND GAIN.

Since the general election last February the Reform party have not gained in public favor. Mr. Laurier's leadership and the Commercial Union agitation have not brought them success in the bye-elections.

Two more contests took place last week, in Yarmouth and Shelburne, Nova Scotia. Both constituencies had been held by Reformers. In Yarmouth Mr. Lovitt was returned at the general election by a very large majority and in Shelburne Mr. Robertson had a Majority of 31. In the elections last week Mr. Lovitt's majority was cut down by 200 and a majority of six votes was polled against Mr. Robertson, Gen. Laurie, the Conservative candidate, being elected.

Three seats have been won by the Conservative party from the Reformers since the House last met, while the Reform party has not gained one. This shows that not only that the people still have confidence in and support the Macdonald Government, but that the Government is increasing while the opposition is weakening in public favor.

Nova Scotia was said to be strongly antagonistic to the Government, and since the Commercial Union agitation commenced it has been claimed that the people of that Province were almost unanimous in favor of it. But the elections tell a different tale, and the assertions regarding Nova Scotia, like many other statements made by advocates of the scheme, have been found to be erroneous. The representation of Nova Scotia in the House of Commons now consists of 17 Conservatives and 4 Reformers.

Having disparaged Canada, the Commercial Unionists are now turning their attention to Great Britain. Prof. Smith says that power in Great Britain is in the hands of "the common son of toil" who would prefer "bread and cheese and ale" to empire or colonial fealty. Facts are opposed to the assertion. The pride of country and imperial spirit is still strong in the British Isles, and England holds her foremost position among the nations of the world. And she will retain that position, despite foes within or enemies without.

Prof. Goldwin Smith recently argued that Commercial Union would only injure a few manufacturers in England, but he has changed his view of the matter—how rapidly his opinions do change!—and now appeals to "the masses" in Canada against "the masses" in England. That will not do; the question is not one between England and Canada at all. The question is, Would it benefit Canada? And in answering that the effect the Union would have on British connection must be considered.

---

The New York World's Washington correspondent gravely states that Sir Charles Tupper is not so judicial a diplomat as the fishery question demands because he "is just out of a feverish political contest where the fishery dispute formed a principal feature." The correspondents at the United States capital are not nearly so well informed about the Commission as they would have the public believe.

---

A Washington correspondent refers to "Sir Joseph Chamberlain" as "nominally" representing Great Britain. Perhaps he knighted Mr. Chamberlain as a solace for reducing him to a nominal position on the Commission.

THE HEAD MADE OF GOLD

THE VISION TO SHOW THE KING HIS GREATNESS.

How Great the People now are—More Powerful than the Babylonian King—Their Opportunities and how to use Them.

There were large congregations in the George Street Methodist Church both morning and evening to hear the poetic and eloquent pastor of the Queen Street Methodist Church, Toronto, the Rev. B. Longley, who preached the anniversary sermons.

At the morning service he took as the text for his sermon, Daniel II, 38.—"Thou art this head of Gold."

He traced the circumstances which led up to this assertion by the Prophet Daniel. Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, had dreamed a dream, which troubled him. He remembered that a terrible form had appeared before him, but he had but an indistinct rememberance of its appearance. He bade is wise men, magicians, astrologers and sorcerers, first bring to his mind the dream and then intrepret it. On their being unable to do it the King ordered that they be put to death. Among the wise men to be slain was Daniel. When it was made known to him the reason he asked to be shown to the Kings presence, and he was shown in and he made known the dream and interpreted it. He spoke to the King telling him that he had beheld a bright image whose head was of gold, his breast and arms of silver, his belly and thighs of brass, his legs of iron and his feet of iron and of clay. And Daniel told him that he, the King was the head of gold, and that th other elements in the image represented inferior kingdoms which would come afterward. Without going deeply into the great significence of the vision he would call attention to one aspect of it. It was intended to show the King how great he was and how great his opportunities were. The preacher gave a vivid description of the greatness of Nebuchadnezzar—his power, the extent of the domain he ruled over, and the magnificence of his capital, Babylon. But the King heeded not the import of the vision. He used his riches to make idols and his power to make men bow before them. Another vision was sent. The King saw a flourishing tree and anon it was blighted. The vision was interpreted, the tree being the King. Daniel besought the King to leave off his sins but after a time the King spoke vainly and asked what power was equal to his power. And even while he spoke his power departed.

The preacher directed attention to the power of men now and the opportunities for doing good all were possessed of. He wished to lift to the mind a truer, fairer and juster conception of our own greatness, and power and almost unlimited resources, by the self same image that appeared before the Babylonian King. Where should we look for the feet of clay among the nations? Africa poor dark Africa! Africa whose soil was wet with blood, the scene of many an unwritten tragedy of which the stars alone look down upon. The limbs of iron were China and Japan; Austria and Russia answered to the conception of the brass element; Germany of the silver But we could but look to England—beautiful and brave and strong—for the head of gold. And yet there were blots upon English society and upon that of the great American Republic, so beautiful, strong, progressive and free. To our own broad Dominion he looked to realize his conception of the head of gold. He gave a description of Canada's extent, resources, and moral and physical strength and concluded with reciting the oft quoted lines from his own pen. Not only were we great as a people, enjoying more privileges, civil, religious and climatic, but we lived in a wonderful time. We lived in a generation filled to repletion of all kinds of blessings. The people of to-day were more powerful even that the great Babylonian king. He commanded men. The people now had the lightning and steam to do their errands. When the King's father lay on his death bed it took him days on his fleetest steed to reach the capital a comparatively short distance away. If a person's friend lay ill thousands of miles away, in some city of the west or down by the sounding sea, a night and a day would bring them there. The King had no such airy servitors as the telegraph by which agency the words while even warm on the lips were echoing under the skys of another hemisphere.

And in the nearer realm of mind what abundant treasures there were when compared with that of older time. The truths of science, philosophy, art, now so open and free to us were a closed book in the ancients, or but dimly seen.

And more near still, in our hands was a sceptre more potent than Oriental monarch ever wielded. We rule over an empire of limitless extent. In this age we could look abroad and see what likeness the religions of the world bore to the image which appeared before the King. The horrid superstitution and ghastly rites of the pagans were the feet of clay. The more refined idolatry of the Greeks might be likened to the limbs of iron; the strange mixture of truth and error of the Mohammedans to the body of silver; but the head was Christianity. He described the powers, unlimited powers, the Christain had, his resources, his wealth, his regal dignity. The higest privileges were his and the highest reward was his if he were faithful. Their's was the privilege of advancing Christ's Kingdom to the ends of the earth. The Kingdom was not extended. Why? Because they were contented that it should not be. Because they sat here reposeully and negligently. He rebuked the Christians for their apathy, including himself in the rebuke. "We are asleep" he exclaimed "We are worse than asleep. We are in a slumber so profound that we are almost unconscious of those bright visions that God puts before us by which we rise to a conception of God's power and purposes. Oh God, rouse us from this slumber!"

GOUGH

IS HARD UP AND MUST RAISE THE WIND.

He has too many OVERCOATS on hand, and must, like the Waggon Maker, who has too many Sleighs on hand in an open Winter, sell them at any price. Lots of other fellers have got the Stomachache BECAUSE GOUGH SELLS SO CHEAP. WITNESS HOW DRY GOODS TUMBLED WHEN THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN TOOK A HAND IN. One Chap over in the Wholesale Fish District has his Advertisements written in Penntown, where the Sewers run on top of the Streets. He feels so bad he don't know how to describe it; so says; "He's Crippled in Price." We don't doubt it. Then there is another one, he is tied up to Crowbar Bros., of Gotham; these fellers are as stiff on their prices as a Crowbar, and squeeze 50 per cent. profit out of their poor victims, but the victims are under the thumb of Crowbar Bros., and can't help themselves. Then there is the feller who cannot advertise; it makes him nervous, he uses a whole quart of Camphor a day, and tells customers GOUGH is selling SO CHEAP it is perfectly demoralizing to trade; I don't know how all this is coming out. IT MERELY COMES OUT THAT ☞ CUSTOMERS STEER STRAIGHT FOR THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN.

Then there is another feller if he sees one of GOUGH'S MEN on the street, he yells "GIVE AWAYS," he knows GOUGH GIVES AWAY MORE THAN THE HIGH PRICE FELLOWS SELL. In the interest of the public I want $10,000.00, and I must have it. I am after a BIG BANKRUPT STOCK, the biggest yet, and it requires the cash to get it, therefore, I will

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

In the Monetary Times, in an article contributed by the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, it is pointed out as a peculiar coincidence that the late Andrew Wilson was the first agent of the company and that his insurance policy was the first claim paid by the company. The article also says of him:—"In business he was honest, energetic and persistent. In private life he was a model of integrity and uprightness. The company evidenced its appreciation of its worth by the presence at the funeral of the Managing Director and other executive officers."

THE MAN WAS SICK.

Found by Salvation Army Men on the Street.

On Saturday night the Salvation Army were parading down Simcoe street, when near the corner of Aylmer street the drummer ceased beating his drum and the band men stopped blowing their horns and all hands went to the roadside to see what a crowd stood gaping at.

It was a serious matter. A young man apparently twenty-two lay near the sidewalk still and motionless. His cheek was pale and his body was quite cold. As no one else offered assistance two or three of the Salvationist picked him up and carried him down street to the Police Station, a big crowd following.

At the station he was stretched out on a lounge and Dr. Pigeon was called. Those who were standing around looked at the corpse like figure anxiously. One of the Salvationists sat at his head with one arm around the man's neck. The doctor arrived and glancing at the man whispered that he must have been hurt badly. He hastened to make a closer examination, first looking to the man's respiration. He bent over the motionless form to do this and then smiled. He took from his pocked a little bottle and sprinkled a few drops of diluted ammonia around the man's nostrils. The lips began to twich, the mouth to open, and at last the eye lids raised. Then he wanted to fight. He doubled up his fist, glared at the Salvationist and shouted: "Leggo me." The spectators laughed and the Salvationist remarked that he never saw a man so dead drunk in his life before.

POLICE NEWS.

Arrest of an Alleged Robber—Scott Act and Other Matters.

On Saturday afternoon Constable Mitchell of Omemee, appeared at the police station and, on making the acquaintance of Acting Chief Adams, produced a warrant for the arrest of A. W. Falkner, jr., on the charge of having robbed Mr. Ingram, of Omemee, of an amount of money, something over $100. Some time ago Falkner and another young man named Mills found Mr. Ingram, of Omemee, under the influence of liquor. They took him home, but in the morning Ingram found that he had been relieved of a considerable amount of money. Mills was arrested and the constable was following Falkner to secure him also. Acting Chief Adams and the visiting officer went out together and they soon found their man. He was taken back to Omemee in the evening.

SCOTT ACT.

Mrs. Condon was fined $50 and costs on Saturday for an infraction of the Scott Act. R. Doris was fined $50 for a similar offence on Friday.

DRUNK.

J. Hickey was charged at the court this morning with having been drunk. He pleaded guilty. The Magistrate allowed him to go, seeing that this was his first offence and that he gave the police no trouble. Mr. Hickey murmured his thanks as Acting-Chief Adams handed him back a $10 bill intact.

John Powers, the young man who was found on Simcoe street on Saturday night, was charged with having been drunk. It was shown that he had suffered from a fit after having been placed in the cells, and that the cause of it was the use of the 40 rod which he had been drinking. The Magistrate dismissed him with the advice that he should avoid such nostrums in the future.

Go direct to TURNBULL'S, The Cheap Dry Goods House, for fine Wool Goods, Heavy Scotch Shawls, Table Linens, &c., &c., for the Christmas trade.

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind that the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d106eo

At the Opera House.

Basco, the famous magician, will open a three nights engagement at Bradburn's Opera House, to-morrow evening. He is accompanied by Prof. Deaue, the humorist and the acknowledged premier ventriloquist of the world. The wonderful feature of these entertainments, is the distribution of a hundred elegant, costly and useful presents each evening. They are not trashy articles, but of great cost and intrinsic value. People are skeptical, but the first night dispels all doubt. The press everywhere speaks in the highest terms of Basco and his wonderful presents. Reserved seats on sale at Hartley's. 1d145

Church Notes.

—On Sunday next (Christmas day), instead of the usual Sunday school service, the children of the congregation of St. John's Church will hold a song service in the church at a quarter past three. The members of the congregation should encourage the children by being present.

—The Rev. Mr. Wallace explained on Sunday morning that the George Street Official Board had decided to have the regular exchange of pulpits in the Methodist Churches discontinued after the close of the present ecclesiastical year. This was done because the pastors believed it would be better for each one to be more with his own congregation. The Charlotte Street Board thereupon resolved to have it discontinued at once, but he thought they did so owing to a misunderstanding and that the exchange would probably be continued until June next.

—Prof. Dingle, of Oshawa, has been engaged by the George Street Methodist Church as organist.

Christmas Presents,

OVERCOATS and Suits for men and Boys at prices that were never beaten, at TURNBULL'S. Call.

The Press and Publications.

—Middle of last week our contem., the Examiner, issued its annual Christmas edition. The sheet is a good one, well filled with interesting reading and live advertisements of the business done by the live business men of Peterborough. Each merchant who brings a customer to town by advertising his wares benefits not only himself but the public in general. The time to advertise is all the time.

—That excellent paper the Post of Lindsay issues as a Christmas number 16 pages during the last two weeks. It is a splendid edition, spicy, well edited, printed and a splendid advertising medium, a credit to its publisher and a standing menace and a danger to high prices. The rapid progress of the town during the last eighteen months is well reflected in its pages.

—The Wide Awake Christmas number is a splendid holiday periodical. It teems with good things. It is clean, wholesome reading. It is past criticism as a book to place in the hands of children, while it a source of interest to grown people. The publishers deserve credit for placing at the service of the public such a wholesome magazine. The new year has already begun with the holiday number just out—a truly great number, larger and richer, more varied, and therefore it must be better than ever before. And the publishers have a primer to send to those who want to know what Wide Awake is going to have in it in 1888. The wonder is that such a library and picture gallery can be got together—a thousand pages and everything fresh and new—stories, history, travels, biography, sketches, anecdote, adventure—and all instructive as well as entertaining. Two worlds are drawn from to make such provision for the education and pleasure of our children. So high is the best of young people's literature nowadays that we are all of us glad to be young. Nine-tenths of reading people prefer it to what is written for them; for it has the rare merit of being easy as well as good. We know of no Christmas gift so sure of bringing a happy response in a reading family. Send $2.40 to D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

THE ENTERTAINMENT by the children of St. John's Church Sunday School has been postponed until Thursday, December 22nd. See advertisement to-morrow for particulars of programme, &c. 1d145

Local Brevities.

—Prof. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., of the George Street Methodist Church, will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday next.

—L. J. Hartley, music dealer, has handed us a copy of the new "Helena" waltz. Its a Canadian production and will prove a popular selection.

—Mr. S. S. Smith, mayor of Port Hope, is a candidate for another term. Mr. David Hall, "Canada's greatest orator," also announces himself as a candidate. The "orator" will impart some fun to municipal politics at the Port.

—Some general comment was passed by Methodist people on on the accident of the circumstance that Rev. Benjamin Longley should be the guest—while in town—of Mr. Benjamin Shortly. The rev. gentleman was well housed and treated like the prince of preaches, as he is.

—During the last few days—Sunday of course excepted—energetic and affable gentlemen have talked about distributing copies of those beautiful colored cards that tell a fellow how fast Father Time pulls in the slack of the line which runs from July to December. We are indebted to Messrs. Boddy, of the C.P.R. office, W. H. Hill, Sun Life Insurance Company, and E.E. Henderson, of the Phoenix Life, for calenders for 1888.

33⅓ Cents on the Dollar.

DISTRICT NOTES.

News of the Midland District Condensed From Contemporaries.

The new Methodist church in Seymour west will be dedicated on Jan 1st.

Messrs. Crossley and Dewey, evangelists, remain in Lindsay this week.

The new Methodist Church in Seymour west will be dedicated on Jan 1st.

Mr. N. King, publisher of the Gazette, is a candidate for the Mayoralty of Barrie.

A trapper of North Scugog caught upwards of a dozen beavers last week.

At Chard's bridge in Seymour the water in the Chrow River is only three inches deep.

A branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been formed at Campbellford.

At Chard's bridge in Seymour the water in the Crow River is only three inches deep.

A Sandringham farmer had twenty bushels of wheat stolen from his granary recently.

Mrs. Foxton, of Roslin, whose arm was broken and afterwards amputated, died last week.

Tat Lambert, a nine year old boy of Penetanguishene, while sliding on the bay fell into the water and was drowned.

Some person knocked Mr. True, of Manvers Station, off the track a few evenings ago, and his leg was fractured.

In West Durham five dollars reward is offered for information that will lead to the conviction of parties violating the Scott Act.

Wm. Moyce, of Janetville, lost a valuable cow last week by another getting loose and hooking her over the stall, breaking her neck.

W. Whitton, of Campbellford, took a large quantity of fowl to Toronto, but he found prices so low that he brought them back.

John A. Mason, of Cartwright, was caught in the tumbling rod of a thrreshing machine a few days ago and his clotes were all torn off but his boots and hat.

Mrs. John McConnel's house, Bobcaygeon, was burned on Monday night. It was unoccupied and incendiarism is suspected. Loss, $600 or $700; insurance, $400.

While working in one of the Longford lumber camps, Richard McPeak, of Dalrymple, was seriously if not fatally injured by a limb of a falling tree striking him and pining his leg to the ground.

Barney McLaughlin, a Stirling shoemaker, was in Roslin looking for work and started for home on foot on Saturday. Next day the Rev. D. Kelso found him lying by the roadside, dead. He was 70 years old.

There is every prospect of a bridge over the Bay of Quinte being built at Belleville. About $23,000 of stock has been subscribed, which is in excess of the sum required to secure the provisional organization of the company.

L. McBain, a Cannington constable, went to Uptergrove to arrest a man named Conners for violation of the Scott Act. Conners assaulted the constable, beating him unmercifully, and then had him arrested on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Connors. The constable was released and Conners now awaits his trial.

Chris. Kelier, of Seymour, brought a charge against B. Boyce, a sewing machine agent, for breaking into his dwelling and taking a machine. It appeared that it was sold subject to a lease, the conditions of which had not been fulfilled, and the lease gave the agent the right to enter and take the machine. The case was dismissed.

Mr. Boyd's lumber operations in the Kinmount district are on an uprecedented scale. He has now more than six hundred men at work at his shanties. One day 270 head of cattle were delivered in the shanties. There are ten shanties in full operation, and about sixty men in each. The quantity of logs cut will be something enormous. The season has been favorable for cutting and skidding logs, the absence of snow having facilitated the work very much. As soon as snow comes the drawing will commence, and a hundred teams will be steadily employed.

Instructing the Reporter.

Unhappy is the lot of a daily newspaper chief who has never been a reporter. The service calls for officers that have come up from the ranks. Otherwise they will fail to gauge accurately the relations of men and events to each other, and will become a prey to circumstances. I have known the publisher of an influential journal to instruct a reporter to take out his note book and pencil as a preliminary step whenever he should be sent to interview a person. As well tell a detective to wear a badge on his breast, or a patrolman to walk the street with a cocked revolver in his right hand. Many people would be more afraid of a reporter who should suddenly "draw" a note book on them than they would of either policeman or detective. Of course, the note book must be used for public speeches and deliberations, and, also, like the revolver in dire emergencies; but the reporter who cannot remember a column and a half of ordinary conversation (unless it concerns technical matters of which he had no previous knowledge) until he has time to turn it into intelligible "copy," should seek bread and fame in some new employment.—Henry W. Blake in The Writer.

Where Gems Are Dyed.

Precious stones are dyed at Oberstein, Germany, where nearly the whole population is devoted to the work of making bogus jewelry and fixing up cheap gems to look fine. Different families have their different modes of treatment, and some families have the secret of some one or another special tint which can be made nowhere else. Chalcedony is the usual base of false onyxes and agates, which are most counterfeited. The stones are boiled in the coloring matter and then subjected to intense heat. The color permeates the whole stone. One family has the secret of converting crocidolite into "cat's eyes." Gypsum and hornblende are also made into the same gems. Tircons, which are cheap stones of silicon and zirconia, have the color washed out and are apparently diamonds until tested. A thin slice of diamond is laid over a topaz so that the whole appears to be one gem. Emeralds are easily imitated. Many stones sold as rubies are only red spinel, and much of the lapis lazuli is only dyed chalcedony.—New York Sun.

More Than All the Books.

Little Red Ridinghood is still accosted by the wolf in the pleasant spring woods, and she is most fortunate if some good genius is near to save her. Our school system is not all complete when we have built a neat school house and hired a teacher, of whom we expect all the cardinal virtues for $4 or $5 a week during two-thirds of the year. There is an art and a science of teaching which avail more than all the books and the apparatus, because they not only put tools in the child's hands, but they direct him how to use them, and train him how to use them to the best purpose.—Harper's Magazine.

Could Talk in Seven Languages.

Hostess (a very voluble woman)—Yes, Mr. Oldboy, my daughter is just home from Vassar, and what do you think, she can talk in seven languages!

Mr. Oldboy (who lacks gallantry, but is way up in truth)—What do I think? I think, my dear madam, that if she is like her mother at all, she won't find seven languages more than she will need.—The Epoch.

Sawdust has succeeded straw for horse bedding in several of the street railway stables in Boston, and it is said to be about one-half less costly.

I go to TURNBULL'S for my Dry Goods: I find he sells cheap all the time and has a First Class Stock to select from. Don't you?

A PETERBOROUGH LADY ROBBED.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Pearsall are up here from Peterboro on a visit. In company with some friends they yesterday afternoon visited the Salvation Army Temple at Albert and James streets. Mrs. Pearsall had in her dress pocket a pocketbook containing $129 in cash and notes and other documents to the value of nearly $2000. There was a crush at the door. When Mrs. Pearsall got inside she felt for her wallet. It was gone. A pickpocket had "operated" on her while she was passing into the Temple. Mr. Pearsall reported the loss to a policeman, but the officer could see no suspicious character about. The light fingered artist had made himself scarce. Subsequently Mr. Pearsall left a description of the stolen documents at Headquarters. One note was for $300, made by James Roblin; one for $200, made by James Roblin; one for $300, made by James Morden, and one for $35, made by Enoch Cronk—all being payable to P. Pearsall. The remaining document was a receipt for a deposit of $600 in the Picton branch of the Standard Bank. Mr. Pearsall will warn the public against negotiating the notes, and does not expect to be out more than the $129, which, as he remarked to The World last night, "is quite enough."

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

LORD RANDY TO RETURN.

LATEST CABLE GOSSIP FROM THE BRITISH METROPOLIS.

Pope Leo and the Government Said to be in Treaty—Land League Tactics—Lord Lyons and His Change of Heart.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Lord Randolph Churchill's declaration at Stockport that the safety and prosperity of the British Empire are bound up with the strength and prosperity of the Tory party, together with his strong protestations of fidelity to that party are held to mark his final reconciliation with the Marquis of Salisbury and his approaching return as a member of the Ministry. Already rumors are current of his intention to re-enter the Cabinet on the reassembling of Parliament. The fact is he finds that he exaggerated his influence with the Tories and cherished the belief that he might educate them and make them pass Liberal measures as Beaconsfield boasted he did when he carried the Household Suffrage Bill in 1867. He fully expected to re-enter the Government as master, but now he has abandoned the illusion.

The Marquis of Salisbury has been too strong for him, and if he returns it will not be as Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House of Commons, as before, but probably as Secretary of War, with Mr. Goschen leading the House, and Mr. Wm. Henry Smith "kicked up stairs," as the phrase goes, to the House of Lords. There are also rumors that Lord Hartington will join the Cabinet, but these rumors have always been current since he has supported the present Administration.

Regarding Lord Randolph Churchill, the fuss made when he left the Cabinet not many months ago now seems ludicrous. The Marquis of Salisbury implored the help of the Liberal Unionists and wired Lord Dufferin and ransacked heaven and earth to get a suitable colleague. He met with several refusals, yet the Government turns out no whit less strong. Lord Churchill has a reputation for courage and audacity, as the only one among the comparatively few young men who dares face Mr. Gladstone.

The Pope and the Government.

Something is evidently going on between the English Government and the Pope with reference to Ireland, but nobody seems to know what. Mgr. Persico's mission now seems likely to result in an effort to induce the Pope to side with the authorities. The Duke of Norfolk's errand at Rome is supposed to mean something more than a pious pilgrimage on his own account. Mr. Balfour let drop a hint at Manchester that the Ministry are ready to invite Parliament to bestow important educational works on Ireland. This interpreted means the endowment of an Irish Catholic University. Mr. Dillon denounces this as a bribe. The Daily News declares that if it is offered it will oppose it. Once more also is heard a rumor of the appointment of an English ambassador to the Vatican. This is certainly untrue. What is true, if anything, is not likely to be first imparted to the Nationalist organs, thus far the chief sources of this gossip.

Discussing the League's Tactics.

The Cabinet council held yesterday was in most respects the most important meeting of the Ministers that has occurred since Parliament was prorogued. The plan of campaign of the Government in Ireland as opposed to the League's tactics was thoroughly discussed, and it was determined to continue the rigid enforcement of the policy hitherto pursued except in purely land cases, wherein a policy of leniency was adopted quite as extreme in effect as that involved in the warfare against the league. The reports of the heads of departments were also discussed, and a horizontal lowering of the estimate was agreed to, presumably with an eye to pacifying Lord Randolph Churchill. The condition of British agriculture was the last question engaging the attention of the Ministers, and it was resolved to improve it, in view of the increased outcry of the farmers against the present depression. Hence the proposal to appoint Mr. Chamberlain to the new agricultural portfolio. Lord John Manners, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, who has been the nominal Agricultural Minister, is a good deal of the nature of a fossil and quite incapable of encompassing the new phases of the economic policy of the Government, and the development of the protection theories of the Ministry requires a change in the administration of the department standing nearest the tillers of the soil. Lord Salisbury, despite his proverbial timidity, is becoming a close student of the land question in England, which is bound to assume conspicuous proportions upon the reassembling of Parliament, and the introduction of a land purchase bill of some sort now seems inevitable.

The Municipal Scandal.

The theatre managers have made out only too good a case against the Metropolitan Board of Works in their interview with the Home Secretary. They alleged and proved that they had been blackmailed by officials of that body who demanded free admission to the theatres as a right and threatened to make themselves disagreeable if refused. The Board of Works had scandals enough on hand before this. Public opinion is sullenly settling down to the conviction that this board is neither competent nor honest, but nobody knows how to get better men. The vestries elect them and the vestries themselves are equally incompetent if not equally corrupt. The Times is even beginning to talk about Tammany Hall and evidently doubts whether London is not worse governed than New York.

Lord Lyons' Conversion.

The Weekly Register, the leading English Catholic organ, denies that Lord Lyons was converted to the Catholic faith by unfair means, as has been asserted. Two months ago, it says, Lord Lyons voluntarily informed his nephew, the Duke of Norfolk, of his intention to become a Catholic, and the latter said to him: "I wish I could make a sacrifice, like that made by Manning and Newman, in order to prove my faith. All that I am able to now do seems too easy."

If you are poor you can not afford to buy trash, and if you are rich you can become richer by buying your boots, shoes, slippers, overshoes, &c., &c., from kidd, the dealer in GOOD boots. d143

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

Francis listened, utterly at a loss to account for the motives that animated her. "I don't see what interest you have in trying this extraordinary experiment," he said.

"It is my interest not to try it! It is my interest to fly from Venice and never set eyes on Agnes Lockwood or any of your family again!"

"What prevents you from doing that?"

She started to her feet and looked at him wildly. "I know no more what prevents me than you do!" she burst out. "Some will that is stronger than mine drives me on to my destruction in spite of my own self!" She suddenly sat down again and waved her hand for him to go. "Leave me," she said. "Leave me to my thoughts."

Francis left her, firmly persuaded by this time that she was out of her senses. For the rest of the day he saw nothing of her. The night, so far as he knew, passed quietly. The next morning he breakfasted early, determined to wait in the restaurant for the appearance of the countess. She came in and ordered her breakfast quietly, looking dull, worn and self absorbed, as she had looked when he last saw her. He hastened to her table and asked if anything had happened in the night.

"Nothing," she answered.

"You have rested as well as usual?"

"Quite as well as usual. Have you had any letters this morning? Have you heard when she is coming?"

"I have had no letters. Are you really going to stay here? Has your experience of last night not altered the opinion which you expressed to me yesterday?"

"Not in the least."

The momentary gleam of animation which had crossed her face when she questioned him about Agnes died out of it again when he answered her. She looked, she spoke, she eat her breakfast with a vacant resignation, like a woman who had done with hopes, done with interest, done with everything but the mechanical movements and instincts of life.

Francis went out on the customary traveler's pilgrimage to the shrines of Titian and and Tintoreto. After some hours of absence he found a letter waiting for him when he got back to the hotel. It was written by his brother Henry, and it recommended him to return to Milan immediately. The proprietor of a French theatre, recently arrived from Venice, was trying to induce the famous dancer whom Francis had engaged to break faith with him and accept a higher salary.

Having made this startling announcement, Henry proceeded to inform his brother that Lord and Lady Montbarry, with Agnes and the children, would arrive in Venice in three days more. "They know nothing of our adventures at the hotel," Henry wrote, "and they have telegraphed to the manager for the accommodation that they want. There would be something absurdly superstitious in our giving them a warning which would frighten the ladies and children out of the best hotel in Venice We shall be a strong party this time—too strong a party for ghosts! I shall meet the travelers on their arrival, of course, and try my luck again at what you call the haunted hotel. Arthur Barville and his wife have already got as far on their way as Trent; and two of the lady's relations have arranged to accompany them on the journey to Venice."

Naturally indignant at the conduct of his Parisian colleague, Francis made his preparations for returning to Milan by the train of that day.

On his way out he asked the manager if his brother's telegram had been received. The telegram had arrived, and, to the surprise of Francis, the rooms were already reserved. "I thought you would refuse to let any more of the family into the house," he said, satirically. The manager answered (with the due dash of respect) in the same tone. "'No. 13A' is safe, sir, in the occupation of a stranger. I am the servant of the company, and I dare not turn money out of the hotel."

Hearing this, Francis said goodby—and said nothing more. He was ashamed to acknowledge it to himself, but he felt an irresistible curiosity to know what would happen when Agnes arrived at the hotel. Besides, "Mrs. James" had reposed confidence in him. He got into his gondola, respecting the confidence of "Mrs. James."

Toward evening, on the third day, Lord Montbarry and his traveling companions arrived, punctual to their appointment.

"Mrs. James," sitting at the window of her room, watching for them, saw the new lord land from the gondola first. He handed his wife from the steps. The three children were next committed to his care. Last of all, Agnes appeared in the little back doorway of the gondola cabin; and, taking Lord Montbarry's hand, passed in her turn to the steps. She wore no veil. As she ascended to the door of the hotel the countess (eying her through an opera glass) noticed that she paused to look at the outside of the building, and that her face was very pale.

CHAPTER XXI.

Lord and Lady Montbarry were received by the housekeeper, the manager being absent for a day or two on business connected with the affairs of the hotel.

The rooms reserved for the travelers, on the first floor, were three in number, consisting of two bedrooms opening into each other, and communicating on the left with a drawing room. Complete so far, the arrangements proved to be less satisfactory in reference to the third bedroom required for Agnes and for the eldest daughter of Lord Montbarry, who usually slept with her on their travels. The bed chamber on the right of the drawing room was already occupied by an English widow lady. Other bed chambers at the other end of the corridor were also let in every case. There was, accordingly, no alternative but to place at the disposal of Agnes a comfortable room on the second floor. Lady Montbarry vainly complained of this separation of one of the members of her traveling party from the rest. The housekeeper politely hinted that it was impossible for her to ask other travelers to give up their rooms. She could only express her regret, and assure Miss Lockwood that her bed chamber on the second floor was one of the best rooms in that part of the hotel.

On the retirement of the housekeeper Lady Montbarry noticed that Agnes seated herself apart, feeling apparently no interest in the question of the bedrooms. Was she ill? No; she felt a little unnerved by the railway journey, and that was all. Hearing this, Lord Montbarry proposed that she should go out with him and try the experiment of half an hour's walk in the cool air. Agnes gladly accepted the suggestion. They directed their steps toward the square St. Mark, so as to enjoy the breeze blowing over the lagoon. It was the first visit [illegible] to Venice. The fascination of the wonderful city of the waters exerted its full influence over her sensitive nature. The proposed half hour of the walk had passed away and was fast expanding to half an hour more before Lord Montbarry could persuade his companion to remember that dinner was waiting for them. As they returned, passing under the colonnade, neither of them noticed a lady in deep mourning loitering in the open space of the square. She started as she recognized Agnes walking with the new Lord Montbarry, hesitated for a moment and then followed them, at a discreet distance, back to the hotel.

Sir Donald Smith on C. P.

From The Montreal Gazette.

"What is your opinion, Sir Donald, about Commercial Union?" asked the reporter.

"I am in favor of an enlarged reciprocity treaty; but, as far as I have been able to consider it, I cannot join in a scheme of Commercial Union such as is proposed by Mr. Wiman and certain other gentlemen. Oh, no, no. I am not in favor of Commercial Union as now put forward. I believe that a reciprocity treaty would be in favor of both countries, but that is entirely different from unrestricted commercial union. "I am a Canadian," concluded Sir Donald.

PETER MITCHELL ALSO.

"Then you are in favor of Commercial Union?"

"Well, 'we' never said that," said Mr. Mitchell, using the editorial "we."

"I am in favor of unrestricted reciprocity, that is our policy."

"What is the difference between 'unrestricted reciprocity and 'Commercial Union' asked the unsophisticated reporter."

"And you don't know that?" said the Hon. Peter Mitchell "well" and he turned in his chair."

This Happened in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Four weeks ago a plumber named Thomas Sheridan, while in delirium tremens, jumped from the fourth story of a tenement house and was killed. Daniel Sheridan, a brother of the dead man, went to the funeral in the same carriage with a pretty girl of 22, named Lillian Trinneer, who had been engaged to Thomas. On the return from the grave Daniel told his parents he was going to marry Lillian, and that she would henceforth be a member of the family. To-night Daniel went home drunk and made an insulting proposal to the girl. When he approached her she jumped out of the window and sustained injuries which may cause her death. Sheridan is in jail.

The Death Record Reaches Seven.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 17.—The dead body of D. O. Taylor, clerk of the county courts, was found this morning in the ruins of the Edison Electric Company's works, the scene of yesterday's boiler explosion. Edward Schofield, a laborer who was taken from the ruins last night, died this morning from his injuries. This makes seven deaths from the explosion. Five others were severely injured, but will all recover.

The Fastest East-Bound Record.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The steamer Etruria which reached Queenstown to-day, made the fastest east-bound trip on record, her time from New York to Fastnet being six days and two hours. The same steamer has the fastest west-bound record, six days, five hours and forty four minutes.

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry goods over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practice to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
d137tf J. STEVENSON.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
SOUTH WARD,

INTO A RIVER OF DEATH.

FRIGHTFUL CATASTROPHE ON A NEW BRUNSWICK RAILWAY.

An Engine and Snow-Plow Plunges Into the Water and Eight Men Lose Their Lives—Who the Victims were, Their Ages and Conditions.

BATHURST, N.B., Dec. 18.—A terrible accident occurred on the Caraquet Railway Saturday afternoon. While the train which left Caraquet at 2 p.m, for Gloucester Junction, in charge of Conductor Daniel Kearney and Driver Michael Lanigan, was near McKintosh's Cove bridge three miles west of Caraquet, the train men noticed heavy drifts of snow on the west side of the bridge. The train consisted of one passenger car, engine and snow plow. They had with them eight section men for the purpose of assisting in clearing the road of snow which fell during Friday's storm. They left the passenger car on the east side of the bridge. The section men, conductor, Brakeman Loudon and a young man named Frank Miller, with Driver Lanigan and Fireman Boucher, thirteen in number were on the engine. They then started, but when they got on the bridge the plow and engine left the track and fell over into the river. Only five men could be found. The rest, eight in number, were pinned down under the engine, which was lying bottom up in the river.

The train was running slow at the time.

The following is a list of the killed:

Conductor Kearney of Douglastown, Miramichi, single, aged 25.

Driver Lanigan, Bathurst, married, four children, aged 31.

Felix Boucher, fireman, Bathurst, single, aged 24.

Joseph Viennseau, section man, Bathurst, married, five children, aged 30.

John Poulin, section man, Caraquet, married, large family, age 30.

Octave Pinit, section man, Caraquet, single, aged 23.

John Carney, Bathurst, married, 5 children, age 30.

Frank Miller, Bathurst, single, aged 20.

Section men D. Patterson, Cormier, Fullam and E. Hackey escaped, as did also Br akeman Louden, who jumped through the cab window. They are all more or less injured, but not fatally.

As soon as the news reached Bathurst Drs. Meahan and Bishop were at once sent to the scene. By noon to-day all the bodies had been recovered. The wounded are doing well. Supt. W. H. Chisholm, Engineer W. Mann and P. H. Molvn of the Caraquet Railway were present and did everything that was possible.

The bridge is a good one and is uninjured.

NOTES FROM TORONTO.

There was $30 in the till of the box office on the Grand Theatre when Treasurer Herbert Sheppard locked up on Friday night. When the youthful Herbert came down on Saturday morning, prepared to do a rushing advance sale for either the minstrels or "Erminie," he found that "somebody had been there since he'd been gone." The money was missing and there was evidence of house-breaking work. The wire screen of a basement window had been torn off. Then the thief passed through the window, forced the lock of a door leading to the lobby, and gained an entrance to the box office by way of a trap window in the ceiling.

Chancellor Boyd has appointed Mr. Archibald Campbell, Mr. William Gooderham and Mr. W. H. Howland liquidators of the Central Bank. Each liquidator must furnish $30,000 security to the satisfaction of the Court. All moneys received by the liquidators must be paid into the Bank of Commerce, and the accounts of the liquidators must be passed half-yearly by the Master-in-Ordinary. The amount of remuneration remains to be settled.

Arrested for Perjury in an Election Trial.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Samuel Carroll of West Middlesex for perjury. Carroll was the principal witness on whom the Liberals relied in their attempt to unseat Dr. Roome, the Conservative member for the riding.

Anarchist Parson's Book Out.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—A. R. Parson's book, "The Philosophy of Anarchism" was issued yesterday in bright red colors. One chapter brings out some new points in regard to the trial of the Anarchists. It appears that Lawyer Foster and Capt. Black were fundamentally at variance as to the method of conducting the case, but Foster carried the day in the council and his way in court. Aside from this the book is devoted to the exposition of the author's social views. The book is printed by Mrs. Parsons.

A Good Appointment for a Canadian.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 17.—Mr. Lingham, the well known cattle exporter of Belleville, has just received through Lord Dufferin the appointment as manager in India of the cattle estates of the Nizam of Hyderabad, who will be remembered as having given $2,000,000 towards the fortifications and defence of India a short time ago. Mr. Lingham received a cable yesterday afternoon to the effect that he would have a salary of £2000 sterling per annum. He is now in Montreal.

Sir Charles and the U. S. Quarantine.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18:—The Provincial Board of Health met yesterday afternoon, Dr. E. P. Lachapelle presiding. After he had given an account of the business done at the American Public Health Association at Memphis, a letter was read from Sir Charles Tupper promising to lay the question of the need of more effective quarantine regulations at United States ports before the proper authorities during his stay in Washington.

Expelled From the Loyalty Islands.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The London Missionary Society has received intelligence that Missionary Jones has been expelled from the Loyalty Islands by a force sent especially to the Islands from New Caledonia. He has arrived a Sydney, N. S. W., and has formally protested to the Governor against his expulsion.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The report that the Government will create a Ministry of Agriculture and appoint Mr. Henry Chaplin minister, is declared to be without foundation.

GREAT MEN TALK OF WAR.

The Vienna Military Council—The Increase of Forces in Poland and Galicia.

VIENNA, Dec. 18.—The Military Council in this city to-day was presided over by the Emperor Francis Joseph. There were present Herr von Tisza, the Hungarian Prime Minister Count von Taaffe, Minister of the Interior Count Kalnoky, Count Bylandt Rheydt, Imperial Minister of War; Herr von Kallay, Imperial Minister of Finance; Archduke Albrecht, Count von Wilversheimer, Minister of Defence of Austria, and Baron von Sepervary, Minister of Defence of Hungary.

Previous to and after the council Herr von Tisza had a conference with Count Kalnoky.

The council resolved that the unexpended portion of the credit of 32,000,000 florins, voted last spring, shall be applied to the purchase of equipments and the construction of huts for the troops in Galicia. No increase of the forces in Galicia has yet been decided upon, and if there is no further augmentation of Russian troops on the frontier Austria will adhere to the policy of observation.

Another military council has been summoned for to-morrow.

It is semi-officially stated that the Cabinet shares in the belief that good relations with Russia will be maintained. No differences exist except with respect to Bulgaria. Austria is ready to assist in a pacific solution of the question, but the announcement in The Invalid Russe that Russia proposes a whole series of military measures, of which the recent increase of forces in Poland is only a part, enjoins increased military vigilance. Austria must keep pace with Russian plans.

Count von Taafe and Herr von Tisza agree that the summoning of the delegations in the meantime would be inopportune.

The Bearer of Conciliatory Instructions.

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—The National Zeitung says that Gen. von Schmeinitz, the German Ambassador to Russia, returns to St. Petersburg with conciliatory instructions. Prince Bismarck, the paper says, counsels Austria while strengthening her military positions to avoid giving provocation to Russia. It is officially explained that the court circular announcing a meeting yesterday between the Emperor and Count von Moltke and others created the erroneous impression that a Military Council had been held. The Emperor, it is stated, did not hold a council, but merely gave a reception to Gen. von Moltke and other officers.

Will Put Up in Case of War.

VIENNA, Dec. 18.—It is reported the delegations will vote 20,000,000 florins to the Government in the event of preparations being made for war.

Couldn't Raise a Loan.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 18. Russia's endeavors to raise a loan here and at Amsterdam have failed.

THE PRINCE OF WALES SHOT.

An Accident While Hunting—Two Leaden Pellets in His Face.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—While the Prince of Wales and a party of gentlemen were shooting at Sandringham yesterday, a gun in the hands of one the sportsmen was accidentally discharged. One of the shots lodged in the Prince's nose, and another in his cheek. The injuries are slight and the pellets were easily extracted by a physician.

Another account states that the accident was caused by a defective gun, and that the shots scattered in several directions, the gentleman handling the weapon having himself been slightly wounded by the explosion.

VICTORIA AND THE POPE.

The Duke of Norfolk Conveys Her Majesty's Congratulations to Leo.

ROME, Dec. 17.—The Pope to-day gave audience to the Duke of Norfolk. The Duke expressed the congratulations of Queen Victoria on the Papal Jubilee and her thanks for the mission of Mgr. Scilla on the occasion of her own jubilee.

The Pope replied that he was deeply moved by these proofs of friendship on the part of the Queen, and hoped that the exchange of sentiments of affection would not be limited to the present exceptional circumstances, but would also make its influence felt on other occasions. He was animated, he said, by feelings of the greatest affection for the English people.

The Pope recalled the friendship displayed by Queen Victoria in 1846, when at the conclusion of his auncia ure at Brussels he delivered to her a letter from King Leopold.

Cardinal Howard has been stricken with apoplexy. He is a relative of the Duke of Norfolk.

The Duke of Edinburgh Visits the Crown Prince.

SAN REMO, Dec. 17.—The Duke of Edinburgh arrived here to-day, and was received at the railway station by the Crown Princess and Prince Henry. He dined in the evening with the Crown Prince and his family.

In the course of a conversation with the Duke, Dr. Mackenzie again stated that he was favorably impressed by the Prince's condition. He declared that the existence of cancer was more doubtful than on the occasion of his last visit, and in fact had never been proved.

Dr. Mackenzie will return to London in a week.

The Prince and Duke Take a Walk.

SAN REMO, Dec. 18.—The Crown Prince, accompanied by Prince Henry and the Duke of Edinburgh, took a long walk to-day.

Ferry's Assailant Sent to a Mad House.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Aubertin, the man who attempted to assassinate M. Ferry in the hall of the Chamber of Deputies, was arraigned before a magistrate for a preliminary examination to-day. While the examination was progressing the prisoner was attacked with dementia, and he was removed to a mad house.

To-night Aubertin is delirious and the doctors despair of his life.

The Reichstag Takes a Rest.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The Cereal Bill was passed to-day, 203 to 116, and the Reichstag adjourned until Jan. 17. When the House reconvenes the Military Bill will be expedited, after which the amended Socialist Law, the Five Years Parliament Bill and the measure for the assurance of old and invalid workmen will be the chief work of the session.

A Collision on the Clyde.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—During a gale on the Clyde last night the British steamer Manitoban Capt. Dunlap, from Philadelphia, collided with the British steamer Alcides, Capt. Rollo, from Baltimore. The Manitoban's bows were stove in and the Alcides was cut down to the water line. Both vessels were taken to the Tail of the Bank.

A British Minister of Agriculture.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—It is reported that the Government will create the post of Minister of Agriculture and that Right Hon. Henry Chaplain (Conservative), member of Parliament for the Sleaford Division of Lincolnshire, will be appointed to the office.

Premier Mercier Getting Better.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—Madame Mercier who arrived home from New York yesterday reports that the Premier's health is continually improving, so that he will soon be able to follow her.

An Assignment at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—Messrs. John Baird & Co., commission merchants, this city, have assigned with about $25,000. The assets are not yet known.

Surgeon-Major Cross Found Guilty.

CORK, Dec. 18.—Surgeon-Major Cross has been found guilty of the murder of his wife by poisoning and has been sentenced to death.

ARRESTS AT PORT PERRY.

THE COMPANIONS OF BARTENDER BROWN LOCKED UP.

The Fate of a Professional Party that Assembled at Myrtle Station—Physicians at Loggerheads—Two Constables' Midnight Drive in Search of Game.

WHITBY, Dec. 18.—The excitement over the Myrtle shooting affray on the night of Dec. 14 was further intensified in this town and in Port Perry by the arrest of the three men who accompanied Bartender Brown to Myrtle Station, at an early hour this morning. They were all taken in their beds at Port Perry and locked up in the county jail this morning.

Yesterday afternoon Lawyer N. Gordon Bigelow came down from Toronto just to look around and see what steps were to be taken in connection with the case. Mr. Bigelow has been retained to defend Dennen and McCrae. When he arrived here he found County Crown Attorney Farewell busily engaged at the Court of Quarter Sessions, which have been in session all week. Mr. Bigelow stepped over to the jail and had a conference with the prisoners.

On Friday Judge Burnham granted an order directing Mr. James Rutledge, barrister of this town, to proceed to Myrtle with a magistrate and examine the wounded man. The order was made under Sec. 220 of the Criminal Procedure Act, which permits of the taking of evidence of persons who are dangerously ill and unable to attend court. The accused, however, must have a full opportunity of cross-examination, otherwise the deposition is of no use. Upon being served with this order at the jail, the prisoners were informed that they would be taken to Myrtle to attend if they wished. However, they thought their presence was quite unnecessary at Myrtle, and said they were perfectly satisfied to leave their interests in Mr. Bigelow's hands.

When the Quarter Sessions adjourned last evening Mr. Rutledge, Mr. Farewell, Mr. Bigelow, Major Harper, Police Magistrate, and Dr. Warren drove over to Myrtle to make the examination under Judge Burnham's order. The party arrived there at 7.30 and found Vernon's Hotel full of the wounded man's relatives and friends. They peremptorily refused to allow any of the lawyers or magistrates to see Brown. Even Dr. Warren, who has been one of the physicians engaged in the case, was denied admission to the room. This, one of Brown's female relatives explained, was Dr. Clemens' explicit orders.

The party then awaited the arrival of Dr. Clemens, who was expected shortly from Port Perry. Dr. Clemens came along, and, on meeting Dr. Warren, a wordy war took place between these two gentlemen over the patient and the visitors from Whitby. The two physicians are apparently considerably at loggerheads as to who is really the attending medical adviser. Both of them, it may be mentioned, have had considerable to do with the case since Brown was shot.

Dr. Clemens told Mr. Farewell and Mr. Bigelow that the patient was totally unfit to make a statement. The lawyers were in a predicament. Brown had been in a comatose state all day, accompanied by frequent fits of vomiting and weakness.

"What if he should die without telling his story?" they asked. They had Judge Burnham's order to see the wounded man, and they could have lawfully done so, but they did not want to create any undue excitement among his friends.

Then Lawyer Bigelow drew up this certificate, which was signed by Dr. Clemens and endorsed on the back of Judge Burnham's order:

I, George H. Clemens, of the village of Port Perry, a duly licensed medical practitioner, do hereby certify:

1. That I am the medical practitioner in attendance upon the within named George Brown.

2. That in my opinion he is not at present able to give a complete statement referring to the matters within mentioned and submit to cross-examination on the same, no matter how leniently soever it might be conducted.

Dated at Myrtle, Dec. 17, 10.30 p.m.

This settled that part of the program and the party returned to Whitby. Before leaving Vernon's Hotel it is said Brown told one of the Whitby party who did go into his room that it was McCrae, and not Dennen, who shot him.

Then the next great step in the case was taken. When Lawyer Bigelow got back to town he went straight to the jail and drew up an information against Wm. Lattimore, Thos. Trebell and Fred Corbyn ("the Jersey Lily") on the strength of statements supplied by Dennen and McCrae. Magistrate Harper subscribed to the information. It charged the three men with "unlawfully, wickedly and maliciously conspiring to assault and wound and do grievous bodily harm to C. S. Dennen and W. C. McCrae, and in pursuance of his conspiracy did wound and shoot at these two persons."

The warrant was placed in the hands of Chief of Police McByrne and Constable Calverly, who at once secured a buggy and set out "ostensibly for Pickering." [This to throw the friends of the men in Whitby off the scent.] The officers started out in the direction of Pickering and drove to the first sideline, when they turned the horses heads towards the Port, where they arrived one hour after midnight. Under the cloak of dense darkness they wended their way through the quiet streets of the town to the different homes of the three men, who were all found in bed. They were greatly surprised on being confronted by the officers.

Lattimore, Corbyn and Trebel were allowed a little time to consult their friends, after which they were handcuffed and put into the rig and a start was made for this town, where the party arrived at 7.30. The men were locked up in the county jail, and seemed considerably surprised when informed that they could not get bail until after the preliminary examination. When it become known that they were behind the bars there was considerable excitement in town, and up till a late hour to-night it was the sole topic of conversation.

If nothing unusual happens the preliminary examination in all the cases will begin at o'clock to-morrow afternoon before Magistrate Harper.

After Dennen and McCrae were locked up Friday night they sent down to the hotels to have their meals furnished at the jail, but all of them persistently refused to serve the detectives with grub. To-day, before Lawyer Bigelow left for Toronto, he saw some of the leading hotelkeepers of the town and told them they were acting indiscreetly in refusing the men meals, and the hotel men seeing it in this light promised to send them anything they wished.

Excitement at Port Perry.

PORT PERRY, Dec. 18.—When it became known here to-day that Lattimore, Corbyn and Trebell had been arrested there was considerable excitement and talk. Their friends are organizing to see them through.

Brown Feeling Better.

MYRTLE STATION, Dec. 18.—Midnight—The wounded man has had an easy day and night, and is feeling much easier now. Mr. Farewell saw him to-day and, it is understood, took a statement, which, however, would not be necessarily binding on the prisoners or Mr. Bigelow. It is understood that he said it was McCrae who shot him, that his pistol was unloaded and that he was disarmed by Dennen before there was a shot fired.

GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL.

Canadian "Broilers" for Boston—Mr. Hector Cameron and Carleton.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—The Canadian broiler is not waiting for Mr. Wiman's Commercial Union scheme to find it a market in the United States. Yesterday a train load of twenty-two cars of dressed turkeys and geese left this section for Boston. The poultry was purchased in the neighborhood of Carleton Place, Smiths' Falls and Perth and shipped by way of Rouse's Point, N.Y. The weight of the poulty was over 220 tons and its value upwards of $40,000.

Mr. M. S. Lonergan, Secretary of the Railway Commission, was here yesterday. He says the Commission concludes taking evidence this week, when a report will be prepared for presentation to Parliament at the coming session.

The latest name mentioned in connection with the representation of Carleton in the Commons is that of Mr. Hector Cameron.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—The Halfbreed Commission has concluded its labors. Rogers Goulet and N. O. Cote, the two members, are daily expected from Winnipeg.

It is learned from Canadian Pacific Railway people here that the amount of Manitoba wheat which has so far been moved east from Winnipeg is about 5,000,000 bushels. About 4,000,000 bushels of this has passed through Ottawa in bond to Boston and New York for export.

The Canadian Pacific Railway officials here have been advised from the general offices of the company that the Algoma branch, from Sudbury to Sault Ste. Marie, will be open for traffic on Jan. 1.

THOSE MYSTERIOUS LETTERS.

The Case of the Accused Detectives—Documents Procured by "Wilson."

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—The only new feature in connection with the case of the accused detectives yesterday is the fact that the letters which are alleged to have passed between Wilson and others interested have been given to the public. The following are copies of the documents:

EXHIBIT E.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25, 1887.

SIR: Your note of Nov. 23 to hand, and in answer would state that everything is O.K. The road is clear, without any obstructions whatever. Come in at once with your partner, which, I understand, knows the business thoroughly. Bring on a small kit, as we may want to do some work in that line. That party's house is still vacant, and you can make use of it to live there, etc. The girls are anxious to see you, and, no doubt, you will make it pleasant for them when you come.

P.S.—A newspaper was addressed to you to the Adams House as well as the letter at the time; it was The Montreal Star.

EXHIBIT C.

BOSTON, Nov. 26, 1887.

DEAR SIR: Yours of Nov. 26 to hand. I will arrive in Montreal Wednesday evening. Answer as soon as you get this and tell me if you think it best for me to go direct to the house. If so I will meet you at Harvey's the same evening. I would start to-day but have to wait to see my friend. Don't you think we can do that business with P.M., or perhaps you have other business that will pay you better. However, we will decide after my arrival. Remember me to Naegele. Tell him I am coming and I would like to see him the same night with you. Yours, P.E.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29, 1887.

I only received yours of Nov. 26 this morning, and hasten to reply. As you request, I will be at Harvey's on Wednesday evening, waiting for you, and will endeavor to have our friend there. If you can possibly smuggle in the necessary outfit to do up a fire-proof, do so. Come on at once with your friend, or arrange things with him so that he can come on if we wire him.

UNITED STATES HOTEL, BOSTON, Nov. 22, 1887.

Thos. Flynn, Esq.: DEAR SIR: Find letter enclosed that I found at Adams House. You see it is dated Nov. 3. Although it is not signed it is from Fahey. I have just written him a long letter and will have an answer by Friday. I think I shall want you here on Friday; if so I will telegraph you on Thursday. Yours in haste, FRANK HATHEWS.

P.S.—The letter is just as I received it, with notice cut from Montreal paper. Write me on receipt of this to let me know if you can come on next week.

With reference to Plante's arrest the accused states that he gained the watch from Naegele at a game of cards, and the ex-detective reports that the watch was given him by Mr. Archambault, Mr. Lefebvre's clerk. In order that the officer might know if he should come across others of the same mark. Mr. Archambault says such a thing might possibly have been done, but he does not remember it. Mr. Kellert received the watch from Plante on Oct. 30, 1886. The dealer sold out all his pledges to Mr. Hirsh last July, and the year having expired Oct. 30, 1887, the watch was disposed of at a pawnbroker's sale with a lot of other goods, and in this manner came into possession of the man who took it to Lefebvre's store for repairs.

ANOTHER LOSS AND GAIN.

Since the general election last February the Reform party have not gained in public favor. Mr. Laurier's leadership and the Commercial Union agitation have not brought them success in the bye-elections.

Two more contests took place last week, in Yarmouth and Shelburne, Nova Scotia. Both constituencies had been held by Reformers. In Yarmouth Mr. Lovitt was returned at the general election by a very large majority and in Shelburne Mr. Robertson had a Majority of 31. In the elections last week Mr. Lovitt's majority was cut down by 200 and a majority of six votes was polled against Mr. Robertson, Gen. Laurie, the Conservative candidate, being elected.

Three seats have been won by the Conservative party from the Reformers since the House last met, while the Reform party has not gained one. This shows that not only that the people still have confidence in and support the Macdonald Government, but that the Government is increasing while the opposition is weakening in public favor.

Nova Scotia was said to be strongly antagonistic to the Government, and since the Commercial Union agitation commenced it has been claimed that the people of that Province were almost unanimous in favor of it. But the elections tell a different tale, and the assertions regarding Nova Scotia, like many other statements made by advocates of the scheme, have been found to be erroneous. The representation of Nova Scotia in the House of Commons now consists of 17 Conservatives and 4 Reformers.

Having disparaged Canada, the Commercial Unionists are now turning their attention to Great Britain. Prof. Smith says that power in Great Britain is in the hands of "the common son of toil" who would prefer "bread and cheese and ale" to empire or colonial fealty. Facts are opposed to the assertion. The pride of country and imperial spirit is still strong in the British Isles, and England holds her foremost position among the nations of the world. And she will retain that position, despite foes within or enemies without.

Prof. Goldwin Smith recently argued that Commercial Union would only injure a few manufacturers in England, but he has changed his view of the matter—how rapidly his opinions do change!—and now appeals to "the masses" in Canada against "the masses" in England. That will not do; the question is not one between England and Canada at all. The question is, Would it benefit Canada? And in answering that the effect the Union would have on British connection must be considered.

---

The New York World's Washington correspondent gravely states that Sir Charles Tupper is not so judicial a diplomat as the fishery question demands because he "is just out of a feverish political contest where the fishery dispute formed a principal feature." The correspondents at the United States capital are not nearly so well informed about the Commission as they would have the public believe.

---

A Washington correspondent refers to "Sir Joseph Chamberlain" as "nominally" representing Great Britain. Perhaps he knighted Mr. Chamberlain as a solace for reducing him to a nominal position on the Commission.

THE HEAD MADE OF GOLD

THE VISION TO SHOW THE KING HIS GREATNESS.

How Great the People now are—More Powerful than the Babylonian King—Their Opportunities and how to use Them.

There were large congregations in the George Street Methodist Church both morning and evening to hear the poetic and eloquent pastor of the Queen Street Methodist Church, Toronto, the Rev. B. Longley, who preached the anniversary sermons.

At the morning service he took as the text for his sermon, Daniel II, 38.—"Thou art this head of Gold."

He traced the circumstances which led up to this assertion by the Prophet Daniel. Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, had dreamed a dream, which troubled him. He remembered that a terrible form had appeared before him, but he had but an indistinct rememberance of its appearance. He bade is wise men, magicians, astrologers and sorcerers, first bring to his mind the dream and then intrepret it. On their being unable to do it the King ordered that they be put to death. Among the wise men to be slain was Daniel. When it was made known to him the reason he asked to be shown to the Kings presence, and he was shown in and he made known the dream and interpreted it. He spoke to the King telling him that he had beheld a bright image whose head was of gold, his breast and arms of silver, his belly and thighs of brass, his legs of iron and his feet of iron and of clay. And Daniel told him that he, the King was the head of gold, and that th other elements in the image represented inferior kingdoms which would come afterward. Without going deeply into the great significance of the vision he would call attention to one aspect of it. It was intended to show the King how great he was and how great his opportunities were. The preacher gave a vivid description of the greatness of Nebuchadnezzar—his power, the extent of the domain he ruled over, and the magnificence of his capital, Babylon. But the King heeded not the import of the vision. He used his riches to make idols and his power to make men bow before them. Another vision was sent. The King saw a flourishing tree and anon it was blighted. The vision was interpreted, the tree being the King. Daniel besought the King to leave off his sins but after a time the King spoke vainly and asked what power was equal to his power. And even while he spoke his power departed.

The preacher directed attention to the power of men now and the opportunities for doing good all were possessed of. He wished to lift to the mind a truer, fairer and juster conception of our own greatness, and power and almost unlimited resources, by the self same image that appeared before the Babylonian King. Where should we look for the feet of clay among the nations? Africa poor dark Africa! Africa whose soil was wet with blood, the scene of many an unwritten tragedy of which the stars alone look down upon. The limbs of iron were China and Japan; Austria and Russia answered to the conception of the brass element; Germany of the silver But we could but look to England—beautiful and brave and strong—for the head of gold. And yet there were blots upon English society and upon that of the great American Republic, so beautiful, strong, progressive and free. To our own broad Dominion he looked to realize his conception of the head of gold. He gave a description of Canada's extent, resources, and moral and physical strength and concluded with reciting the oft quoted lines from his own pen. Not only were we great as a people, enjoying more privileges, civil, religious and climatic, but we lived in a wonderful time. We lived in a generation filled to repletion of all kinds of blessings. The people of to-day were more powerful even that the great Babylonion king. He commanded men. The people now had the lightning and steam to do their errands. When the King's father lay on his death bed it took him days on his fleetest steed to reach the capital a comparatively short distance away. If a person's friend lay ill thousands of miles away, in some city of the west or down by the sounding sea, a night and a day would bring them there. The King had no such airy servitors as the telegraph by which agency the words while even warm on the lips were echoing under the skys of another hemisphere.

And in the nearer realm of mind what abundant treasures there were when compared with that of older time. The truths of science, philosophy, art, now so open and free to us were a closed book in the ancients, or but dimly seen.

And more near still, in our hands was a sceptre more potent than Oriental monarch ever wielded. We rule over an empire of limitless extent. In this age we could look abroad and see what likeness the religions of the world bore to the image which appeared before the King. The horrid superstitution and ghastly rites of the pagans were the feet of clay. The more refined idolatry of the Greeks might be likened to the limbs of iron; the strange mixture of truth and error of the Mohammedans to the body of silver; but the head was Christianity. He described the powers, unlimited powers, the Christain had, his resources, his wealth, his regal dignity. The higest privileges were his and the highest reward was his if he were faithful. Their's was the privilege of advancing Christ's Kingdom to the ends of the earth. The Kingdom was not extended. Why? Because they were contented that it should not be. Because they sat here reposetully and negligently. He rebuked the Christians for their apathy, including himself in the rebuke. "We are asleep" he exclaimed "We are worse than asleep. We are in a slumber so profound that we are almost unconscious of those bright visions that God puts before us by which we rise to a conception of God's power and purposes. Oh God, rouse us from this slumber!"

GOUGH

IS HARD UP AND MUST RAISE THE WIND.

He has too many OVERCOATS on hand, and must, like the Waggon Maker, who has too many Sleighs on hand in an open Winter, sell them at any price. Lots of other fellers have got the Stomachache BECAUSE GOUGH SELLS SO CHEAP. WITNESS HOW DRY GOODS TUMBLED WHEN THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN TOOK A HAND IN. One Chap over in the Wholesale Fish District has his Advertisements written in Penntown, where the Sewers run on top of the Streets. He feels so bad he don't know how to describe it; so says; "He's Crippled in Price." We don't doubt it. Then there is another one, he is tied up to Crowbar Bros., of Gotham; these fellers are as stiff on their prices as a Crowbar, and squeeze 50 per cent. profit out of their poor victims, but the victims are under the thumb of Crowbar Bros., and can't help themselves. Then there is the feller who cannot advertise; it makes him nervous, he uses a whole quart of Camphor a day, and tells customers GOUGH is selling SO CHEAP it is perfectly demoralizing to trade; I don't know how all this is coming out. IT MERELY COMES OUT THAT

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

The best brands of Canadian oil at 15c per imperial gallon. ADAM HALL. d145tf

The Late Andrew Wilson.

In the Monetary Times, in an article contributed by the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, it is pointed out as a peculiar coincidence that the late Andrew Wilson was the first agent of the company and that his insurance policy was the first claim paid by the company. The article also says of him:—"In business he was honest, energetic and persistent. In private life he was a model of integrity and uprightness. The company evidenced its appreciation of its worth by the presence at the funeral of the Managing Director and other executive officers."

AT TURNBULL'S I find I can buy Dry Goods the Cheapest of any place in town. They never force me to buy, nor represent goods to be what they are not.

THE MAN WAS SICK.

Found by Salvation Army Men on the Street.

On Saturday night the Salvation Army were parading down Simcoe street, when near the corner of Aylmer street the drummer ceased beating his drum and the band men stopped blowing their horns and all hands went to the roadside to see what a crowd stood gaping at.

It was a serious matter. A young man apparently twenty-two lay near the sidewalk still and motionless. His cheek was pale and his body was quite cold. As no one else offered assistance two or three of the Salvationist picked him up and carried him down street to the Police Station, a big crowd following.

At the station he was stretched out on a lounge and Dr. Pigeon was called. Those who were standing around looked at the corpse like figure anxiously. One of the Salvationists sat at his head with one arm around the man's neck. The doctor arrived and glancing at the man whispered that he must have been hurt badly. He hastened to make a closer examination, first looking to the man's respiration. He bent over the motionless form to do this and then smiled. He took from his pocked a little bottle and sprinkled a few drops of diluted ammonia around the man's nostrils. The lips began to twich, the mouth to open, and at last the eye lids raised. Then he wanted to fight. He doubled up his fist, glared at the Salvationist and shouted: "Leggo me." The spectators laughed and the Salvationist remarked that he never saw a man so dead drunk in his life before.

POLICE NEWS.

Arrest of an Alleged Robber—Scott Act and Other Matters.

On Saturday afternoon Constable Mitchell of Omemee, appeared at the police station and, on making the acquaintance of Acting Chief Adams, produced a warrant for the arrest of A. W. Falkner, jr., on the charge of having robbed Mr. Ingram, of Omemee, of an amount of money, something over $100. Some time ago Falkner and another young man named Mills found Mr. Ingram, of Omemee, under the influence of liquor. They took him home, but in the morning Ingram found that he had been relieved of a considerable amount of money. Mills was arrested and the constable was following Falkner to secure him also. Acting Chief Adams and the visiting officer went out together and they soon found their man. He was taken back to Omemee in the evening.

SCOTT ACT.

Mrs. Condon was fined $50 and costs on Saturday for an infraction of the Scott Act. R. Doris was fined $50 for a similar offence on Friday.

DRUNK.

J. Hickey was charged at the court this morning with having been drunk. He pleaded guilty. The Magistrate allowed him to go, seeing that this was his first offence and that he gave the police no trouble. Mr. Hickey murmured his thanks as Acting-Chief Adams handed him back a $10 bill intact.

John Powers, the young man who was found on Simcoe street on Saturday night, was charged with having been drunk. It was shown that he had suffered from a fit after having been placed in the cells, and that the cause of it was the use of the 40 rod which he had been drinking. The Magistrate dismissed him with the advice that he should avoid such nostrums in the future.

Go direct to TURNBULL'S, The Cheap Dry Goods House, for fine Wool Goods, Heavy Scotch Shawls, Table Linens, &c., &c., for the Christmas trade.

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind that the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d108eo

At the Opera House.

Basco, the famous magrcian, will open a three nights engagement at Bradburn's Opera House, to-morrow evening. He is accompanied by Prof. Deaue, the humorist and the acknowledged premier ventriloquist of the world. The wonderful feature of these entertainments, is the distribution of a hundred elegant, costly and useful presents each evening. They are not trashy articles, but of great cost and intrinsic value. People are skeptical, but the first night dispels all doubt. The press everywhere speaks in the highest terms of Basco and his wonderful presents. Reserved seats on sale at Hartley's. 1d145

Church Notes.

—On Sunday next (Christmas day), instead of the usual Sunday school service, the children of the congregation of St. John's Chuach will hold a song service in the church at a quarter past three. The members of the congregation should encourage the children by being present.

—The Rev. Mr. Wallace explained on Sunday morning that the George Street Official Board had decided to have the regular exchange of pulpits in the Methodist Churches discontinued after the close of the present ecclesiastical year. This was done because the pastors believed it would be better for each one to be more with his own congregation. The Charlotte Street Board thereupon resolved to have it discontinued at once, but he thought they did so owing to a misunderstanding and that the exchange would probably be continued until June next.

—Prof. Dingle, of Oshawa, has been engaged by the George Street Methodist Church as organist.

Christmas Presents,

such as Bibles, Prayer and Hymn Books, Story Books, Albums, Satchels, Purses Plush Goods, Gold Pens and Pencils, Desks Work Boxes, Toilet Cards, Companions and 'Xmas Cards in large variety at lowest prices at A. L. Davis & Co's. 7d144

OVERCOATS and Suits for men and Boys at prices that were never beaten, at TURNBULL'S. Call.

The Press and Publications.

—Middle of last week our contem., the Examiner, issued its annual Christmas edition. The sheet is a good one, will filled with interesting reading and live advertisements of the business done by the live business men of Peterborough. Each merchant who brings a customer to town by advertising his wares benefits not only himself but the public in general. The time to advertise is all the time.

—That excellent paper the Post of Lindsay issues as a Christmas number 16 pages during the last two weeks. It is a splendid edition, spicy, well edited, printed and a splendid advertising medium, a credit to its publisher and a standing menace and a danger to high prices. The rapid progress of the town during the last eighteen months is well reflected in its pages.

—The Wide Awake Christmas number is a splendid holiday periodical. It teems with good things. It is clean, wholesome reading. It is past criticism as a book to place in the hands of children, while it a source of interest to grown people. The publishers deserve credit for placing at the service of the public such a wholesome magazine. The new year has already begun with the holiday number just out—a truly great number, larger and richer, more varied, and therefore it must be better than ever before. And the publishers have a primer to send to those who want to know what Wide Awake is going to have in it in 1888. The wonder is that such a library and picture gallery can be got together—a thousand pages and everything fresh and new—stories, history, travels, biography, sketches, anecdote, adventure—and all instructive as well as entertaining. Two worlds are drawn from to make such provision for the education and pleasure of our children. So high is the best of young people's literature nowadays that we are all of us glad to be young. Nine-tenths of reading people prefer it to what is written for them; for it has the rare merit of being easy as well as good. We know of no Christmas gift so sure of bringing a happy response in a reading family. Send $2.40 to D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

THE ENTERTAINMENT by the children of St. John's Church Sunday School has been postponed until Thursday, December 22nd. See advertisement to-morrow for particulars of programme, &c. 1d145

Local Brevities.

—Prof. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., of the George Street Methodist Church, will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday next.

—E. J. Hartley, music dealer, has handed us a copy of the new "Helena" waltz. Its a Canadian production and will prove a popular selection.

—Mr. S. S. Smith, mayor of Port Hope, is a candidate for another term. Mr. David Hall, "Canada's greatest orator," also announces himself as a candidate. The "orator" will impart some fun to municipal politics at the Port.

—Some general comment was passed by Methodist people on on the accident of the circumstance that Rev. Benjamin Longley should be the guest—while in town—of Mr. Benjamin Shortly. The rev. gentleman was well housed and treated like the prince of preaches, as he is.

—During the last few days—Sunday of course excepted—energetic and affable gentlemen have talked about distributing copies of those beautiful colored cards that tell a fellow how fast Father Time pulls in the slack of the line which runs from July to December. We are indebted to Messrs. Boddy, of the C.P.R. office, W. H. Hill, Sun Life Insurance Company, and E.E. Henderson, of the Phœnix Life, for calenders for 1888.

33⅓ Cents on the Dollar.

Sheppard has purchased at auction, bran new goods, as well as part of a Bankrupt stock, averaging all round about 33⅓ cents on the dollar. ## DISTRICT NOTES.

News of the Midland District Condensed From Contemprories.

The new Methodist church in Seymour west will be dedicated on Jan 1st.

Messrs. Crossley and Dewey, evangelists, remain in Lindsay this week.

The new Methodist Church in Seymour west will be dedicated on Jan 1st.

Mr. N. King, publisher of the Gazette, is a candidate for the Mayoralty of Barrie.

A trapper of North Scugog caught upwards of a dozen beavers last week.

At Chard's bridge in Seymour the water in the Crow River is only three inches deep.

A branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been formed at Campbellford.

At Chard's bridge in Seymour the water in the Crow River is only three inches deep.

A Sandringham farmer had twenty bushels of wheat stolen from his granary recently.

Mrs. Foxton, of Roslin, whose arm was broken and afterwards amputated, died last week.

Tat Lambert, a nine year old boy of Penetanguishene, while sliding on the bay fell into the water and was drowned.

Some person knocked Mr. True, of Manvers Station, off the track a few evenings ago, and his leg was fractured.

In West Durham five dollars reward is offered for information that will lead to the conviction of parties violating the Scott Act.

Wm. Moyce, of Janetville, lost a valuable cow last week by another getting loose and hooking her over the stall, breaking her neck.

W. Whitton, of Campbellford, took a large quantity of fowl to Toronto, but he found prices so low that he brought them back.

John A. Mason, of Cartwright, was caught in the tumbling rod of a thrheshing machine a few days ago and his clotes were all torn off but his boots and hat.

Mrs. John McConnel's house, Bobcaygeon, was burned on Monday night. It was unoccupied and incendiarism is suspected. Loss, $600 or $700; insurance, $400.

While working in one of the Longford lumber camps, Richard McPeak, of Dalrymple, was seriously if not fatally injured by a limb of a falling tree striking him and pinning his leg to the ground.

Barney McLaughlin, a Stirling shoemaker, was in Roslin looking for work and started for home on foot on Saturday. Next day the Rev. D. Kelso found him lying by the roadside, dead. He was 70 years old.

There is every prospect of a bridge over the Bay of Quinte being built at Belleville. About $23,000 of stock has been subscribed, which is in excess of the sum required to secure the provisional organization of the company.

L. McBain, a Cannington constable, went to Uptergrove to arrest a man named Conners for violation of the Scott Act. Conners assaulted the constable, beating him unmercifully, and then had him arrested on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Connore. The constable was released and Conners now awaits his trial.

Chris. Keller, of Seymour, brought a charge against B. Boyce, a sewing machine agent, for breaking into his dwelling and taking a machine. It appeared that it was sold subject to a lease, the conditions of which had not been fulfilled, and the lease gave the agent the right to enter and take the machine. The case was dismissed.

Mr. Boyd's lumber operations in the Kinmount district are on an unprecedented scale. He has now more than six hundred men at work at his shanties. One day 270 head of cattle were delivered in the shanties. There are ten shanties in full operation, and about sixty men in each. The quantity of logs cut will be something enormous. The season has been favorable for cutting and skidding logs, the absence of snow having facilitated the work very much. As soon as snow comes the drawing will commence, and a hundred teams will be steadily employed.

Instructing the Reporter.

Unhappy is the lot of a daily newspaper chief who has never been a reporter. The service calls for officers that have come up from the ranks. Otherwise they will fail to gauge accurately the relations of men and events to each other, and will become a prey to circumstances. I have known the publisher of an influential journal to instruct a reporter to take out his note book and pencil as a preliminary step whenever he should be sent to interview a person. As well tell a detective to wear a badge on his breast, or a patrolman to walk the street with a cocked revolver in his right hand. Many people would be more afraid of a reporter who should suddenly "draw" a note book on them than they would of either policeman or detective. Of course, the note book must be used for public speeches and deliberations, and, also, like the revolver in dire emergencies; but the reporter who cannot remember a column and a half of ordinary conversation (unless it concerns technical matters of which he had no previous knowledge) until he has time to turn it into intelligible "copy," should seek bread and fame in some new employment.—Henry W. Blake in The Writer.

Where Gems Are Dyed.

Precious stones are dyed at Oberstein, Germany, where nearly the whole population is devoted to the work of making bogus jewelry and fixing up cheap gems to look fine. Different families have their different modes of treatment, and some families have the secret of some one or another special tint which can be made nowhere else. Chalcedony is the usual base of false onyxes and agates, which are most counterfeited. The stones are boiled in the coloring matter and then subjected to intense heat. The color permeates the whole stone. One family has the secret of converting crocidolite into "cat's eyes." Gypsum and hornblende are also made into the same gems. Tircons, which are cheap stones of silicon and zirconia, have the color washed out and are apparently diamonds until tested. A thin slice of diamond is laid over a topaz so that the whole appears to be one gem. Emeralds are easily imitated. Many stones sold as rubies are only red spinel, and much of the lapis lazuli is only dyed chalcedony.—New York Sun.

More Than All the Books.

Little Red Ridinghood is still accosted by the wolf in the pleasant spring woods, and she is most fortunate if some good genius is near to save her. Our school system is not all complete when we have built a neat school house and hired a teacher, of whom we expect all the cardinal virtues for $4 or $5 a week during two-thirds of the year. There is an art and a science of teaching which avail more than all the books and the apparatus, because they not only put tools in this child's hands, but they direct him how to use them, and train him how to use them to the best purpose.—Harper's Magazine.

Could Talk in Seven Languages.

Hostess (a very voluble woman)—Yes, Mr. Oldboy, my daughter is just home from Vassar, and what do you think, she can talk in seven languages!

Mr. Oldboy (who lacks gallantry, but is way up in truth)—What do I think? I think, my dear madam, that if she is like her mother at all, she won't find seven languages more than she will need.—The Epoch.

Sawdust has succeeded straw for horse bedding in several of the street railway stables in Boston, and it is said to be about one-half less costly.

I go to TURNBULL'S for my Dry Goods: I find he sells cheap all the time and has a First Class Stock to select from. Don't you?

A PETERBOROUGH LADY ROBBED.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Pearsall are up here from Peterboro on a visit. In company with some friends they yesterday afternoon visited the Salvation Army Temple at Albert and James streets. Mrs. Pearsall had in her dress pocket a pocketbook containing $120 in cash and notes and other documents to the value of nearly $2000. There was a crush at the door. When Mrs. Pearsall got inside she felt for her wallet. It was gone. A pickpocket had "operated" on her while she was passing into the Temple. Mr. Pearsall reported the loss to a policeman, but the officer could see no suspicious character about. The light fingered artist had made himself scarce. Subsequently Mr. Pearsall left a description of the stolen documents at Headquarters. One note was for $300, made by James Roblin; one for $200, made by James Roblin; one for $300, made by James Morden, and one for $35, made by Enoch Cronk—all being payable to P. Pearsall. The remaining document was a receipt for a deposit of $600 in the Picton branch of the Standard Bank. Mr. Pearsall will warn the public against negotiating the notes, and does not expect to be out more than the $120, which, as he remarked to The World last night, "is quite enough."

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

"OLD king Cole was a merry old soul," but we believe that kidd sells boots with BETTER soles on than ever old King Cole wore, in fact we KNOW it. 142

We notice Messrs. Breeze & Bain are showing a very nice assortment of Tea Trays in sets and single for the Xmas trade. d139tf

LORD RANDY TO RETURN.

LATEST CABLE GOSSIP FROM THE BRITISH METROPOLIS.

Pope Leo and the Government Said to be in Treaty — Land League Tactics — Lord Lyons and His Change of Heart.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Lord Randolph Churchill's declaration at Stockport that the safety and prosperity of the British Empire are bound up with the strength and prosperity of the Tory party, together with his strong protestations of fidelity to that party are held to mark his final reconciliation with the Marquis of Salisbury and his approaching return as a member of the Ministry. Already rumors are current of his intention to re-enter the Cabinet on the reassembling of Parliament. The fact is he finds that he exaggerated his influence with the Tories and cherished the belief that he might educate them and make them pass Liberal measures as Beaconsfield boasted he did when he carried the Household Suffrage Bill in 1867. He fully expected to re-enter the Government as master, but now he has abandoned the illusion.

The Marquis of Salisbury has been too strong for him, and if he returns it will not be as Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House of Commons, as before, but probably as Secretary of War, with Mr. Goschen leading the House, and Mr. Wm. Henry Smith "kicked up stairs," as the phrase goes, to the House of Lords. There are also rumors that Lord Hartington will join the Cabinet, but these rumors have always been current since he has supported the present Administration.

Regarding Lord Randolph Churchill, the fuss made when he left the Cabinet not many months ago now seems ludicrous. The Marquis of Salisbury implored the help of the Liberal Unionists and wired Lord Dufferin and ransacked heaven and earth to get a suitable colleague. He met with several refusals, yet the Government turns out no whit less strong. Lord Churchill has a reputation for courage and audacity, as the only one among the comparatively few young men who dares face Mr. Gladstone.

The Pope and the Government.

Something is evidently going on between the English Government and the Pope with reference to Ireland, but nobody seems to know what. Mgr. Persico's mission now seems likely to result in an effort to induce the Pope to side with the authorities. The Duke of Norfolk's errand at Rome is supposed to mean something more than a pious pilgrimage on his own account. Mr. Balfour let drop a hint at Manchester that the Ministry are ready to invite Parliament to bestow important educational works on Ireland. This interpreted means the endowment of an Irish Catholic University. Mr. Dillon denounces this as a bribe. The Daily News declares that if it is offered it will oppose it. Once more also is heard a rumor of the appointment of an English ambassador to the Vatican. This is certainly untrue. What is true, if anything, is not likely to be first imparted to the Nationalist organs, thus far the chief sources of this gossip.

Discussing the League's Tactics.

The Cabinet council held yesterday was in most respects the most important meeting of the Ministers that has occurred since Parliament was prorogued. The plan of campaign of the Government in Ireland as opposed to the League's tactics was thoroughly discussed, and it was determined to continue the rigid enforcement of the policy hitherto pursued except in purely land cases, wherein a policy of leniency was adopted quite as extreme in effect as that involved in the warfare against the league. The reports of the heads of departments were also discussed, and a horizontal lowering of the estimate was agreed to, presumably with an eye to pacifying Lord Randolph Churchill. The condition of British agriculture was the last question engaging the attention of the Ministers, and it was resolved to improve it, in view of the increased outcry of the farmers against the present depression. Hence the proposal to appoint Mr. Chamberlain to the new agricultural portfolio. Lord John Manners, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, who has been the nominal Agricultural Minister, is a good deal of the nature of a fossil and quite incapable of encompassing the new phases of the economic policy of the Government, and the development of the protection theories of the Ministry requires a change in the administration of the department standing nearest the tillers of the soil. Lord Salisbury, despite his proverbial timidity, is becoming a close student of the land question in England, which is bound to assume conspicuous proportions upon the reassembling of Parliament, and the introduction of a land purchase bill of some sort now seems inevitable.

The Municipal Scandal.

The theatre managers have made out only too good a case against the Metropolitan Board of Works in their interview with the Home Secretary. They alleged and proved that they had been blackmailed by officials of that body who demanded free admission to the theatres as a right and threatened to make themselves disagreeable if refused. The Board of Works had scandals enough on hand before this. Public opinion is sullenly settling down to the conviction that this board is neither competent nor honest, but nobody knows how to get better men. The vestries elect them and the vestries themselves are equally incompetent if not equally corrupt. The Times is even beginning to talk about Tammany Hall and evidently doubts whether London is not worse governed than New York.

Lord Lyons' Conversion.

The Weekly Register, the leading English Catholic organ, denies that Lord Lyons was converted to the Catholic faith by unfair means, as had been asserted. Two months ago, it says, Lord Lyons voluntarily informed his nephew, the Duke of Norfolk, of his intention to become a Catholic, and the latter said to him: "I wish I could make a sacrifice, like that made by Manning and Newman, in order to prove my faith. All that I am able to now do seems too easy."

If you are poor you can not afford to buy trash, and if you are rich you can become richer by buying your boots, shoes, slippers, overshoes, &c., &c., from Kidd, the dealer in good boots. d142

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

Francis listened, utterly at a loss to account for the motives that animated her. "I don't see what interest you have in trying this extraordinary experiment," he said.

"It is my interest not to try it! It is my interest to fly from Venice and never set eyes on Agnes Lockwood or any of your family again!"

"What prevents you from doing that?"

She started to her feet and looked at him wildly. "I know no more what prevents me than you do!" she burst out. "Some will that is stronger than mine drives me on to my destruction in spite of my own self!" She suddenly sat down again and waved her hand for him to go. "Leave me," she said. "Leave me to my thoughts."

Francis left her, firmly persuaded by this time that she was out of her senses. For the rest of the day he saw nothing of her. The night, so far as he knew, passed quietly. The next morning he breakfasted early, determined to wait in the restaurant for the appearance of the countess. She came in and ordered her breakfast quietly, looking dull, worn and self absorbed, as she had looked when he last saw her. He hastened to her table and asked if anything had happened in the night.

"Nothing," she answered.

"You have rested as well as usual?"

"Quite as well as usual. Have you had any letters this morning? Have you heard when she is coming?"

"I have had no letters. Are you really going to stay here? Has your experience of last night not altered the opinion which you expressed to me yesterday?"

"Not in the least."

The momentary gleam of animation which had crossed her face when she questioned him about Agnes died out of it again when he answered her. She looked, she spoke, she eat her breakfast with a vacant resignation, like a woman who had done with hopes, done with interest, done with everything but the mechanical movements and instincts of life.

Francis went out on the customary traveler's pilgrimage to the shrines of Titian and and Tintoreto. After some hours of absence he found a letter waiting for him when he got back to the hotel. It was written by his brother Henry, and it recommended him to return to Milan immediately. The proprietor of a French theatre, recently arrived from Venice, was trying to induce the famous dancer whom Francis had engaged to break faith with him and accept a higher salary.

Having made this startling announcement, Henry proceeded to inform his brother that Lord and Lady Montbarry, with Agnes and the children, would arrive in Venice in three days more. "They know nothing of our adventures at the hotel," Henry wrote, "and they have telegraphed to the manager for the accommodation that they want. There would be something absurdly superstitious in our giving them a warning which would frighten the ladies and children out of the best hotel in Venice We shall be a strong party this time—too strong a party for ghosts! I shall meet the travelers on their arrival, of course, and try my luck again at what you call the haunted hotel. Arthur Barville and his wife have already got as far on their way as Trent; and two of the lady's relations have arranged to accompany them on the journey to Venice."

Naturally indignant at the conduct of his Parisian colleague, Francis made his preparations for returning to Milan by the train of that day.

On his way out he asked the manager if his brother's telegram had been received. The telegram had arrived, and, to the surprise of Francis, the rooms were already reserved. "I thought you would refuse to let any more of the family into the house," he said, satirically. The manager answered (with the due dash of respect) in the same tone. "'No. 13A' is safe, sir, in the occupation of a stranger. I am the servant of the company, and I dare not turn money out of the hotel."

Hearing this, Francis said goodby—and said nothing more. He was ashamed to acknowledge it to himself, but he felt an irresistible curiosity to know what would happen when Agnes arrived at the hotel. Besides, "Mrs. James" had reposed confidence in him. He got into his gondola, respecting the confidence of "Mrs. James."

Toward evening, on the third day, Lord Montbarry and his traveling companions arrived, punctual to their appointment.

"Mrs. James," sitting at the window of her room, watching for them, saw the new lord land from the gondola first. He handed his wife from the steps. The three children were next committed to his care. Last of all, Agnes appeared in the little back doorway of the gondola cabin; and, taking Lord Montbarry's hand, passed in her turn to the steps. She wore no veil. As she ascended to the door of the hotel the countess (eying her through an opera glass) noticed that she paused to look at the outside of the building, and that her face was very pale.

CHAPTER XXI.

Lord and Lady Montbarry were received by the housekeeper, the manager being absent for a day or two on business connected with the affairs of the hotel.

The rooms reserved for the travelers, on the first floor, were three in number, consisting of two bedrooms opening into each other, and communicating on the left with a drawing room. Complete so far, the arrangements proved to be less satisfactory in reference to the third bedroom required for Agnes and for the eldest daughter of Lord Montbarry, who usually slept with her on their travels. The bed chamber on the right of the drawing room was already occupied by an English widow lady. Other bed chambers at the other end of the corridor were also let in every case. There was, accordingly, no alternative but to place at the disposal of Agnes a comfortable room on the second floor. Lady Montbarry vainly complained of this separation of one of the members of her traveling party from the rest. The housekeeper politely hinted that it was impossible for her to ask other travelers to give up their rooms. She could only express her regret, and assure Miss Lockwood that her bed chamber on the second floor was one of the best rooms in that part of the hotel.

On the retirement of the housekeeper Lady Montbarry noticed that Agnes seated herself apart, feeling apparently no interest in the question of the bedrooms. Was she ill? No; she felt a little unnerved by the railway journey, and that was all. Hearing this, Lord Montbarry proposed that she should go out with him and try the experiment of half an hour's walk in the cool air. Agnes gladly accepted the suggestion. They directed their steps toward the square St. Mark, so as to enjoy the breeze blowing over the lagoon. It was the first visit of Agnes to Venice. The fascination of the wonderful city of the waters exerted its full influence over her sensitive nature. The proposed half hour of the walk had passed away and was fast expanding to half an hour more before Lord Montbarry could persuade his companion to remember that dinner was waiting for them. As they returned, passing under the colonnade, neither of them noticed a lady in deep mourning loitering in the open space of the square. She started as she recognized Agnes walking with the new Lord Montbarry, hesitated for a moment and then followed them, at a discreet distance, back to the hotel.

Sir Donald Smith on C. U.

From The Montreal Gazette.

"What is your opinion, Sir Donald, about Commercial Union?" asked the reporter.

"I am in favor of an enlarged reciprocity treaty; but, as far as I have been able to consider it, I cannot join in a scheme of Commercial Union such as is proposed by Mr. Wiman and certain other gentlemen. Oh, no, no, I am not in favor of Commercial Union as now put forward. I believe that a reciprocity treaty would be in favor of both countries, but that is entirely different from unrestricted commercial union. "I am a Canadian," concluded Sir Donald.

PETER MITCHELL ALSO.

"Then you are in favor of Commercial Union?"

"Well, 'we' never said that," said Mr. Mitchell, using the editorial "we."

"I am in favor of unrestricted reciprocity, that is our policy."

"What is the difference between 'unrestricted reciprocity and 'Commercial Union' asked the unsophisticated reporter."

"And you don't know that?" said the Hon. Peter Mitchell "well" and he turned in his chair."

This Happened in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Four weeks ago a plumber named Thomas Sheridan, while in delirium tremens, jumped from the fourth story of a tenement house and was killed. Daniel Sheridan, a brother of the dead man, went to the funeral in the same carriage with a pretty girl of 22, named Lillian Trinneer, who had been engaged to Thomas. On the return from the grave Daniel told his parents he was going to marry Lillian, and that she would henceforth be a member of the family. To-night Daniel went home drunk and made an insulting proposal to the girl. When he approached her she jumped out of the window and sustained injuries which may cause her death. Sheridan is in jail.

The Death Record Reaches Seven.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 17.—The dead body of D. O. Taylor, clerk of the county courts, was found this morning in the ruins of the Edison Electric Company's works, the scene of yesterday's boiler explosion. Edward Schofield, a laborer who was taken from the ruins last night, died this morning from his injuries. This makes seven deaths from the explosion. Five others were severely injured, but will all recover.

The Fastest East-Bound Record.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The steamer Etruria which reached Queenstown to-day, made the fastest east-bound trip on record, her time from New York to Fastnet being six days and two hours. The same steamer has the fastest west-bound record, six days, five hours and forty four minutes.

THOS. KELLY'S

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry goods over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practic to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

THE MAYORALTY FOR 1888.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN:—At the request of a large number of ratepayers, who have promised me their support, I am before you as a candidate for the Mayoralty for 1888. I ask you to give me your support, therefor, on the following platform:—

ECONOMY!
TEMPERANCE!
MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

If length of public service is deserving of recognition I may modestly claim your consideration. During the eighteen or twenty years which I have sat at your council board I have endeavored to faithfully advance the best interests of the town. I have spared neither time nor work to consistently carry out my pledges to my supporters and have worked to the best of my ability for the general good. If I have erred I have done so unknowingly.

I offer myself as—in particular—the workingman's candidate. I hope to receive the solid workingmen's support. I consider I am fairly entitled to it. I am a working man myself and if elected—will endeavour to repay the confidence by advancing their interests in every honest way.

I may say that in taking the field I am not actuated by any feeling of rivalry with the present occupant of the Mayor's chair, but I feel that with the many demands on his time and services that the position is not sought for. Should I prove correct in my inference, you cannot fairly overlook the claim that years of service has on your consideration.

I recognize thoroughly what the necessities of the town demand. Thorough economy in all departments of municipal expenditure must be the rule. A liberal policy to encourage the growth and establishment of new and existing industries. In this regard I am opposed to any money bonus being granted, but in favor of exemption from taxes and possibly free sites under proper restrictions. I shall—if elected—give particular attention to matters as outlined above.

Possibly one of the most prominent questions that will come before the ratepayers next year will be in connection with the enforcement of the Scott Act. I will maintain in this regard the position relative to temperance which I have held for the last 25 years. So long as the Scott Act remains in force I will to the extent of my ability and office, see that the law is strictly enforced, and that too through the proper officers of the town.

Such, gentlemen, are the grounds on which I ask your support. I may not have the opportunity of personally soliciting your favor, but venture to hope that the statement of my views will meet your approval.

Trusting that I may have your hearty support on the basis of

ECONOMY!
TEMPERANCE!
MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

I am, gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
A. RUTHERFORD.

I am, gentlemen,
Yours respectfully,

EUROPEAN WAR CLOUD.

IT IS CLAIMED THAT THE CZAR'S ENTOURAGE MISLEADS HIM.

Lord Salisbury Thinks the War Terror Foundationless—Two Army Corps to be Mobilized for Concentration on the Russian Frontier.

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—The Emperor Francis Joseph presided at the Council to-day. It lasted from 1 until 3 o'clock.

The council decided to grant the Minister of War a credit of 15,000,000 florins. The smallness of the grant is held to be proof that Austria does not intend to take aggressive measures.

The Czar Being Misled.

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—A letter to The Political Correspondence from Berlin charges the Czar's entourage with systematically misleading the Czar and inducing him to make decisions which he would not sanction if he knew the truth. The latest proof of this state of affairs, says the letter, is the recent article of The St. Petersburg Official Military Gazette, which reflects the false military reports submitted to the Czar. The Czar's secluded life and the unscrupulous flattery of the diplomats around him facilitate the work of deception and explain the Czar's otherwise incomprehensible attitude on the most important questions of the hour. The hope of averting the catastrophe of war depends chiefly upon whether the misrepresentations of the Czar's entourage can be successfully exposed and the truth revealed.

Enthusiasm at Moscow.

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—No troops except the thirteenth division have recently moved westward of the Moscow district. The resolute tone of The Invalide Russe has created great enthusiasm here.

German Fortresses Not a Menace to Russia.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The Cologne Gazette in an inspired article criticising the article in The Invalide Russe, says: "There was no increase of the German forces on the Russian frontier until the spring of the current year. France for some time obliged Germany to leave in the Reichland troops which really belonged in the eastern provinces. When Russia in 1878 transferred the bulk of her troops westward and a tone of extreme hostility to Germany was manifested in the Russian press, Germany for the first time pushed forward some battalions and squadrons to the eastern frontier which until then had been almost denuded of troops."

The article denies the accuracy of the statement of The Invalide Russe regarding the extension of German railways to the eastward. The German system was planned, the paper says, not with a view to strategy in the East, but solely for commercial purposes, to facilitate traffic between Russia and German ports on the Baltic. It is not true, it says, that the fortresses at Thorn, Posen Dantzic and Koenigsberg were created as a menace to Russia. Those fortresses have been long existent and are now as ever the guard of the frontier. The article concluded as follows:

"The Invalide Russe seeks to minimize the extent of the Russian preparations. In the autumn the Russian reserves were called out. Have they been dismissed yet? What is the object of increasing the rifle brigades? What is the meaning of the raising of cavalry regiments to six squadrons? What means the placing of batteries attached to cavalry upon a war footing? The Russian railways serve only military purposes. In the construction of fortresses Russia is exceeded only by France; with Germany all is open."

Two Army Corps to be Mobilized.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 19.—From semi-official circles it is learned that in view of the uncertain political situation preparations are quietly being made to meet any sudden emergency, and that the Government will act in accord with Austria and Germany. The intercourse between the Government and the Austrian Minister, M. Goluchowski, has become active. Preparations have been completed to mobilize two army corps for concentration on the Russian frontier. The credit of $3,050,000, intended for a strategic railway between Jassy and Dorohoy, will now be kept in reserve as an emergency fund.

Salisbury's View of the War Panic.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Lord Salisbury in the course of a speech at Derby to-day stated that so far as is known in diplomatic circles there was no ground whatever for the war terror that had seized the Bourses and papers of Europe.

He Helped a Boodler to Canada.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Dec. 19.—Ex. Ald. Tony Miller, formerly a prominent New York city politician but now a hotelkeeper in this city, was placed on trial to-day, an indictment having been found against him on a charge of having aided and abetted in the escape to Canada of ex-District Attorney Thomas T. McGowan who, as supervisor of the town of Newton, defaulted in the sum of $20,000. It is alleged that Miller, knowing McGowan to be a defaulter, failed to cause his arrest, aided in cooking up accounts by loaning checks for large amounts to deceive the auditors, and furnished money to enable McGowan to leave the United States.

PT. PERRY MEN COMMITTED

PRELIMINARY TRIAL OF LATTIMORE, TREBELL AND CORBYN.

"Detective" Dennen Swears he Did Not Shoot Brown—The Case Against the Informers—Two Witnesses Say They Saw Dennen Fire at the Bartender—The Scene at Myrtle Station.

WHITBY, Dec. 19.—The first legal step in connection with the Myrtle shooting affair was taken here this afternoon, when a preliminary examination was held in the grand jury room of the County Court House. Major Harper was the presiding magistrate. The Court House was surrounded by a large crowd during the afternoon, but only a few were admitted to the room, greatly to the discomfiture of those who stood out in the yard and peered in through the windows.

When the court met Mr. N. Gordon Bigelow of Toronto said he was present to defend Dennen and McCrea, and Mr. J. B. Dowd of this town appeared for Wm. Lattimore, Fred Corbyn and Thomas Trebell. Mr. J. E. Farwell, County Crown Attorney, was also on hand. As is well known, Dennen and McCrea are held on a charge of shooting Brown, while Corbyn, Trebell and Lattimore are charged with "conspiring to maliciously and wickedly" hurt and wound Dennen. The cases are so closely identified that it is hard to separate them.

Mr. Bigelow said he would request that the charges against Corbyn, Dennen and Lattimore be taken up first.

All five prisoners were in the courtroom. Mr. Dowd objected to proceeding with the case until the arrival of Mr. N. F. Patterson, Q.C., of Port Perry, who was in Toronto. Mr. Dowd said he had had but twenty minutes to consider the case, and he insisted that the investigation be not opened until Mr. Patterson arrived from Toronto.

Magistrate Harper over-ruled the objection, and the investigation was proceeded with. Mr. Patterson arrived in town at 6 o'clock, and took part in the proceedings after the adjournment at 7 o'clock for dinner.

John S. Dennen told the story of the shooting after he had been sworn. He said that on the night of Dec. 14, at about 7 o'clock, he was in the waiting-room of the C.P.R. station at Myrtle. He and McCrea had came over from Brooklin, where they had been prosecuting Scott Act cases before Magistrate Horne. There were many angry demonstrations against witness and McCrea in the Brooklin courtroom and they got out of Brooklyn to escape violence, which they anticipated. At the hour named witness was called out of the waiting-room by Brown, the wounded man. Brown said to witness: "Where have you been all day?" Witness replied "In Brooklin." Then Brown put his hand on witness and said: "Come with me, you ——." Witness said he had his hand in his right pants pocket and Brown told him to take it away.

Dennen continued his story: "I refused to go and jerked away from Brown. Brown put a pistol up to my head and repeated, with an oath, that I should go with him. At this time we were on the platform, in the corner of a bay window, inside of which were the telegraph instruments. Brown and I clinched and we struggled all over the platform, possibly covering a space of fifteen feet. Then Trebell came up and I was forced by him against the station house. Brown clicked his pistol in my face two or three times, but he didn't fire. I finally wrenched the pistol from Brown. Brown was then on his knees or partly stooping. Trebell took a cane from Brown and began hammering me over the head. He also kept pushing me against the building.

"While we were struggling in the corner of the window three or four shots were fired from the west (the Toronto end) corner of the station. It was dark at the corner and all I could see was the flash of pistols. I do not know who fired them, as I could see no one. I do not know who the shots were fired at. When I saw I was getting in close quarters in the corner of the window I called for McCrea to come and help me. I finally escaped from the corner and ran into the station.

"I had two revolvers in my hand when I got inside, my own and the one I took from Brown. Brown and Trebell were "full" when they came up to me first, at least their breaths smelt strong. This, I thought, was an indication of trouble.

"When I got into the station Mr. Mulligan, Mr. Maclean, Mr. Forest and the station-agent were present. I said to Mr. Mulligan: 'Examine this pistol that I took from Brown. If the trigger had been pulled once more I would have been shot.'"

Witness positively could not identify any of the parties on the platform who had done the alleged shooting. He said there were a number of shots fired. He did not think that Brown's pistol exploded at all. After he had struggled with Brown and got his pistol away, and when Trebell began to club him on the head, Brown disappeared and he did not see him again. He positively stated that he did not see Brown fall or where he fell. Dennen said further that he had purchased a seven-chambered pistol in Toronto three months ago and loaded six of the chambers just after buying it. The hammer was left in an empty cell for safety. "I have never fired the pistol since I purchased it," said the witness.

Detective Inspector Stark of Toronto was examined. He said that on the morning of Dec. 15 Dennen came to Police Headquarters. He surrendered himself and handed two revolvers to the inspector. One, Dennen explained, was his own, and the other he had taken from Brown. Brown's pistol had two cartridges in it. Being asked if he thought Brown's pistol had been recently fired, the inspector said: "No, I do not think so. I don't believe that pistol had been fired for the past twenty-four hours." The chambers exhibited evidences of rust and were not clean, as they would have been had they been recently fired. Brown's pistol was of the "Lone Star" make of 22 calibre.

The pistols were both put in as exhibits.

Mr. Dowd cross-examined Dennen at length. His story was not materially altered. He repeated that he could not tell who fired, where Brown fell, how many were on the platform or how many shots were fired. He went over the struggle in the corner of the bay window. Dennen also said: "McCrea and I entered the Myrtle Station of the Canadian Pacific Railway from the west end. We had walked over from the Grand Trunk Station, having just arrived from Brooklin. When I wrenched Brown's pistol from him I don't know in what position he was. I do not think however he was lying on his back. I think there were three or four revolvers at the corner of the station." Witness said further to Mr. Dowd that he did not fire off Brown's pistol after he had gained possession of it. He handed it to Inspector Stark in just the same condition as he had wrested it from Brown. Dennen said the reason he did not surrender himself to the Toronto police when he reached the city on the Canadian Pacific Railway train was because he was hungry and tired and wanted to get refreshment and rest.

J. W. Meharry, hardware merchant of Port Perry, testified that on the night of Dec. 14, at about 6 o'clock, he lent Brown a revolver and he purchased fifty cartridges. "I had no idea for what purpose Brown wanted the revolver, nor do I know if a party of men left Port Perry for Myrtle that night," said Mr. Meharry.

Harry Conn, livery stable keeper at Port Perry, testified that the rig in which the party drove over to Myrtle was obtained at his stable. He did not think Corbyn was in the rig when it left the stable. Mr. Conn's evidence was unimportant.

Thomas H. Doncaster, proprietor of the Hotel St. Charles, Port Perry, where Bartender Brown worked, testified that on the afternoon of Dec. 14 a commercial traveler was stopping at his house. A number of persons were gathered around the traveler, who was telling them about seeing a crowd following Dennen and McCrea that day. The traveler was also telling about the Scott Act trials which had taken place. Mr. Doncaster then related about receiving a letter from 107 Adelaide-street west, Toronto; [Dennen boarded at 107 Adelaide-street west.—Rep.] offering to withdraw the charge against him on payment of $15. The traveler told that the "detectives" who had worked Brooklin were at Myrtle, and witness said Corbyn, who keeps an hotel across the street from the St. Charles, wanted him to go to Myrtle and see them about the letter and the charges. Witness replied: 'I would not give them 50 cents to compromise. They would give us the double cross. I would sooner pay $50 into court than 75 cents to the 'detectives.' Brown told witness that he was going to Myrtle to have a talk with the "detectives," and witness advised him not to go, as he (witness) thought it would do no good.

Richard Colmer, aged 20, a hostler at Vernon's Hotel, was on the platform at Myrtle at the time of the shooting. He told a story that completely upset Dennen's evidence. Colmer is a Cornish youth and made some choice contortions with his mother tongue. He insisted on speaking of Dennen and McCrea as the whisky conformers. Colmer stated positively that he was at the west end of the depot when the shooting was going on.

Before the firing he saw Brown, Corbyn, Lattimore and Trebell in consultation. He thought they were going to arrest Dennen and McCrea. He saw Dennen fire three shots from a revolver and he saw the flash of two of them on Brown's breast. The men were in the corner of the bay window. There were no shots fired from the west end of the depot. "If there had been I certainly would have seen them," said the witness to Attorney Farewell, who had him in hand.

Witness proceeded: I did not see Trebell strike Dennen with a club. Brown had a cane in his hand but he did not give it to Trebell. He never left go the stick during the scuffle. I found the cane beside Brown when we picked him up on the platform. I helped to carry him into the depot after he was wounded. I did not see Brown fire a shot at Dennen. I am positive Dennen fired three shots. I did not hear any more than three shots fired during the row. I saw Trebell and Lattimore on the platform during the firing.

Nelson Griffin, foreman at Conn's livery stable in Port Perry, told about sending a rig to the Oriental Hotel. He thought it was ordered by a young man named Burton. The rig was charged on the books to Corbyn. Witness said he was going at first to Myrtle with the party. He afterwards declined to go and Tom Trebell went in his place as teamster. He did not see Corbyn in the rig.

The Court then adjourned for an hour, and after resuming Inspector Stark was recalled. The Inspector said he did not think either of the pistols (Brown's and Dennen's) in the hands of the Court had been fired within a week. To Mr. Patterson the Inspector said he was an expert in firearms, having been one of the drill instructors of the Toronto Police force.

W. McCrea was the next witness. He was examined at length, and told pretty much the same story as Dennen. The men have been together ever since they were under arrest. McCrea said he saw Brown place a revolver at Dennen's head and ask him to come with him. Witness saw three or four shots fired from the west end of the station. He did not know who fired them.

Under the advice of Mr. Bigelow McCrea refused to answer several of Mr. Patterson's questions in cross-examination. He would not say whether he had a revolver or not. McCrea said he lived at No. 23 Emily-street, Toronto, and that he had been a Scott Act informer for about a year.

After other evidence, Magistrate Harper said he would commit the three prisoners on the charge of conspiracy to wound and harm Dennen and McCrea.

Mr. Patterson made an emphatic denial that there had been any evidence of a conspiracy. There was no evidence whatever that Lattimore or Corbyn were mixed up in any way with the row.

The magistrate seemed disposed to grant bail, and Mr. Patterson will make application to-morrow.

The charge against "Detectives" McCrea and Dennen of wounding with intent to disable George Brown was then gone into.

Station Agent Scott of Myrtle was the first witness. He was on the platform on the night of the shooting. Witness saw Dennen, Brown and Trebell in a struggle in the corner of the bay window. He saw Dennen fire two shots at Brown and he thought the bullets struck Brown in the breast. He also saw McCrea fire a pistol; besides those three shots he heard two others, but he did not know who fired them.

Witness did not hear or see any shots at the west end of the depot. Brown did not fall on the front of the platform. He walked around to the back of the depot, and as he walked away Brown said, "My God, I am shot." Witness did not give a very clear account of the actual occurrences, but he assured Mr. Bigelow, in cross-examination, that he was not the least bit frightened or nervous.

Inspector Stark was called in this case, and repeated that he thought that neither of the pistols given him by Dennen had been discharged within a week.

Mr. James A. Mulligan, President of the Toronto branch of the National League, was examined next. Mr. Mulligan heard plenty of shooting out on the platform, but he saw none of it. After the shooting Dennen and McCrea came into the station. Witness thought that both of them had smoking revolvers in their hands. Dennen came up to him and said: "Mulligan, you know me; you won't see Toronto men done up, will you?" Mr. Mulligan proceeded: "I went around to the back of the station and saw Brown lying there. When I came back I asked Dennen to let me see his revolvers. He did so. One was larger than the other. Before I got a chance to inspect them, McCrea insisted that I should return them to Dennen and I did so. Dennen told me that the larger revolver belonged to Brown and the smaller one to himself. Dennen said he had wrenched one of the revolvers from Brown. I did not hear Dennen say that he had shot Brown with one of the revolvers.

"Dennen said to me: 'Mr. Mulligan, I never fired a shot; McCrea shot Brown but he did it in self defence.' McCrea said to me that these men intended to murder them. McCrea did not admit to me that he had fired the shots."

To Mr. Bigelow: "The reason Dennen handed me the revolvers was because I asked for them."

Mr. Mulligan could not identify the revolvers in Court as those handed him by Dennen. He said they looked very much like them, however.

To Mr. Bigelow: "The suggestion that I should return the revolvers to Dennen came entirely from McCrea. Dennen seemed willing that I should keep them."

James H. Maclean of Toronto gave similar evidence to Mr. Mulligan. James Forest, a farmer of Ashburton, was the last witness. Mr. Forest is a good old Scotchman. He was on the platform and saw all the affair, but got so badly rattled that he could tell absolutely nothing about the case.

The court adjourned at 1.30 a.m.

DOHERTY AT THE OLD BAILEY.

The Trial for the Murder of Graham Began—The Prisoner's Statement.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Daniel Doherty was placed on trial at the Old Bailey to-day for the killing of George Graham, a fellow American. After the evidence for the prosecution had been given the prisoner made a personal statement. He said he had known Graham for fifteen years and that they were always the best of friends. On the day the shooting occurred Graham and he had many drinks together. They talked about firearms and he took Graham home with him to show him a revolver. On arriving at his home witness' wife said he was drunk. The revolver was on the mantel-piece, and he took it down and started to go out. When he reached the door the weapon went off. He called God to witness that he had never quarrelled with Graham. Other evidence offered partly supported the theory that the shooting was accidental, resulting from Doherty's drunken condition.

TWO MESSAGES TO CONGRESS.

The N. S. W. Centennial and International Labor Expositions.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The President to-day sent to Congress a report from the Secretary of State in relation to an invitation from the British Government to this Government to participate in an international exhibition, to be held at Melbourne in 1888, to celebrate the centenary of the founding of New South Wales the first Australian colony. Secretary Bayard recommends that the invitation be accepted, and that $50,000 be appropriated to defray the expenses of a commission to represent the United States.

The President also transmits another report from the Secretary of State in relation to the invitation which has been extended to this Government to appoint delegates to the International Exposition of Labor, to be held in 1888 at Barcelona, Spain.

Bishop Carbery Dead.

HAMILTON, Dec. 19.—A cablegram was received here this morning stating that Bishop Carbery died of heart disease at the Dominican Priory of St. Mary's, Cork, Ireland, on Sunday night.

[Right Rev. Dr. James Joseph Carbery was born in Mullingar, County Meath, in 1822. He was educated in that town and at the academy attached to the Diocesan Seminary of Navan. He completed his theological studies at Rome, and having received the order of priesthood returned to Ireland in 1849. In 1859 he was removed to Limerick where he was repeatedly elected to the office of prior. In 1876 he was raised to the important charge of Provincial Superior of all the houses in Ireland of the Order of St. Dominic. In the summer of 1883 he was appointed Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hamilton, and was consecrated at Rome on Nov. 11 of the same year. He was a man of wide and profound learning; of excellent judgment in worldly matters as well as in the abstruse questions of theology; a firm and strict disciplinarian, and yet tender-hearted as a woman.]

The Drowning at Gananoque.

GANANOQUE, Dec. 19.—The accident which caused the death of Mr. Reuben Brown, druggist, of this place, is yet the absorbing topic of conversation. It was reported at first that the affair was a case of suicide, but those who knew Mr. Brown and were acquainted with the circumstances under which he met his death, never harbored for one moment any other idea than that it was due to an accident. Mr. Brown went down to the wharf with his sister-in-law, who was taking the early boat for Kingston. There being no light on the wharf and the morning being dark, it is supposed that the unfortunate man missed his footing in crossing a slippery plank, and fell into the water. The supposition is that Mr. Brown became insensible and helpless at the first plunge.

A Cork M.P. Gets Two Months.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—Mr. John Hooper, member of Parliament for Cork, has been sentenced to two months' imprisonment for publishing reports in The Cork Herald of meetings of suppressed branches of the National League.

Dr. St. John on Trial.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The trial of Dr. Leonard St. John, Levi Dell and Capt. Freer, who, together with Capt. Triven, were indicted for conspiracy in aiding in the escape of Warden W. J. McGarigle from the Cook County Jail, was begun to-day.

Five Men Killed by a Boiler Explosion.

TILTON, Ga., Dec. 19.—At 1 p.m. to-day a boiler at S. M. Winchester's saw mill exploded while all the hands were around the furnace fires warming themselves. Five men were instantly killed and a boy was seriously injured.

UNITED STATES POLITICS.

President Cleveland's message to Congress has imparted renewed vigor to the discussion regarding the tariff in the United States. Mr. Blaine secured the publication of a reply by means of an interview cabled from Paris, and the debate regarding the position taken by the two leaders has been sustained with vigor.

Mr. Cleveland has been represented as advocating free trade, but, although some of his arguments were such as a free trader would use, he disclaimed being an advocate of that policy. In fact, much of his message could be adopted and maintained by protectionists, and be included in his recommendations principles that were contended for by protectionists in Canada and that are incorporated in our National Policy tariff.

A reduction of taxation he believes to be necessary, but the diminution could be made, he pointed out, without lessening the protection afforded manufacturers or endangering the employment or wages of mechanics. Articles which cannot be made in the country and raw material used in manufactures could be admitted free of duty or at a low rate, which, instead of injuring the manufacturers, would benefit them, and it would largely reduce the taxation. This is the opposite of free trade doctrine, and while advocating such changes the President can truthfully say, as he does in the message, that "the question of free trade is absolutely irrelevant."

But, though President Cleveland disclaims free trade doctrine, his message is cited by advocates of that policy as a vindication of their theory, or at least as an evidence that it is making progress in the United States. And if the tariff question is not settled before the Presidential election takes place the Democrats will be injured by electors fearing that free trade is part of their policy. The New York Sun, which is Democratic, recognizes this danger and appeals to the Democrats in Congress to have the matter dealt with and thus removed from among the questions to be settled next year. "Abolish the surplus," says the Sun, "first, by all possible reductions in the internal taxation, and, secondly, by changes in the tariff that will diminish and not increase the revenue, and will leave the principle of protection in full and unimpaired vigor."

The recommendations of the President on the lines of a protective policy, his declaration that the question of free trade is irrelevant, the New York Times (Cleveland supporter) arguing for changes that will not impair the protective tariff and the Sun's fervent appeal, all show how much a straight contest on the basis of free trade and protective policies is feared.

---

The Globe sneers at Mr. Hilliard because he stated that he would support the political party that would carry out a policy which he believed to be in the interest of the country, no matter which party it was. Such an independent position the Globe cannot understand, but it is a patriotic and straightforward position. At the same time we believe that Mr. Hilliard will not find it necessary to support any party other than the one he has been identified with.

---

Mr. Ellis, a Reform member of Parliament of Nova Scotia, boldly and plainly advocates annexation through his paper. Mr. Ellis should have announced his preferences when he was a candidate, and another Nova Scotia Reform paper does itself credit by calling upon him to resign. If he does not resign, it will be interesting to see whether he will still be recognized by the party as one of themselves.

REVIEWS.

Harper's Weekly.—The Christmas number of Harper's Weekly (following the large Thanksgiving number), is a handsome periodical. It is filled with large and well executed engravings of a holiday character. The letterpress includes interesting and seasonable stories and sketches. "The Boom in Madre De Dios," by Frank R. Stock is a tale of the mining districts; "The Roaches Girl's Auction," will amuse as well as instruct; "How I bought my Christmas present," portrays the troubles of a Christmas buyer, and the serial tales are continued in large instalments. Harper's Weekly is a standard production well up to the times.

LINES OF THANKS.

TO WILLIAM HAMILTON, LAKEFIELD,

For the interest he manifested in me, while I visited that village, also his willingness in assisting me in selling my book of poem.

Sir, how shall I your friendly act repay,
In simple verse my thanks I can't convey,
My loftiest thoughts seem all inadequate
To thank you, Sir, in words appropriate;
Your work of love deserves much higher praise
Than my best thoughts, or brightest theme can raise.
Your help seems trifling—but its worth in fact,
Flowed from the power that urged you to the act.
Into your village I, a stranger came,
And met you in the store of Robert Graham;
Your pleasant face, my confidence did win,
Bright mirror—of is noble soul within;
You viewed my book, with keen and searching eye,
It pleased your fancy—though I knew not why;
Some unseen power in you possession took,
And bound you to the author and his book:
Love was the fulcrum that propelled your heart
To go with me, and take an active part:
Your powerful pleading, and your winning ways,
Made ready sales—and few in count were nays.
As through your village rushing waters roll,
So through deep channels—love burst from your soul;
As summer showers revives the drooping flower,
So on your heart, my book displayed its power.
Upon rough highways or on crowded street,
It cheers my heart, a friend like you to meet;
Whole-souled, obliging, genial, free and kind,
In you I found those qualities combined.
Cold would my heart be—and my muse's too,
If I did not return my thanks to you,
But proper language fails your humble Bard,
To tell your worth—far less a fit reward;
Your generous act the assistance you did give,
To me its impress on my heart shall live;
While I exist my pen and tongue shall own,
The noble work of William Hamilton.

DISTRICT NOTES.

News of the Midland District Condensed From Contemprories.

H. H. Brintnell, of Orono, is building a steam buggy.

A new wharf has been constructed at Mussasaga Park, Belleville's picnic resort.

George Kent fell from a scaffold at St. Michael's Church, Belleville, last week and broke his arm.

Joseph Frances, aged 28 or 30, a former resident of Belleville, was found frozen to death in Minnesota on Dec. 10th.

W. Field, of Cobourg, who fell and broke one of his legs some time ago, died on Monday of last week.

Mrs. Broughall, an old resident of Cobourg, dropped dead in her yard one morning last week. Heart disease.

Geo. Crawford, of Manvers, while suffering from softening of the brain, took a dose of Paris green. His life was saved.

While James Gonu, of Selby, was hunting near Coe Hill, a bullet fired by some unseen person grazed his head.

C. F. Aylesworth, jr., C. E., and staff commenced the survey of the Belleville, Tweed and Bancroft Railway at Tweed last week.

John Henderson, of Cobourg, had the tops of his two fingers of his left hand cut off while working at a planer on Wednesday.

John Tolbert, an old resident of Cartwright township, died recently. He left $4,000 to Trinity College and about $16,000 to the Church of England missions.

Mrs. James Scrimgeour, and old lady almost seventy years of age, was knocked down by a buggy in the street at Port Hope on Saturday. Her head struck the road and she was severely hurt.

On Sunday evening at tea time a sneak thief entered through a window into the office of the Royal Hotel, Port Hope, and stole twenty-two dollars from behind a picture standing on a shelf, but left the till untouched.

While the son and daughter of Wm. Grey, of Queensboro, were crossing a creek on the ice the young man broke through. His sister went to his aid and was drowned, but the son was rescued by his father. Miss Grey was 18 years old.

Mrs. Mason, of Port Hope, injured herself lifting, and while temporarily out of her mind, she jumped through the glass in the front door on Thursday night. On Friday afternoon she ran out on the roof of a lean-to, but her husband detained her. A physician is attending her and much sympathy is expressed for her.

A C.U. Plot That Failed to Connect.

From The Canadian Grocer.

It is an open secret that the Commercial Unionists were very much disheartened on learning that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain would not visit Canada before proceeding to Washington. The cause of the trouble is now known. It seems a little plot was laid for the Commissioner. He was to be met on his arrival at Montreal by a deputation of Commercial Unionists disguised as friends. They were to entertain him in a royal manner, and in a quiet unpretentious way he was to be made to understand that the Canadian people were to a man favorable to Commercial Union. In fact, care was to be taken to prevent any holding opposite views from meeting him. From Montreal he was to come to Toronto where he was to be the guest of Prof. Goldwin Smith. Here it was arranged that he should meet, by chance of course, the wily Mr. Wiman and many of his followers. Mr. Fuller was to be introduced as the President of the Canadian Farmers' Association, and was to allude incidentally to the impoverished condition of the farmer, and to point out in course of conversation that their only hope lay in a commercial union with the States. When it was learned that he would not come to Canada, it is said that he was invited but refused to accept Mr. Wiman's hospitality in New York.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain

The roof of Girard College, in Philadelphia, was made of marble and expected to outlast the centuries, but it has not proved more enduring than the old-fashioned roofs made of good spruce shingles and is to be replaced.

Tone up the system and improve the appetite by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will make you feel like a new person. Thousands have found health, and relief from suffering, by the use of this great blood purifier, when all other means failed.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be hoodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices, which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6.50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞ Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

London just loves to have the toothache. It rejoices in two lady dentists, who are both handsome and skilful.

A graphic writer remarks that "as a Grenadier Guardsman is to a new-born infant, so is the forty bridge to the largest bridge yet built in Great Britain."

P. T. Barnum says his favorite novel is "Ivanhoe." That probably accounts for his saying "Great Scott!" when told that his menagerie was on fire.

Right now is the time to use a good Blood Purifying Medicine. Lose no time in getting a bottle of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters. It will do you good. Sold by all druggists. 50c.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or othercauses. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. Goodright is in town. Orders may be left at Mr. T. Menzies' or Messrs Taylor & McDonald's stores.

TURNBULL claims to have the Cheapest Flannels and underclothing offered in Peterborough. Call and test it.

Artistic Work.

Some fine specimens of ornamental penmanship, done by Mr. D. McConnachie, of Kingston, is exhibited in the windows of Messrs. Schofield & Co's. drug store and Messrs. Mercer & Co's. clothing store. The flourishing is gracefully done and both pieces are much admired.

We take no Back Seat

in low prices and if you want a good substancial 'Xmas present, pleasant to the eye and healthful for the mind, inspect A. L. Davis & Co's stock. 7d144

Repairing the Organ.

Messrs. Jackson & Company, the organ and piano manufacturers, have the contract for overhauling and re-voicing the St. Peter's Cathedral organ. Work at it is now going on, but it will not be finished till next week. It will be made ready for use on Christmas day.

The Giant T Takes the Lead.

Coal oil! Coal oil! Coal oil. I will sell and deliver to all parts of the Town, Ashburnham and Auburn, the best brands of American and Canadian Coal Oil ever brought to Peterborough for the following prices.

The best Water White American oil at 25c per imperial gallon.

The best brands of Canadian oil at 15c per imperial gallon. ADAM HALL. d145tf

Some School Changes.

At a meeting of the committee on appointments, held last night, at the Collegiate Institute, some changes in the teaching staff of the public Schools were made. Mr. Smith, head master, received an increase of salary ($50), and the salary for the position was fixed at $800. Mr. W. H Walkely, of Bailieboro, was appointed to the position vacated by Mr. Scott, and at a salary of $500. Miss Richardson was promoted to the position vacated by Miss Keele in the West Ward School. While the work of the committee requires the approval of the Board it is inferred that the changes indicated will stand.

Not Often Met With.

Mr. A. McNeil has a standing offer for 30 days which is not often met with. He announces his determination to sell off his large stock of goods at greatly reduced prices. The people know that the stock he keeps is one that may be relied on, both in point of quality of texture and style. What he offers is genuine, and when he says that Scotch tweed suits heretofore selling at $18 will now be made to order for $12, those who require clothing may be sure that they will get good value for their money by dealing there. Mr. McNeil especially invites all his old customers to visit Habliment Hall and take advantage of bargains. The whole winter stock is to be put on sale, clothing, gent's furnishings, etc. He includes in the sale a large number of fancy articles in men's attire which would make nice Christmas presents.

FINE Sealettes made to order at greatly reduced prices, this and next week, at TURNBULL'S.

PRESENTATION.

Mr. A. E. Scott Kindly Remembered by his Pupils in the Public School.

Mr. A. E. Scott, teacher in the Central School, having resigned that position, the teachers and the pupils of his division evidenced their esteem for him by presenting him with a gentleman's companion. The case was a very beautiful plush one and it contained several useful as well as handsome articles. As Mr. Scott will be engaged this week in examining another division, the presentation was made last week, when Miss Eva Goldey read the following address on behalf of the pupils:—

"DEAR MR. SCOTT,—It is with deep regret that we learned that you had decided to give up the profession of public school teaching, and consequently sever your connection with the Peterborough public school.

"Your kind forbearance with our childish errors, your firmness in dealing with our wrongs, and your willingness to assist us in our difficulties, have won for you our highest esteem.

"We can indeed look back upon our school days, during the time you have had charge of our division, with much pleasure.

"We assure you that in whatsoever sphere in life you may hereafter move we sincerely wish you prosperity.

"As a slight practical expression of the high esteem in which you are held by us, we ask you to accept this companion, which, we trust, may at times remind you that the zeal and energy which you have exercised for our benefit (although in the past they may not have been fully appreciated by us) have not been in vain.

"Again we wish you naught but happiness through coming years, and also that the approaching Christmas festival and the new year might bring with them their respective merriment and happiness for you.

"Signed on behalf of the pupils of the Central School, Peterborough,
"EVA GOLDEY,
"MAMIE FOOT."

Miss Mamie Foot then, on behalf of the teachers and pupils, presented Mr. Scott with the companion.

Mr. SCOTT expressed the surprise which he could not conceal on receiving the gift, and the pleasure which he evidently felt. He had not, he said, worked with a view to such a recognition of his services. He assured the pupils that anything he had done which at the time might have appeared severe was done for their benefit. He would remember their kindness and thanked them heartily.

Mr. Scott is not going to leave Peterborough, although leaving the school. He is going into the insurance business in connection with Mr. W. H. Hill's life and fire agency.

Christmas Presents,

such as Bibles, Prayer and Hymn Books, Story Books, Albums, Satchels, Purses Plush Goods, Gold Pens and Pencils, Desks Work Boxes, Toilet Cards, Companions and 'Xmas Cards in large variety at lowest prices at A. L. Davis & Co's. 7d144

Christmas Tree and Entertainment.

A committee of active ladies came together during the afternoon of Monday at the George Street Methodist Church school room. They deftly trimmed the three tall spruces that stood in the centre of the room and hung on the branches a great quantity of handsome articles. They turned the large class room into a neatly equipped lunch room and set out tables in attractive style. They opened up the cans of oysters and cut the cake and other edibles, and prepared delicious coffee and tea. At six o'clock people began to drop in and take something. By eight o'clock there was only standing room available and late comers had to stand about and secure a chair when they could. A very fine assortment of pretty fancy goods, dolls, ladies work and other bric-a-brac were disposed of—to use a familiar phrase—at private sale. Then Messrs. J. Kendry and B. Shortly were vested with the powers of an auctioneer and the balance of goods ran off at very fair prices. A good deal of amusement was occasioned in the effort, winding up with the sale of the evergreens at 25c each. Although the hour was late a short programme of music and readings was put on. Mrs. Daly contributing a charming vocal solo, and Miss Mary Fife a short and well delivered recitation. Mr. George Mulligan gave in good voice a capital sea song, all about the sailor and his love for the sea and how the winds howled and the waves rolled and Jack reached port at last in the good ship Mary Ann. The recitation by Miss Sanders, was a carefully prepared and very satisfactory performance, and the young lady is deserving of much commendation. The selection was one which might well task the powers of a trained elocutionist to render in a satisfactory manner, and was warmly applauded. Messrs. J. Millar and Geo. Mulligan gave a vocal duet and their friends—of which there are many—insisted on an encore which was not—owing to the lateness of the hour acceded to. Miss Wrighton gave a very cleverly played piano solo, and Mr. and Mrs. Daly a vocal duo, the latter selection being the familiar "Excelsior." Mr. Schneider gave the accompaniments with great taste The meeting closed with the National Anthem and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Wallace.

The sale and entertainment was given by ladies of the church the proceeds to be applied to a fund from which assistance may be given to deserving poor people. Among those who were active in the good work were Mrs. J. Kendry Mrs. W. Mason Mrs. B. Shortly, Mrs. Owens, Mrs. F. Mason and many others. Over $100 was added to the fund as the proceeds of the evening.

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

'Xmas Goods.

When buying 'Xmas gifts you will find useful goods at H. S. Griffin & Co.'s. Silk Handkerchiefs, Fancy Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Ties, Collars and Cuffs, Toilet Sets, Brush and Comb Bags, Plush Table Mats, Decorating Scarfs, etc. Also special value in silks for 'Xmas work. 3d146

Personal.

Mr. R. H. Fortye is ill with muscular rheumatism. It is to be hoped that he will be around again soon.

No More Suitable Present

can be found than a silver cruet, butter dish, pickle holder, set of knives and forks, or spoons, or any of the assortment of silver and plated ware sold by Muncaster. The quality is guaranteed and prices right. 6d145

Christmas Presents.

There is no need for Peterborough people to go out of town now for fine goods in china, silver, etc. China Hall has a stock equal to any in Canada. Chamber sets from $1.00 to $32.00, tea sets from $2 to $50, dinner sets from $3 50 to $65 00, silver pieces from 25c. to $200 in value. Every article in the two show rooms suitable for 'Xmas presents. A magnificent city stock at town prices. 6d143

The Schools.

The Public School promotion examinations are now in progress, and will last for two days more. Then the boys and girls enter a period of hilarious joy which will last till Christmas festivities are over. The entrance examinations will commence to-morrow morning. There will be about a hundred candidates for entrance to the Collegiate Institute.

33⅓ Cents on the Dollar.

Sheppard has purchased at auction, bran new goods, as well as part of a Bankrupt stock, averaging all round about 33⅓ cents on the dollar. It comprises nice new and novel 'Xmas goods in Albums, Childrens China tea sets, Boys tools, Scrap Albums, Men's overcoats, Dry goods, &c., and this entire stock will be slaughtered at a small advance. Sheppard's noted cheap store. George Street, Peterborough.

LADIES! Remember TURNBULL'S is the right place to look for beautiful Fascinators and Clouds, in all the New Tints.

Curling.

Some enterprising curlers made a break for the rink on Monday night and, producing the stanes and the brooms, immediately commenced to shout "T, high," "Inside guard now," "a braw fling," and other such incomprehensible phrases. From the way which they woke the year's echoes one would presume that season's fun had commenced. Scratch matches will be played until Christmas, when the first event of the season, Canada vs. Old Country, will take place.

Xmas Goods.

Do you want a lovely china tea set complete? It is china in gold cardinal and white, sold elsewhere for $1.50. Sheppard's price for this beautiful Xmas Gift only 50c per set. Also sets of tools cheap. Jewellery cheap. Puff Boxes cheap, Albums cheap, fancy $7 .50 Albums in solid leather cover, heavy corners mounting, newest design for $3.50; also $3 00 goods for 99c. Scrap Albums, regular prices $1.00, for 25c. Go straight to Sheppard's noted cheap store, and save your money. George Street, Peterborough.

A FIGHT OF 106 ROUNDS.

The Smith-Kilrain Battle a Draw—Both Men Want to Tackle Sullivan.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The international contest between Jake Kilrain of Baltimore and Jem Smith of England for the diamond belt and the championship of the world took place on the Island of St. Pierre, in the River Seine, France, to-day in the presence of about 100 persons. There was no police interference. The fight was remarkable for the persistent wrestling of the men. In the fourth round Smith was knocked nearly silly by a terrific smack on the ear. Though Smith had the worst of the falls, he fought splendidly under great difficulties, and was as fresh as Kilrain when darkness stopped the fight at 4.45. No less than 106 rounds were fought, lasting two-and-a-half hours. Kilrain fought at 13 stone 2 lbs., Smith at 12 stone 12 lbs., a heavier weight than he has fought at heretofore.

French Canadian Press and the G. N. W. T. Co.

From The Montreal Star.

The French Press and the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company have had a "falling out," the former yesterday transferring their entire business to the Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraph Company. The Great Northwestern on a forty-eight hours' notice attempted to increase the press rates from 60 to 125 per cent. The French papers claimed that they could not afford the increase, but the order from Toronto was imperative, so they in a body appealed to the Canadian Pacific Railway, and though that company had no regular service in operation they managed within twenty-four hours to organize one to help the papers out of their difficulty.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

THE MIDDLETON DIVORCE CASE CANNOT COME UP THIS SESSION.

The Russell County Election Case—Tenders for Militia Supplies—Hon. Mr. Pope Seriously Ill—Petitions for Executive Clemency.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.—The preliminary hearing in the Russell County election case was continued to-day before Master in Chancery Matheson. This is Ald. Henderson's action seeking to disqualify Mr. Mackintosh. It is stated that no evidence of importance has so far been adduced. Mr. Edwards, M.P., will be examined on Wednesday.

Tenders for militia store supplies and necessaries for the coming year closed to-day. Leading Toronto and Montreal houses are figuring for the contracts, which will aggregate at least $200,000 or $300,000. It will be several days before the awards are made known.

On Saturday Mr. W. S. Walker, advocate of Montreal, visited the Department of State with a petition from the citizens of Manchester, N.H., praying the Governor-General to release Warren K. Richardson who has been confined in the Penitentiary of St. Vincent de Paul. The petition was laid before His Excellency to-day.

As the result of Mr. Alfred Perry's report on the Ottawa Fire Brigade and the facilities possessed here for putting out fires, the Board of Insurance Underwriters has reduced the rate of insurance at the Chaudiere 50 per cent. and in New Edinburgh 25 per cent.

The special freight train of poultry for the bovine market made the run from Smith's Falls to Boston via Rouse's Point, 43 6miles, in forty-six hours, one of the quickest freight trips ever made.

A private despatch has been received stating that Sir Thomas Esmonde will lecture in Ottawa on "Home Rule" on Jan. 20. Mr. O'Connor, M.P., will not be able to accompany him.

Postmaster-General McLelan will return from New York to-morrow, and it is expected that the Ocean Mail tenders will be dealt with shortly after.

Hon. John H. Pope, Minister of Railways, is seriously ill, suffering from the effects of a bad cold. He is confined to bed and his condition is unimproved to-day.

Sir Charles Tupper will return to the city from Winnipeg on Wednesday.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, who will be the guest of His Excellency during the Christmas holidays, is expected to arrive here on Wednesday.

His Excellency the Governor-General has under consideration a petition for the exercise of executive clemency in the matter of Lee Sam and Ah Fat, sentenced to be hanged a Victoria, B.C., on Jan. 20 for the murder of Yew Gwee, a Chinese woman. They were convicted on Nov. 20 last by Mr. Mathew Baghie, C.J.

Now that Parliament has been summoned for Jan. 31, it is pretty certain that the Middleton divorce case cannot come up for hearing at this session. Mr. Middleton gave notice of his intention to apply for divorce on Oct. 28, and the six months' notice required will not expire until April 28, by which time Parliament will probably have been prorogued. Mr. Middleton is in the Northwest, where, it is understood, he intends to settle. Mrs. Middleton is living in Montreal with Mrs. Hamilton, "Pen." Hamilton's mother. When she came up to Ottawa lately she was accompanied by Allan Hamilton, F. W. Hamilton's brother. The object of her visit here was to see her parents with a view to returning to Ottawa, and, it is said, she was surprised to find there was a strong feeling here that this was not desirable. After a brief interview at the Russell House with some of her relatives, she returned to Montreal the same afternoon.

GUELPH, Dec. 19.—The Guelph creditors of the Central Bank have appointed Messrs. Innes, M.P., McElderry, Howitt and Guthrie a committee to watch the proceedings in liquidation and co-operate with shareholders in other places. The liquidators will be requested to watch and see if any act of a criminal nature be discovered, and if so that they take action at once and prosecute the guilty parties to the utmost limit of the law.

A Four-Fold Murder.

TROY, N.Y., Dec. 19.—S. S. Crandell, formerly a lawyer and real estate broker in Troy, to-day shot his wife, his mother-in-law, Mrs. S. Stone, his stepdaughter, Julia Bulkley, and himself, at their home in Ballston, Pa. All are dead but his wife, and she is dying. His wife was the divorced wife of his former legal associate. He was extravagant in his habits. His wife had money, and the quarrel was over its control.

Senator J. J. C. Abbott on Annexation.

From The New York Herald.

"Are there any causes," Mr. Abbott, "which should lead the Canadian people to wish for annexation to the United States?"

"No, sir, none. The trouble lies in this. Our people are naturally excitable, and when crossed in any matter are apt to talk of radical remedies. But to irrevocably unite themselves to the United States would be a very different matter from talking about it."

"Is the movement confined to the members of any particular party?"

"Yes, the advocates are mostly to be found among the Liberals, but it is by no means a plank in the Liberal platform. I think what little talk about the matter there is is confined entirely to the members of that party."

"Are there any prominent political leaders in Canada who are identified with the annexation movement?"

"No, I don't know of a single leading politician, or, in fact, one of any prominence, who advocates it, or who would allow it to be said that he advocates it. This question has been agitated now and then for a long time in a minor degree, but always suggested as a last alternative in a state of strong public feeling, and then only by a small number of people."

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

Lady Montbarry received Agnes in high spirits with news of an event which had happened in her absence.

She had not left the hotel more than ten minutes before a little note in pencil was brought to Lady Montbarry by the housekeeper. The writer proved to be no less a person than the widow lady who occupied the room on the other side of the drawing room which her ladyship had vainly hoped to secure for Agnes. Writing under the name of Mrs. James, the polite widow explained that she had heard from the housekeeper of the disappointment experienced by Lady Montbarry in the matter of the rooms. Mrs. James was quite alone; and, as long as her bedchamber was airy and comfortable, it mattered nothing to her whether she slept on the first or the second floor of the house. She had accordingly much pleasure in proposing to change rooms with Miss Lockwood. Her luggage had already been removed, and Miss Lockwood had only to take possession of the room (No. 13A), which was now entirely at her disposal.

"I immediately proposed to see Mrs. James," Lady Montbarry continued, "and to thank her personally for her extreme kindness. But I was informed that she had gone out, without leaving word at what hour she might be expected to return. I have written a little note of thanks, saying that we hope to have the pleasure of personally expressing our sense of Mrs. James' courtesy to-morrow. In the meantime, Agnes, I have ordered your boxes to be removed downstairs. Go and judge for yourself, my dear, if that good lady has not given up to you the prettiest room in the house."

With these words Lady Montbarry left Miss Lockwood to make a hasty toilet for dinner.

The new room at once produced a favorable impression on Agnes. The large window, opening into a balcony, commanded an admirable view of the canal. The decorations on the walls and ceilings were carefully copied from the exquisitely graceful designs of Raphael in the Vatican. The massive wardrobe possessed compartments of unusual size, in which double the number of dresses that Agnes possessed might have conveniently hung at full length. In the inner corner of the room, near the head of the bedstead, there was a recess which had been turned into a little dressing room, and which opened by a second door on the inferior staircase of the hotel, commonly used by the servants. Noticing these aspects of the room at a glance, Agnes made the necessary changes in her dress as quickly as possible. On her way back to the drawing room she was addressed by a chambermaid in the corridor, who asked for the key. "I will put your room tidy for the night, miss," the woman said, "and I will then bring the key back to you in the drawing room."

While the chambermaid was at her work a solitary lady loitering about the corridor of the second story, was watching her over the balusters. After a while the maid appeared with her pail in her hand, leaving the room by way of the dressing room and the back stairs. As she passed out of sight the lady on the second floor (no other, it is needless to add, than the countess herself) ran swiftly down the stairs, entered the bed chamber by the principal door and hid herself in the empty side compartment of the wardrobe. The chambermaid returned, completed her work, locked the door of the dressing room on the inner side, locked the principal entrance door on leaving the room, and returned the key to Agnes in the drawing room.

The travelers were just sitting down to their late dinner when one of the children noticed that Agnes was not wearing her watch. Had she left it in her bed chamber in the hurry of changing her dress? She rose from the table at once in search of her watch; Lady Montbarry advising her as she went out to see to the security of her bed chamber in the event of there being thieves in the house. Agnes found her watch, forgotten, on the toilet table, as she had anticipated. Before leaving the room again she acted on Lady Montbarry's advice and tried the key in the lock of the dressing room door. She left the bed chamber, locking the main door behind her.

Immediately on her departure the countess, oppressed by the confined air in the wardrobe, ventured on stepping out of her hiding place into the empty room.

Entering the dressing room on tiptoe, she listened at the door until the silence outside informed her that the corridor was empty. Upon this she unlocked the door, and, passing out, closed it again softly, leaving it to all appearance (when viewed on the inner side) as carefully secured as Agnes had seen it when she tried the key in the lock with her own hand.

While the Montbarrys were still at dinner Henry Westwick joined them, arriving from Milan.

When he entered the room, and again when he advanced to shake hands with her, Agnes was conscious of a latent feeling which secretly reciprocated Henry's unconcealed pleasure on meeting her again. For a moment only she returned his look; and in that moment her own observation told her that she had silently encouraged him to hope. She saw it in the sudden glow of happiness which overspread his face; and she confusedly took refuge in the usual conventional inquiries relating to the relatives whom he had left at Milan.

Taking his place at the table, Henry gave a most amusing account of the position of his brother Francis, between the mercenary opera dancer on one side, and the unscrupulous manager of the French theatre on the other. Matters had proceeded to such extremities that the law had been called on to interfere, and had decided the dispute in favor of Francis. On winning the victory, the English manager had at once left Milan, recalled to London by the affairs of his theatre. He was accompanied on the journey back, as he had been accompanied on the journey out, by his sister. Resolved, after passing two nights of terror in the Venetian hotel, never to enter it again, Mrs. Norbury asked to be excused from appearing at the family festival, on the ground of ill health. At her age traveling fatigued her, and she was glad to take advantage of her brother's escort to return to England.

While the talk at the dinner table flowed easily onward, the evening time advanced to night, and it became necessary to think of sending the children to bed.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
J. STEVENSON.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137tf J. STEVENSON.

TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

SOUTH WARD,

of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours respectfully,

d137 H. C. WINCH.

DENNEN AND M'CRAE ALSO

THE SCOTT ACT DETECTIVES COMMITTED FOR TRIAL AT WHITBY.

The Port Perry Party Admitted to Bail in $1000 Each—License Inspector Dexter of Toronto to Become a Bondsman for the Other Two Men.

WHITBY, Dec. 20.—The preliminary hearing in the case of Dennen and McCrea, which has been the sole topic of interest in these parts for a week past, was concluded at 5.45 this evening by the committal of the prisoners for trial. Before Magistrate Harper closed his court he accepted bail for the Port Perry party, committed for trial last evening, in $800 each and one surety of $800 each. Fred Corbin was bailed out by his partner in business at the Oriental Hotel, George Walker; Adolphus Wheeler, butcher, Port Perry, justified for Thomas Trebell, and T. H. Dancaster, proprietor of the Hotel St. Charles at the Port, for Wm. Lattimore. The Port Perry party, after the bonds were assented to, hastily left the Court House and took the evening train for home. They seemed greatly elated at being outside Jailer Decker's clutches.

County Crown Attorney Farewell called five witnesses for the prosecution, the examination of which lasted from 10 a.m. until 5.30 p.m. They were the three Port Perry prisoners, Thos. Brooks, a clerk in Ledenham's store at Myrtle, and James Dixon, a young farmer living near Myrtle, who was at the station last Wednesday night when the firing took place. The Crown Attorney said he had two more witnesses, J. S. Vernon and David L. Elleby of Myrtle, ready to put in the box, but Mr. Bigelow and Magistrate Harper were satisfied to stop the case here, and agreed that enough evidence had been adduced to commit. Mr. Bigelow however made an appeal for McCrea's discharge, on the ground that the evidence against him was very meagre. Mr. Farewell said he could not do this. He declined to think of such a thing in view of Bartender Brown's condition. "But," continued Mr. Farewell, "I have a strong personal feeling in the matter which I am not privileged to express in court." From which the reporters gathered that Mr. Farewell sympathized to some extent with the detectives.

Briefly summed up, to-day's evidence was far more pointed against Dennen as the man who shot Brown than against McCrea. There is still considerable confusion about the actual occurrence on the station platform, and it is not likely that a true statement of the shooting will ever be forthcoming. The opinion is quite current in this part of the county that the Port Perry party was organized to go over to Myrtle, not to shoot the detectives, but merely "to do them up," as it was put to The World this evening, and that Dennen and McCrea, getting into close quarters, were forced to use firearms. The "doing up" was to consist of administering a sound thrashing to the two detectives.

The principal county officials and the lovers of law and order generally sympathize with the detectives, while the "wet" party are very sore on them. The evidence adduced in court to-day pointed towards Dennen as the man who shot Brown, and it was on these grounds that Mr. Bigelow asked for McCrea's acquittal.

Thomas Trebell, who is in no way connected with the liquor business and who seems to have been a victim of circumstances, was examined at great length by Attorney Farewell and cross-examined by Mr. Bigelow. Trebell testified that both Dennen and McCrea fired at Brown. He (Trebell) had taken part in the scuffle before the shooting, but as soon as the bullets began to fly he jumped from the platform and ran off, leaving his friend Brown alone. Trebell said some one fired a shot at him as he jumped on to the railway tracks, but he did not know who it was. He only joined the Port Perry party, he said, at the last moment, and did not even know where they were going when he got into the rig to start for Myrtle.

Thos. Brooks, clerk in Ledenham's store at Myrtle, said he was in the station just after the shooting. He heard Dennen say to several people in the room: "That is the revolver I shot Brown with." At the same time he pointed to one of two revolvers which Mr. Mulligan was holding. None of the other witnesses examined so far could corroborate this statement.

William Lattimore (now better known as "Mr. Coonskin") was the next witness. Lattimore is the "Jesse James" of the Port Perry district, and is said to be very dexterous with the revolver. He was in rear of the station when the firing began, and by the time he got around the front it was all over. He did not know who shot George Brown. Lattimore, it is said, was brought along as the principal in the "doing up" part of the program, he being one of the bullies at the Port.

Fred Corbin testified that he saw Dennen reach in his hip pocket for his revolver. He (witness) saw the butt of a pistol. He heard Brown say, "Don't shoot." Brown and Dennen engaged in a struggle in the corner of the bay window. Witness saw McCrea fire a shot towards Brown. When the firing began he (Corbin) ran away. He heard two more shots after the first one, but he did not see them. In evidence he stated that Lattimore paid him and his partner $20 per week rental for the bar in the Oriental Hotel.

James Dixon, a young farmer living near Myrtle, was on the railway platform on the night of the shooting. He stated positively that Dennen fired three shots. Two of them at least took effect on Brown. McCrea fired a shot at Trebell as the latter jumped from the platform and ran off. Witness did not see Trebell use a stick or club on Dennen.

No further evidence was called, Mr. Bigelow saying that he would be satisfied with copies of the testimony of the two remaining witnesses whom Attorney Farewell proposed to call.

Magistrate Harper at once said he would admit the prisoners to bail in $800 each and one surety of $800 each, the same amount as the Port Perry party put up.

"Will you be satisfied with License Inspector Thomas Dexter of Toronto as bondsman?" asked Mr. Bigelow.

"Oh, yes," quickly answered Mr. Farewell.

"I will have him here to-morrow morning," said Mr. Bigelow.

Then this little conversation took place:

Mr. Farewell: "I want these two gentlemen to linger around here for a while yet. I have some important Scott Act cases to try and I want their evidence. I will have them all tried in Whitby, where they will get every protection."

Detective Dennen: "That's what we were given to understand at Brooklin. How were we protected? By attempted assassination. Had we received the promised protection there would have been no shooting and we would not have had to lay in jail for a week. Even our revolvers did not protect us. I think we were perfectly justified in carrying firearms."

Magistrate Harper: "If I were you men, while in the execution of your duty I would carry double-barrelled shot guns."

Mr. Bigelow: "Double-barreled pistols at least."

A big constable in the room arose and said: "I will see that you get all the protection you want."

Brown Easier Last Night.

MYRTLE, Dec. 20.—Brown is easier to-night than he has been since he was wounded.

"TEMPORARILY RELIEVED."

Forty Employes of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Suspended.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 20.—John Henrys, traveling passenger agent of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railway, and a number of other officials and clerks in the passenger department and ticket offices yesterday received notifications, signed by President John Newell and General Superintendent Holbrook, stating that their services would not be required for a few days, as the books of the department were being audited to get ready for the new system of handling tickets about to be adopted. This is the beginning of a series of developments in the passenger department of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie road which promise to assume the proportions of the recent startling disclosures made in the freight department of the Pan-Handle road.

For months the high officials of the roads have suspected that something very loose or crooked has existed in the ticket sales and receipts of the road, and within a few weeks they have obtained proof that they were being systematically robbed, but by whom or to what extent can only be told after a careful investigation of the books of the department.

This afternoon General Passenger Agent C. D. Smith was included among those temporarily relieved from duty. The suspension of Smith caused considerable surprise. It is stated that the only reason for the suspension was that the auditor could have full charge of of everything in his office. It is stated that other employes will be suspended within the next twenty-four hours, and that the man who is implicated more than any other is still at work. The number of suspensions up to 2 o'clock was forty, which includes all the employes in the passenger, auditing and ticket departments.

A Salvation Army Crank Runs Amuck.

RUTLAND, Vt., Dec. 20.—William Shelby, a Salvation Army crank and book canvasser, became suddenly insane this morning and stabbed a 7-year-old daughter in the back with a knife, and in a tussle with his 10-year-old son trampled on his head, inflicting bad bruises. He then rushed bareheaded into the street with a valise full of books and commenced reading and praying. He was arrested after a hard struggle and was jailed.

The Cigarmakers' National Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—The Cigarmakers' National Convention continued its sessions today and received from the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor their national charter, after which they formed a permanent organization under this name and title: "The International Trades Assembly of Cigarmakers and Packers," No. 225. Anthony Senningen of this city was elected Master Workman.

Murdered for Money.

ITHACA, N.Y., Dec. 20.—The village of Dryden, this county, is all excitement to-day owing to the body of Paul Layton being found in his barn yard with his skull crushed in, the injury being inflicted with some heavy and blunt instrument. He is reputed to be quite wealthy, and the murder was probably committed for the purpose of securing his money.

Mr. Clancy Doesn't Want "Pottage."

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—Mr. Clancy, member of Parliament, speaking at a league meeting in this city to-day, referred to the reports that the Government intended to try to soothe the Irish by granting them a Catholic university instead of Home Rule, and said that the Irish spurned such bribes, and that no mess of pottage could ever induce them to abandon their birthright as a nation.

A Monument to Edmond About.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—A monument to Edmond About was unveiled to-day in the cemetery of Pere La Chaise. M. Ferry was present, this being his first appearance in public since the assault upon him, and he received congratulations from many friends.

King Jaja Must Go.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The Government has decided to banish King Jaja of Oporbo, West Africa, to St. Helena. The King recently caused 150 of his subjects to be beheaded as a warning to others not to permit traders to go into the interior.

The Big Raft Lost.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The steamer Miranda, which undertook to tow the big raft from Joggins, N.S., to New York, arrived this morning. She reports that the raft was lost last Sunday morning during a heavy storm.

The Napoleon of Finance Bobs Up.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—President Dexter of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway was to-day served with a summons at the instance of Henry S. Ives, who brings suit against Dexter for $100,000 for false arrest.

WM. HAMMOND RUN DOWN

AN ALL-ROUND CONFIDENCE WORKER IN JAIL AT LAST.

His Career as a Preacher, Doctor, Lawyer, Dead Beat and Bigamist—How he Swindled Secret Societies—The Scoundrel's Record in Canada.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—"Rev." William Hammond, one of the cleverest and most notorious confidence workers in the country, has been arrested in Marietta, Ill. Hammond is known all over the United States and Canada. He is alternately a preacher, doctor, lawyer, dead beat, bigamist and all-round confidence man and has been guilty of much more serious crimes, as will appear. He has belonged to the Masons, Oddfellows, Knights of Pythias and Sons of Temperance. He has been expelled from all of them. He has been a preacher in the Methodist, Presbyterian and Unitarian Churches, a Catholic and a drunkard.

He got $1000 out of Mr. Jackson of Savannah, Ga., by playing Mason and Oddfellow. It was for a piece of land that Jackson soon discovered had no existence. He lived in California a few years ago, where he was a preacher. There he married a member of his church, placed $1000 insurance on her life and soon after found her dead in bed one morning. She had retired well and hearty. Hammond collected the insurance money and skipped out. He married a woman in Indian Valley, Ind., and had her life insured. She died easily and the bereaved husband raked in the insurance money. His house also accommodatingly burned down at the same time. The insurance on this was collected and the swindler left suddenly.

Hammond next went to New Hampshire and married Mrs. Dr. Brockway. He mulcted her out of a large sum of money. The poison he gave her did not take effect, and she lived to get her money back. It had been given to him in the form of checks, the payment of which was stopped in time.

The fellow next went to Montreal and Ottawa, and obtained employment with the aid of forged letters. His record became known and he again disappeared, only to be heard from again to-day as being under arrest. He is wanted in Florida by the Government for violating the revenue laws.

A BRIDEGROOM WITHOUT A BRIDE.

David Grody Takes Legal Proceedings to Get Possession of His Young Wife.

BERLIN, Ont., Dec. 20.—David Grody, a young man of German parentage, was indicted at the General Sessions last week for unlawfully taking Magdalena, otherwise called Martha Kennel, an unmarried girl under the age of 16 years, out of the possession and against the will of her father, Daniel Kennel of Wellesley village, and marrying her at Stratford in October last. This was a runaway marriage, the lovers having, unknown to the girl's parents, gone to Stratford and been married by a Presbyterian minister. They were pursued by a local constable to Nithburg in North Easthope, where, at his father's house, the bridegroom was arrested on the above charge, and the bride taken home by her angry parent. Soon after his preliminary trial Grody instructed his solicitor, Mr. King, Berlin, to commence proceedings to compel his wife's father to deliver up his (G.'s) wife—a writ of habeas corpus having been issued for that purpose. The Grand Jury found "No Bill," and the bridegroom went home as happy as a bridegroom can be who has a bride, and, at the same time, hasn't her.

Incendiary Fires at Irish Creek.

BROCKVILLE, Dec. 20.—The village of Irish Creek and farmers in the near vicinity have, during the past two or three months, suffered from ten fires. The last two destroyed Hunt's carriage factory with a lot of finished cutters on Dec. 15, and the barns and outbuildings of a farmer named Leason on Dec. 17. The suspicious actions of Joseph Byland, William Lee, jr., and Hugh McDonald in connection with these fires led to their arrest. One of them has turned Queen's evidence and says that he was forced to set fire to Leason's buildings under penalty of being shot if he refused. There are signs that the vicinity has suffered from the acts of a regularly organized gang of firebugs.

The Condition of the Crown Prince.

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—The Cologne Gazette's correspondent at San Remo says that the growth in the Crown Prince's throat is diminishing, but that the irritation of the lower mucous membranes continues. The Prince and Princess of Saxe-Meiningen have arrived at San Remo.

Where is Wiggins?

RONDOUT, N.Y., Dec. 20.—This morning two sun dogs were seen near the sun. An old Rondout boatman said that they were a precursor of heavy wind and a violent snowstorm. It is an unusual sight to see two sun dogs at one time.

A Cold Day for Prohibitionists.

WICHITA, Ks., Dec. 20.—A blizzard is prevailing and is general over the west, and it has caught the country without an adequate supply of coal. Great suffering and distress [illegible]

C.U. IN EMBEZZLERS.

A Memorial to the U.S. Senate for an Extradition Treaty with Britain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Among the memorials presented to the Senate to-day was that of H. D. Lyman, Vice-President of the American Surety Company of New York, praying for the ratification of the convention proposing an extradition treaty between this country and Great Britain, signed in London, June 25, 1886, extending the extradition laws to cases of embezzlement, etc. The remarkable part of the memorial, which was presented by Senator Hiscock (N.Y.), was in the exhibits which accompanied the memorial. The exhibit was a partial list of embezzlements of persons who have fled to Canada. The offences were almost all committed since the proposed convention was signed, and most of them within the past year. The exhibits gives a list of fifty-three embezzlements and the amounts in each case. The largest embezzlement noted is that of Bartholomew, the insurance man of Hartford, for $1,000,000, and the embezzlements foot up $2,840,570.

The U.S. Postal Telegraph Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—In the Senate today Mr. Edmunds (Vt.), asked that the Postal Telegraph Bill introduced by him be taken from the table and referred to the Postoffice Committee. The bill was so referred, as well as the bill on the same subject introduced by Senator Cullom (Ill.)

THE LOSS OF THE ORIENTAL.

The Investigation Opened at St. Kitts—Summary of the Evidence.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 20.—On Monday afternoon S. R. Risley, Esq., Government Inspector, opened an equiry into the loss of the coal-laden barge Oriental with all hands, a few miles east of Port Dalhousie on Oct. 24. Mr. J. S. Carey was the first witness called. He said he was Secretary of the Welland Canal Branch Seamen's Union. He was on board the Oriental in August last and had a conversation with Captain Stewart. He observed as the vessel was passing through the canal that the crew were awkward in handling their mud-lines, also that the vessel was rotten and unseaworthy in many parts. He stuck his knife in between several planks and they were very bad. The covering board was also a patched affair. He told the captain that the vessel was unseaworthy. The captain said he knew it, but what could he do, as he was lame. The captain further said they would have to trust to luck. The barge was also deficient in sails and appeared worse when he last saw her in Toronto.

L. Reno, a ship carpenter of St. Catharines, gave evidence as to the unseaworthiness of the Oriental.

The investigation will be continued to-morrow.

HAMILTON HAPPENINGS.

The City Willing to Pay $30,000 for Free Roads.

HAMILTON, Dec. 20.—The joint municipal Free Roads Committee met this morning. Ald. Mason stated that a committee from the City Council had met, and had unanimously agreed that they were prepared to recommend the payment of $30,000, without interest, for assisting the scheme, providing that the sum be spread over a period of not more than ten years. Ald. Mason said the city was already considerably in debt, and now as well as old liabilities would have to be met, so that the taxes would be likely to be as high as the city could afford to pay for some years to come. This did not meet the views of the county members and no agreement was reached.

Thomas Westerby, a boy who formerly sold papers in Toronto and admitted that he ran away from home, was charged in the Police Court to-day with vagrancy. He wanted to go back to Toronto, and was remanded until to-morrow morning.

Charles Edwards was arraigned for trial at the General Sessions to-day for a burglary committed at Rymal. He pleaded guilty and sentence was deferred.

THE INDUSTRIES OF IRELAND.

A Deputation Waits on Mr. Balfour—The Chief Secretary's Views.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20.—A deputation waited on Chief Secretary Balfour yesterday to urge the Government to adopt measures for the development of national resources and industries, and to suggest the advisability of establishing a department of industry similar to that in Wurtemburg. Mr. Balfour replied that the Government was already spending for industrial and agricultural training schools in Ireland a sum nearly equivalent to the expenditure of the Wurtemburg department. He thought it was a great misfortune that agriculture was almost the sole industry in Ireland. A diversion of the people's energies to other industries would overcome many existing difficulties. He promised that the Government would consider the deputation's proposals.

Cossack Regiments in Poland.

VIENNA, Dec. 20.—Authentic news has reached this city to the effect that numerous Cossack regiments are being massed in Russian Poland.

The first issue of nickel and silver coinage in France will appear shortly, amounting to 70,000,000 francs.

PROPRIETORS.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1887.

COMMERCIAL UNION.

The advocates of the scheme which Mr. Wiman is trying to persuade Canada to adopt have diverse opinions regarding what the scheme really is. Terms are used indiscriminately, and reciprocity, unrestricted reciprocity and Commercial Union are made use of as if they were synonymous terms. If a public man speaks in favor of reciprocity he is put down as a believer in Commercial Union, though he may only have meant a treaty similar to the former one; and an expression of opinion favourable to freer trade relations with the United States is accepted by them as an endorsation of their scheme.

This is, perhaps, not a matter for surprise, for when they try to explain what Commercial Union is or what effect it would have upon, say, the Parliament's control of the tariff, they show that their ideas differ. It would facilitate discussion and prevent misunderstanding if the three terms mentioned above, which are frequently used, were not confounded and were confined to some definite meaning.

Reciprocity was generally accepted in Canada as meaning an agreement similar to the one embodied in the treaty of 1854. By that treaty certain commodities—natural products—were allowed to pass between Canada and the United States free of duty, and each country was left free to impose any or no duty upon them when they were imported from any other country. As a matter of fact the list was practically placed upon the customs free list in Canada and no duty was collected upon the articles whether they came from the United States or elsewhere.

Unrestricted reciprocity, in the light of the former treaty, should mean the extension of the principle of that treaty to all articles produced or manufactured in the United States or Canada, still leaving each party to the treaty to arrange its tariff as to the produce of other countries as it saw fit. This was the policy that Mr. J. D. Edgar ineffectually endeavor d, in his open letters, to induce Mr. Wiman to advocate instead of Commercial Union.

Commercial Union, as explained by Mr. Wiman, Prof. Goldwin Smith and other prominent leaders in the movement, is radically different from unrestricted reciprocity. Under that scheme all goods would cross the boundary between Canada and the United States free, whether they were the products of these countries or not; the States and the Dominion would have an identical tariff of customs duties against all other countries, and their excise taxes would be the same. The money collected by the customs officers of the two countries would then be "pooled" and divided between them according to population.

One effect of this would be that Canada would admit United States goods free and raise her tariff on English and other goods and another would be that the Canadian Parliament would lose control of the customs and excise tariffs, as the United States, with its larger population, would force its ideas as to the tariff upon Canada with a smaller population.

Commercial Union is the policy Mr. Wiman and Prof. Smith advocate, it is the scheme that the Globe and Mail and the Reform press generally endorsed, and it is a scheme that those who favor a Canadian national sentiment, control of home affairs and British connection must oppose.

"ONLY a technical error" is the Examiner's excuse for having erroneously stated that Mr. Carnegie expressed lack of confidence in Sir Charles Tupper. If our contemporary had been more careful it would not now find it necessay to elaborate an argument to try to prove that Sir Charles Tupper is Mr. Pope or that Mr. Pope is Sir Charles Tupper. "The people know well" that two men cannot be one person.

EVERY man can determine his natural attitude on the tariff question by honestly answering this question: Do you ever pay more than you have to for any article you need?—London Advertiser.

In the same way every man could determine his attitude in municipal affairs by simply answering the question: Do you ever pay taxes?

Tone up the system and improve the appetite by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will make you feel like a new person. Thousands by this use of this great blood purifier, when all other means failed.

ENGLAND.

Mr. Joel Walker, farmer, Heanor Gate Farm, Heanor, has just gathered a fine crop of swede turnips on his land. One of the turnips weighed 25lbs.

As some men were pulling down an old shop at St. Mary Cray, recently, they discovered a very large number of Bank of England notes of a generation ago. Their disappointment was great on discovering that all the notes were cancelled a short time ago.

The Lord Mayor of London is said to have singled out two days of next year for his grand efforts. He will make them renowned in civic annals. They are the Jubilee Day of the Queen's Coronation, and the day on which the Prince and Princess of Wales will celebrate their silver wedding.

A man got into a London theatre the other night in a curious way. He had gone out between the acts, but having lost his check, the attendants, who did not remember his face, would not readmit him, so he asked them to look at his coat tails. The paint on his seat had adhered to them, the attendants were convinced, and passed him in.

One morning recently a little boy, aged three years, and his sister, aged five years, the children of a beerhouse-keeper named Eastenby, at Blackburn, went into the kitchen in their night-dresses. The boy lighted a piece of paper and set fire to his sister, who was so shockingly burned that she died in Blackburn Infirmary the same day.

SCOTLAND.

It is believed that an early arrangement of Ministerial offices will provide for the Scotch Secretary's inclusion in the cabinet.

The epidemic of measles is still raging in the island of Erlskay. There have been eleven deaths from measles in the island within about two months.

One afternoon recently when the inspector of the Port-Glasgow Water works examined the filters at Parkhill he found the supply from Auchendores almost completely stopped. On further examination at the valve he found the pipe choked with a large eel 3 feet 2 inches in length, and weighing 4½ lbs.

The late Miss Jane Jeffrey, Portobello, has bequethed the sum of £5000 to the University of Edinburg, for the purpose of founding two Bursaries or Scholarships for the young men attending the University of Edinburg and studying for the ministry in connection with the Church of Scotland, to be called "The Jeffrey Bursaries or Scholarships."

Most of the suburban burgs of Glasgow are showing much activity on the Boundaries question. They have united in stating a general case in opposition to the elaborate annexation scheme. The Secretary for Scotland has appointed the Earl of Elgin and Mr. Crum of Thornliebank, additional members of the Commission. Polloksheilds has voted in favor of annexation to Glasgow.

IRELAND.

The Duke of Abercorn has been invited to accept the office of president of the Royal Agricultural Society of Ireland for next year.

An old women named Lynex was found dead one day recently at her cottage in a lane out of Lower Lesson Street, Dublin. He skull was fractured, and there was a quantity of blood in the romm. She was supposed to possess money, but except some trifling articles nothing seemed to have been stolen.

At a meeting of the Armagh branch of the National League recently it was decided that no hunting would be allowed in the district until Mr. O'Brien's release. Circulars were sent to the hunters warning them of this, but they turned out in such numbers at Lisadralin Schoolhouse, 3 miles from Armagh, that nothing could be done to stop them.

At a Dublin Police Court one day recently a man named Walsh was charged with drunkenness. The evidence showed that when he was arrested his four-year-old son was lying dead drunk beside him in the street. The father had taken his child around to a number of taverns and given him liquor to drink. By means of a stomach pump the child's life was saved and the other was fined 10 shillings.

SCHOOL CONCERT.—We are glad to know that some of our teachers are sufficiently interested in school libraries to induce them to make an effort to secure them for their schools. I had the pleasure on Friday night of attending a concert in S. S. No. 3, Otonabee, gottten up for this purpose by the teacher, Miss A. G. Young, ably assisted by the young pupils of the section, who entered heartily into the movement. A few of the friends who had promised to assist in the entertainment were prevented by sickness and other unforseen events, but their places were kindly and ably supplied by others. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music, dialogues, readings, recitations, tableaux, etc. Mr. Hutchinson, the Principal of the Norwood Model School, in his address on "The Development of the Child Mind," showed that even after a liberal school education the mind would degenerate unless continually exercised, and commended the people for the interest they manifested in securing good wholesome literature for their amusement and edification. The instrumental duets were heartily appreciated. The songs by the little girls received great applause. Fred. Clerihue's recitations were given in his usual irresistibly droll manner. The encores which followed the "Quarrelling dust" and the "Dutch Proposal" showed the audience's appreciation of the ludicrous. Other readings and recitations were worthy of mention but space will not permit. Subscriptions ranging from $5.00 to 25 cents were added to the receipts at the door, the whole amounting to $21.50.

LITERARY.—The Bonsfort Literary Society held their fortnightly meeting on Friday evening last. There was a fair attendance present. The evening's entertainment consisted of reading, recitations, songs, &c., by the members of the society. The subject for debate was, "Resolved, that war is more destructive than intemperance." The wranglers on the affirmative were, Mr. S. Smithson and Mr. C. Chapple, with Mr. J. F. Morrison and Mr. E. Stinton on the negative. The subject was very creditably handled by the speakers. The debate was carried on in a lively and amusing manner, causing considerable merriment. After summing up the argument and points of each speaker, the chairman gave the decision in favor of the war party.

MEASLES.—The measles have broken out in this neighborhood. Master Edward Truscott had a serious attack, but I am glad to know that he is rapidly recovering. Curious to relate, I never heard tell of Ed. being a "measley" fellow before.

ANNIVERSARY.—The friends and scholars of the Lake Line Sunday School held their anniversary on Thursday evening, Dec 15th, in the old Methodist Church, when a programme composed of dialogues, recitations, readings, vocal and instrumental music was presented, and well carried out. A pleasing feature of the evening was the singing of the younger scholars, which reflected great credit on their training. Two recitations deserve special mention, one entitled "Retribution" by Miss Hamilton, a teacher in the Sunday School, and one entitled "The Station Master's Story," by Miss Minnie Soden, of Ballieboro, were very effectually given and deservedly applauded. Between the first and second parts of the programme, refreshments were passed around to the audience, which quickly disappeared amidst much mirth and merriment. Mr. A. Perrin, superintendent of the Sunday School, performed the duties of chairman in a very pleasing manner. The entertainment was given to aid the funds of the Sunday School, and was very successful.

Facts, Sir! Nothing but Facts!

GOUGH

IS HARD UP AND MUST RAISE THE WIND.

He has too many OVERCOATS on hand, and must, like the Waggon Maker, who has too many Sleighs on hand in an open Winter, sell them at any price. Lots of other fellers have got the Stomachache BECAUSE GOUGH SELLS SO CHEAP. WITNESS HOW DRY GOODS TUMBLED WHEN THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN TOOK A HAND IN. One Chap over in the Wholesale Fish District has his Advertisements written in Penntown, where the Sewers run on top of the Streets. He feels so bad he don't know how to describe it; so says; "He's Crippled in Price." We don't doubt it. Then there is another one, he is tied up to Crowbar Bros., of Gotham; these fellers are as stiff on their prices as a Crowbar, and squeeze 50 per cent. profit out of their poor victims, but the victims are under the thumb of Crowbar Bros., and can't help themselves. Then there is the feller who cannot advertise; it makes him nervous, he uses a whole quart of Camphor a day, and tells customers GOUGH is selling SO CHEAP it is perfectly demoralizing to trade; I don't know how all this is coming out. IT MERELY COMES OUT THAT

CUSTOMERS STEER STRAIGHT FOR THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN.

Then there is another feller if he sees one of GOUGH'S MEN on the street, he yells "GIVE AWAYS," he knows GOUGH GIVES AWAY MORE THAN THE HIGH PRICE FELLOWS SELL. In the interest of the public I want $10,000.00, and I must have it. I am after a BIG BANKRUPT STOCK, the biggest yet, and it requires the cash to get it, therefore, I will

From now until the 1st January, give on Overcoats and Suits, a Discount of 20 per cent. on my former Low Prices. If this is not the truth I will forfeit $500.00.

Here is a chance now for anyone who doubts it, to bribe my Salesmen and make $500.00. In addition to the 20 per cent. Discount I will present any person who buys $25.00 worth or over, with a Beautiful Tweed Rubber COAT for a CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver a misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

Scott Act.

At noon to day the County Police Magistrate, Mr. Edmison, held court at the Court House to prove a first conviction against D. Houston, of Keene. It was proved and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed, the evidence proving a second offence having been taken at Keene, on Tuesday. On that day fines of $50 were imposed on D. McFarlane and J. Frost. At Lakefield on Monday fines of $50 and costs were imposed upon Mrs. Purser, Mrs. Mason, Capt. Dion, R. Elmhurst and Wm. Johnston. A charge against D. Costello, of Young's Point, was adjourned till Saturday.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

No Surrender.

The advocates of Commercial Union are now hedging on this cry, but apparently they have overlooked the important fact that all those whoes applications are sent in before the 31st inst., will share in this year's profits in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company. The profits will be allocated on the 11th April proximo. Not less than 22½ per cent. will be the cash dividend. e. e. henderson, is the general agent, Peterborough, to whom application should be made immediately. d147

On the Market.

Among other commodities shown for sale on the market this morning was a whole waggon load of venison under the charge of Wat. Kidd, the great hunter of the northern parts. He stood on top of the pile of carcases wearing an expression which as much as said "this thing have I done with the prowess of my arm." He made lots of sales. The venison shown by him was in prime order. The prices of other stuff on the market was reasonable and a large quantity was disposed of, particularly fowl, beef and pork.

Xmas Goods.

Do you want a lovely china tea set complete? It is china in gold cardinal and white, sold elsewhere for $1.50. Sheppard's price for this beautiful Xmas Gift only 59c per set. Journalistic.

The Millbrook Messenger ceased to exist on Wenesday. The Messenger was over thirty years of age, having been born on Aug. 19th, 1857. It was nursed in its youth and cared for in its more mature years by Mr. Alfred E. Hayter, who has now sold its outfit to Messrs Whalley & Kennedy, who will publish the Millbrook Reporter. The Messenger will no doubt be missed, as it had become so much a part of Millbrook that the mention of the village naturally brought to mind the paper. However, the Reporter will be welcomed, and a good local paper, as it will no doubt be, should have a good field in Millbrook.

Bosco at the Opera House.

Bosco, the well known magician, commenced a four nights engagement at Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday night. The entertainment given by Bosco differs from many other organizations of a like character, inasmuch as this is first class in every respect. The feats in legerdemain are done with exceedingly deftness, so quick and skilful as to puzzle the keenest eye. Bosco did many acts, keeping his audience interested and amused for upwards of two hours. He asked a gentleman in the audience if he would lend his hat. The gentleman said "yes." Bosco said "do you object to have the lining removed." The gentleman said "not at all." "Are you sure," questioned the magician, "because if you did I wouldn't take it out on any account." "Oh, no" reassured the gentleman. Then the magician, in the full blaze of light, commenced to draw forth the lining which turned out to be a full set of ladies' underwear. The audience screamed with laughter. Then on closer examination he found a tin shaker, such as is used in bars, then another, another, until he piled a big pyramid of them on the table. The magic hen made the people laugh very heartily. Mr. Dean, the ventriloquist, is a master of the art. He carried on a conversation with six figures at one time with the greatest naturalness. The entertainment closed with the distribution of presents among the audience, the most remarkable feature of the evening. Those having coupons were called on to come forward and about sixty responded. Valuable presents, such as silver cruet stands, butter coolers, large photograph albums, ladies' plush satchels, etc., were handed out. One man went off smiling with 50 pounds of flour under his arm.

LADIES! Remember TURNBULL'S is the right place to look for beautiful Fascinators and Clouds, in all the New Tints.

Trade in Ashes.

Mr. Geo. Stevens has bough out the ashes trade recently carried on by Mr. Walsingham on Murray street. Mr. Stevens is one of the largest dealers in ashes in this country. He carries on an extensive business in Napanee with branches at Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough. The ashes are taken to Napanee where the alkline properties are separated. The bleached ashes are sent on to the United States where they are much esteemed by farmers as a fertilizer.

Local Brevities.

—The first issue of the Empire, the new Toronto paper, will appear next Thursday.

—The annual meeting of the Young Men's Conservative Club will be held on Thursday night.

—To-day is the shortest day of the year. The sun goes over to the other side of fence and heads towards long days and more light.

—Mr. D. Kennedy, of Otonabee, took part in a discussion in the Commercial Union Club, at Toronto, on Tuesday night.

—A meeting of the temperance workers will be held in the W.C.T.U. hall to-morrow evening at 7.30 o'clock for municipal committee work.

—W. M. Houghton, business manager of the Baird Dramatic Co., is in town arranging for the appearance of this popular Co. in the Opera House all next week.

—In reply to "English Visitor." Yes, we know of a poem called "Beautiful Snow." We can't undertake to print it. It's too old—regular chestnut. You will probably find it this week in one of the Lindsay newspapers.

—Mr. P. R. Randall is a candidate for the Port Hope Mayoralty. The contest will apparently be between Mr. Randall and Mr. S. S. Smith—and, perhaps we should add, Mr. David Hall, the eloquent and extremely modest orator.

—We have received the holiday number of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. The Review is a good paper and this number is a creditable production. The Christmas number of the Markham Economist is also a very good publication.

—Mr. J. J. Curran, M. P., addressed the electors of East Northumberland at Campbellford, on Monday night, on behalf of Mr. Cochrane. Mr. H. H. Dewart, of Toronto, spoke for Dr. Mallory. To-night Sir Richard Cartwright will display one side of the shield at the same place.

A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—As there appears to be a dire scarcity of the right sort of men to run our public affairs, and as we have one who is both able and willing to govern the town, I would propose that our present Mayor, M. P. and chairman of the board of school trustees, etc., should be elected to manage all the affairs of the town, municipal, parliamentary and Trent Valley, for the space of five years. If this were done it would save a great deal of money and jangling at the council board and elsewhere. I would also recommend that our Doge should not have to take any oath of office, but be allowed to act according to his judgment or interest. Then he could give the Scott Act the necessary amount of cold shoulder without detriment to his conscience. The extension of the electric light as well as the waterworks must be checked. Gas is good enough for this town, and the ruinous speed that would-be-Mayor Rutherford developed our water system, is truely alarming and must be put down by the strong hand of a despotic ruler who knows how to govern. Hoping that these valuable suggestions will recommend themselves to the judgment of the voters of this progressive town and immediate action will be taken thereon,

I remain,
A STEADFAST ADMIRER OF MONARCHY.

A Border Terror Dead.

REDSTONE JUNCTION, Pa., Dec. 20.—Elihu Gregg, who for fifty years was the terror of the border farmers of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Maryland, was found dead a few days ago in the West Virginia mountains with a bullet hole in his breast.

The Pope Refuses to Interfere.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—The Duke of Norfolk, who went to Rome to convey to the Pope the congratulations of Queen Victoria on his jubilee, has left that city, curtailing his visit, as the Gaulois asserts, because of the absolute refusal of the Pope to further interfere in the relations between the Irish clergy and people. Mgr. Rampolla, the Papal Secretary, the paper says, informed the Duke that the Pope had already used his influence with the clergy, but could not ask the priests to cease to be patriots without running the risk of causing the rebellion of a section of the clergy, and the loss of the hold of the church upon the people.

Charged With Murder.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The preliminary examination began to-day in the case of Charles and John Carroll, held for the murder of Jane, wife of the first named prisoner. Mrs. Carroll was found hanging in her husband's barn in Caradoc Oct. 1. The coroner's jury decided the case was one of suicide, but later developments tended to show that deceased did not hang herself. Twenty witnesses of the Crown were present, among them Mrs. Carroll, a woman of 70, mother of Charles. She had refused to appear, but was arrested to-day and brought into court. Her testimony, however, threw no new light on the case.

A Safety Pin in a Baby's Stomach.

GUELPH, Dec. 20.—A year-old baby girl of James Wallace, Cork-street, while being dressed, grabbed a small open safety pin lying on the table and put it in her mouth. Before the mother knew what was the matter it had got into her throat and nearly choked her. It was decided to put the little one under chloroform and probe for the pin. This was done, but no trace of it could be found in the throat. The baby seems a good bit better to-day, and it is thought that the pin, having got down into the stomach, will do no material harm.

ZION.

Correspondence of the Review.

CHURCH OPENING.—The Methodist Church, which has been repaired, repainted and refurnished, will be reopened on on Sunday, Jan. 1st, 1888, when appropriate services will be held. On the following evening, Jan. 2, a tea meeting will be held. The management of the business is in the hands of a throughly competent committee who are making every effort to make it a success. Several rev. gentlemen are engaged for the occasion. Our choir are bestirring themselves and something choice may be expected in the way of music.

SOCIAL GATHERING.—There was a sound of revelry by night when the youth and beauty of Zion assembled at the residence of Mr. Benjamin Cooney on the evening of Dec. 16th. We may safely say that "When music rose with its voluptuous swell, soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again, and all went merry as a marriage bell." After indulging in the amusements peculiar to such gatherings, and enjoying the hospitality of their genial host and hostess, they returned to their homes well pleased with the evening's amusement.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Hunt, of Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, who has been visiting friends here, has returned to his western home. John Smithson, son of Mr. J. Smithson, intends going to the Collegiate Institute, Peterborough. We wish him success.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Mr. J. Bennett, while shooting at a dog, which had been prowling about his residence came near shooting Mrs. W. Kindred, some of the shot penetrating her clothing. As it was near dark, Mr. Bennet did not observe her approaching, and his attention was centered on the dog. Mrs. Kindred is to be congratulated on her narrow escape.

ACCIDENTS.—Mr. Nicholas Swan is confined to his residence, having had the misfortune to cut his foot with an axe. We hope he will soon be well again. Mr. J. Kindred was thrown from his horse and received a severe wound in the side and a bad shaking up.

Used Government Stamps Twice.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—A seizure has just been made on the premises of Mr. W. E. Pagets, tabacco manufacturer, St. Paul-street. The seizure was effected by the Inland Revenue Department. The ground alleged, according to one of the officials, is that the firm has been using the Government stamps a second time. The report of appraisers will be forwarded to Ottawa. Mr. Paget stated this evening that there had been some irregularities, but entirely unknown to him. His man had denied all knowledge of using the same stamps twice.

Death in a Sleeping Car.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—Miss Lyman, sister of Theodore Lyman, of the Ætna Insurance Company, who had been a patient at the Hydropathic Institute at Elmira, N.Y., died suddenly on board a Wagner car on her way to this city. The cause of death is a mystery, as she had been greatly benefited by her stay at Elmira. An inquest will be held.

A $29,000,000 Mortgage.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 20.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company yesterday executed and placed on record a consolidated mortgage to the Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company of Baltimore of $29,000,000 to cover the issue of consolidated mortgage bonds. The mortgage is for the purpose of paying off the company's floating indebtedness and to call in and cancel bonds heretofore issued under previous mortgages.

Officially Denied.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 20.—The report yesterday that another attempt had been made to assassinate the Czar is officially denied.

THEY HAVE NOT RESIGNED

MR. BAIRD AND MR. DESAULNIERS ARE STILL M.P.'S.

The Widow of Bugler Burke Provided For —Hon. J. H. Pope Considerably Better —Judgments in the Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—It appears that the stories telegraphed some time ago from St. John, N.B., and Three Rivers respectively, that Mr. Baird, M.P. for Queen's, and Mr. Desaulniers, M.P. for St. Maurice, had sent their resignations to the Speaker, were unfounded. It is said that some queer developments may be expected in the Ottawa County Local election case. The Conservatives claim that the Mercier Government spent over $20,000 on the election, Hon. James McShane having charge of the distribution of the money.

The Exchequer Court vacation terminates on Jan. 8. On the following day Mr. Justice Burbidge will hear the case of the Queen v. Ottawa, which is a claim for $2400 in respect of the rents due on certain wharves in the city. On Jan. 12 the adjourned case of McGreevy v. the Queen will come up for hearing.

An immigration pamphlet on the northwest portion of the Province of Quebec, written by Mr. Nantel, M.P.P., has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture.

An order-in-council was passed some time ago making provision for the widow of Bugler Burke of the Mounted Police Force, who was killed at Cut Knife Hill in May, 1885. The widow receives for herself one year's pay of her husband (about $375) and four months' pay for each of her six children. In addition to this she will receive a compassionate allowance of 37½ cents a day for herself while she remains unmarried, with 7½ cents a day for each of her five boys until they attain the age of 18 years, and a like sum to her daughter until she becomes of the age of 21 years, unless she marries sooner. These allowances all date from May 3, 1885.

Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, is considerably better to-day.

In the Supreme Court to-day four judgments were delivered as follows: Garland v. Gemmell—This was an appeal from the judgment of Chancellor Boyd, who, as the trial in the Chancery Court here, gave judgment against Garland, finding him guilty of wholesale piracy of the respondent's copyright in the "Parliamentary Companion" of 1883. Respondent also claimed, by purchase and assignment from H. J. Morgan and C. H. Mackintosh, copyright in several previous editions of the work, some of which were defective by reason of non compliance with the copyright law. The Ontario Court of Appeal also dismissed Garland's appeal. The Supreme Court also dismissed the appeal with costs but directed that the two or three defective copyrights should be struck out of the decree. Byers v. McMillan—Appeal allowed with costs, and judgment in the action to be entered for the appellant with costs. Bell v. Macklin—Appeal dismissed with costs. Lewin v. Wilson—Motion granted, costs to be costs in the appeal.

The conflicting decisions of the various judges who have tried election cases with reference to the six months' limit during which protests may be proceeded with, will be decided by the Supreme Court, the necessary deposit having been made with the Registrar of the court in the appeal from the decision of Judge Caron in diminishing the petition against the election of Mr. McGreevy, M.P., Quebec, under the six month limit clause.

Mayor Stewart has been appointed honorary local director of the Canada Life Assurance Company, vice Sir Alexander Campbell, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

Hon. Messrs. Thompson and Foster will probably leave for the Maritime Provinces to-morrow to spend the Christmas holidays, Sir Hector Langevin will go to Quebec on Friday, Hon. Mr. Pope will eat his Christmas turkey in Cookshire if well enough to travel, and Hon. Mr. Carling will probably go to London.

Suffering in a Convent.

ELIZABETHPORT, N.J., Dec. 20.—It is stated that the nuns in the Dominican Convent here have been on the verge of starvation for some time and that they have suffered from the cold on account of the lack of fuel. For several days they have had no food but a crust of bread and a cup of coffee. The only income they have is what they receive from a few pupils. Years ago they had a large number of pupils, but the attendance has been decreasing during the past few years owing to the withdrawl of many Catholic children who are now sent to the parochial school. The charitably disposed people of the town are now aiding the nuns.

More Trouble for Banker Taylor.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Five additional warrants were executed against Henry Taylor by the Chief of Police to-day. The informations were laid on Saturday and set forth that on Dec. 1, 1881, he stole $4000 of the Ontario Investment Association's money; on Feb. 25, 1882, $10,000; on March 14, 1882, $5000; on Oct. 2, $6000, and on April 5, 1885, $8400. It is stated that these warrants have been executed in consequence of an order from the Government that no compromise will be allowed in this case.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

As Agnes rose to leave the room, accompanied by the eldest girl, she observed with surprise that Henry's manner suddenly changed. He looked serious and preoccupied, and when his niece wished him good night he abruptly said to her, "Marian, I want to know what part of the hotel you sleep in?" Marian, puzzled by the question, answered that she was going to sleep as usual with "Aunt Agnes." Not satisfied with that reply, Henry next inquired whether the bedroom was near the rooms occupied by the other members of the traveling party. Answering for the child and wondering what Henry's object could possibly be, Agnes mentioned the polite sacrifice made to her convenience by Mrs. James. "Thanks to that lady's kindness," she said, "Marian and I are only on the other side of the drawing room." Henry made no remark; he looked incomprehensibly discontented as he opened the door for Agnes and her companion to pass out. After wishing them good night he waited in the corridor until he saw them enter the fatal corner room, and then he called abruptly to his brother: "Come out, Stephen, and let us smoke."

As soon as the two brothers were at liberty to speak together privately Henry explained the motive which had led to his strange inquiries about the bedrooms. Francis had informed him of the meeting with the countess at Venice, and of all that had followed it, and Henry now carefully repeated the narrative to his brother in all its details. "I am not satisfied," he added, "about that woman's purpose in giving up her room. Without alarming the ladies by telling them what I have just told you, can you not warn Agnes to be careful in securing her door?" Lord Montbarry replied that the warning had already been given by his wife, and Agnes might be trusted to take good care of herself and her little bed fellow. For the rest, he looked upon the wonderful story of the countess and her superstitions as a piece of theatrical exaggeration, amusing enough in itself, but quite unworthy of a moment's serious attention.

While the gentlemen were absent from the hotel, the room which had been already associated with so many startling circumstances became the scene of another strange event, in which Lady Montbarry's eldest child was concerned.

Little Marian had been got ready for bed as usual, and had (so far) taken hardly any notice of the new room. As she knelt down to say her prayers she happened to look up at that part of the ceiling above her which was just over the head of the bed. The next instant she alarmed Agnes by starting to her feet with a cry of terror, and pointing to a small brown spot on one of the white paneled spaces of the carved ceiling. "It's a spot of blood!" the child exclaimed. "Take me away! I won't sleep here!"

Seeing plainly that it would be useless to reason with her while she was in the room, Agnes hurriedly wrapped Marian in a dressing gown and carried her back to her mother in the drawing room. Here the ladies did their best to soothe and reassure the trembling girl. The effort proved to be useless; the impression that had been produced on the young and sensitive mind was not to be removed by persuasion. Marian could give no explanation of the panic and terror that had seized her. She was quite unable to say why the spot on the ceiling looked like the color of a spot of blood. She only knew that she should die of terror if she saw it again. Under these circumstances, but one alternative was left. It was arranged that the child should pass the night in the room occupied by her two younger sisters and the nurse.

In half an hour more Marian was peacefully asleep with her arm around her sister's neck. Lady Montbarry went back with Agnes to her room to see the spot on the ceiling which had so strangely frightened the child. It was so small as to be only just perceptible, and had in all probability been caused by the carelessness of a workman, or by a dripping from water accidentally spilled on the floor of the room above.

"I really cannot understand why Marian should place such a terrible interpretation on such a trifling thing," Lady Montbarry remarked.

"I suspect the nurse is in some way answerable for what has happened," Agnes suggested. "She may quite possibly have been telling Marian some tragic nursery story which has left its mischievous impression behind it. Persons in her position are sadly ignorant of the danger of exciting a child's imagination. You had better caution the nurse to-morrow."

Lady Montbarry looked round the room with admiration.

"Is it not prettily decorated?" she said. "I suppose, Agnes, you don't mind sleeping here by yourself?"

Agnes laughed.

"I feel so tired," she replied, "that I was thinking of bidding you good night, instead of going back to the drawing room."

Lady Montbarry turned toward the door.

"I see your jewel case on the table," she resumed. "Don't forget to lock the other door there, in the dressing room."

"I have already seen to it, and tried the key myself," said Agnes. "Can I be of any use to you before I go to bed?"

"No, my dear, thank you; I feel sleepy enough to follow your example. Good night, Agnes—and pleasant dreams on your first night in Venice."

CHAPTER XXII.

Having closed and secured the door on Lady Montbarry's departure, Agnes put on her dressing gown, and, turning to her open boxes, began the business of unpacking. In the hurry of making her toilet for dinner she had taken the first dress that lay uppermost in the trunk and had thrown her traveling costume on the bed. She now opened the doors of the wardrobe for the first time and began to hang her dresses on the hooks in the large compartment on one side.

After a few minutes only of this occupation she grew weary of it and decided on leaving the trunks as they were until the next morning. The oppressive south wind which had blown throughout the day still prevailed at night. The atmosphere of the room felt close; Agnes threw a shawl over her head and shoulders, and opening the window stepped into the balcony to look at the view.

The night was heavy and overcast; nothing could be distinctly seen.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be hoodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as he Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6.50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

TWO LARGE FLOURING MILLS COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

Sewers Filled with Naphtha Cause the Disaster—Three Persons Known to Have Perished.—Loss of Property Estimated at Over $200,000.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 21.—Shortly before 3.30 this afternoon a terific explosion occurred in front of the Poole flour mill on Mill-street, at the foot of Factory-street. The explosion was felt for a long distance, and Coroner Sharpe, who was at his sister's residence across the river, says he felt it distinctly. Only a few seconds after the first explosion another followed, and another and another, in rapid succession. Instantly flames burst from the Poole mill and the rear walls fell in. The fire burnt with great fury, and although the workmen hastened to get out it is feared that some must have perished in the flames.

It was only a few minutes before the Washington mill adjoining the burning structure was also on fire. One workman jumped from the third story of the Poole mill and is seriously injured, another escaped by jumping into the race.

The cause of the explosion was that the sewers in the vicinity were filled with naphtha being pumped from the 4000-gallon tank of naphtha from the Vacuum Works through the pipe line in the bed of the old canal. It was intended for the Municipal Gas Company, but one or more breaks in the line allowed the naphtha to escape into the adjoining sewers. When the sewers became surcharged with the gas it escaped into the mills and exploded there or elsewhere, and made its way through the mains in the middle of the streets, throwing out man-hole covers and tearing up roadways.

The amount of damage cannot be calculated at this hour. Two of the three finest mills in America with their contents are doomed and several streets and sewers are more or less damaged.

In the vicinity of the fire and up State-street as far as Market-street, about three-quarters of a mile distance, the people were running in every direction and frequent explosions only terrified them more. The explosions continued at such frequent intervals for the first half-hour that the people were deterred from getting anywhere near the fire. Women and children are running around crying and screaming, thinking their brothers, husband or some relatives were in the mill and had been burned.

It is not known how many persons were at work or how many escaped. One man was seen to jump from the second story of the buildings to the river bank below, a distance of about fifty feet. His right leg was broken and he received severe internal injuries.

The walls of the Jefferson mill fell in about 4 o'clock and it is feared there are several men buried underneath.

The engineer of the Clinton mill, with two companions, was standing near the front of the mill when the explosion occurred, not twenty feet from where they stood. They regained sufficient presence of mind to shut off the steam and get out of the mill. There were six persons at work in the Clinton mill, of whom four escaped through the water-wheel. It is now reported that three persons are known to be killed.

At the time of writing (11.30 p.m.) the fire is under control. The explosions ceased at 6.30 and no more danger is apprehended from them.

The explosions covered a wide extent of territory, windows were shattered in many buildings and other damage done. The tunnel through which the burning naphtha flowed for several hours is the largest sewer in the city, and is the outlet for the sewers on the West Side. How badly damaged this is as yet cannot be estimated.

The killed so far as known are: Ered Wilson, E. A. Webster, Abram Rogers and John Lee. The latter was an employe at the People's Mill and has not been accounted for, and it is supposed that he is dead in the ruins. The injured will number at least twenty. Most of them are bruised and cut by stones.

The total damage by the fire cannot be closely determined. The Washington mill was valued at $70,000, insurance about $35,000. The Jefferson mill with contents was valued at $60,000, on which there is about $25,000 insurance. The Clinton mill alone was valued at $65,000, on which is a probable insurance of $30,000. The Canton mill was fairly loaded with barrels of flour and grain in stock. The value of this is estimated at $12,000 to $15,000. The Washington mill contained about 15,000 barrels of flour and 4000 bushels of wheat, valued at $10,000, and is mostly a total loss.

The Oriental Investigation.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 21.—The investigation into the loss of the Oriental was continued before Mr. S. Risley, Government Inspector, this morning. The only witness was J. J. Harrigan of Port Dalhousie, first mate of the American schooner Abbie L. Andrews. The Andrews passed the Scotia and tow about thirty miles above Charlotte at 12 noon, and was in sight of her for about three hours afterwards. Witness saw the captain of her at the wheel. He supposed there was no one else on board who could steer the Oriental. If she had 700 tons of coal on board she must have been overloaded. She was deeper than that class of vessels usually are.

The court then adjourned to meet again in Kingston.

COHNFIELD AND HIS BONDS.

A Bold Scheme Frustrated — Cohnfield's Career in Canada.

DETROIT, Dec. 21.—Considerable of a sensation has been caused here by the appearance in Windsor on Sunday of J. B. Clark, a well known attorney of Toronto, and a man and woman who were registered as H. Hoffman and Miss Hoffman. Clark and the woman tried to sell $39,000 worth of United States bonds at a Detroit bank Monday, and the lady was arrested on suspicion. To-day it became known that the man Hoffman is Isadore Cohnfeld, a well-known New York dealer in feathers and plumes who made a disastrous failure last October. Cohnfeld fled to Toronto with his two daughters and a large amount of money and securities. He has been living there under the name of Davis.

To-day a number of attachments were sought to be put upon the bonds by New York creditors but the police gave the bonds to the woman and released her late to-night. When she was safe in Canada she joined Cohnfeld at Windsor. She gives the name of Olson, and J. B. Clark says she is a rich widow of Toronto, who engaged him to come here with her and negotiate the bonds. She is believed to be either a daughter of Cohnfeld's or his mistress. They will stop in Windsor a few days yet.

One of Cohnfeld's Victims.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The property of George Lichtenheim, who asserted that he had lost considerable money through Isadore Cohnfeld, the feather importer who is now in Canada, has been attached by the National Park Bank which is suing to recover $20,000, the value of a note executed by Cohnfeld and endorsed by Lichtenheim. The bank charges that the defendant turned his property over to his wife, then declared himself a ruined man.

Cohnfeld's Toronto Career.

Isadore Cohnfeld, with his four children, has been living at the Rossin during his sojourn in Canada. The World was the first paper to discover his identity soon after his arrival in Toronto, although he was passing under the name of Davis at that time. The lady to whom was entrusted the sale of the bonds is believed to be a relative of Mr. Cohnfeld. The latter has been out of town since Sunday last.

BI-METALLISM.

Mr. Atkinson's Report—Importation of Belgian Coal Miners to be Stopped.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Congress received a communication from the President containing the report of Edmund Atkinson, who was specially designated under Acts of Congress to visit the financial centres of Europe in order to ascertain the feasibility of establishing by international standard a parity of ratio between gold and silver and free coinage of both. Mr. Atkinson's report is of great length and his conclusions are that there is no present disposition on the part of European nations to take action which could affect financial conditions in this country. None of the European governments would now seriously consider a proposition for an international agreement upon the comparative value of gold and silver, or any movement in the direction of international bimetallism. He thinks it would be unwise for the United States to again take the initiative in this matter, as such action is misconstrued and might tend to retard the object aimed at.

Secretary Fairchild took official notice to-day of the report that 2000 Belgian miners are to be imported to take the places of the miners in the Lehigh region now on a strike. He sent telegrams to the collectors of customs at New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore, calling attention to the report and instructing them to be vigilant in preventing any violation of the alien contract labor law.

THE CARROLL CASE.

John Committed for Murder—A Serious Accident in London Township.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 21.—The preliminary investigation in the case of John and Charles Carroll, charged with the murder of Mrs. Jane, wife of the last named prisoner, was concluded to-day, resulting in John Carroll being committed for trial. Charles was discharged. It is stated that John Carroll killed a man some twenty years ago at Hickory Corners, near Strathroy, at which time he was hostler for his brother Henry. John gave himself up to the authorities, stating that the deed was done in self-defence, and he was therefore acquitted.

At the conclusion of the trial, in leaving the court, a lady from Strathroy fell and broke her arm.

Charles and William Stephens, 12th concession, London township, while running a crushing machine yesterday were badly injured. Charles had his arm ground off nearly to the elbow, and his brother, in trying to rescue him, had one of his hands mangled.

SATISFIED WITH HIS PROGRESS.

The Crown Prince Takes a Walk—Hope of Ultimate Recovery.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—The Crown Prince's physicians report that they are satisfied with his progress. He took a walk to-day, accompanied by the Prince of Saxe-Meiningen.

The Magdeburg Zeitung says: "Medical opinion now permits the assumption that the regular continuance of the present treatment will avert danger and reduce the chance of a fatal issue to the minimum, and that the Crown Prince will yet be enabled to fulfil all the duties of his high station. Professor Virchow takes this favorable view."

A Disastrous Work.

HAVANA, Dec. 21.—A huge wave at Baracoa on Dec. 4, the result of a three days' blow, struck the beach, broke and swept away many native huts and several good houses. After sweeping in fully 400 feet the water flowed back to the ocean. Nearly 300 huts and houses were destroyed. Fortunately no lives were lost. The beach was swept clear of every habitation that stood upon it.

Doherty's Sentence Commuted.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The sentence of Daniel Doherty at London for shooting George Graham has been modified to 20 years' imprisonment. The Standard says it is disposed to think that a much greater reduction of the sentence on Doherty would better have served the interests of justice.

Young Lee Remanded on $10,000 Bail.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—W. R. Lee, who shot his stepfather, S. W. Rawson, was arraigned to-day and pleaded not guilty to assault with intent to kill. He was remanded in $10,000 bail.

LIZZIE BRAY'S SAD DEATH.

EVIDENTLY BETRAYED BY A MARRIED MAN WHO ABANDONED HER.

The Testimony of Her Aunt, Her Sister and Two Other Ladies—How an 18-year-old Girl Shielded Her Wrong Doer—A Doctor Alleged to be Involved.

TORONTO, Dec. 22.

Last night in the front parlor of 69 Walton-street, the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. A. Parsons, lay the body of 18-year-old Lizzie Bray, whose death on Monday is alleged to have been caused by abortion, the work of John Gamble, with whom she had been intimate; and in the dining-room Coroner Powell opened an inquest on the body, with a jury of which J. H. P. Bonnick was foreman. Coroner Powell explained the gravity of the case and said that because of a missing link in the evidence several such cases in Toronto of late had been failures of justice. He said that the evidence of Dr. Teskey, who made the post mortem, would be reserved for a future sitting. Last night's witnesses were four ladies, who lived in the house, and as the Coroner explained at the close of the evidence, proved to be very strong against Gamble, who has not yet been located by the police. Even an attempt at the crime means murder, punishable with death.

Mrs. Mary Ann Parsons, boarding house keeper, and aunt of the deceased, said that she had raised the girl since she was 3 years old. Lizzie had been employed at the Crompton Corset works for two or three years together with her sister, who also lived with her aunt. Among recent boarders in the house was John Gamble who boarded there for about seven months until two months ago. He with the other male boarders, worked in the Williams piano factory. For a while her niece had been looking bad but only within the last three weeks had she been unwell. She went to her work till a week ago. And her aunt did not notice anything wrong till she learned it by means of an anonymous letter which came to her (Mrs. Parsons') brother and by another person asking if she thought there was anything wrong between Lizzie and Gamble.

Mrs. Parsons spoke to her niece two weeks ago but could get no satisfaction till a week ago, when the girl did not deny that she was in trouble. Dr. Ferguson was called in and concluded that there was something wrong. Lizzie wanted to go away but the doctor advised that she be kept and kindly treated. One day, week before last, Gamble came to the house but was ordered out by the witness, who had, eight or nine weeks before, told him she did not want a married man going out walking with her niece, as he had been accustomed to do. About three weeks ago Lizzie stayed away for two days and two nights, during which she was in communication with Gamble, although she said she was going to visit a young friend. Gamble had a strange power over the girl and she refused to give him up. Once the witness asked Gamble in Lizzie's presence if there was anything wrong between them and he said that his last thought would be to wrong an orphan girl. Upon receiving the anonymous letter he was accused of being the cause of the trouble, but he most solemnly denied it. He asked Lizzie to assert his innocence, which she did. Lizzie was not in the habit of going with any one else. Witness believed that Gamble put her up to say, as she did in her last sickness, that the cause of her trouble was a young man named Cooper, whom she had met at a picnic.

Mrs. Parsons was sure that Gamble was the man because she was told by boarders that such was the case, and because since the girl's death, she learned that the girl had confessed to a lady boarder her intimacy with Gamble, who had refused to acknowledge it to her aunt. Mrs. Parsons thought that on her death-bed Lizzie had tried, but in vain, to tell the truth. A week before she died she received a fright by Gamble coming in partly drunk and calling on the Lord to witness his innocence. Lizzie grew worse from Thursday and although attended by two doctors she sank and died early on Monday just as the doctors arrived. Dr. Ferguson thought death was the result of an abortion caused by the girl taking something. Witness heard that Gamble had given her some medicine, a married sister of Lizzie's saying she had seen her drink something out of a little black bottle not very long ago.

Miss Lillie Bray, sister of the deceased, said Gamble had known her sister since the spring. Gamble used to take both to the Island in the summer. In September Gamble told her that Lizzie was in trouble and that he was the cause. He seemed sorry and said he was going to give her some medicine which he thought would make her all right. He also said he had a doctor who would use instruments, but did not mention the doctor's name, nor did the witness know if the doctor had ever seen Lizzie. It was about September when Lizzie got the medicine, a dark fluid in a small, round bottle, which she identified on its being produced. She never saw her sister taking it but knew she was doing so. Lizzie knew that the witness was aware of the trouble, but they never spoke of it. Gamble also said he was going to get an instrument and use it himself and witness saw it in his possession. About two weeks ago Lizzie went alone to see Gamble, who was sick at a Gerrard-street west boarding house. Gamble told the witness that he was going to get a boarding house for Lizzie and he thought she would soon be all right. They remained away two nights and stayed at a boarding-house on Church-street, passing as Mr. and Miss Black, brother and sister.

Mrs. Elizabeth Butler, a boarder in the house, thought that the deceased was too intimate with Gamble, a married man, although she had no knowledge of anything improper. She heard Gamble accused of the wrong-doing, but he denied it. At last Lizzie admitted she had got into trouble at a picnic and that Gamble was to blame. The girl was desperate and said she did not care what became of her. The two went to Gamble's boarding-house, and he wanted to know if she had given anything away to her uncles. She commenced to cry, and he advised her to go away and he would look after her.

Miss Maxwell McAllan, also a boarder in the house, was examined, but nothing new was elicited.

The inquest was adjourned till Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1888, at 7.30 o'clock, at Agnes-street Station, when other witnesses will be examined.

The funeral, which was postponed from yesterday, will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

THE GOVERNMENT CONDEMNED.

England Censured for Supporting the Triple Alliance Against Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 21.—The Grashdanen, a semi-official organ, condemns the English Government for supporting the triple alliance against Russia. It believes however that the visit of Lord Randolph Churchill to Russia will influence England's policy. It says Lord Randolph will confer with several Russian statesmen and if possible will have an interview with the Czar.

All is Quiet in Poland.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—The Temps says the Russian Government has informed the allied powers that the movements of troops in Poland have ceased.

Defensive Operations.

PESTH, Dec. 21.—Defensive operations are progressing in all parts of the country. The telegraph offices have been ordered not to transmit reports of the number of regiments ready to proceed to Galicia, should Russia reinforce the troops now on the frontier.

Thinks There Will be War.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—It is stated that during his visit to San Remo the Duke of Edinburgh expressed his opinion that war was almost unavoidable, and was likely to break out at no distant date.

REMOVED TO TULLAMORE JAIL.

Mr. Hooper's Bed Taken From Him—Mr. O'Brien Honored.

DUBLIN, Dec. 21.—Mr. Hooper, M.P., was removed to Tullamore Jail to-day. At a meeting in Cork to-day the Mayor stated that he had visited Mr. Hooper in jail before his removal and found him almost nude. The bed and bedclothes had been taken from his cell.

Another M.P. Sentenced.

DUBLIN, Dec. 21.—Mr. Sheehy, M.P., was tried at Clonmel to-day for inciting resistance to eviction and was sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

A Tantalizing Honor.

DUBLIN, Dec. 21.—The Corporation of Drogheda has voted to confer the freedom of the city upon Editor William O'Brien, who is now in jail.

ANNEX-U.S.A. OFFICER ARRESTED.

For Firing a Revolver at the Alleged Seducer of His Daughter.

DUBLIN, Dec. 21.—Capt. Dunne, lately Governor of Castlebar Jail and an ex-officer in the United States Army, has been committed for trial in this city for firing a revolver at the Rev. Henry Melville, whom Dunne charges with seducing his daughter while she was residing with Mrs. Melville. Melville eloped with the girl to the continents and traveled with her to different places. The pair finally returned to London and were discovered by Dunne. Melville fled to Ireland and was pursued by Dunne, who traced him to Dublin, and seeing him seated in a cab fired at him. Melville, however, held a traveling rug before him and stopped the bullet.

It Would Please Mr. Gladstone.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Mr. Gladstone writing to a friend says that nothing would please him better than that the Tories should return to the position in which they appeared to be two years ago, and by autonomy bring about an indissoluble union of Ireland and Great Britain, "but if they leave the decision in the hands of the Liberals," he adds "we will overcome not for the first or twentieth time by constitutional means their resistance."

Rumors About Ferdinand Affect Prices.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—At the opening of the Bourse to-day the markets was firm on rumors that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria had abdicated.

The Thibetan Troops to be Expelled.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The Indian Government has decided to send a force to expel the Thibetan troops blocking the roads from Sikhim to Thibet.

FROM FLORIDA.

PALMETTO PLACE,
MICCO P.O., BREVARD CO.,
FLORIDA, NOV. 11th, 1887.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—It is getting to be a long time now since you have heard from our part of the world and as our special representive, Mr. G.V. Clementi, has re'urned to Vincent Villa, and left you all to the tender mercies of Jack Frost, a few lines may be of interest to our old friends in Peterborough, whom we remember and hope to see again before many years. But right here comes a sad thought and one that makes us feel that we are all growing older and that this life is but a span. We have read with extreme sorrow of the untimely death of one after another of our old playmates and school companions, taken away in their prime and leaving sad hearts and mourning friends behind. Truly the past year has a sad record and there will be many blanks where we hoped in the future to have greeted friends. Those who are sorrowing have our most heartfelt sympathy in their affliction.

Like the greater part of the world last summer was a hot one with us and characterized by great drought. It was entirely different in these respects from our previous two years experience, and vegetation suffered, or rather stood still, when in the ordinary routine of nature we should have had our summer rains and a heavy growth. Some of us who had young orange and lemon trees had a hard fight to keep them alive, but by constant attention and irrigation most of us pulled through with little or no loss, except the season's growth.

Our settlement is progressing nicely and a good class of people are coming in. Some speculative land owners have discouraged a few and others brought up to a life of ease and sedentary pursuits have been discouraged by the fact that to make a home here they would have to take off their coats and work hard (without a sun umbrella), and have gone away abusing the country, and all that is in it. These are not the class of men to build up a new country. We have many drawbacks here, incident to all new places, and there are many discouragements, but they are fast disappearing and anyone who has an ambition to have a beautiful home in this the finest climate on the continent, has only to get in his boat and travel a few miles to the older settlements where he will see in the shape of beautiful homes and magnificent orange groves laden with fruit, what the hard work of others has accomplished, and one comes home encouraged to put up with such petty annoyances as only having a "cow with a tin tail" (canned milk) and having to get your roast beef for the most part out of a tin can too—all the way from Chicago. These things are fast becoming of the past, however. I have the honor of being Uncle Sam's postmaster for this place and we have a steamer calling right at my wharf daily with the mail up and down the river and by her we can get fresh meat only two hours or so from Melbourne, sixteen miles north of us, and milk from the dairy there delivered at 7 a. m. We also have an office of the Government telegraph line now being erected along this coast right in the house with your humble servant as operator, and the instrument, which is not ten feet from where I am writing, ticks away pleasantly and informs me about as soon as you knew it in Peterborough that the Anarchists were hung to-day. What a contrast this is to our experience of two years ago right here. Gen. Grant was dead and buried for two weeks before we knew anything about it! Then we only had a semi-weekly mail by sail boat and if the wind was not fair or blew too hard, or did'nt blow at all, it was often a weekly one or, worse still, came in all wet and destroyed. There were only three families of us then, now there are 15, who come here regularly for their mail and most of them in sight of us. I begin to think that to be thoroughly contented down here a man must be a lover of nature and something of a hunter and fisher. Unless he has these qualities well developed he is very likely to see very little to admire or emulate in the example of those who like myself have undertaken with only moderate means to make an orange grove. To the practical hard-headed business man the amount of waiting and outlay, the necessity of overcoming so many difficulties of a tedious nature, and withal the slowness of the speculation, makes him hesitate. I confess that all this presented itself to me at first, and when I first came to Florida I thought I could never content myself in any such venture. However, now that I have got a fair start and comfortable home and everything growing nicely, the returns do not seem so far off and sometimes I venture to figure on the probable returns from my nicely growing trees. So far I have made no effort to make the place remunerative, my time being fully taken up in building, tree planting and getting things into shape. This winter, I hope, however, to raise considerable "truck" for northern markets, and hope to have a good report of results in the spring. I have put up a very complete system of irrigation this fall consisting of a 12 foot windmill, 150 barrel tank and piping, and hose to cover 5 acres completely. This will be a great advantage in the winter, while it is our finest vegetable growing season, but for its dryness.

We get the best varieties of map beans here in six weeks from planting. Tomatoes, Irish potatoes, egg fruit, cucumbers, cabbage, etc., also grow very quickly, and the northern markets affords splendid returns for these crops if got to market about March or April. This we can do with certainty, and could get them earlier if the demand existed, but somehow people don't seem to "hanker" after green things until about then. Beans bring from $3.00 per crate of 2 pecks net; tomatoes, $4.00; potatoes, $6.00 to $10.00 per barrell; egg fruit, $14.00 to $20.00 per barrel; cucumbers [illegible] per crate, and so on through the [illegible] we have good shipping facilities, [illegible] arrival of another [illegible] has delayed the completion of this letter a week, and I am only getting time this morning to finish it up. He is a Baltimore man and has just bought a piece of land north of us, and although only one week here, has his lumber on the ground and will commence operations to-morrow. It is encouraging to see new arrivals so early in the season, and we hope they may be followed by others.

PARLOR SOCIAL.—A parlor social was given by the ladies of the Baptist Church on Friday evening, at the residence of Mr. Jas. Cumming. The programme consisted of the following pieces:—Song by Misses. Scott and Bailey, instrumental duet by Miss Buck and Mr. Sanders, reading by Mr. A. Roddon, song by Mrs. J. Patterson, intrumental duet by Miss Buck and Mr. Sanders, a speech by Mr. R. H. Henderson, and a song by Mrs. R. J. Stewart.

I. O. O. F.—She new hall is being fitted up in the third story of Metcalf's new block, and when finished will compare favorably with any hall in Ontario. The members expect to have it opened soon.

Tone up the system and imppove the appetite by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will make you feel like a new person. Thousands have found health, and relief from suffering, by the use of this great blood purifier when all other means failed.

We notice Messrs. Burns & Bain are showing a very nice assortment of Tea Trays in sets and singles for the Xmas trade. d139tf

GENERAL.

The majority of the people are most generous when they have nothing to give.

Headache, Billiousness, Dyspepsia and Indigestion relieved and at once by Dr Carson's Stomach Bitters. Try it. Samples free.

It takes two months to prepare for Christmas and three to recover from it; but we must remember that there are seven months in the year which are arranged for solid comfort.

Right now is the time to use a good Blood Purifying Medicine. Lose no time in getting a bottle of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters. It will do you good. Sold by all druggists. 50c.

Diamonds have been found in a meteorite that fell last year at Krasnoslobodsk, in Russia, and has lately been analysed. Nature says that if the report is confirmed, "we may at last be placed on the track of the artificial production of the precious stone."

"Umbrellas suitable for presentation" is a rather remarkable sign displayed in one of the city stores. If the sign read "Umbrellas suitable for borrowing or lending," few persons would have wondered at it. But "suitable for presentation" is overwhelming.

Don't use any more nauseous purgatives such as Pills, Salts, &c., when you can get in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that moves the Bowels gently, cleansing all impurities from the system and rendering the blood pure and cool. Sold by all Druggists.

Henry M. Engle, of Lancaster County, Pa., has succeeded in raising chestnuts as large as walnuts by grafting a choice variety of the nuts on common chestnut trees. He believes that the culture of these nuts is only in its infancy, and that raising them for the market will become a profitable industry.

Do tell me? he name of that delightful Perfume you use. With pleasure. It is the 'Lotus of the Nile.'

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind hat the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d105eo

Local and Foreign Markets.

REVIEW OFFICE, Dec. 22, 1887.

There has been a good delivery of grain during the week at the local markets, with a prospect of improvement, consequent on the fall of snow and improvement of roads. Prices remain steady with no indication of serious change.

Produce on all lines is in good demand and brings fair prices. The Christmas market at this season creates a lively demand for poultry and good prices are realized.

Montreal Cattle Market.

The Gazette of Tuesday says:—The cattle market at Point St. Charles this morning was fairly active, as the offerings of Christmas cattle were fair and of a generally good quality, but taking it altogether it was not so good as last year, and the prices realized were not so high. The was a good demand from butchers for choice Christmas cattle, of which the offerings at the Point were not large, and many butchers could not fill their wants. Williams & Hall, of Whitby, had a car load of very fine cattle, of which Brown Bros. bought seven head for their Christmas supply, and they weighed on an average 1,500 pounds each, and cost 5¼ per pound. At the east end abattoir a brisk business was done as there was a very large attendance of butchers who bought freely. There were over 700 head of cattle offered, mostly of choice quality, in fact some of the finest Christmas beeves ever seen among the offerings.

There was an active demand for sheep and lambs at this market which were in light supply and many buyers could not fill their wants. A sale of one car load of extra fine lambs which were among the finest seen for some time was sold at 5¾ per lb. live weight. A few small lots of fine sheep sold at 4c@5c per lb. live weight.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

LITERAY SOCIETY.—The first meeting of the debating society took place this week in the Agricultural Hall at Centreville, Mr. C. Chappelle in the chair. The subject discussed was Wealth vs Education. Education won by four points. The next subject will be "Cow vs Sheep." This ought to be a good one for the farmers, as they are all farmers who take part in it.

HYMENEAL.—Mr. Irving, of Omemee, and Miss Jemima Morton, of Fraserville, were united on Wednesday at Fraserville, and left that village for Omemee by the 4.50 p.m. train with the best wishes of all who knew them.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

In a story written by a young contributor to a Chicago paper occurs among other queer sayings: "As she entered the room a cold, damp smell met her sight."

Great Slaughtering and Cutting

—OF—

PRICES IN DRY GOODS.

—AT—

THOS. KELLY'S

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry goods over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practic to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

The Debate.

A meeting of the St. Peter's Cathedral congregation Debating Club was held in the Murray Street Separate School on Wednesday night. The subject for discussion was, "Resolved—that the execution of Charles I was justifiable." Mr. J. J. Sheehy led in the affirmative, being supported by Messrs. R. Henry and J. O'Meara. The negative was led by Dr. Brennan, the support being Dr. Collins and Mr. Hacket Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle, who presided, summed up and decided in favor of the affirmative. A recitation was given by Mr. D. O'Brien, Miss O'Brien and Mr. Roach. A vocal duet was given by Miss Fagney and and Mr. McCormick.

AN AWFUL ACCIDENT.

A THIRTEEN YEAR OLD BOY IS HANGED.

The Sawhorse Slips from his feet and he is Suspended—Strangled Death On Wednesday Afternoon.

Mr. Wm. McMaster was overpowered with fright on entering his workshop, Sherebrooke street, this morning. Suspended from the ceiling he saw the form of his son Freddie hanging. The shock was so great that for a time he was unable to do anything. Then summoning assistance they took the body down. It was the body of Freddy McMaster and he had been strangled to death. They carried him to Mr. McMaster's house on the same street and a coroner was called but an inquest was deemed unnecessary. The way in which the boy met his death was

AS STRANGE AS IT WAS SUDDEN.

Freddy had gone up to the shop to get some nails, which were on the second floor. There was no stairs to the storeroom above the workshop, the only mode of access being simply to spring up, catch the joist and go through the opening in the floor by force of muscle. Freddy was not tall enough to spring up. He got a sawhorse, and standing upon it, lifted up the boards, and proceeded to get through. He put his head up but just the then sawhorse on which he stood toppled over. Down both he and the boards came, the latter catching him by the neck and holding him fast. The neighbors in the vicinity heard no noise. The fellow was caught in such a grip that he could give no alarm either by limb or voice.

Mr. McMaster said this forenoon to the REVIEW:—"Freddie must have died yesterday afternoon. He left home after dinner and did not come back. In the evening we thought that he had had been peddling hand bills for the show people and had gone to the Opera House, but at the time the show was out he did not come back. Then we thought that he had gone off with one of the drovers as he had done before to drive cattle. This morning when I was going down street I went into my shop and—there he was."

Mr. McMaster was so overcome with grief that he did not speak further.

Freddie was a smart little fellow thirteen years old.

Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School.

An open meeting of the Sabbath School will be held on Sunday afternoon next, Christmas day, to commence at a quarter to three. An address will be given by the pastor, Rev. I.Tovell. Rev. F. H. Wallace, B.D., is also expected to be present and give an address. Singing by the children of the Sunday School. Everybody invited.

China Hall.

China Hall's stock is now complete and an invitation is hereby extended to the Peterborough people to pay it a visit and see the large and varied stock of new goods contained in the two show rooms. The store will be open till ten o'clock in the evening from now until after 'Xmas, and as very few have yet seen the "basement show room" we would like every lady and gentleman in Peterborough to pay us a visit now and inspect our Christmas stock and at the same time make a note of anything likely to suit them for a Christmas purchase. No one asked to buy. 6d143

Scrap Albums, regular prices $1.00, for 25c. Go straight to Sheppard's noted cheap store, and save your money. George Street, Peterborough.

Sleighing.

The snow which fell on Tuesday night and Wednesday was just sufficient to tempt people who own cutters and sleighs to harness up and go abroad. But the sleighing was unsatisfactory, there being a good deal more grinding and scraping than there was slipping. Wednesday night's fall, though, supplemented the previous one so well that carts have been consigned to winter quarters. The snow is crisp and sparkling and looks as if it has come to stay.

Signor Bosco.

Another large audience attended the Opera House last evening. The splendid entertainment was pronounced the best ever given here. Bosco's illusions were marvellous. Dean was immense in his ventriloquism. Little Harry Bosco, aged 10 years astonished the audience by his wonderful playing on the piano-forte. He is a musical prodigy and a great artist. A large number of costly presents were given away, and there will no doubt be a crowded house to-night.

KILLED IN THE WOODS.

A Young Man Struck Dead by Falling Tree in Glamorgan.

A sad fatal accident occurred in the township of Glamorgan on Wednesday. Louis St. Onge, a young man whose home was in Deseronto, was with others felling trees in the woods for the Messrs. Rathbun. A tree which had been cut through, in falling lodged on another tree, and fell in a direction opposite to that expected. St. Onge was unable to get out of the way and a limb struck him a violent blow on the top of his head, splitting his head open in the centre from the forehead back. The unfortunate man was instantly killed.

Several workmen started from the shanty at about 6 o'clock with the body and, driving all night, reached Peterborough this morning. The body was taken to Belleville on the afternoon train to be conveyed on to Deseronto. St. Onge had only been seventeen days at the shanty and was married shortly before leaving home for the north. Another man who was with him at the time of the accident had a narrow escape.

Bosco's Performance.

Bosco, the magician, entertained the people at Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday night. The performance was a good one, the principal feature being, of course, the feats performed by Bosco. The Magician lacks not in the least in point of cleverness, but if he did his personal appearance and manner would make up for any deficiency. He has light hair, a luxuriant moustache of the same color and he wears faultless evening dress and a seemingly perennial smile. His voice is so musically persuasive that it lulls the audience into a sense of comfort and good humour. The presents given away were really a valuable lot, about one hundred being given away. Among other things there was a handsome silver ice pitcher. It was drawn by Mr. F. J. Lewis.

Grandest Display Ever Made in Peterborough.

Mr. J. J. Howden is celebrating the first Cheistmas season in his new and handsome shop by making the best and largest display of meats ever shown in Peterborough. He has procured the best cattle to be found in the local and Toronto markets, and his exhibit of dressed beef is therefore one of superior excellence—tastily dressed, excellent in quality and abundant in quantity. He also has a fine stock of smoked meats and a full line of braun, bologna and sausage. He returns thanks to the public for the large patronage they have given him in the past, and invites all to go in and see for themselves the quality of the meat he offers for sale. 4d147

Runaway.

Mr. Thos. Howden's bay mare, which was tied in the City Hotel yard this afternoon, broke from the post and galloped out at three o'clock. She rattled up George Street and while she did so kicked the outer to pieces. At the corner of Simcoe Street she fell and was captured.

Closed and Closing.

The evening classes at the Business College have closed, to re-organize Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, 1888. The closing exercises of the day session will be conducted to-morrow (Friday) evening, commencing at 8 o'clock. Anyone interested in the students or College, or business education, will please accept this as an invitation to be present.

Brevities.

—Free dance at the Opera House to-night.

—The Young Men's Conservative Club meets this evening.

—The election in East Northumberland, caused by the unseating of the Reform member, Dr. Mallory, takes place to-day.

—The first daily issue of the Empire, Toronto's new paper, will appear on Tuesday next and the weekly on Thursday.

—A switchman at Port Hope named Alexander, caught his foot in a frog on Tuesday night. The engineer of the express train stopped it just as it reached him, but Alexander sprained his ankle in his efforts to escape.

The Profession of Arms.

Early next week Mr. Thos. Burke—familiarly known as Capt. Burke—and who has for the past eighteen months held the position of manager of the mechanical departments of this office, leaves for the west, where he has accepted an appointment in "D." Company, Royal School of Infantry, stationed at London. This school is under the command of Col. Smith, formerly of the Third Military district, and an officer who served with distinction in the North West. Capt. Burke has instructions to proceed to London at once and take up his duties in connection with the school, for which he is in every way qualified. His many friends throughout the town and county will no doubt regret his departure, and his zeal and ability will be missed in connection with the local militia organizations.

For One Week.

Robt. H. Baird's Dramatic Company play at the Opera House, for one week, commencing Monday, Dec. 26th. Of the company the London Free Press says:—"Robt. H. Baird's Dramatic Company opened a week's engagement at the City Opera House last night before a good audience, and seemed to please those in attendance very much. The play was "Queen's Evidence" and the parts were all quite well sustained. Mr. Baird supplying the fun as Solomon Isaacs, the Jew, and Edwin Houghton carrying through the part of Matthew Thornton the heavy villain, with marked ability. Jennie Harvey as Mrs. Medland exhibited a good deal of dramatic training and skill, and Barry Harvey made an excellent Gilbert Medland. The company is well balanced throughout, and it is very seldom that as good dramatic entertainments as that given last night can be seen for the money." 1d147

Men From Ohio.

Messrs. Sam. T. Fisk, W. B. Taylor, J. H. Detwiler, A. Wood, J. R. B. Ransom, Geo. B. Hall, W. H. Smith, J. H. Ainsworth, of Toledo, Ohio, and Lieut.-Gov. McDonald, of Michigan, are in town to-day. They registered at the Oriental Hotel and after a while drove over to the Meldrum, Davidson & Co's. Mills. Mr. Barkdull, of the Toledo Daily Blade, is with the party to see that none of them do anything that is not Toledolike. At the mill the delegation was piloted around by Mr. Cochrane, the inventor of the flouring systemgused in the mill, which the visitors came to see. The Business Men's Association, of Toledo, have decided to erect a gigantic flour mill on the Cochrane plan, and the men who visited the system to-day are a delegation from that Association to carry back convincing proof that the mill is what it is represented to be. Toledo, it may be remarked, is the place where the citizens get natural gas at about the same rate as daylight. It is piped into the city from the wells forty miles away and is given away almost for nothing. Manufacturers are heading for Toledo from all over to take advantage of the cheap fuel.

Christmas Gifts for the Hussars.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—Prince William presented the usual Christmas gifts to the Hussars. In a speech he reminded the men that the times had become grave and the future uncertain, and said that they should recollect the fact that the Emperor called valor, honor and obedience the three main pillars of the army.

The New Freight Rates.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Commissioner Fink to-day issued the following: "In accordance with the vote of the joint committee the rates of fourth, fifth and sixth classes, both east bound and west bound, will be advanced on Jan. 2, 1888, to the following basis: Between New York and Chicago, fourth class, 33½ cents; fifth class, 33 cents; sixth class, 27½ cents per hundred pounds."

The Montreal Detectives' Case Postponed.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21.—Owing to the illness of Mr. Kerr, Q.C., counsel for the prosecution, the case of Fahey, Naegele and Bureau was postponed until to-morrow. Detective Flynn states that Conroy was a theatrical man at one time and only came to Montreal to assist in convicting Fahey and Naegele.

Secretary Manning's Recovery Improbable.

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 21.—Ex-Secretary Manning has rested quietly to-day, and his general condition is unchanged. His physicians do not look for an immediate crisis, but his recovery is improbable.

ENNISMORE.

Correspondence of the Review.

ADDRESS.—Mr. J. R. Stratton addressed a large meeting of the ratepayers of Ennismore at O'Reilly's school house, school section No 3, on Wednesday Dec. 14th. The subject was the legislature work of the parliament during the last year. Mr. Stratton got a good hearing and went away well satisfied with his visit.

ACCIDENT.—While Michael Shannahan and his sister were driving to church last Sunday the horse run away and threw the occupants out and continued at a terrible speed along the road for about a mile and half, until it caught up to Mr. John Twomey's carriage. The wheels of the buggy and carriage got caught in one another. The carriage got upset and Mrs. Twomey was seriously hurt, receiving a large cut in her head and other bodily injuries. The horses ran away breaking both carriage and buggy to a certain extent.

A HINT AS TO A CHRISTMAS GIFT.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—At a time when people are often wondering what would be a nice Christmas present for "children of a larger growth" who have got beyond the period of Toys, I suggest that a ticket of membership for the Mechanics Institute will be found most acceptable. All through the year it can be used. It furnishes the reading of not one book, but many, heavy reading and light reading, works of reference and scientific works, while the illustriated papers, magazines, ect. are always fresh and interesting. The sliding scale of charges where there are several members in one family, is very liberal. Besides all this our Public Library, for such it is, is deserving of a more generous and more general support than it receives from our townspeople.

Yours, etc.,
READER.

WILL THEY BE HOLIDAYS?

THE MONDAYS FOLLOWING CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S.

Examinations in Queen's, N.B., Jan. 11, and Polling Day Jan. 18—Mr. Chamberlain at The Capital—A Special Mass For Snow.

OTTAWA, Dec. 21.—Christmas and New Year's Day falling on Sunday this year, the question as to whether the Monday after each day will be a holiday is attracting some attention. So far as proclaiming it a public holiday is concerned, it is understood that the statute does not give power to proclaim any days except for Thanksgiving, and as we have already had one Thanksgiving Day this year it would scarcely do to proclaim two more within a week of each other. The question of observing the days, therefore, will be left to the public, and no doubt the Monday after New Year's at least will be pretty well observed. With regard to the public offices, the Minister of Customs stated to-night that while no instructions to close the Custom houses would be issued collectors would be allowed to use large discretion with regard to the Mondays after Christmas and New Year's, so long as they were careful that the public interest did not suffer. The Postmaster-General stated that so far as his department was concerned the matter was not decided yet. It is most probable, however, that in large cities only one delivery of letters will be made and the postoffice be open only a portion of the day. But mails will go out as usual.

It is understood that Mr. Richard Pope, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, will shortly be appointed Commissioner of Patents and be succeeded by Mr. S. E. St Onge Chapleau, brother of the Secretary of State and ex-Sheriff of the Northwest Territory.

The resignation of Mr. Baird, the sitting member for Queen's, N.B., having been received by the Speaker and accepted, a new writ has been issued. Nomination will be on Jan. 11 and polling on Jan. 18. Mr. Baird will again be the Conservative candidate and will most probably be opposed by Mr. King.

An order-in-council has been passed placing the limit of the lobster fishery season in the Atlantic, Bay of Fundy, from Cape Canso westward, at July 1, and in the waters of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec, including Amherst and Magdalen Islands, at July 15. This shortens the season over a month and it is thought will contract the business sufficiently to effect the desired remedy.

Inspector Gravelle of the Inland Revenue Department has just reported the seizure of two illicit whisky stills in Portneuf County, Quebec. The information which led to the descent of the officer was, it is alleged, furnished by an individual who set them up in the business.

There is no truth in the story, published in The Free Press and other Opposition papers, that settlers in the Fort McLeod District are suffering owing to the delay in receiving patents for their lands, and that parties who purchased town sites three years ago have not yet got their patents. Application at the Department of the Interior elicited the information that all patents for lands in the Fort McLeod District which could be issued have been issued. There are a few cases where there is some doubt about the names of the parties to whom the patents should be issued and these persons have been written to, some of them several times, for the necessary information, and so soon as they give it the patents will be issued.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, accompanied by his private secretary and Mr. Bergens, official secretary to the Fisheries Commission, arrived by special train from Montreal at 4 this afternoon, they having missed the regular morning train. They were met at the station by Capt. Streetfield, military secretary, and Lieut. Pakenham, A.D.C., and driven to Government House, where Mr. Chamberlain will be a guest during his stay at the Capital. This evening His Excellency gave a dinner, at which Sir John Macdonald, Sir Hector Langevin and other ministers were present; and its understood that dinner parties will be given by His Excellency every night this week.

The Department of Marine to-day received a telegram from its agent at Moncton, N.B., stating that the brigantine G.L.B. of Gaspe, outward bound for Portugal, has been wrecked near Cape Bald, Nfld. The master and crew, consisting of seven men, have reached Moncton in a destitute condition. No other particulars were received. The crew will be furnished pecuniary assistance by the department to reach Gaspe.

Sir Charles Tupper returned to the city to-day looking extremely well after his trip. In a brief conversation he said that he could not supplement what he had said in Winnipeg with reference to the Fisheries Commission. He was not at liberty to give any intimation as to what had been or may be done, but he was hopeful of good results.

Postmaster-General McLelan returned last night from his trip to Washington with reference to arranging for a parcels post service between Canada and the United States. He says all arrangements have been satisfactorily concluded and will go into effect on Feb. 1. The limit of weight will be five pounds.

Snow is greatly needed in the vicinity of Ottawa, the country being generally bare and [illegible]. A special mass for Church in East Templeton on Christmas Day.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

Leaning on the parapet of the balcony, Agnes looked vacantly into the black void beneath. Her thoughts reverted to the miserable man who had broken his pledged faith to her and who had died in that house. Some change seemed to have come over her since her arrival in Venice; some new influence appeared to be at work. For the first time in her experience of herself compassion and regret were not the only emotions aroused in her by the remembrance of the dead Montbarry. A keen sense of the wrong that she had suffered, never yet felt by that gentle and forgiving nature, was felt by it now. She found herself thinking of the by gone days of her humiliation almost as harshly as Henry Westwick had thought of them—she who had rebuked him the last time he had spoken slightingly of his brother in her presence! A sudden fear and doubt of herself startled her physically as well as morally. She turned from the shadowy abyss of the dark water, as if the mystery and the gloom of it had been answerable for the emotions which had taken her by surprise. Abruptly closing the window, she threw aside her shawl and lit the candles on the mantelpiece, impelled by a sudden craving for light in the solitude of her room.

The cheering brightness round her contrasting with the black gloom outside, restored her spirits. She felt herself enjoying the light like a child!

Would it be well (she asked herself) to get ready for bed? No! The sense of drowsy fatigue that she had felt half an hour since was going. She returned to the dull employment of unpacking her boxes. After a few minutes only the occupation became irksome to her once more. She sat down by the table and took up a guide book. "Suppose I inform myself," she thought, "on the subject of Venice?"

Her attention wandered from the book before she had turned the first page of it.

The image of Henry Westwick was the present image in her memory now. Recalling the minutest incidents and details of the evening, she could think of nothing which presented him under other than a favorable and interesting aspect. She smiled to herself softly, her color rose by fine gradation as she felt the full luxury of dwelling on the perfect truth and modesty of his devotion to her. Was the depression of spirits from which she had suffered so persistently on her travels attributable, by any chance, to their long separation from each other—imbittered, perhaps, by her own vain regret when she remembered her rash reception of him in Paris? Suddenly conscious of this bold question and of the self-abandonment which it implied, she returned mechanically to her book, startled by the unrestrained liberty of her own thoughts. What lurking temptations to forbidden tenderness find their hiding places in a woman's dressing gown, when she is alone in her room at night! With her heart in the tomb of the dead Montbarry, could Agnes even think of another man and think of love? How shameful! how unworthy of her! For the second time she tried to interest herself in the guide book—and once more she tried in vain. Throwing the book aside she turned desperately to the one resource that was left, to her luggage—resolved to fatigue herself without mercy until she was weary enough and sleepy enough to find safe refuge in bed.

For some little time she persisted in the monotonous occupation of transferring her clothes from the trunk to the wardrobe. The large clock in the hall, striking midnight, reminded her that it was getting late. She sat down for a moment in an arm chair by the bedside to rest,

The silence in the house now caught her attention and held it—held it disagreeably. Was everybody in bed and asleep but herself? Surely it was time for her to follow the general example! With a certain irritable, nervous haste she rose and again undressed herself. "I have lost two hours of rest," she thought, frowning at the reflection of herself in the glass, as she arranged her hair for the night. "I shall be good for nothing to-morrow!"

She lit the night light and extinguished the candles—with one exception, which she removed to a little table placed on the side of the bed opposite to the side occupied by the arm chair. Having put her traveling box of matches and the guide book near the candle in case she might be sleepless and might want to read, she blew out the light and laid her head on the pillow.

The curtains of the bed were looped back to let the air pass freely over her. Lying on her left side, with her face turned away from the table, she could see the arm chair by the dim night light. It had a chintz covering—representing large bunches of roses scattered over a pale green ground. She tried to weary herself into drowsiness by counting over and over again the bunches of roses that were visible from her point of view. Twice her attention was distracted from the counting by sounds outside—by the clock chiming the half hour past 12; and then again by the fall of a pair of boots on the upper floor, thrown out to be cleaned, and with that barbarous disregard of the comfort of others which is observable in humanity when it inhabits an hotel. In the silence that followed these passing disturbances Agnes went on counting the roses on the arm chair more and more slowly. Before long she confused herself in the figures—tried to begin counting again—thought she would wait a little first—felt her eyelids drooping and her head sinking lower and lower on the pillow—sighed faintly—and sunk into sleep.

How long that first sleep lasted she never knew. She could only remember in the after time that she woke instantly.

Every faculty and perception in her passed the boundary line between insensibility and consciousness, so to speak, at a leap. Without knowing why she sat up suddenly in the bed, listening for she knew not what. Her head was in a whirl; her heart beat furiously, without any assignable cause. But one trivial event had happened during the interval while she had been asleep. The night light had gone out, and the room, as a matter of course, was in total darkness.

She felt for the match box, and paused after finding it. A vague sense of confusion was still in her mind. She was in no hurry to light the match. The pause in the darkness was, strangely enough, agreeable to her.

In the quieter flow of her thoughts during this interval she could ask herself the natural question: What cause had awakened her so suddenly, and had so strangely shaken her nerves? Had it been the influence of a dream? She had not dreamed at all—or, to speak more correctly, she had no waking remembrance of having dreamed. The mystery was beyond her fathoming; the darkness began to oppress her. She struck the match on the box and lit her candle.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be hoodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before.' Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

MR. CHAMBERLAIN TALKS.

THE FISHERIES COMMISSIONER'S VIEWS ON COMMERCIAL UNION.

Little Said Regarding the Commission—A Free Expression of Opinion on the Fad, Imperial Federation, Canadian Independence, Protection and Free Trade

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—Several attempts to interview Hon. Mr. Chamberlain having been made without success, he adopted the same course which he took in New York and Washington and appointed 6 o'clock this evening as the hour at which he would see all the pressmen who wished to interview him. Accordingly at that hour eight pressmen, representing Toronto, Montreal and local papers, repaired to Rideau Hall and had a sort of general interview with him which lasted over half an hour and was to a great extent a desultory conversation, but Mr. Chamberlain expressed himself more decidedly in some points than he has hitherto done at any interview.

With regard to the Fisheries Commission he would say very little, simply stating that the Commissioners were bound to secrecy and he could neither say what had been done or what it was expected would be accomplished. He by no means admitted that the negotiations so far were a failure, and although he did not exactly say so in his brief remarks on this subject, he left the impression on the minds of at least some of his interviewers that he thought the negotiations might last for some time after the reassembling of the Commission on January 4 and that he was hopeful of a satisfactory settlement.

With regard to Commercial Union, he expressed himself more freely, saying in effect that while the great majority of the people of England were in favor of Free Trade and opposed to Protection, they did not object to Canada managing her own tariff to suit herself, so long as she did not discriminate against the Motner Country. Under the present tariff arrangement in Canada, he said, the child treated the mother as well as it did the stranger; but, with Commercial Union, the child would be treating the stranger better than the mother, and it could hardly be expected that such an arrangement would be satisfactory. He declined to express any very decided opinion about Commercial Union until he had been answered three questions: First—What was really meant by the expression "Commercial Union"? Second—Whether a majority of the people of Canada were in favor of it. Third—Whether a majority of the people of the United States were in favor of it. On the latter point, he said, that during his stay in New York and Washington he had not heard an intelligent American speak of the matter except in the sense that it would lead to annexation, and that he did not know of a prominent American who advocated the scheme seriously.

Here a representative of one of Mr. Wiman's organs said: "There is Mr. Wiman."

"Ah! yes," said Mr. Chamberlain, bringing his single eye-glass to bear on his questioner, "there is Mr. Wiman, but Mr. Wiman does not happen to be the whole American people."

"But," continued Mr. Wiman's agent, "a bill has been introduced in Congress by Mr. Butterworth."

"Quite true," replied Mr. Chamberlain, "but Congress has no more idea of passing the bill than they have of flying."

Continuing, he said that if the people of Canada really wanted to be independent of the Mother Country, or to be annexed to the United States, he did not think the Mother Country would seriously object. He felt certain that England would never make war on a colony again to retain it in the Empire, as had been done with the thirteen American colonies that revolted.

In reply to a question as to Canada's being given the right to make her own treaties, he said that practically Canada was almost independent, but it would not be fair to expect that she should make her own treaties and then depend on the Mother Country to see that those treaties were enforced.

Here the conversation drifted back to Commercial Union, and Mr. Chamberlain began to interview his interviewers, and wanted to know how it was proposed to arrange the tariff under it. If the tariff was arranged at Washington Canada must surely lose her independence, for the tariff would surely be arranged in the interest of the 60,000,000 population in the States and not of the 5,000,000 in Canada. He referred to President Cleveland's message advocating a reduction of the tariff and pretty clearly intimated his opinion that in the event of Commercial Union Canada would find that she would have practically no voice in framing the tariff.

With regard to Imperial Federation he said he would like to see some scheme formulated in writing before he expressed any opinion on the subject.

With reference to Canada's independence he said that no one doubted that if Canada wished to be independent of the Mother Country she could be, but whether the step would be a wise one or not would be a matter for the serious consideration of the Canadian people.

On English politics he declined to say anything whatever, but chatted pleasantly for a few minutes on the question of the growth of the temperance sentiment in England which he thought was very marked. There was less drunkenness and the tone of the mass of the people seemed to be towards greater sobriety.

Mr. Chamberlain expressed himself well pleased with the small sample of Canadian winter he had experienced and hoped to enjoy more of it. He could not say positively what his future movements would be, but he expected to visit Toronto next week and also Niagara Falls. If time permitted after the conclusion of his labors in Washington he hoped to take a run across the continent on the Canadian Pacific Railway, but that would depend a great deal on when he had to return to England. He certainly did not expect to return to England for the opening of the Imperial Parliament.

Mr. Chamberlain was exceedingly affable in his manner, answered all questions to which he considered he could properly reply with great frankness, and did not show the slightest hesitancy about freely expressing his opinions on subjects which he thought it proper for him to discuss.

Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper spent the greater part of the morning with Mr. Chamberlain and lunched with His Excellency. To-night there is a state dinner at Rideau Hall, at which all the Cabinet Ministers were invited.

A Freight War.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—The Chicago and Alton has reopened the western freight war by making a reduction of 10 per cent. on the rates between Chicago and St. Louis. The Wabash and the Illinois Central will both meet the Alton's reductions to-morrow.

THE FAD AGAIN KNOCKED OUT.

Cochrane Elected in East Northumberland —A Conservative Gain.

BRIGHTON, Dec. 22.—The fight in the riding was an exceedingly bitter one, and has resulted in the return of Mr. Cochrane, the Conservative candidate. Commercial Union was the great card played here, Wiman's money and the best speakers that the supporters of the fad could muster thrown in.

There is great rejoicing here. The member-elect and Dr. Willoughby addressed an immense crowd this evening.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION IN TORONTO.

A Branch of the League Organized—Independence Would Not Last Any Time.

TORONTO, Dec. 23.

Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q.C., was half an hour late in putting in an appearance at the meeting held last night in Shaftesbury Hall to discuss the advisability of forming a Toronto branch of the Imperial Federation League.

Mr. McCarthy explained the object of the organization as being to perpetuate the union which now so happily exists between the United Kingdom and her colonies. It behooved the people of this country to consider their probable destiny. "If we had independence, how long would we maintain it?" asked Mr. McCarthy. A prominent Canadian statesman had answered the question for him by stating that the present fisheries dispute would be settled by the Americans in forty-eight hours if Canada was independent. He did not know the exact details of the scheme, but it guaranteed at all events all the rights which Canada now possesses. He believed the scheme would have to include a parliament, in which all the colonies would be represented.

Mr. G. R.R. Cockburn, M.P., supported the scheme in a forcible speech and moved a resolution, which was carried unanimously, that a branch be formed in Toronto. Mr. Hamilton Merritt, Mr. George Kerr, jr., and other gentlemen also supported the movement. A membership role was opened and a large number signed it. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of Mr. McCarthy.

DEATH FROM A FALLING TREE.

A Fatal Accident in Glamorgan—A Peterboro Boy Strangled.

PETERBORO, Dec. 22.—A fatal accident occurred in the Township of Glamorgan, about seventy-five miles north of this place, on Wednesday. Louis St. Onge, a young man from Deseronto employed at one of Rathbun's lumber shanties, was with others engaged in felling a tree. When it came down all the rest got away. While he was hurrying away a limb of the falling tree struck him, dealing him a violent blow. His head, from the forehead back, was split open, causing instant death. The body reached here to-day. St. Onge was married a short time before he went to the woods.

A shocking and at the same time remarkably strange accident happened here yesterday afternoon, but its fatal results were not known till this morning. Wm. McMaster, a carpenter who lives on Sherbourne-street, went into his workshop at about 8 o'clock, and was horrified at the sight he saw. From the ceiling a body was dangling, but the head was in the upper story. He soon recognized the body as that of his son Freddie, a lad of 13 years. Freddie had gone away from home the day before, at noon, without saying where he was going. His parents at night concluded he had gone away with one of the town drovers, as he had before, and that he would return in the morning. After leaving home the boy told one of his companions that he was going to the shop for some nails, and he had done so. The nails were in the second story. There was no ladder to climb, the way of gaining the apartment being "jump and catch." The boy was not tall enough to do this, but he got a sawhorse to give him the required height. He stood up, pushed the loose boards upward and was about to ascend when the sawhorse went from under his feet. The boards came down again and ensnared him at the neck, his own weight drawing them so close together that no sound could escape from him. His neck was not broken, but he must have soon died from strangulation.

Anxious About Furloughs.

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Military circles here are anxious to learn whether the long furloughs, ordinarily granted by Russia on Jan. 13 to her army officers who are longest in the service, will be given next month. Letters from Moscow state that a number of officers have already been warned not to arrange for leave of absence.

THE CANADIAN MILITIA.

THE STORY THAT IT IS DISORGANIZED THOUHGT A GOOD JOKE.

Nomination in Dorchester Jan. 7, Election Jan. 14—The Canal at the Sault—The New Forest Post—The Sims and Slater Contract on the Short Line.

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—The writ Dorchester has been issued. Nomination takes place on Jan. 7 and election on Jan. 14. The only writ unissued now is that for Kent.

There is considerable trouble in Cape Breton over the Sims & Slater contract on the Short Line Railway. No arrangement has yet been made for completing the work and the sureties stand a chance of losing their $75,000 deposit. Superintendent Sherwood of the Dominion Police, who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Slater, went down some time ago in the interests of the sureties but seems to have met with poor success, as he has been capsased and arrested by the sheriff, but subsequently released on bail.

It is likely that work on the proposed canal on the Canadian side at Sault Ste. Marie will not be commenced until late next spring. Tenders were to have been called for next month, but the delay has been occasioned by the incompleteness of the extensive specifications required by the contractors. A great many individuals have already visited the scene with the view of tendering.

The cablegram from a London correspondent alleging that the War Office authorities regard the Canadian militia as disorganized and almost without discipline has created much amusement in military circles. Both Deputy Minister Panet and Adjutant-General Powell regard it as a good joke. If the imaginative correspondent had only for a moment put on his thinking cap and recollected the expedition with which our volunteers reached the scene of the recent rebellion in the Northwest under the most trying circumstances, he certainly would not be foolish enough to give publicity to the allegation. The force is not perfection, but considering the comparatively small annual outlay, it is wonderfully effective. Adjutant-General Powell is right when he says: "The facts are that the organization of the militia is most excellent and the discipline has been maintained without any considerable effort. The men are patriotic enough to perform their duty without coercion."

As there appears to be an impression here that the new parcel post to be established on Feb. 1 between Canada and the United States is to be confined to correspondence, books, etc.; it may be as well to state that it is to include merchandise. The maximum weight will be five pounds, and the rate 12½ cents per pound.

The Tay Canal arbitration case was continued yesterday before Mr. John Page, C.E. Mr. Wise, superintending engineer of Rideau Canal, and Mr. Graham, C.E., were under examination.

Hon. Mr. Thompson, Minister of Justice, has gone to Halifax to spend Christmas with the members of his family. He will be absent about a week.

It having been stated that under the new mail contract, small and swift vessels would be subsidized, stopping at Quebec and not coming to Montreal, a deputation from the Montreal Board of Trade had an interview with Sir John Macdonald and members of the Privy Council to-day, and urged that Montreal should be made the terminal point for mail steamers. The Premier promised that the subject should receive consideration.

HOW THE DEACON FELL.

Trial of a "Green Goods" Man in New York —The Deacon Lectured.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Anthony Nelson, one of the "green goods" men recently arrested, was put on trial to-day. Allen Gilliland, the deacon of a church at his home in Tennessee, or "Sucker No. 82," as the "green goods" gang termed him, identified the letters he had received inviting him to come to New York, where he could purchase $10,000 for $650. Counsel for the prisoner asked to have the case taken from the jury and his client discharged on the grounds that there was no proof that the "goods" mentioned in the circular and letters was counterfeit money. Judge Cowing held that the point was well taken and discharged the prisoner.

Turning to the deacon the judge lectured him severely: "The best thing you can do," he said, "is to hurry back to Tennessee and don't come here again. Go back and tell your congregation how you fell."

THE CROWN PRINCE'S CONDITION.

His Appearance Improved and His Voice Stronger and Clearer.

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—The Tagblatt says: Dr. Telschow, the court dentist who went to San Remo to operate on the Crown Prince's teeth, has returned and reports the most favorable improvement in the Prince's appearance and in his voice, which is stronger and clearer. He says that the Crown Prince requested him to circulate widely this report in order to counteract the unfavorable rumors that have been published regarding his condition.

A SEMI-OFFICIAL DENIAL.

Russia Has Given no Intimation Regarding the Movements of Troops.

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—It is semi-officially stated that no communication whatever has been exchanged by the Austrian and Russian Governments concerning the present situation in Bulgaria, nor has Russia given any intimation regarding the movements of her troops on the frontier. It is considered still possible to arrange for the resignation of Prince Ferdinand and for the subsequent appointment of a regent in Bulgaria who will be agreeable to Russia.

They Removed His Clothes.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Mr. Sheehy, M.P., who was sentenced yesterday at Clonmel to one month's imprisonment for inciting resistance to evictions, was to-day thrown to the floor by the jail's warders, who then tied his hands and removed his clothes.

An Unusual Precaution.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 22.—All vessels, pontoons and tugs belonging to the Austrian Navigation Company have been ordered from the Lower Danube to Turnaverein for the winter. This is an unusual precaution.

A MISSIONARY TO THE POPE.

To Convert Him to an Approval of Coercion —A Priest Sentenced.

DUBLIN, Dec. 22.—United Ireland asserts that Sir Michael Morris, Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, Ireland, has started for Rome to assist in the conversion of the Pope to an approval of coercion.

A Month for Father Ryan.

DUBLIN, Dec. 22.—Father Matthew Ryan of County Limerick, one of the projectors of the Plan of Campaign, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment without hard labor for inciting the people to commit illegal acts.

Father Ryan declines to divest himself of his clerical attire in prison, and the Catholic wardens sustain him in his refusal.

Milan Lives Only For Servia.

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—The Neue Freie Presse says King Milan of Servia, replying to an address of congratulation presented to him by the Chamber of Deputies said the present moment was fraught with danger to Europe. If a conflict between Germany and Slav ideas should occur he said Servia should not participate but should remain a spectator. It would be impossible to Germanize Servian individuality but it might be Slavicized. Then it would disappear. The Obrenovitch family (his own) live only for a Servian idea.

"My desire," he continued, "is to follow my family traditions which are the secret of my foreign policy."

The Kaiser Did Not Write the Czar.

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—It is semi-officially denied that Gen. Von Schweinitz, the German Ambassador to Russia, took with him an autograph letter from Emperor William to the Czar.

FOR THE LATE BISHOP CARBERY.

A Requiem Mass at St. Mary's in Hamilton —Deficit in the Central Fair Treasury.

HAMILTON, Dec. 22.—This morning a solemn requiem mass was celebrated in St. Mary's Cathedral by Archbishop Lynch for the repose of the soul of the late Bishop Carbery. The interior of the cathedral was draped with crape artistically arranged in heavy festoons from the centre of the roof to the pillars. There was a large attendance of the clergy and laity from all parts of the diocese.

To-day was the greatest day of the year in the Public Schools of the city, the day for the distribution of prizes to the pupils. The schools were nicely decorated for the occasion, the Central School especially so.

At a meeting of the Central Fair Committee this afternoon the fact was reported by the treasurer that there was a deficit of $628.25.

H. O. Sonntag of this city has been honorably acquitted of the charge of obtaining a draft by false pretences. The case was called at the General Sessions and the Crown had no evidence to offer against him.

A Reckless Engine-Driver.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—An incoming Baltimore and Ohio train plowed at full speed through the crowd boarding the Illinois Central suburban train at Van Buren-street station last evening. Miss Lollie Launderville was fatally injured. Immediately after the accident the cab was boarded by an infuriated crowd of persons. The engineer was roughly seized, and cries of "Lynch him," "Kill him," were shouted from hundreds of throats. The engineer was finally rescued by officers, and was quickly spirited away.

The Color Line in Tennessee.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 22.—A special from Glenmary, Tenn., says that a big riot occurred there Tuesday night, when a mass of colored and white workmen became involved in a quarrel. Michael Murray and a boy were killed and a number were injured.

They Want to Know, You Know.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The Senate to-day adopted a resolution calling upon the Secretary of State for the correspondence and records of the State Department relating to the German occupation of the Samoan Islands and Apia.

FROM FLORIDA.

By the way we had a windfall a few weeks ago which is a peculiar institution of our Florida Coast. I refer to the stranding of the steamship Panama a few miles below us. This coast for 150 miles is a beautiful level sand beach and is a favourite place to run ashore with old and well insured vessels and every few years something of this kind occurs. The Panama—our most recent arrival—came ashore on a bright and beautiful night with the ocean as calm as a millpond and the shore visible three miles off certainly. How it happened no one may ever know, but the story goes that the man at the wheel was asleep. The weather continued fine and by throwing the cargo overboard the crew got her off on the third day after the stranding at high tide. When we got down to the scene of the accident we found the shore for miles strewn with tierces of lard, cases of bacon, barrels and bags of flour, cases of calico and other drygoods, bales of hay, cans of coal oil and turpentine and the thopsand and one things that go to make up the cargo of a large ocean steamer in the New York and Havana trade. We heard tales of cases of gold watches and valuable fancy goods but saw none, such portables if they were there having quickly found caretakers among the motly throng who had gathered from far and near to share the spoils. The salvage laws take no account of perishable goods in a case like this and the revenue officers from the life saving stations only took charge of the lard, coal oil and turpentine, all the other goods being left to the beach combers to save what they could. As there were some hundreds of barrels and bags of flour and as many more of potatoes, etc., besides the calico and other drygoods coming under this head you may imagine what a bonanza it was for the settlers. Amusing scenes were frequent, many fellows would get cases of bacon, barrels of flour, thousands of yards of calico, etc., stacked up on the beach above high water mark and then exhausted by their efforts would lie down fall asleep, to wake a few hours later and find it all gone, not into the ocean, but back into the scrub on the shore—spirited away. This kind of pilfering was considered quite fair and resulted in a more equitable division of the spoils than would otherwise have been arrived at, and indeed it served the greedy ones right. One fellow with perhaps $1,000 worth of goods around him claimed to have saved all there was of a certain pattern of calico and as he passed me on the trail from the ocean to the river, said he was just going over to the river landing to get all that calico. I met him again returning and he was more angry than ever. He had found from one to twenty-five bolts of his calico in each of about 40 boats, the owners of which simply laughed at him. Well, the result is that all the settlers of this section are well supplied with the necessaries of life for some time to come at the expense of the underwriters in New York. I joined the wreckers and got six barrels of flour, 150 pounds of bacon and about 150 pounds of lard from a tierce which the waves had started, also all the calico we will need for years and a share of the lead pencils, about a million of which came ashore—many parties have as many as twenty thousand—I was content with about 300. My friend Mr. Clementi got a good share of the plunder, too, and it would have done the boys good to see "Dod," flour from head to feet staggering over the trail with a large pillow case full over his shoulder, or to have seen him take a header like a saw Palmetto bush with two bushels of potatoes on top of him and his pockets full of lead pencils.

Every paper coming to hand now tells us of your cold and stormy weather, while here we are enjoying the most delightful days with temperature just right, neither too hot or too cold, and every day a fine one. I am writing on the verandah to-day, and as I look out on the beautiful river I see friend "Dod" with his fine sloop fly past. He is trying a new set of sails just received from the makers, and his yacht looks very neat and trim as she heels over with the fresh westerly breeze.

Some weeks ago—the same day by the way that you had a big snow storm—Mr. Clementi and his mother, and ourselves had a days fishing up the Sabastien River, a tributary of the Indian River, which comes in just below us. It is a beautiful fresh water stream about the size of the Burnt River and very much resembling it except that here we have have mangroves, palmettoes and the most luxuriant ferns, with beautiful white lillies in profusion. Instead of the alders and hardwoods of Somerville. This is our great bass fishing ground and in a few hours we got a good supply, although a late freshet had made the water too high for good sport. Mrs. Clementi was much pleased with the days trip and was gratified with a good view of the wonderful "meleagris gallopavro paradoxus" called by the ignorant natives not well up in Latin a Water Turkey. We saw no less than fourteen of these wonderful creatures which, when you look at them on a tree, you think they are a bird and when in the water they are exactly like a snake, then when starvation compels you to eat one, well, you think it is a fish which has been separated from its natural element for about a month. We visited several of the neighbouring groves on this trip and Mrs. Clementi picked her first orange from the tree and enjoyed the sight of many thousands of the golden fruit just taking on their bright yellow coats.

The ducks are all in now and are very numerous this fall. It is no exaggeration to say that there are acres of them—thousands won't do. On a still morning the whole surface of the river is dotted with them and over in the bays on the east side they can be "potted" easily by those who like that kind of sport. There are however very few hunters, as it takes time to get them and all of us are too busy here to go after them. We hope this winter that some of our Peterborough wanderers will come this way. We will warrant them a hearty welcome at Palmetto Place and a pleasant sojourn. Don't let exaggerated rumours of yellow fever deter you. We know nothing of it here and feel [illegible]. No case can originate [illegible] and the strict quarantine arrangements on the west coast confine the trouble to the towns where it originated. Well, I must draw this lengthy letter to a close. We hope you had a pleasant Thanksgiving and will have a merry Christmas and happy New Year. Our Thanksgiving comes next Thursday and we all go to a neighbors at Oak Lodge across the river for an oyster roast on a grand scale. They called in to invite us the other night when returning from the oyster beds down the river and had 150 bushels of fine ones in their sloop. With kindest remembrances to all old friends from our little Peterborough Colony, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
W. G. NESBITT.

Cohnfeld is Not "Mr. Hoffman."

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—J. Julius Frank, counsel for Isidor Cohnfeld, the feather merchant who recently disappeared, said to-night that he had to-day received a letter from Mr. Cohnfeld. Where his client was he would not say but he did say that Mr. Cohnfeld urged him to tell all reporters that the "Mr. Hoffman" so frequently spoken of as Cohnfeld of late and himself were too entirely distinct persons. Mr. Frank said Cohnfeld was in constant communication with several business men in this city. If the Chief of Police of Detroit had returned these bonds to the Olsen woman he did so because those who levied an attachment on them were unable to give the necessary security. The governess spoken of in the case as Mrs. Fenner was not a Mrs. but a Miss. She did not leave the city with Mr. Cohnseld, but followed after wards with the children.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

About those Holidays.

A paragraph in an article published in Thursday's REVIEW has occasioned some remark among business men as to whether the days following Christmas and New Years are legal holidays, in the sense as they apply to banks. Reference to the revised statutes, Chap. 23, Sect. 3 of the banking act states very distinctly that the days following Christmas and New Years—when those days happen to fall on a Sunday—are bank holidays. The bearing of the matter is that notes falling due on the 26th Dec. and 2nd Jan. are not payable until the days following.

Dramatic.

The play which is to be presented early in January under the auspices of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, "The Rose of Ettrick Vale," is one which holds the interest of the audience through out. It will be well presented. The ladies and gentlemen who are to take part in it are rehearsing regularly with success. The mechanical effects are in competent hands, those of Mr. R. M. Roy. Some of the scenes are said to be thrilling.

Young Men's Conservative Club,

A meeting of the Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Club was held on Thursday evening. The election of officers was, on motion, postponed and a discussion took place on the question of holding meetings regularly during the winter. It was proposed that some member read a paper on a political subject at each meeting, to be followed by a general discussion. This scheme was approved of, and a committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. A. McNeil, President, J. H. Burnham, Secretary, Minore, Robinson and Armstrong, was appointed to select members to read papers. The next meeting of the Association will be held on the evening of Tuesday, January 10th, when Mr. J. Hampden Burnham will read a paper on commercial union.

Baird Coming.

The Guelph Herald says of the Baird Dramatic Company:—"A beautiful little Irish drama, entitled the Bells of Shandon, was produced by the Baird Company in the city hall on Wednesday evening. There was a full house, and the applause was frequent and hearty. The leading role, that of Fergus McCarthy, was taken by Mr. Baird. In the prologue he played the part of a young, gay-hearted Irishman with his accustomed ease and naturalness. As the old man, returned from America, and looking for his lost child, he was deeply sympathetic and and exceedingly funny by turns. Mr. Rowland appeared quite at home as Dennis; Mr. Harvey was good as Henrick Wolf, and Mamie Harvey as usual played her leading role most pleasingly." d149

No Christmas tree so attractive as one dressed with LONG BROS.' Choice Candies and Confectionery. 3d147

Sunday School Entertainment.

The Christmas entertainment of the St John's Church Sunday School children took place as announced in the school room on Thursday evening. The attendance was fair but not as large as it should have been. The programme, consisted of vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations, magic lantern, cantatas and tableaux was well carried out. The best pieces on the programme were the duet by Misses Beck and Wrighton, the cantata of the children visiting the fairies and the dust by the children on the piano. The Fairy Queen was decidedly the little star of the evening and she was well supported by her six attendants. During the cantata the gas in the school room was turned off, a bright light from the magic lantern being brought to bear on the Fairy Queen and to follow her and her attendants where ever they moved, making their little dresses, on which were sewn thousands of plated spangles, sparkle like diamonds. In the children's cantata one of the leading characters had a very bad cold, which greatly interfered with her singing and some of them were evidently nervous. Miss Lizzie Dawson's solos were perhaps the best and the choruses were excellently well rendered. The whole of the cantatas reflected great credit and showed wonderful patience on the part of the young lady who accompanied them on the instrument, for the training of a number of children is not the easiest thing one can find to do. A fair sum was added to the fund with which it is intended to purchase a library for the Sunday School.

AN UNPROFITABLE SALE.

A Pair of Boots and $16 in Change for a Bad Cheque.

On Thursday a man who purporting to be Wm. Ferguson walked into Messrs. Foote & McWhinnie's boot and shoe store.

The man was in a hurry. He was going out out to Toole's woods to work and he wanted a pair of felt boots before going. He had a cheque made by Mr. Jas. Stevenson and if they would cash the cheque he would buy the boots.

Mr. Foote took down the boots and Mr. Ferguson at once picked out a pair of number nines. He was in such a hurry to catch the train that he did not wait to try the boots on. He handed over the cheque which was drawn on the Ontario Bank by Mr. Jas. Stevenson for the sum of $18.

"Is that your name?" queried Mr. Foote, "Yes," said the man.

"Then endorse the cheque."

The man explained that he could not write, wherat Mr. Foote got him to put on the cross and he (Mr. Foote) added the words "per Wm. Ferguson." Mr. Foote then gave the stranger a X, a V and a I, the price of the boots being $2.

As soon as the man got the change he picked up the boots without waiting to have them done up in a parcel and hied away down street.

The firm were somewhat surprised when, presenting it at the Ontario Bank, the cheque was pronounced no good. They sought the police and gave the matter over into their hands.

Toole's woods are near Omemee and there is a Mr. James Stevenson living at Omemee.

It was thought that perhaps the cheque was drawn by the Omemee Stevenson and not Mayor Stevenson. This is not so, however, as the signature on the cheque is a very deliberate attempt at forging the Mayor's style of writing his name.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

A Freight Train off the Track up the Line.

The eastern express on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk railway did not reach town till about half past three o'clock this afternoon.

The cause of the delay was the running off of a freight train a mile east of Goodwood, which necessiated transhipment. One of the trucks on the engine gave way and the train, consisting of seven cars laden with lumber, was thrown off the rails.

The morning express from Peterborough waited at the scene of the accident till the east bound express came up. An exchange of passengers took place, and each train turned back.

The track was cleared of the debris in the usual prompt manner and the line is now open again.

Sunday School Institute.

The Cobourg World says:—"A Sabbath School Institute, under the auspices of the Presbytery of Peterborough, was held in the Presbyterian Church, Grafton, on Dec. 15th and 16th. The following Sunday Schools were represented:—Baltimore, Vernonville, Ilangowan, Hoskin's Union, Wicklow,—Baptist, Wicklow, Methodist, Grafton;—Methodist, Grafton,—Presbyterian. The chair was occupied by the Rev. W. A. McKenzie, B.D., and the following reverend gentlemen delivered addresses:—Messrs. Learoyd, McCrae, Duncan and McEwen. The Institute was under the control of the Rev. J. McEwen, of Lakefield, who is a noted Sabbath School worker, and was for several years Secretary of the Sunday School Association of Ontario. The blackboard exercises were full of instruction, and the subjects handled by Mr. McEwan were intensely interesting. The teachers carried off many suggestions and thoughts which they intend to utilize in their schools. The attendance was good."

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

No Surrender.

The advocates of Commercial Union are now hedging on this cry, but apparently they have overlooked the important fact that all those whoes applications are sent in before the 31st inst., will share in this year's profits in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company. The profits will be allocated on the 11th April proximo. Not less than 22½ per cent. will be the cash dividend. é. e. henderson, is the general agent, Peterborough, to whom application should be made immediately. d147

A Fine Window.

The display of Christmas presents, &c made by W.J. Mason, next door to the Bank of Toronto, for artistic arangements and effect, probably excels anything yet produced in town, and the pleased exclamation of the ladies, who are doubtless the best judges in such matters, is strong presumptive evidence that they regard the good things on show as of the very freshest and best. By all means see that window.

Grandest Display Ever Made in Peterborough.

Mr. J. J. Howden is celebrating the first Cheistmas season in his new and handsome shop by making the best and largest display of meats ever shown in Peterborough. He has procured the best cattle to be found in the local and Toronto markets, and his exhibit of dressed beef is therefore one of superior excellence—tastily dressed, excellent in quality and abundant in quantity He also has a fine stock of smoked meats and a full line of braun, bologna and sausage. He returns thanks to the public for the large patronage they have given him in the past, and invites all to go in and see for themselves the quality of the meat he offers for sale. 4d147

Personal.

Mr. T. A. Rowan, formerly Modern Language Master in the Collegiate Institute here, is in town. He is completely recovered from his recent illness.

Mr. Wm. Wood, of Woodstock, formerly of Peterborough, is in town to spend Christmas.

The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw preached the anniversary sermon of St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook. The Port Hope Times' correspondent says that Mr. Bradshaw "preached an excellent sermon to a large and appreciative congregation."

Mr. J. Flavelle, who is ill with typhoid fever in Toronto, is doing well. Under careful attendance he will in all likelihood recover soon.

"AS PATRIOTIC CANADIANS."

Representative Montreal Liberals Opposed to the Wiman Fad.

MONTREAL, Dec. 22.—A reporter interviewed yesterday several business men of this city having considerable interest in the commercial prosperity of Canada, and who are among the most respected and representative Liberals of the Province of Quebec. They unanimously agreed that Commercial Union and unrestricted reciprocity were equal to annexation to the States and equal to one another. In their own words, as "patriotic Canadians they opposed the Wiman fad."

"I am dead against Commercial Union," said Ald. Jacques Grenier. "I maintain that it means nothing less than annexation. I cannot understand that any business man would favor Commercial Union, especially any one interested in manufactures, and in my opinion unrestricted reciprocity means the same thing as Commercial Union."

"I am emphatically opposed to Commercial Union," said Mr. Edgar Judge. "I certainly would not approve of giving another country the preference and advantage over our mother land. I verily believe reciprocity would ruin the grain business. Under such a treaty Canada would be flooded with runners from American mills, and the probability is that they would enter into unfair competition with Canadian millers."

Mr. George Childs was then seen. He said: "From what I know I have no hesitation in saying that Commercial Union is not desirable in the interests of Canada. My opinion is that Commercial Union is merely an opening wedge for Annexation, and that in the first instance it would also be treating England very unfairly. I do not think that unrestricted reciprocity would be desirable either.

Mr. Johnathan Hodgson, who is a universal Free Trader, favored reciprocity in natural products but was unalterably opposed to Commercial Union.

Mr. George Hague said Commercial Union and Unrestricted Reciprocity both mean Annexation. "The men who advocate Commercial Union are afraid to come out openly for Annexation and they try to gild the pill with another name. I am opposed to either scheme, as every patriotic Canadian should

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

TORONTO, Dec. 22.

The grain and produce markets show little change, being firm and fairly active.

On call at the Board of Trade to-day: No. 2 fall wheat 83c bid for 10,000 bushels. One car of No. 2 fall offered at 85c and 84c bid for No. 2 red winter. No 1 Manitoba hard offered at 87½c, with 86½c bid.

The car lots received at Chicago to-day were: Winter wheat 2, spring wheat 60, corn 126, and oats 78.

STILL AFTER THE BONDS.

ANOTHER BILL FILED AGAINST COHNFELD AT DETROIT.

Isidor Back in Toronto—Lawyer J. B. Clarke's Connection with the Case Purely Professional—Another Version —Cohnfeld is not "Hoffman."

DETROIT, Dec. 22.—Another effort was made to get at the Cohnfeld bonds to-day. A bill was filed in court in which Silva & Co. of New York were the complainants. The defendants were Cohnfeld, Sophie Victorine and the Police Department.

The complainants asked for an injunction restraining the transfer of the bonds to Cohnfeld or Sophie Victorine. They based their demand on the belief that the bonds were in the Police Department's possession and declared that they had offered the department an indemnity bond of $100,000 to save them from any consequences that would result from giving up the bonds under the attachments issued yesterday. They renew this offer of indemnity if the court will compel the department to give up the bonds to the sheriff.

The injunction has been granted pending the hearing of the case in court. Cohnfeld, the woman and J. B. Clarke have returned to Toronto with the bonds.

WINDSOR, Dec. 22.—Sensational despatches have been sent from Detroit in connection with the arrest of Mrs. Frank Olsen and the appearance of Isidor Cohnfeld of New York. Stripped of all sensationalism, the simple facts are as follows:

Abous two months ago Mr. Cohnfeld became embarrassed by a sudden demand made by one of his creditors for the immediate payment of a very large sum of money, with which Mr. Cohnfeld was not able to comply at once. On seeing that financial difficulties must follow he executed an assignment of a large amount of real and personal property to trustees to dispose of and apply the proceeds in payment of his debts, the property in question being more than sufficient to satisfy his liabilities in full. Mr. Cohnfeld being in bad health and acting under the advice of his physician, visited several of the cities in the United States and came to Canada, at the same time making a proposition to his creditors to return to New York and pay them their claims in full and continue his business, a certain limited period of payment being granted as to a part of his liability.

Owing to the objection of one creditor, considerable delay occurred in concluding this settlement, and Mr. Cohnfeld retained Messrs. Foster, Clarke & Bowes of Toronto to look after his interests, and Mr. Clarke proceeded to New York, and after spending some days in negotiations, was unable to bring the matter to a close, as certain of the creditors would not allow Mr. Cohnfeld to pay Mr. Lichtenhein, the objecting creditor referred to, so large an amount as he wished to be paid at once. The terms of this settlement are still under consideration, and may be closed at any moment.

On Mr. Clarke's return to Toronto Mrs. Olsen, above referred to, who is connected with Mr. Cohnfeld's family, wished to realize upon certain United States bonds amounting to a large sum, and under the advice of Mr. Cohnfeld retained Mr. Clarke to advise her in disposing of the same and requested him to meet her in Detroit, which she thought would be the best market in which to dispose of American securities. Mr. Cohnfeld and Mrs. Olsen left Toronto for Windsor on Saturday, and Mr. Clarke followed the next day, all arriving here on Sunday evening. On Monday, when Mrs. Olsen offered the bonds for sale, the largeness of the sum created suspicion in the minds of the brokers to whom they were offered and they, fearing that the bonds had been improperly obtained, notified the police, who detained Mrs. Olsen until such time as they had fully investigated all the circumstances connected with her possession of the bonds. Mr. Clarke, who was acting professionally as Mrs. Olsen's legal adviser, retained J. C. Patterson, M.P., of Windsor, and Mr. Conely of Detroit along with him in the matter. The fullest information was given to the police respecting Mrs. Olsen and where, when and how the bonds were obtained, and the police were requested to investigate the matter as expeditiously as possible and satisfy themselves that Mrs. Olsen was the bona fide owner of the bonds and had a perfect right to dispose of them as she saw fit. No legal proceedings were taken to embarrass the police; they were allowed the fullest opportunity to satisfy themselves that all was right.

After the fullest investigation the police were satisfied that their suspicions were unfounded, and they thereupon released Mrs. Olsen and returned her her property. Mr. Clarke's connection with the matter was purely a professional one and above suspicion, and any inuendo contained in despatches from Detroit that it was not much, was not only unjust, but totally uncalled for.

Dr. St. John Acquitted.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—The trial of Dr. St. John, Levi Dell and Capt. Freer, who were indicted for conspiracy in aiding in the escape of W. J. McGarigle, came to a sudden close to-day. The State's Attorney acknowledged that he had not evidence enough to convict, so Judge Collins ordered the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, and the State nolled the

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

As the welcome light diffused over the room she turned from the table and looked toward the other side of the bed.

In the moment when she turned the chill of a sudden terror gripped her round the heart, as with the clasp of an icy hand.

She was not alone in her room!

There—in the chair at the bedside—there, suddenly revealed under the flow of light from the candle, was the figure of a woman reclining. Her head lay back over the chair. Her face, turned up to the ceiling, had the eyes closed, as if she was wrapped in a deep sleep.

The shock of the discovery held Agnes speechless and helpless. Her first conscious action when she was in some degree mistress of herself again was to lean over the bed and to look closer at the woman who had so incomprehensibly stolen into her room in the dead of night. One glance was enough; she started back with a cry of amazement. The person in the chair was no other than the widow of the dead Montbarry—the woman who had warned her that they were to meet again, and that the place might be Venice!

Her courage returned to her, stung into action by the natural sense of indignation which the presence of the countess provoked.

"Wake up!" she called out. "How dare you come here? How did you get in? Leave the room or I will call for help!"

She raised her voice at the last words. It produced no effect. Leaning further over the bed she boldly took the countess by the shoulder and shook her. Not even this effort succeeded in rousing the sleeping woman. She still lay back in the chair, possessed by a torpor like the torpor of death—insensible to sound, insensible to touch. Was she really sleeping? Or had she fainted?

Agnes looked closer at her. She had not fainted. Her breathing was audible, rising and falling, in deep, heavy gasps. At intervals she ground her teeth savagely. Beads of perspiration stood thickly on her forehead. Her clinched hands rose and fell slowly from time to time on her lap. Was she in the agony of a dream? or was she spiritually conscious of something hidden in the room?

The doubt involved in that last question was unendurable. Agnes determined to rouse the servants who kept watch in the hotel at night.

The bell handle was fixed to the wall on the side of the bed by which the table stood.

She raised herself from the crouching position she had assumed in looking close at the countess, and, turning toward the other side of the bed, stretched out her hand to the bell. At the same instant she stopped and looked upward. Her hand fell helplessly at her side. She shuddered, and sunk back on the pillow.

What had she seen?

She had seen another intruder in her room.

Midway between her and the ceiling there hovered a human head—severed at the neck, like a head struck from the body by the guillotine.

Nothing visible, nothing audible, had given her warning of its appearance. Silently and suddenly, the head had taken its place above her. No supernatural change had passed over the room, or was perceptible in it now. The dumbly tortured figure in the chair; the broad window opposite the foot of the bed, with the black night beyond it; the candle burning on the table—these, and all other objects in the room, remained unaltered. One object more, unutterably horrid, had been added to the rest. That was the only change—no more, no less.

By the yellow candle light she saw the head distinctly hovering in mid air above her. She looked at it steadfastly, spellbound by the terror that held her.

The flesh of the face was gone. The shriveled skin was darkened in hue, like the skin of an Egyptian mummy—except at the neck. There it was of a lighter color; there it showed spots and splashes of the hue of that brown spot on the ceiling, which the child's fanciful terror had distorted into the likeness of a spot of blood. Thin remains of a discolored mustache and whiskers, hanging over the upper lip, and over the hollows where the cheeks had once been, made the head just recognizable as the head of a man. Over all the features death and time had done their obliterating work. The eyelids were closed. The hair on the skull, discolored like the hair on the face, had been burned away in places. The bluish lips, parted in a fixed grin, showed the double row of teeth. By slow degrees the hovering head (perfectly still when she first saw it) began to descend toward Agnes as she lay beneath. By slow degrees that strange, doubly blended odor which the commissioners had discovered in the vaults of the old palace—which had sickened Francis Westwick in the bed chamber of the new hotel—spread its fetid exhalations over the room. Downward and downward the hideous apparition made its slow progress, until it stopped close over Agnes—stopped and turned slowly, so that the face of it confronted the upturned face of the woman in the chair.

After that there came a pause. Then a momentary animation disturbed the rigid repose of the dead face. The closed eyelids opened slowly. The eyes revealed themselves, bright with the glassy film of death, and fixed their dreadful look on the woman in the chair.

Agnes saw that look; saw the reclining woman rise, as if in obedience to some dread command—and saw no more.

* * * * *

Her next conscious impression was of the sunlight pouring in at the window; of the friendly presence of Lady Montbarry at the bedside, and of the children's wondering faces peeping in at the door.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"You have some influence over Agnes. Try what you can do, Henry, to make her take a sensible view of the matter. There is really nothing to make a fuss about. My wife's maid knocked at her door early in the morning, with the customary cup of tea. Getting no answer, she went round to the dressing room, found the door on that side unlocked, and discovered Agnes on the bed in a fainting fit. With my wife's help they brought her to herself again, and she told the extraordinary story which I have just repeated to you. You must have seen for yourself that she has been overfatigued, poor thing, by our long railway journeys; her nerves are out of order, and she is just the person to be easily terrified by a dream. She obstinately refuses, however, to accept this rational view. Don't suppose that I have been severe with her. All that a man can do to humor her I have done. I have written to the countess (in her assumed name), offering to restore the room to her. She writes back, positively declining to return to it. I have accordingly arranged (so as not to have the thing known in the hotel) to occupy the room for one or two nights, and to leave Agnes to recover her spirits under my wife's care. Is there anything more that I can do? Whatever questions Agnes has asked of me, I have answered to the best of my ability; she knows all that you told me about Francis and the countess last night.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be oodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ⅓ regular prices.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order. But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

His Blood Analyzed.

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—A despatch to The New Free Press from Milan says that on the advice of English physicians the German Crown Prince's neck has been cupped, and Dr. Kraus is having the blood thus obtained analyzed at the Milan laboratory to ascertain whether it contains an excess of sugar, or whether it is in a healthy state. If it proves to contain too much sugar the physicians will decide to adopt the treatment advised by Freund of Vienna, which has in view the reduction of the sugar in the blood to its normal quantity. Dr. Freund's theory is that the blood of patients suffering from cancer contains an abnormal quantity of sugar, and that cancerous growths may be destroyed by a reduction of the amount of sugar.

Dandruff eradicated, the scalp made clean and gray hair restored to its original youthful beauty and vigor by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SOUTH WARD,

of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours respectfully,

d137 H. C. WINCH.

TO THE ELECTORS of Ward No. 1.

Your Vote and Influence respectfully solicited for

MR. BANNELL SAWYER,

as Councillor.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137tf J. STEVENSON.

THE MAYORALTY FOR 1888.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—At the request of a large number of ratepayers, who have promised me their support, I am before you as a candidate for the Mayoralty for 1888. I ask you to give me your support, therefor, on the following platform:—

ECONOMY!

TEMPERANCE!

MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

If length of public service is deserving of recognition I may modestly claim your consideration. During the eighteen or twenty years which I have sat at your council board I have endeavored to faithfully advance the best interests of the town. I have spared neither time nor work to consistently carry out my pledges to my supporters and have worked to the best of my ability for the general good. If I have erred I have done so unknowingly.

I offer myself as—in particular—the workingman's candidate. I hope to receive the solid workingmen's support. I consider I am fairly entitled to it. I am a working man myself and if elected—will endeavou to repay the confidence by advancing their interests in every honest way.

I may say that in taking the field I am not actuated by any feeling of rivalry with the present occupant of the Mayor's chair, but I feel that with the many demands on his time and services that the position is not sought for. Should I prove correct in my inference, you cannot fairly overlook the claim that years of service has on your consideration.

I recognize thoroughly what the necessities of the town demand. Thorough economy in all departments of municipal expenditure must be the rule. A liberal policy to encourage the growth and establishment of new and existing industries. In this regard I am opposed to any money bonus being granted, but in favor of exemption from taxes and possibly free sites under proper restrictions. I shall—if elected—give particular attention to matters as outlined above.

Possibly one of the most prominent questions that will come before the ratepayers next year will be in connection with the enforcement of the Scott Act. I will maintain in this regard the position relative to temperance which I have held for the last 25 years. So long as the Scott Act remains in force I will to the extent of my ability and office, see that the law is strictly enforced, and that too through the proper officers of the town.

Such, gentlemen, are the grounds on which I ask your support. I may not have the opportunity of personally soliciting your favor, but venture to hope that the statement of my views will meet your approval.

Trusting that I may have your hearty support on the basis of

ECONOMY!

TEMPERANCE!

MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

I am, adieu and gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

d136-w49 A. RUTHERFORD.

RAILROAD MEN ON STRIKE.

OVER 1000 MEN ON THE PHILADELPHIA AND READING QUIT WORK.

The Introduction of Non-Union Men Causes the Trouble—Train Men, Coal Handlers and Freight Handlers Involved—Other Labor Troubles.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—Over 1000 men employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad on their lines running from West Falls to the Port Richmond coal wharves, either as train men, coal handlers or freight handlers, quit work this afternoon at 4.30. This action was caused by the introduction of a train crew of five non-union men to do the work upon which union men had been employed but who had been discharged. This movement will be communicated to all the employes of the road, and a general strike on all the lines of the company may be the result. The trouble originated yesterday morning, when a crew of freight handlers engaged in shifting cars loaded with flour into a pier controlled by the firm of Charles M. Taylor's Sons refused to deliver any more freight to the firm unless the non-union laborers employed in handling the freight should be discharged. Word was immediately sent to John O'Keeim, the general freight agent and shipping clerk at the Port Richmond wharves, who telegraphed the news of the refusal to the general offices of the company. Upon the receipt of the telegram Superintendent Sweizard issued an order discharging the crew who had refused to handle the freight, and threatening the same punishment to other crews who would follow the precedent. All the remaining force, which consisted of four crews, refusing to obey the order, were discharged, and the engines were taken to the round house and the men left the yard.

The news of the discharge quickly spread among other employes of the company in Port Richmond, and the stevedores to the number of about 600 dropped their work and left the yard. The news of such a large body of men quitting work soon spread through Port Richmond, and a committee of Knights of Labor to which the strikers belonged called upon General Manager McLeod and Superintendent Sweizard with the purpose of settling the difficulty and preventing a general strike. The object was unsuccessful, however, as the officers would not listen to any excuses, claiming that the work had to be done, and, if the present employes found it difficult to obey orders, the management would be compelled to look elsewhere for help.

The situation was unchanged this morning and no freight was delivered tot he covered piers at the foot of Williams-street nor where the stevedores at work. The company was determined to operate its lines however and made preparations to secure crews for the idle locomotives but was unsuccessful until about 1 o'clock when aid was secured by forming a mixed crew of non-union men at the Third and Berks streets station. The engine, No. 228, manned by the obnoxious crew, arrived at the scene of trouble at about 3.30 and proceeded at once to move the boycotted freight. The news of the renewal of work was quickly communicated among the other men at work and a concerted action of quitting was speedily agreed upon. An hour was given to allow the employes on the road from West Falls to the river to learn of the determination, and at 4.30, when the signal was given, every man stopped work. Shifting engines that were working on the coal wharves quickly ran to their usual resting place until the whole number (14) was placed in one line, and the crews immediately drew the fire and blew out the boilers. Men that were wheeling coal dropped their barrow handles, switchmen closed their switches and left the main line open. Conductors, brakemen and other employes left their work and quickly went to their homes.

Coal Handlers Laid Off.

ELIZABETHPORT, N.J., Dec. 23.—The Reading Railroad coal handlers refused to-day to load a Cross Creek Lehigh Coal Company's vessel at Elizabethport docks. They were all (about 100) laid off. Shipping is entirely suspended. A general "tie-up" is the talk.

Miners on Strike.

ASHLAND, Pa., Dec. 23.—The miners of Riley & Co.'s Logan colliery struck this morning, throwing over 500 men and boys out of employment.

Preparing for War.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 22.—The Chamber of Deputies has sanctioned the expenditure of $2,000,000 in the purchase of repeating rifles and $1,000,000 for forts.

THE HAMILTON WATERWORKS.

The Pumps Tested by the Committee—A Stolen Robe—Tobogganing Begun.

HAMILTON, Dec. 23.—Yesterday afternoon a couple of cabs conveyed Mayor McKay, City Engineer Haskins, Ald. Stevenson (Chairman Waterworks Committee), Kenrick, Morgan and Nicholson to the beach, for the purpose of making a preliminary test of one of the pumps and the high and low pressure engines connected with it. Messrs. Killey and Fairgrieve and a few other gentlemen were present when the civic party arrived at the new pumping house, and one of the new pumps was in working order. All expressed themselves as highly pleased with the test. The new engines and pumps are simple in construction and less complicated than the old. They are direct acting. They showed yesterday a duty of 112,330,000 gallons of water lifted one foot high with 100 pounds of ordinary anthracite coal.

The charge against Wm. Thornton, alias Pony Spriggs, for the larceny of a bear skin robe belonging to L. L. Irving was proceeded with at the Police Court this morning. Mr. Irving swore that the robe produced in court was stolen from in front of his store on Tuesday night last. Mr. Gowland swore that "Pony" brought the robe to his place on Tuesday night and offered it for sale, saying that he had got it up the country, where he had been working. Thornton said he had bought the robe from two young men. The Magistrate adjourned the case until Tuesday that they might be found.

The Victoria Tobogan Club opened their slides last evening for the first time this season. A number of members enjoyed the fun, the slides being in capital condition.

At a meeting of the creditors of William Goering, held yesterday afternoon, an offer of 50 cents on the dollar was made. The matter of a settlement remains in abeyance for the present.

A PRISONER AT LAST.

Frank C. McNealy, Who Robbed a Maine Bank, Arrested at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 23.—Frank C. McNealy, the Saco, Maine, bank robber, was arrested by Detective Power of this city at the Halifax Hotel this morning. He has been here since Sunday last, when he arrived in the steamer Polynesian from England. There is no doubt that he is the right man. He registered at the hotel as W. Z. Stuyvesant.

McNealy acknowledges his identity, but will have no conversation with newspaper men. The detectives searched his luggage today, but found no bonds or anything to connect him with the robbery. McNealy, on his arrival here from England last Sunday, was met by a young man supposed to be a brother of his, who left by train Monday morning. The prisoner is said to have had a European continental trip, among his effects being found a Cairo, Egypt, hotel bill of fare.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.

A Verdict of $100 Against a Cigar Vendor for Insulting a Parkhill Woman.

DETROIT, Dec. 23.—On June 5 last Mrs. Mary Stock left Detroit with two children to return to her home at Parkhill, Ont. The steamer on which she took passage to Port Huron was detained by a fog and did not reach there till midnight. Mrs. Stock, unacquainted with the city and looking about for a place to shelter herself and children for the night, ran across Horatio N. Jex, proprietor of a cigar store, restaurant and saloon, who offered her rooms over his store. In the absence of any other accommodation, she accepted Jex's offer and went to his rooms. She put her children to bed and there being no lock to the door, placed a chair against it as a barricade. During the night Jex forced his way into the room, and made improper proposals to Mrs. Stock and intimidated her at the point of a revolver. She resisted him, and finally obliged him to leave the room under threats of raising an alarm. She remained in the room until morning without further annoyance, and then left with her children for her home in Parkhill. The above facts were sworn to on trial yesterday in a suit against Jex by Mrs. Stock in the United States Circuit Court in this city. The jury rendered a verdict for Mrs. Stock of $700.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

A Congratulatory Address Proposed — A Letter to the Diet.

BERLIN, Dec. 23.—A movement has been started by leading inhabitants to present a congratulatory New Year's address to the Crown Prince.

The Grand Duke of Baden has sent letters to the Diet saying that the Crown Prince was deeply moved by the Diet's expression of sympathy with him and in view of the perceptible improvement in his condition he feels justified in cherishing the hope that he will ultimately recover strength to fulfil his duties to the Fatherland. The Grand Duke quotes the following words uttered by the Crown Prince:

"I place my trust in God, who has so often been gracious to us when encompassed by dangers. But if anything earthly can raise and restore me it is the universal sympathy of the Fatherland. I feel as if there existed between my fellow-citizens and myself a bond which is proof that greater confidence has been placed in me than I believed possible. May it yet please the Lord to give me an opportunity to show myself worthy of it."

Roumania's Proposed Steamship Company.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The Roumanian Government announces that it is preparing a bill to establish a Danube Steamship Company. The vessels for the new company are to be purchased by the funds derived from the Danubian harbor dues levied on the ships of all nations. As this revenue, under the agreement of the powers, ought to be applied to the maintenance of traffic between the Iron Gates and Sulins, the bill will violate foreign rights. Austria will lead, it is stated, in taking diplomatic action in the form of a protest against the project.

Mr. Balfour Subpœnaed.

DUBLIN, Dec. 23.—Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, has been subpœnaed to attend the Portumna Assizes in January, when the court will hear the appeal of Mr. Wilfred Blunt, who was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for taking part in a proclaimed Home Rule meeting.

A man named McNamara has been sentenced at Ennis to two months' imprisonment with hard labor for selling copies of United Ireland.

A New Menagerie Coming For Barnum.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The steamer Ludgate Hill which left London for New York to-day has on board a complete menagerie consigned to Messrs. Barnum & Bailey.

VICTIMIZED BY A FRIEND.

STORY OF THE FAILURE OF CHARLES LOEWE, CIGAR DEALER.

His Offer of 10 Cents on the Dollar Indignantly Spurned—Several German Citizens Stuck for Robust Amounts—Nothing Criminal but a Case of Swindle.

TORONTO, Dec. 24.

The recent failure of Mr. Chas. Loewe, wholesale cigar dealer, 48½ Front-street east, has caused much comment among merchants in the trade and particularly among wealthy Germans. Mr. Loewe was until about two and a half years ago in the employ of A. Smith, London, manufacturer of the Green Seal cigar. He covered a deal of country for them but finally quit and came to Toronto, starting in the wholesale cigar business. His former employer sued him for a good sized amount of money overdrawn. Loewe got the suit transferred to Toronto where it was tried. Judgment was given against him for $500 and costs, the whole amounting to about $800. A couple of Toronto friends helped him to pay this by loaning him money upon his notes, which are now nigh worthless.

A month ago Mr. Loewe failed and assigned to Donaldson & Milne, upstairs, and next door to his office. The creditors were not satisfied when they learned that the liabilities were nearly $15,000, and that the assets, as per the assignees' statement, were only $2100. Mr. Loewe offered to compromise at 10 cents on the dollar, but the offer was spurned.

An adjourned meeting of creditors was held a few weeks ago at the office of the assignees. Mr. Loewe explained that he kept no books, and that he recorded his business transactions on a memorandum which he put in. It was shown, it is understood, that during the last three months goods were continually ordered from the factories, and warehoused or "hypothecated." Still the manufacturers were not paid. The creditors placed no faith in Mr. Loewe's explanation and have ordered the assignees to obtain an order from the court to have him examined under oath. One creditor remarked yesterday: "There is nothing criminal. It is only a case of 'swindle.'"

Mr. Loewe is alleged to have stuck several of his German friends for good amounts, nearly all of these friends being prominent members of the Liederkranz Society, to which he belonged. For instance, amounts were borrowed from six well known Germans, some in business, some living in retirement and some in official positions. They decline to have their names mentioned, but these are their Christmas boxes: A merchant, $800; a merchant's business manager, $1500; an official, $125; a retired merchant, $250; a retired gentleman, $1462; a merchant, $700. Notes were given for these amounts, which were loaned purely out of friendship.

The creditors had to sell the stock of cigars, only domestics, at 56 cents on the dollar, at auction.

DETECTIVE FAHEY'S STATEMENT.

He Says that He is as Innocent as a Child Unborn.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—The detectives' case was continued to-day, when several more employes of the Grand Trunk were examined as to money being in the safe. The case was then adjourned to Tuesday next. Fahey made a statement to reporters to-day saying that the story of The Globe purporting to come from Wilson, like a great many more, was a mere fabrication. Fahey said, in answer to a question regarding his case:

"As far as I am concerned I am as innocent as a child unborn. Of course the conspiracy is deep, well laid and finely worked, and so far all one sided in the public's eyes, but though things look bad for us now it will all come out in time and we will change the tone of affairs. If we could only place our case before the public at present we would change their opinion of us, but we cannot. Everything is against us, even the public being prejudiced by hearing only one side of the story, and what can we expect? A jury without hearing our side would be prejudiced before entering the box. How far these reports have spread and the great effect they have taken can easily be imagined when a priest (referring to Father Gibard) speaks against us. What, therefore, what can we expect from the public? Not their sympathy anyway, since this affair has spread so. Meantime we must submit to everything, and indeed our Christmas turkey will not be a very enjoyable one."

An Aged Couple Found Dead in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—James Miller, a real estate dealer, 70 years old, was found lying dead this morning on the floor of his home, No. 357 West Sixteenth-street. Beside him lay his wife unconscious and dying. She was removed to the hospital, and it is supposed that the old man died of heart disease in his chair and fell from it, knocking the chair and the stove down in his fall, and that Mrs. Miller was too weak-minded to notify the neighbors of her husband's death and that her weak and exhausted condition is due to starvation, as she was unable to procure or cook food for herself.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

Meagre Particulars of the Wreck on the Chicago and Northwestern.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—A special from Sycamore, Ill., says: Meagre particulars of a terrible train disaster, said to have occurred at Germantown, twenty miles from here, were received here this morning. It is reported that the Minnesota and Northwestern train of six coaches was ditched and that many people were killed and wounded.

A later despatch to The Journal says it was the Minnesota and Northwestern train which left Chicago at 10 a.m. which was derailed and burned between Milton and German Valley. A number of lives are reported lost. The local officials of the road here deny this. The agents say the accident was trivial.

Not so Serious as First Reported.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The accident on the Minneapolis and Northwestern Railroad today was not a serious one. General Superintendent Russell left here with a wrecking train and soon after reaching German Valley, Wis., near where the accident occurred, telegraphed to the General Agent here that the facts had been exaggerated. The train had been derailed and three passengers were slightly injured. Trains on the road are running as usual.

A Fatal Railway Accident in Wisconsin.

PHILLIPS, Wis., Dec. 23.—The evening passenger train on the Wisconsin Central Railway was thrown from the track by a broken rail two miles south of Fifield last night. Three cars were thrown from the track down an embankment. One passenger, M. Monte of Butternut, was killed and fourteen persons were wounded, Conductor Greenfield, it is thought, fatally.

WATERWORKS BYLAW IN LONDON.

A Mass Meeting Votes Against the Scheme—Sam Carroll Held for Perjury.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A mass meeting was held this evening to discuss the proposed waterworks extension by-law, involving the issue of $150,000 worth of debentures. The audience voted almost unanimously against the scheme.

Samuel Carroll, the witness for the petitioner in the West Middlesex election trial, who was charged with perjury, was to-day committed for trial. He was released on $3000 bail.

Mr. Cochrane's Majority 21.

BRIGHTON, Ont., Dec. 23.—Following are the revised figures in the East Northumberland election; Brighton village, majority for Cochrane 30; Hastings village, majority for Cochrane 25; Campbellford village, majority for Cochrane 38; Colborne village, majority for Cochrane 16; Murray township, majority for Cochrane 88; Cramahe township, majority for Cochrane 71; total 268. Brighton township, majority for Mallory 57; Seymour township, majority for Mallory 102; Percy township, majority for Mallory 88; total 247. Cochrane's net majority 21.

A Natural Gas Explosion.

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 23.—Yesterday a natural gas explosion occurred in the dwelling house of James Lunday. In the house were James Lunday, his wife and three children. Mrs. Lunday attempted to light the gas in the stove when it exploded, blowing out the east end of the house, and the family with it. Mr. Lunday's hair was burned and Mrs. Lunday's hair and clothing also. Towards evening Mrs. Lunday died a raving maniac. One child is dying of its injuries. Mr. Lunday is a maniac from his injuries and the loss of his wife, and the two remaining children are in great agony from burns.

Lord Salisbury Interviews the Ambassadors

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador here, departed suddenly for Germany to-day after holding a long interview with Lord Salisbury, who had especially requested the meeting. The Prime Minister subsequently had an interview with the Russian and French ambassadors.

Mexican Inducements to Immigrants.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 23.—It is announced that the Mexican Government has made and granted extraordinary concessions to a real estate company to induce immigration to the eleven states of Mexico. The company has obtained a title to 55,000,000 acres of land and proposes to establish agencies in all the large cities of Europe and America. The Government has granted exemption from taxation to all settlers on the tracts and insures proper protection.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

COMPLIMENTS OF THE SEASON.

The circle of time has again brought around the holiday season—the especial time of goodwill, good cheer and happiness. Christmas day is to Canada the holiday of the year, and although it might be termed particularly a children's day, it is one upon which all persons are expected to, and generally do, rejoice. It is the holiday of the family, and the reunions that take place and the memories of those that have been held make it one of particular interest in the family circle.

At no time is charity so wide or benevolence so generous as at this time. This is, indeed, a fitting way to celebrate the great Christian festival—the anniversary of the birth of the Saviour of Mankind, who proclaimed on earth peace and goodwill. Acts of kindness, deeds of benevolence, outpouring of charity—in such a manner the anniversary is properly remembered.

The people of Canada have many reasons for thankfulness for the past year. While other nations have been plagued by pestilence, famished by famine or harassed by war or rumors of war, Canada has enjoyed the blessings of plenty, prosperity and peace. In common with the country Peterborough has enjoyed tranquility and a fair measure of prosperity. No widespread epidemic, no social or political disorder and no scarcity has caused fear or suffering, and with gratitude the past year must be reviewed.

The REVIEW heartily wishes all its readers a merry Christmas, a most pleasant holiday week, and a prosperous and happy New Year.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

ANOTHER bye-election has resulted in a gain by the Conservative party, Mr. Cochrane having been elected in East Northumberland. The constituency is an uncertain one. In 1867 Mr. Keeler, Conservative, was elected by 780 of a majority and in 1872 he was re-elected by 85. In 1874 Mr. Biggar, Reformer, was elected, his majority being 165, and in 1878 Mr. Keeler was again returned with a majority of 63. In 1882 Mr. Cochrane received a majority of 273 and last February Dr. Mallory, Reformer, had a majority of 8, which was increased by a re-count to 13. Such have been the results of the general elections in the riding since confederation.

Dr. Mallory having been unseated, he appealed to the people on the commercial union platform, and by professing independence endeavored to secure support on the strength of advocating that policy. On the platform the attractions of commercial union were displayed, Prof. Goldwin Smith and Sir Richard Cartwright among others entering the constituency to win over the people to the support of the scheme. In the private canvass the usual arguments in favor of the union were made the most of and it was fondly hoped that this, almost an agricultural constituency, with the Reform party at the back of the candidate and a majority in his favor at the last election, would pronounce in favor of the scheme. But it did not, and commercial union has received another blow and the Conservatives have been strengthened in the House by gaining another seat that had been held by the Opposition.

It has been stated that Mr. Cochrane coquetted with commercial union. He did not. On the platform the proposal was attacked by the Conservative speakers and the folly of it exposed. The electors have shown that they have not faith in the scheme, and the longer the Opposition hold to it, the stronger the Conservative party will become. But it is to be hoped that they have had enough of it, and that they will drop it and also the practice of disparaging their own country.

MERRY CHRISTMAS BELLS.

The Bustle, and Hurry and Jostle of the People.

The light skiff of snow that gently waved to the ground this morning made the eyes of the merchants sparkle as brightly as the clear crystals themselves. They had good reason to feel elated. The sleighing was made first-class. Not only would the merry jingle of the high tuned bells and the loud clang and jangle of the big brass sleigh bells be heard, but also the sweet jingle of cash dropping in the tills. The streets were crowded all day with people going from one place to another in the anxious quest of Christmas presents. Flags were flying, expresses darting about, men were greeting each other on the corners—the scene was one of picturesque animation.

Every place of business has been made to look its best, but the grocers and confectionery men have been more than active in adorning their places of business. Some of them look like a veritable haunt of Santa Claus.

The market attendance to-day was an immense gathering. The place was crowded to its fullest capacity from ten until after twelve o'clock In the market building there is a goregous display of meats at Harry Winch's stall. The genial proprietor has been preparing for this exhibit of his skill for a long time. He has personally driven far, waded through rich pastures, inspected many herds of stock, used his well known discrimination as a buyer, to get for this Christmas display the best, the very best. Poultry coops have been examined for the choicest fowl, and the hunters of the north have brought in the best prizes of the chase to put a finishing touch to his Christmas stall full. The arrangements and ornamentation of the meats is artistic. No one should miss seeing the display.

A Good Article.

The package was small, but neatly done up. It came by mail. It was presently opened, inside were half a dozen of the finest cigars ever manufactured, and a neat card expressed the compliments of Messrs. S. Davis & Son of Montreal, the well known cigar manufacturers. Thanks, Gentlemen, thanks. Prime Havannas, too, and the crimson and gold label is something neat.

A Fine Window.

The display of Christmas presents, &c made by W.J. Mason, next door to the Bank of Toronto, for artistic arangements and effect, probably excels anything yet produced in town, and the pleased exclamation of the ladies, who are doubtless the best judges in such matters, is strong presumptive evidence that they regard the good things on show as of the very freshest and best. By all means see that window.

Scrofulous humours, erysipelas, canker, and catarrh, can be cured by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "I have used this medicine in my family, for scrofula, and know, if it is taken persistently, it will eradiate this terrible disease."—W. F. Fowler, M.D., Greenville, Tenn

A son of Mrs. Harris, of Oakwood, a boy eight years old, got his leg in a horse power while it was at work, resulting in a bad compound fracture.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria,

A Belgian recently died by choking to death. He had made a bet with some of his fellow countrymen that he could swallow as many pancakes as they would pay for, and the bet being accepted the party went to an establishment noted for its pancakes. He swallowed cakes until he was carried out a corpse, having choked himself.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council has been called for Tuesday evening. General business will be transacted.

No. Two Ward.

Having been urgently requested to do so, Mr. Adam Hall offers himself as a candidate for the representation of No. Two Ward in the Town Council. His card appears in another column.

The best brands of Canadian oil at 15c per imperial gallon. ADAM HALL. d145t

A CHOICE stock of Overcoats, and Clothing of all kinds for Boys at Remarkably Low Prices at TURNBULL'S.

Memorial Window.

A memorial window was placed in St. Luke's Church, south side, this afternoon. It was erected by the Misses Mills, in memory of their mother who died in September last. The subject in the window is Christ in the temple, "sitting in the midst of the doctors." The figures are clearly cut, the design is elaborate and the coloring is rich. The window was manufactured by Messrs. McCousland & Son, Toronto.

Baird Coming.

The R. Baird Dramatic Company will open a weeks engagement on Monday night. The Port Huron Times says of the company:—The largest audience of the week greeted the Baird Dramatic Company at the city opera house last evening, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. The play produced was Denman Thompson's four act drama, "Uncle Josh." R. H. Baird as Uncle Josh, the New England farmer, kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter for over two hours. He took the character in a first class manner, and his appearance at the birthday party and at the drunkard's home greatly pleased the audience. The other characters in the play were well taken and everything passed off smoothly and pleasantly. The Baird Company are making a good impression on Port Huron theatre goers, and the house will probably be crowded to its fullest capacity for the balance of the week."

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

No Surrender.

The advocates of Commercial Union are now hedging on this cry, but apparently they have overlooked the important fact that all those whose applications are sent in before the 31st inst., will share in this year's profits in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company. The profits will be allocated on the 11th April proximo. Not less than 22½ per cent. will be the cash dividend. C. C. HENDERSON, is the general agent, Peterborough, to whom application should be made immediately. d147

Church Notes.

—In St. Luke's Church Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a. m., and after morning prayer at 11 a. m. The Bible class will meet at 3 p. m., and there will be evening prayer and sermon at 7 p. m. The sermon will be appropriate to the season. The church has been handsomely decorated for the occasion.

—The Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., will preach in the Charlott Street Church in the morning and in the George Street Church in the evening. He will preach his farewell sermon in the evening.

—The Rev. I. Tovell will preach in the George Street Church in the morning and in the Charlotte Street Church in the evening. There will be an evangelistic service in the evening.

—In the Baptist Church the Rev. P. Clifton Parker will preach in the morning on "Seekers after God," and on the evening on "Too Late."

—In the Mark Street Methodist Church the Rev. J. C. Wilson will conduct a children's service at 11 a.m., and in the evening the subject of his sermon will be "No Room for Jesus."

Scott Act in Lindsay.

The Lindsay Post says:—"A good deal of consternation was caused last week when Inspector Short laid information for third offences against Hotel-keepers Veitch, Benson, Carr, E. Daley, Haslam and McConnell; and for second offences against Hotel-keepers Joe Daley, McCabe and Maunder. The cases came up trial Tuesday before P. M. O'Leary. Mr. P. S. Martin conducted the prosecution and Messrs. J. B. Smith and Thos. Stewart appeared for the hotel-keepers. It seems that the hotel-keepers understood that only first or second offences were to be charged, and that as third offences involved going to gaol, it was decided in view of the general situation to make the offences "first" ones. These were admitted and fines each of $50 and costs ($5 and odd cents) were imposed. In this connection we may state that a proposal has been made by or on behalf of Mr. Benson and Mr. Veitch whereby they shall close up their bars altogether upon an agreement signed by a number of leading men published to the effect that the law shall be strictly enforced against all parties selling intoxicants. This would mean "third offences" and going to gaol. The other hotel-keepers have not agreed to the plan. Temperance men, we understand, are in favor of it. This plan has been adopted in other places. It seems a reasonable plan, but that it should have to be resorted to is an acknowledgment that the act is exceedingly difficult to enforce."

END OF THE YEAR.

The Closing Exercises at the Business College.

The pupils at the Peterborough Business College who have been in attendance since midsummer, brought their term's work to an end on Friday evening.

The Theory and Practice room was nicely decorated and at eight o'clock the pupils and their friends assembled.

The Principal, Mr. Bannell Sawyer, opened the proceedings by a few introductory remarks. A chorus was sung, and a short dialogue was given, discriptive of the sudden recovery of a hypochondriac. It was quite amusing. Miss Fowler, Miss Huston Miss Giles and Miss Robinson were the young ladies who took part in it. Another chorus was given.

Several essays were then read on the subject "Success in Life." All were very good, "particularly Miss Hurley's. It was well planned, well composed and of literary merit. Others were also creditable. The choice of the best essay was left to the audience and by a vote that read by Mr. S. Carter was pronounced the winner of the prize offered.

The graduates, Miss Giles, Miss Hurley and Mr. Hilliard were then presented with their diplomas, accompanied by a few words from the Principal.

Mr. DUMBLE was called on to give an address. He congratulated the graduates and gave them some advice. He said that the fact that they had graduated implied labor and that which followed labor was success. It implied perseverance, aptitude. It implied more than that—a promise of continuing in the straight line of labor. And as had been said by the Principal the graduation was their real commencement in the field of education. The training they had received here would teach them how to go into actual business life. He spoke of his delight in the essays read. He was simply delighted. He could add nothing to them. Everything had been said on the subject that the wise could have said. But it was one thing to quote wise sayings and another thing to follow precepts. They should follow their own advice and then indeed they would be successful. Of course there would be a difference of idea as to what was success. If they designated as successful men those only who had amassed wealth, they were setting up a low, mean standard. He considered the man of large sympathies and extensive capacities more successful than the mere money piler of narrow mind and shrunken soul. The people looked only with curiosity when a miser died to see how much he was worth. To him the man who bent his whole life to heaping dollars seemed like a man who would spend his whole life in heaping up sand. They should value wealth for what benefits it brought, not for the wealth itself. Some people looked on Vanderbilt and Gould as successful men. He did not. He had no doubt that a large portion of the fortunes of these men were stolen, as were most of the colossal fortunes amassed in the United States—by cornering markets and such like gambling. Neither was a man successful who wore his life away to get rich. A man who worked eighteen hours a day to get rich succeeded at the expense of his health. A man who gave his whole time to getting gain could never see any beauty in nature. Beautiful scenery would appear to him just as representing so many dollars in land. Such a man could not sit down to read a book—they could not commune with the Princes of Thought. But those who loved the beautiful, were sympathetic and helpful to their fellows, energetic and prudent, were successful from the start, and when they gained a competence they had good health and an enlarged mind to enjoy the abundant gifts which an exuberant Nature and loving God would confer on them.

The prizes were then given, Mr. Hilliard being the winner of the prize for general proficiency, Mr. Carter for essay writing, and Mr. Judge for penmanship.

A feature not on the programme was then brought to light. It was the presentation of a handsome clock to Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer. Miss Fowler read an appropriately worded address and the presentation was made by Miss Giles.

The Principal returned thanks, and congratulated the pupils on their having kept the secret so well.

Mr. Hilliard then read the valedictory and the proceedings closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Grandest Display Ever Made in Peterborough.

J. J. Howden, opposite the post office block has his fine large meat market in a blaze of decoration. The quantity and excellence of the meats, are in keeping with the large and well appointed premises. Outside as well as inside the skilfully dressed meats abound. Temptingly streaked beef roasts, juicy joints, mutton gassamered over with its own fatness, half plucked turkeys, prime slices of pork, steak and all kinds of fancy meats are arranged in an attractive manner. Inside the shop looks like a huge horisontal arch of white and red. The decorations are appropriate. Festoons of evergreens loop from point to point around the market and facing the door are the words in holly "A merry Christmas." The market has been crowded all day with people who appreciate Mr. Howden's efforts in catering to their wants. The array of meats is certainly equal to the swell city displays. Among the animals slaughtered for the occasion was one thorough-bred heifer fed specially for the christmas market, by Mr Armstrong, Otonabee; one heifer purchased in Toronto would suit the taste of an Englishmen; two heifers from H. Clayton, South Monaghan; one heifer from T. Whittington, South Monaghan; one heifer from Mr. Truscott, South Monaghan; one cow from Mr. G. D. Dudmond South Monaghan; and three heifers fed by Mr. Howden. d147

Christmas Festival.

The children's annual Christmas festival in connection with the St. Luke's Church was held on Friday evening. Two large Christmas trees on the platform were loaded with Christmas presents, but they were hid from the large audience by a curtain until the festival commenced. A programme of music, consisting of choruses, carols and solos was presented, in which the Sunday School children, Miss E. Tivey and Mrs. Bowman took part. Wm. Dixon delighted the people with ventriloquism. The presents were then distributed. The Rector made a short address in which he stated that the Sunday school had been prosperous during 1887, the average attendance for the first six months being 140 and the last five months 167. Many of the children had attended every Sunday during the year and deserved prizes. The plan of distribution was as follows:—Children to secure first prize must have attended 50 Sundays and received 320 marks. To secure a second prize they must have attended 47 Sundays and received 280 marks. To secure a third prize they must have attended 43 Sundays, and received 260 marks. The prizes, which consisted of valuable books were then given to the following scholars:—First prize.—Jennie Lipsett, Martha Beatty, Mamie Rogers, Mabel Bradshaw, Alice Tivey, Susie Young and Alex. Long. Second prize—Minnie Harrow, Edith Burnham, Edith Byeh, Maude Adams, Hetty Burnham, Clara Woods, Fanny Ball, Sarah Payne, Effie Bennett, Ada Curtis, Emily Shuter, Mary McFadden, Louie Butcher, Charlie Crowe, Thos. Cathcart, Fred Long, Sam. Adams, Charlie Young, Willie Adams, Willie Mien. Reuben Castle, Bertha Woods, Albert Hall and Henry Phillips. Third Prize.—Emma Milliken, Sarah McWha, Edwin Heap, Willie Ball, Carrie Young, James Tighe, Gertie Denne, Willie McWha, Minnie Lipsett, Mary Butcher, Willie Cathcart and Hugh Tighe. Over 175 children received gifts from the trees, the distribution being made by Mr. R. B. Rogers, Mr. B. Everett and the teachers. At the close Miss McNabb was presented with a handsome easy chair by the infant class and children's singing class. The chairman also stated that he was commissioned to present her with a beautiful plush dressing and jewel case, the gift of the choir, stating at the same time his regret at the church's loss of her services as organist. Mr. Rogers made a suitable reply in behalf of Miss McNabb. The entertainment closed in the usual way.

Brevities.

—The Town Council of Lindsay has granted $100 to the Citizens band towards purchasing new instruments.

—Bowmanville boasts of a clergyman who married five couples in one day, and Oshawa considers that the Rev. Mr. Hill performed a greater feat by marrying five couples in three hours. Did any of the local clergymen ever do quicker work than that?

—As Monday will be a holiday, the EVENING REVIEW will not be published that day.

—Mr. R. Tivey is spoken of as a candidate for a seat in the Ashburnham Council—and spoken of favorably.

—Young men who have been bothering their minds trying to think of something to give particular young ladies, are advised that marriage licences are easily and promptly procured, and that the cost is not excessive.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or othercauses. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THE MONTH'S STATEMENT.

AN INCREASE IN THE EXPORTS OF THE DOMINION.

The Savings Bank Balances $2,000,000 More Than Last Year—Successful Civil Service Candidates in Toronto—Notices From The Gazette.

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—The statement of exports for the month of November shows the gross exports to have been $11,668,310, of which $10,385,400 was the produce of Canada and $1,282,920 the produce of other countries, showing an increase in the former of $363,018 over the same month last year, and a decrease in the latter of $72,100. The figures for the month are:

| | Produce of Canada. | Produce of other Countries. |
|---|---|---|
| Produce of the Mines— | $ 429,343 | $ 29,008 |
| " " Fish'ries | 917,644 | 17,126 |
| " " Forest.. | 1,637,823 | 118,191 |
| Animals and Their Produce | 2,806,306 | 74,402 |
| Agricultural Products. | 6,046,877 | 1,003,397 |
| Manufactures | 423,694 | 37,303 |
| Miscellaneous Articles. | 65,803 | 3,058 |
| Coin and Bullion | | 23 |
| Grand total | 10,385,400 | $ 1,282,910 |

Taking the first five months of the fiscal year the total exports of the Dominion amount to $53,318,444, being an increase of $2,214,735 over same period last year, of which $1,170,416 is the produce of Canada and $1,044,321 the produce of other countries.

The following is the statement of goods entered for consumption during November:

|---|---|
| Dutiable goods | $4,566,698 |
| Coin and bullion | 533,320 |
| Free goods | 2,795,953 |
| Total | 8,195,970 |
| Duty collected | 1,653,884 |

The Postoffice Savings Bank statement for the month of November shows: Deposits $622,011, withdrawn $622,072, balance $19,542,972, which is over $2,000,000 more than at the same time last year.

The following is the list of candidates who successfully passed the civil service examination in Toronto in November last: Thos. B. Armstrong, Arthur A. Allen, Thomas Ball, James S. Bonar, Wesley C. Bowbeer, Horace Conquest, Wm. H. Carroll, Wm. H. Darlington, Henry Foster, William Ferguson, William S. Gould, John N. Garner, Alexander Hawthorne, James E. Jeffery, Frederick J. Jollow, Ethel C. Keefler, Albert W. Lebarre, Henry S. Leach, George E. Morrison, James Percival, James H. Phillipeau, Alfred E. Phillips, Oliver Sproule, Henry C. Smith, Thomas R. Stanley, Neil Still, William F. Stevens, William Ward, Reginald F. Worraker, Michael J. Hughes, Frederick W. Ivory, Robert F. Walton.

Qualifying—James E. Bell, Thomas B. Campbell, William E. Davis, Nellie Dunn, William Flynn, Andrew Hamilton, Chas. E. Howarth, Edward O. Lawder, Wm. Henry Marra, Wm. E. Meredith, Wm. J. Lawrence, Wm. H. Smith, Malcolm W. Sparrow, Walter F. Stewart, James A. Sullivan, George W. Taylor, George Thompson, Robert F. Walton, James E. Jeffery.

In optional subjects no one passed in Toronto.

A Cabinet meeting was held this afternoon, but it is understood that the ocean mail contract was not awarded and only routine business was transacted. It is not likely that there will be another meeting before Wednesday and not a full meeting for over a week as several Ministers have gone home for the holidays. Hon. Mr. Thompson left yesterday for Halifax, Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Adolphe Caron went down to Quebec this afternoon, Hon. Mackenzie Bowell has gone to Belleville and Hon. Mr. Foster to Sussex, N.B. Hon. J. H. Pope will probably leave for Cookshire to-morrow and Hon. Mr. Chapleau left for Sherbrooke yesterday.

Mr. F. Bebbington, secretary of the local branch of the Imperial Federation League, had an interview with Hon. Jos. Chamberlain at Rideau Hall to-day. Mr. Bebbington has long been acquainted with Mr. Chamberlain. The British Commissioner among other things spoke regarding a closer union between the colonies and Great Britain. He expressed himself in sympathy with the general objects of the movement as set forth by the Imperial Federation League. England, he thought, would be prepared to go half way to meet the colonies in every arrangement tending to promote mutual interests. Mr. Chamberlain, in short, approves of this principle of Imperial Federation, but has not seen any feasible scheme for its accomplishment submitted yet. He does not care to lecture under the auspices of the local branch of the league owing to the peculiar circumstances in connection with his visit to America.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

"But try as I may I can't quiet her mind. I have given up the attempt in despair, and left her in the drawing room. Go, like a good fellow, and try what you can do to compose her."

In those words Lord Montbarry stated the case to his brother from the rational point of view. Henry made no remark, he went straight to the drawing room.

He found Agnes walking rapidly backward and forward, flushed and excited. "If you come here to say what your brother has been saying to me," she broke out, before he could speak, "spare yourself the trouble. I don't want common sense—I want a true friend who will believe in me."

"I am that friend, Agnes," Henry answered, quietly, "and you know it."

"You really believe that I am not deluded by a dream?"

"I know that you are not deluded—in one particular, at least."

"In what particular?"

"In what you have said of the countess. It is perfectly true"——

Agnes stopped him there. "Why do I only hear this morning that the countess and Mrs. James are one and the same person?" she asked distrustfully. "Why was I not told of it last night?"

"You forget that you had accepted the exchange of rooms before I reached Venice," Henry replied. "I felt strongly tempted to tell you, even then—but your sleeping arrangements for the night were all made; I should only have inconvenienced and alarmed you. I waited till the morning, after hearing from my brother that you had yourself seen to your security from any intrusion. How that intrusion was accomplished it is impossible to say. I can only declare that the countess' presence by your bedside last night was no dream of yours. On her own authority I can testify that it was a reality."

"On her own authority?" Agnes repeated, eagerly. "Have you seen her this morning?"

"I have seen her not ten minutes since."

"What was she doing?"

"She was busily engaged in writing. I could not even get her to look at me until I thought of mentioning your name."

"She remembered me, of course?"

"She remembered you with some difficulty. Finding that she wouldn't answer me on any other terms, I questioned her as it I had come direct from you. Then she spoke. She not only admitted that she had the same superstitious motive for placing you in that room, which she had acknowledged to Francis—she even owned that she had been by your bedside, watching through the night, 'to see what you saw,' as she expressed it. Hearing this, I tried to persuade her to tell me how she got into the room. Unluckily, her manuscript on the table caught her eye; she returned to her writing. 'The baron wants money,' she said, 'I must get on with my play.' What she saw, or dreamed, while she was in your room last night, it is at present impossible to discover. But, judging by my brother's account of her, as well as by what I remember of her myself, some recent influence has been at work which has produced a marked change in this wretched woman, for the worse. Her mind is, in certain respects, unquestionably deranged. One proof of it is that she spoke to me of the baron as if he were still a living man. When Francis saw her, she declared that the baron was dead, which is the truth. The United States consul at Milan showed us the announcement of the death in an American newspaper. So far as I can see, such sense as she still possesses seems to be entirely absorbed in one absurd idea—the idea of writing a play for Francis to bring out at his theatre. He admits that he encouraged her to hope she might get money in this way. I think he did wrong. Don't you agree with me?"

Without heeding the question, Agnes rose abruptly from her chair.

"Do me one more kindness, Henry," she said. "Take me to the countess at once."

Henry hesitated. "Are you composed enough to see her, after the shock that you have suffered?" he asked.

She trembled, the flush on her face died away, and left it deadly pale. But she held to her resolution. "You have heard of what I saw last night?" she said, faintly.

"Don't speak of it!" Henry interposed. "Don't uselessly agitate yourself."

"I must speak! My mind is full of horrid questions about it. I know I can't identify it—and yet I ask myself over and over again, in whose likeness did it appear? Was it in the likeness of Ferrari? or was it"— She stopped, shuddering. "The countess knows, I must see the countess!" she resumed, vehemently. "Whether my courage fails me or not, I must make the attempt. Take me to her before I have time to feel afraid of it!"

Henry looked at her anxiously. "If you are really sure of your own resolution," he said, "I agree with you—the sooner you see her the better. You remember how strangely she talked of your influence over her, when she forced her way into your room in London?"

"I remember it perfectly. Why do you ask?"

"For this reason. In the present state of her mind, I doubt if she will be much longer capable of realizing her wild idea of you as the avenging angel who is to bring her to a reckoning for her evil deeds. It may be well to try what your influence can do while she is still capable of feeling it."

He waited to hear what Agnes would say. She took his arm and led him in silence to the door.

They ascended to the second floor, and after knocking entered the countess' room.

She was still busily engaged in writing. When she looked up from the paper, and saw Agnes, a vacant expression of doubt was the only expression in her wild black eyes. After a few moments, the lost remembrances and associations appeared to return slowly to her mind. The pen dropped from her hand. Haggard and trembling she looked closer at Agnes, and recognized her at last. "Has the time come already?" she said, in low awe stricken tones. "Give me a little longer respite. I haven't done my writing yet!"

She dropped on her knees, and held out her clasped hands, entreatingly. Agnes was far from having recovered, after the shock that she had suffered in the night; her nerves were far from being equal to the strain that was now laid on them. She was so startled by the change in the countess that she was at a loss what to say or to do next. Henry was obliged to speak to her, "Put your questions while you have the chance," he said, lowering his voice. "See! the vacant look is coming over her face again."

Agnes tried to rally her courage. "You were in my room last night"—— she began. Before she could add a word more, the countess lifted her hands and wrung them above her head, with a low moan of horror. Agnes shrunk back, and turned as if to leave the room. Henry stopped her and whispered to her to try again. She obeyed him after an effort. "I slept last night in the room that you gave up to me," she resumed. "I saw"——

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be oodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S price which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

WAR RUMORS RENEWED.

THE STRAINED RELATIONS OF RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA CAUSE ALARM.

Hostilities Considered Inevitable at Berlin —Advices From London Tend to Confirm This Belief—The Russian Papers Bellicose in Tone.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—The expectation of war in Berlin and Vienna increases steadily and surely, despite present peace and the persistent attempts to quiet general apprehension. Troops are moving and the concentration of the armies goes on with activity. Both sides are unceasing in their activity in throwing men and munitions on the frontier. After the last council of war at Gatschina, at which the Czar presided, orders were sent out to place the fifth, seventh, eighth and eleventh army corps on a war footing. This is a plain fact, and all the false statements of the situation which are put forth by the war officers and the inspired press cannot conceal the actual condition of nervous activity. Russian agents are trying to negotiate in Paris a loan of £10,000,000.

Military experts are now discussing the probable period of the opening of the campaign. The Vienna Army Gazette declares that a winter campaign is impossible, and that deep mud and snow continues in Poland until May, making even a spring campaign in that region impracticable. The Kreuz Zeitung and all the German newspapers contend in favor of a winter campaign, because the Austrian war office is all ready to mobilize the whole imperial army and has ample supplies in readiness to operate in Poland, notwithstanding the deep snow and other hindrances of the season. It is doubtful if any movement will be made until well into the spring, although the earlier the better probably for the allies, and the worse for Russia, who cannot move quickly.

The Spectator says that the judgment of men who have the means of knowing the symptoms is that the situation is most serious. The Economist believes the situation dangerous, but the Government has not abandoned hope of smoothing matters.

GERMAN OPINION.

If War is Averted Military Expectation Will be Disappointed.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—If war early in the spring is averted official anticipation will be deceived and military expectation disappointed. Within the past few days it has become the settled conviction of the diplomatic circle that the Czar's pacific tendencies have been overborne by the Panslavist faction, and that he is now under the control of the war party, the leaders of which are likely to precipitate a war by some act of provocation committed without the Czar's full assent.

The return of Gen. Von Schweinitz, the German Ambassador to St. Petersburg, was hoped to be signalized by a decisive turn of the tide peaceward. The conference between Gen. Von Schweinitz and M. DeGiers, the Russian Prime Minister, on Thursday last had a contrary result. Whatever passed during the interview has deepened the distrust in Berlin and increased the irritation of the Austrian Government towards the Czar's Ministers. M. DeGiers appears to have abandoned his policy of peace pressure upon the Czar and to have thrown his influence on the side of the military party. He is reported as telling Gen. Von Schweinitz that the Czar is sincerely desirous of peace, but is unable to tolerate longer Austrian duplicity in thwarting Russian endeavors to obtain the just fruits of her sacrifices in the Balkan campaign. Apart from what transpired at the interview with Gen. Von Schmenits, M. de Grers has complained openly at diplomatic reunions in St. Petersburg of Count Kalnoky's language in reference to Russia, declaring it to be unbearable and that is justified every measure Russia might take to reenforce her troops on the frontier.

An ominous indication of the extreme tension of the situation is the bellicose tone of the St. Petersburg papers towards Austria. There is no further pretence of concealment as to what are the Russian aims. Bulgaria, the papers say, must be deprived of any shadow of autonomy and become a Russian province, while Austria must be forced to evacuate Bosnia and Herzegovina. A notable feature of the articles in The Novoe Vremya, Novosti and other Russian papers, is the statement that a war with Austria would not necessarily involve Germany. An inspired article in The Grashdanin states that the Russian Government has obtained the knowledge that the terms of the treaty of alliance leave Germany free not to interfere unless Austria is threatened with a collapse which would involve territorial losses. This is contrary to the official press of Vienna and Pesth, which treats the war question as a common matter between Austria and Germany. The Berlin official view concurs with that of the Austrian press, and the closeness of the intimacy between the War Departments distinctly points to concerted plans of military action in the event of war.

Since his conference with M. De Giers, Gen. Von Schweinitz has been received by the Czar, who made the reception a formality, avoiding conversation.

The report that Count Von Wolkenstein, the Austrian Ambassador at St. Petersburg, had received assurances from M. DeGriers that the movements of troops had ceased, is semi-officially denied from Vienna to-night. The Russian Government has not ventured to make any statement either to the German or to the Austrian Ambassador regarding the position on the frontier. Reassuring representations would be useless in the face of facts. During the past week Russian cavalry and light artillery have been pushed forward to extreme outposts, for instance to Melchow, a few kilometers from Crakow, and to Chilakovo, a station on the Lemberg and Doubus Railway.

A careful estimate in The Post gives Russia eight and a half army corps within the frontier districts of Warsaw, Wilna and Kieff, with 120 field batteries, against a combined Austrian and German force of five and a half army corps with 82 batteries. Russia has also an immense preponderance of cavalry strength.

THE RUSSIA STUDENTS.

Renewed Rioting—The Minister of Public Instruction Resigns.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says that the University students there, being irritated by the action of the authorities in confining them to the university building, renewed the rioting. The students deny that they are actuated by political motives. They say that their aim is to secure the dismissal of the rector, the abolition of the new university statutes and the release of the students who were arrested during the recent trials. Prof. Mendelejeff promised to impartially report the affair to the curator, whereupon the prefect opened the door and the students dispersed quietly. The students are not satisfied with Prof. Mendlejeff's promise, however, and have resolved to send a petition to the Czar.

M. Delianow, the Minister of Public Instruction, has tendered his resignation. It has not been accepted, but the Czar is displeased with the Minister, and has declined to grant him an audience.

THE STRIKING RAILROADERS.

Freight Trains on the Reading Moved Yesterday—The Strike Condemned.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Dec. 25.—Two freight trains were moved to-day in this region on the Philadelphia and Reading road. Their crews were hooted by the strikers, but no other demonstrations were made. It is believed the miners will strike if called upon, although a number of them are not in sympathy with the movement. The Union Coal Company, the Lenox Coal Company and several individual colliers will be the only mines in operation in the region should the Reading miners go out. The strike is generally condemned in business circles.

Will go to Work This Morning.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 26.—Three freight trains were moved east on the Reading Road to-day. The regular crews were off on account of the Christmas holidays. It is understood that the men will go to work to-morrow morning.

CHAMBERLAIN AND WIMAN.

Mr. F. R. Thurber Waxes Wroth at the Commissioner's Criticisms.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The criticisms which Mr. Chamberlain made on Mr. Wiman to the reporters at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, on Thursday last have excited some attention here and his friends are offended. Among them is Mr. Frank R. Thurber. He has addressed the following to the New York Herald:

To the Editor of the New York Herald:

Sir—There is an old saying that the "pit bird flutters," and the truth of it is illustrated in your despatches from Ottawa announcing the utterance of Hon. Jos. Chamberlain upon the subject of Commercial Union, but it is astonishing that Mr. Chamberlain, who is supposed to be a trained diplomat as well as a gentleman, should have exhibited so much feeling and have indulged in such discourteous personal remarks, as he is reported to have done in his allusions to Mr. Erastus Wiman, who is too much of a gentleman to speak of Mr. Chamberlain in terms such as that gentleman is reported to have used toward him. Certainly Mr. Wiman enjoys the respect of all who know him, and if missiles are thrown at him by those who differ with him on public questions he should remember that "the most sticks and stones are always found under the best apple tree."

As regards Commercial Union, Mr. Chamberlain may find that he has underestimated both sides of the line the public opinion in favor of some such proposition, although we may not come in the precise form advocated by Mr. Wiman. T. B. THURBER.

THE FRENCH PATRIOTIC LEAGUE.

It Will Have Only one Motto—"France"—President Carnot's Popularity.

PARIS, Dec. 25.—M. Deschanels, a judge of the Court of Accounts, has been elected President of the Patriotic League. It is announced that the League will in future abstain from concerning itself with the internal policy of France, and that it will have only one flag, the national emblem, and one motto, "France."

President Carnot's Popularity.

PARIS, Dec. 25.—President Carnot grows more popular every day. He takes long walks through the boulevards of Paris and cordially interchanges greetings with every one who accosts him. He is invariably accompanied by Gen. Brugere, his military secretary, and yesterday the pair stopped at Braun's and were photographed. Emerging from Braun's the President was cheered to the echo, and was impelled to halt at Yvon's studio on his way back to the Elysee to have his portrait taken at full length. M. Clemenceau is reported to have said in a recent interview with M. Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of The Times, that he was dismayed to see in the papers an account of a stormy scene between himself and President Carnot in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies and observe its characterization as a portentous discussion, when, as a matter of fact, nothing more than a friendly greeting had occurred.

Sudden Deaths of Aged Persons.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., Dec. 25.—A number of sudden and remarkable deaths of aged and conspicuous citizens of Orange County have occurred within a few days past. Among others Charles Moore, aged 61 years, and residing near Monroe village, who retired in good health and was found dead in his bed next morning. Another case is that of Samuel Gale aged 75, for many years Postmaster and Erie Railroad agent at Pine Island station, who, while apparently well, went out to his barn, and was found by his family a few minutes later lying dead there. Still another case is that of Daniel Dusenberre, an eccentric farmer of the Town of Warwick, who had long predicted that he would die in the 73rd year of his age, and who passed that birthday in June last. On the day before his death he called his six children to the bedside, and after telling them that his time had come according to the premonition he had long entertained, and that he should die at a certain hour next day, he gave them his final instructions and bade them farewell. He did, in fact, expire next day at the hour he foretold.

Journalistic Criticism of Doherty's Sentence

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The Observer to-day denounces the sentence pronounced upon Daniel Doherty, the American who shot and killed Graham, as monstrous. It declares that the judgment of Justice Stephens was biased by the opinion he has often expressed—that drunkenness increases instead of lessening the gravity of offences, a sentiment which mankind has pronounced contrary to common sense.

The French to Evacuate the New Hebrides.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Advices from Sydney, N.S.W., state that the French Commandant of the New Hebrides has been ordered by his Government to evacuate the islands in January. A French company is buying land from the natives of the New Hebrides for the purpose of establishing trading stations.

LORD RANDOLPH'S VISIT.

HE IS NOT THE MESSENGER TO RUSSIA OF LORD SALISBURY.

Nor Will He Intrigue Against the Policy of His Own Government—He Will Probably be Granted an Interview With the Czar To-day.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—Lord and Lady Randolph Churchill have arrived at St. Petersburg. Curiosity about their journey is at its height and conjectures multiply. One thing amid this cloud of conjectures is certain—Lord Randolph Churchill has not gone to Russia as the messenger of Lord Salisbury. Anything else may be true; that must be false. His interview with the Czar, should it take place, will be granted to Lord Randolph solely on account of his personal political importance. The journals here are raking up all the hard things this versatile young statesman has said of Russia, but the diplomats of St. Petersburg are the last people in the world to take account of such things, and the Czar is far too great a sovereign to concern himself about them. One other thing, I may add, is certain, Lord Randolph Churchill has not gone to Russia to intrigue against the policy of his own Government.

Two Proposed Irish Bills.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—The Cabinet have decided to introduce two Irish bills. One of these will be aimed to conciliate the Romish Bishops, and embodies a response to the Roman Catholic demand with regard to its regulation of higher education and the colleges in Ireland. The other bill meets the appeal of the Irish landlords and their mortgagees for advances from the treasury to the landlords at 3½ per cent., the loans to be repayable in instalments extending over thirty-six years. The Irish mortgagors now pay 4½ to 6 per cent. interest on their borrowings, and the treasury loans at 3½ per cent. will be eagerly sought.

To See the Czar To-day.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 25.—Lord Randolph Churchill has seen M. DeGiers, the Russian Foreign Minister, and will probably see the Czar to-day.

THE MEMBERS FOR VICTORIA.

Mr. Shakespeare Said to Have Resigned His Seats—Mr. Baker May Be So.

OTTAWA, Dec. 25.—It is understood that Mr. Shakespeare, M.P. for Victoria, B.C., has resigned his seat to accept the postmastership of the city in place of Postmaster Wallace, who has been superannuated. Major Prior, M.P.C., and Major Fell will probably be candidates for the seat in the Commons. It is also rumored that Mr. Baker, the second member for Victoria, will resign to accept the collectorship of customs, and that Hon. Joseph W. Trutch, who was largely instrumental in bringing about the union of British Columbia with the Dominion, and who was Lieutenant-Governor of the province from 1871 to 1876, will be the Conservative candidate for Mr. Baker's seat.

The New York Treasury Department has just rendered a decision to the effect that logs, cut in the State of Minnesota and conveyed to Ontarionese mills to be sawed into timber for American citizens, must pay a duty of $2 per thousand on being re-imported into the state.

Mr. James Buchanan, Secretary of the United Gas and Oil Trust of Pittsburg, was on a visit to his brother, Mr. Peter Buchanan of the Department of the Interior, last week, and while here investigated the reported natural gas discovery at the Mer Bleu, near Ottawa. Last year the company represented by Mr. Buchanan spent several thousand dollars in having an examination made at Eastman's Springs, six miles from here, but although surface gas was found there it was not considered advisable to sink a well to any depth with the expectation of finding gas in paying quantities. Mr. Buchanan had an interview with some of the promoters of the Mer Bleu Company, and is understood to have stated that if the company sink a well and really find gas the United Gas and Oil Trust would be willing to furnish all the capital necessary to develop it.

Wilson Shared the Spoils.

PARIS, Dec. 25.—An inquiry has shown that a blacking manufacturer bought the decoration of the Legion of Honor for 60,000 francs, and that M. Wilson and his accomplices shared the spoils. M. Wilson's arrest is expected.

A Revolution Ended.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—Advices from Guatemala say that a revolution, headed by the ex-President of Guatemala, Vicente Castano, against the Government of Gen. Barillas for having proclaimed a dictatorship June 14, lately suffered a most humiliating defeat. There were two different factions, one working from the eastern department and the other from the western, the former under the generalship of Castano and the latter in charge of several well-known military men of the Republic. In a range of mountains near the City of Guatemala a few days ago a desperate battle was fought between the Federal and revolutionary forces, the latter suffering almost complete annihilation.

THE SAMOAN DIFFICULTY.

A Strong Opposition to the Plan of Foreign Interference.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—The steamer Mariposa, which arrived yesterday, brought advices from Samoa to Nov. 14. The Apia correspondent of The Sydney Morning Herald states that the Samoans are becoming more keenly alive to the fact that the party represented by the new king, Tamasis, has been made use of merely to serve the policy of the Germans. The whole plan of foreign interference, as represented by the German plan of operations, is steadily raising a strong opposition.

The arrival of the United States man-of-war Adams, Oct. 19, was the occasion of much rejoicing to many in Apia. The men were not permitted to leave the ship because of the presence of the German guards and sentries along the beach and the possibility of a conflict taking place. Soon after the Adams arrived a number of natives under Asie, the fighting chief, visited the vessel and after inspection the Samoans assembled on the upper deck and had a dance. The correspondent states that the Germans have expressed their annoyance at the circumstance, and the natives have been virtually prohibited from giving any more such entertainments.

A collision is reported to have taken place between American sailors and a German on the street.

THE MANITOBA GOVERNMENT.

Latest Developments Regarding the Changes in the Cabinet.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 25.—The result of the Conservative caucus has at least averted, if not indefinitely postponed, a crisis which it was generally expected would have been reached on the meeting of the House. One account of the caucus is that on being called to order Mr. Norquay at once insisted that he should step down and out in the interests of the party. Mr. Lariviere also said that he had handed in his resignation. Both said they were willing to abide their time for vindication. One report says that Mr. Lariviere produced documents to show that the Manitoba Government was warranted in handing over provincial bonds to the Hudson Bay Railway. At any rate it is a fact that his and Mr. Norquay's addresses were so convincing that their resignation would not have been accepted had they not peremptorily insisted upon it.

Dr. Harrison was unanimously chosen leader, to whom both Mr. Norquay and Mr. Lariviere pledged allegiance. It was decided not to fill the vacancies in the Cabinet until after the meeting of the Legislature. Dr. Harrison's policy, as alleged to have been stated in the caucus, is a strong stand on provincial rights, completion of the Red River Valley Railroad, rigid economy and retrenchment, and steps to secure the Hudson Bay Railway land grant.

THE MEXICAN BANDITS.

Their Murder of Leon Baldwin May Lead to International Trouble.

NOGALES, ARIZ. Dec. 25.—It is learned that Gen. Moral with a party of troops went to Otaez soon after receiving the news of the sacking of the town by Bernals. He found the houses barricaded and the streets deserted, and that half had not been told regarding the outrages committed by the Bernals' band. The women, both old and young, had been compelled to submit to numerous indignities, often in the presence of their husbands and brothers. All of the able-bodied inhabitants have joined the Federal troops in an effort to exterminate the band.

It is stated that the Mexican Government fear international trouble with the United States on account of the murder of Leon Baldwin by Bernals' band, consequently they are prosecuting the campaign against the gang with renewed vigor.

The Market in London Week.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—Discount was quiet during the past week at 2½ to 1¼. On the stock exchange business was limited owing partly to the holiday. The tendency throughout the week was rather downward. American railroad securities were inactive with a weak tone owing to the number of sales to liquidate accounts prior to the close of the year.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

TWENTY ONE MEN OUT.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR AND NINETEEN IN THE WARDS.

Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Rutherford for the Mayoralty—All the Old Councillors in the Field—Addresses by the Mayoralty Candidates and in Several Wards.

The mayoralty nominations took place in the old Music Hall at ten o'clock on Monday forenoon. As the town time piece commenced to chime Returning Officer Macdonald commenced to read the proclamation to the dozen or so persons present, and scarcely had the last stroke been sounded than he pronounced the final words "God Save the Queen." He was ready to receive any nominations for the Mayoralty.

Mr. GEO. HILLIARD, ex M.P., who sat in one of the front seat stood up and said: "Mr. Returning Officer and gentlemen, I beg to propose the name of a resident of the town as a candidate for the Mayoralty. He has had long experience in municipal matters and I think he is a man who is quite competent to fill the bill. I beg to propose Mr. Arthur Rutherford as a fit and proper person to represent us as Mayor for 1888." (Murmurs of applause.)

Mr. JOHN METHERAL seconded the nomination.

After this there was silence for about fifteen minutes. Then Mayor Stevenson came in and took a seat and after a while Mr. Rutherford came in and took a seat beside him. "Compliments of the season," said Mr. Rutherford, with outstreched hand. Mayor Stevenson amicably shook hands and returned the salute.

Councillor MOORE stood up and spoke as follows: "I have much pleasure this morning in nominating as Chief Magistrate for the coming year Mr. James Stevenson. It is unnecessary for me to say anything in commendation of that gentleman. His long and favorable record is one known to every person in the Town of Peterborough. It is one, I think, that justifies me in my confidence in him as being the best person in town to-day to represent us as Mayor. His considerable interest—I might say large interest—in town, gives him a personal interest in the welfare, progress and prosperity of the place. His long municipal experience, extending over a period of forty years, makes him thoroughly well up in the wants and interests of the town of Peterborough. He is a gentleman who is an honor for the town to have as its representative. He is a man who is able at all times to intelligently to speak of the town's interests, to direct its councils and to help formed the material prosperity of the town. It is needless for me to say anything more as his capability is so notorious. I have nothing more to add than that it gives me great pleasure in nominating him for another term as Mayor of Peterborough."

By the time Mr. Moore finished there was quite a crowd around and there was a good deal of stamping at the sentiments he expressed.

Mr. WM. LEECH seconded the motion.

Mr. RUTHERFORD was the first to speak. Before he commenced it was agreed that each candidate be limited to half an hour for expressing his views. The speaker then said that he appeared before them as a candidate for the Mayor's chair for 1888. He had been nominated by a gentleman who was well known and who would not have done so had he not been a fit candidate for the office. He appeared before them not as one who had had little experience but as a citizen who devoted many years to municipal matters. He recalled the incident now that he was a candidate for the Mayoralty that 36 year ago today he had done his first day's work and on the very building where they were assembled. He had had the impression that the present Mayor would have given place to others who were competent after having served two years, but it appeared that Mayor Stevenson had different views. He thought that several of the Councillors were eligible for the position and it was but right that, after a man had devoted 15 or 20 years to Councilloric duties, that he should be honored by being placed at the head of the Council. On this ground he asked their suffrages and if placed at the head of the Council he would act with that impartiality that had characterized his actions during his eighteen years served as Councillor. He spoke of fostering industries, which would be a part of his policy if elected Mayor. He did not believe in bonuses but it would be well to give sites and exemption from taxation if satisfactory guarantees of the soundness of such industries were given. The town had grown to that point now at which something energetic in the matter of encouraging industries was of vital importance. He had been charged with being extravagant but on that point defended himself. Also, he had given his services as chairman of committees all of these years without having received one cent, nor did he expect to receive anything. He did not deny that he was a warm advocate for the introduction of the water works, but he did emphatically deny that he received pay from the water company for advocacy of it in the council, or from any other company. He justified his course by pointing to the many advantages there was of having an efficient system of water works. He denied that he had taken any wash doors which were the property of the town, without authority, as some persons had said. The chairman of the Property Committee had sold him the doors, and when the bill was presented he paid it. As to the temperance question it would be his business if elected to see that the Scott Act was enforced so long as it was a law of the land and if it was repealed he would advocate a high license. The hotel keepers could afford to pay a high license. Why this year they had paid about $8,000 in fines, and they could pay license fees as well.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON—Excuse me Mr. Rutherford, I want to ask you a question. Supposing you were elected Mayor would you go for paying Mr. Edwards note he got from the Scott Act Association? Would you pledge yourself to pay Mr. Rossiter's salary out of the fines? and would you pledge yourself to hand over the amount of the Scott Act Association's expenses?

Mr. RUTHERFORD replied in the negative to all of the questions. Mr. Edward's bill should have been paid by the present council. He decidedly objected to paying Mr. Rossiter's salary. He would not agree to pay the Scott Act Association's expenses.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON (with composure) —All right, Mr. Rutherford.

Mr. RUTHERFORD proceeded to say that the hotel keepers were to blame for the Scott Act being introduced. If they had observed the Crooks Act strictly they would have had no Scott Act. Where was the hotel keeper that had observed the Crooks Act strictly? In Peterborough not a single one.

Mr. WM. CROFT (down in the audience)—Yes, sir; I am one.

Mr. RUTHERFORD was glad to find that there was one, and proceeded to speak of enforcing the Scott Act. He did not think Mr. Croft observed the Scott Act. He concluded by wishing the electors the compliments of the season.

Mr. WM. LEECH spoke a short while on true economy and false economy. They should be economical for health's sake and build a good sewer on George St. He spoke of the places along the street as being "filthy." In the interests of the welfare of the town it was necessary to build a good system of sewerage (applause.) He had his views on the Temperance question, favoring high licenses. He was a temperance man in the strict sense of the term, and yet he did not believe in total abstenance.

Mr. METHERAL—Then you are not a temperance man!

Mr. LEECH—I am a temperance man but I don't believe in declaring for total abstenance and at the same time drink behind the door. (Uproar.) Mrs. Youmans comes here to talk temperance. I don't know whether she drinks—

A VOICE—She was a good customer of John Moloney's when he kept hotel. (Laughter.)

Mr. LEECH—I wish she had some babies to look after. (Renewed laughter.). He continued, advocating better sewerage.

Mayor STEVENSON was received with applause. He saluted the electors with wishing them a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. He spoke of the extra expense the town had been put to on the bridge account which had been paid out of current income, but notwithstanding this he could inform them that by prudent management they still had a surplus of $3,000. (Applause.) Last year he said that an effort would be made to reduce the rate of taxation from 15 mills to 12½ mills. Had not this been done?

The clock struck eleven at this point, and the returning officer closed the nomination proceedings. Mr. Macdonald was elected Chairman and Mayor Stevenson continued by saying he did not wish to occupy the position of Mayor if he could get a good man to take it. During his term he had done his best to serve the people faithfully without any reward. During the year just closing he did not intend to seek the office again, but at the earnest solicitation of prominent citizens he decided to offer himself again. His interests were so closely identified with the town's interests that he wanted to see the town capably managed. What was for the good of the town was his good. All he had was here. He hoped by next year to see some good man come to the front and release him of the duties. It was true he could not please everybody. He did not, it seemed, please his Scott Act friends in reference to Scott Act enforcement. But they must remember that the Police Supervision Committee controlled the police force now, not the Mayor. All the Mayor could do was to suspend. He had remonstrated in some instances as to matters of Scott Act enforcement, but his remonstrating was passed over. He did not see anything flagrant which would call for suspension. It was said that he should have had all the tavern keepers in gaol long ago. They would have to get some one else to do that. The Police Magistrate was paid $1,200 a year and that was a part of his duties. He spoke of the amount of fines that had been collected, and claimed that the act had been fairly enforced. He referred also to his action in securing the fines for the town when by the law as it was the fines would have gone to the County. He added that at the time of the introduction of the Act he went to Mr. Flavelle and asked him what they proposed to do and Mr. Flavelle replied "we have no faith in the Town Council; we are going to enforce this ourselves." He was insulted at the way he was used, and they could not blame the civic authorities if they did not take a more active part in the enforcement. As to encouraging manufacturers, they all knew his position. He favored private citizens giving the bonuses, not the public. He told how he had done his best in the past to encourage manufacturers to locate here and would do so in the future. He was in favor of better sewerage, and was only waiting till they discharged in full the municipal loan fund indebtedness till he would advocate a full measure of sewerage. He closed with highly commending Councillor McNeil's good work in fire department, pointing out the saving it effected in insurance, and the more effective fire protection it gave. He was sure the electors of No. 2 Ward would return him again.

NO. ONE WARD.

MR. JOSEPH LINDY, Deputy Returning Officer for the First Ward, called for nominations at twelve o'clock, and the following candidates were nominated:—

HENRY C. WINCH, proposed by Henry Best and seconded by Patrick McNamara, Sr.

ROBERT S. DAVIDSON, proposed by Angus Williams and seconded by George Rose.

THOMAS CAHILL, by James P. Bryson and Patrick McNamara, Sr.

JOHN MCNAUGHTON, by John Patterson and James P. Bryson.

D. J. BANNELL SAWYER by James L. Hughes and George Rose.

LEWIS SPRY, by John Patterson and Angus Williams.

Mr. Spry withdrew and the other five go to the polls.

At the close of the hour for receiving nominations, Mr. Henry Best was called to the chair and the candidates were each allowed ten minutes to address those present.

Mr. MCNAUGHTON said that he believed the Mayor and Coundillors of the past year had done their duty honestly and in the interest of the people. He had been before them eleven years and had been kindly used in this Ward and if again elected he would pursue the same course that he had followed in the past. He defended his management of charity matters in the Ward, having only expended $168.50 during the year, although no deserving person had been refused aid. The taxes were low, and the town's affairs had been well managed. He was a temperance man; but did not believe the Scott Act did any good as there were 33 shebeens in the town. He attacked Mr. Rutherford, the Mayoralty candidate, for building a hotel and treating the men working on the building. He would not vote to give money to the Scott Act Association or their officers.

Mr. DAVIDSON said it was better to judge men by their past actions than by their promises, and he believed he had voted in the interests of the town and economy. He was not sanguine of bringing the taxes much below 12 mills, as they had fixed charges amounting to nearly 10 mills. The mistake in the Scott Act was that there was no machinery to enforce it, but the fines were looked after as well or better here than in any other town. If they returned to the Crooks Act, he would favor fixing the liquor license fee at $500, and then, instead of having 100 places selling liquor, as was the Obituary.

The wife of Mr. W. H. Buddon, of the Bank of Montreal, died on Monday night after a short illness. Mrs. Budden's demise at the early age of 30 years will be regretted by a large circle of friends.

This Morning's Court.

Dennis Doherty was sentenced to three months imprisonment on a charge of vagrancy. R. McConkey was fined $10 for an infraction of the fishing act, having been convicted of spearing fish in Sandy Creek. Two other cases of a similar kind were adjourned.

A Recognition.

Miss Begley, of this town, has for some time past been identified with the St. Mary's church choir, Grafton. On coming home for christmas she was surprised to find that a beautiful silver water pitcher had been sent to her by express. It was suitably engraved, conveying the esteem in which she was held by the chior.

Personal.

Mr. Jas. Menzies, of the Ottawa Free Press newsroom, spent Christmas in town.

A Fine Window.

The display of Christmas presents, &c made by W.J. Mason, next door to the Bank of Toronto, for artistic arangements and effect, probably excels anything yet produced in town, and the pleased exclamation of the ladies, who are doubtless the best judges in such matters, is strong presumptive evidence that they regard the good things on show as of the very freshest and best. By all means see that window.

LONG or short Mantles, Dolmans and Ulsters at closing out prices, at TURNBULL'S.

A Wedding.

On Monday forenoon at half past ten o'clock St. Luke's Church was well filled with people to see the marriage ceremony which took place at that hour. Mr. C. H. Geale formerly of the Bank of Toronto, here, now of Montreal, was the groom, and Miss Helen McNab, daughter of the late Dr. McNab, was the bride. Mr. McDonald, of the Bank of Montreal, acted as groomsman and Miss Burnham as bridesmaid, and the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw officiated. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Geale drove to the Canadian Pacific railway station and left for their new home in Montreal. Both of the contracting parties are followed by the well wishes of their many friends in Peterborough.

Bells of Shandon.

The Robt. H. Baird Dramatic Company opened a weeks engagement at Bradburn's Opera House to a large audience, in the popular Irish Comedy "Bells of Shandon." The star, Miss Josie Robinson, has a good figure, is handsome, has a musical voice, and takes her part very naturally. She was much admired in the character taken on Monday night, Blanche. Mr. Robt. H. Baird, as Fergus McCarthy, the Irish patriot, displayed his talent, especially in the two last scenes. His agitation on reading the letter telling of his paternal relation to Blanche was a thrilling reality, his humor, which played through the piece, was irresistable. The support without exception acquitted themselves well. Tonight "My Partner" will be presented.

Christmas Festivity.

A Christmas tree entertainment was held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on Monday evening at which about three hundred and fifty children, attendants of the Sunday School in connection with the church, and a large number of grown up people were present. The pastor occupied the chair. The event of the evening was the distribution of Christmas presents. Not only the children, but prominent members of the church, received presents. Some presentations created much fun. A prize was given by Mr. Rowse, the Superintendent of the school, for the most proficient boy and girl. Master John Dobson got a fine Bible for general proficiency and Miss Bertha Wills, another for the same. A programme was presented in which Jas. McCormick, Flo. Madden, W. Langford, Alice Davis, Daisy Rubidge, Emma Robinson, W. Kennedy, Lizzie McCormick, Silas Brenton, Maud Morrison, Essie Nichols, L. Redmond, Nettie McFadden, Freddie Benton, Lillie Bell, Hattie Richardson, May Nicholls, Edith Lyle, Charlie Stone, Harry Froude, Annie Sutherland, and a chorus of school children took part.

Church Notes.

—The festival of the nativity was duly celebrated at the Anglican and Roman Churches on Sunday. St. John's Church was handsomely decorated with wreaths of evergreens around the pillars and over the reading desk and liturgy stool. A large motto over the chancel "And his name shall be called Jesus" was prettily furnished in blue and gold. The altar was wreathed with evergreens above which was the symbol of the Christian "religion, the cross, with the letters "I. H. S. and the mottos "Holy, Holy, Holy," and "Peace on Earth and Good will towards men." On the walls of the church hung white shields bearing stars, crowns, anchors, etc. The baptismal font was handsomely decorated with flowers and evergreens. The canticles were especially well rendered by the choir.

—At St. Luke's church a large congregation assembled at all the services. Evergreens with bright berries mingled were wound around the gasaliers and festoons hung from the chancel ceiling. Above the altar was the motto "The Royal Child is born" and "Emanuel, God with us." Christmas witnessed the largest number of communicants yet numbered in this parish.

—At St. Peter's a large congregation attended all the services. The church was handsomely decorated. After Vespers the Bishop thanked the people for their liberal offerings.

—The Musical Festival, George St. Methodist Sunday School, Jan 19th, will be of more than usual interest. Nothing shall be left undone to make it a grand success.

case now, there would only be about 20 and they would be more respectable places. There would be about $15,000 to expend next year on bridges, etc., and they should consider into whose hands they would place the work of expending it. In answer to a question, he said that the Council had paid for rigs for the constables to procure witnesses in Scott Act cases and had done all they could to enforce it, though he thought the sooner the Act was repealed the better.

MR. CAHILL claimed that the Councillors had done their duty fairly well during the year. No man would discharge an old servant, who had served him well, for a new one. The Council had passed a resolution instructing the constables to enforce all by-laws, including the Scott Act, and it was passed unanimously. He believed in temperance, though willing to take a drink occasionally. Mr. Rossiter had worked industriously to enforce the Act, but had not succeeded entirely. He dwelt with his particular duties as Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, and said he tried to do his duty in all parts of the town and that he thought the town fairly well served. The town finances were in a good position and he could claim his share of credit for that. They must encourage manufacturing, and they had been fairly successful in securing new factories. That was the way towns and cities were built up.

MR. SAWYER said he had tried to establish a business in the town, and that business brought $6,000 a year into the town, which otherwise would go to Belleville or other places. He was in business in town and owned property in the Ward. He said this in reply to a previous speaker. He had no axe to grind, but he came before them as a property owner who had an intelligent conception of the requirements of the Ward. He was not brought out by any temperance organization, but he was asked by temperance friends and others in the Ward to be a candidate. The question was not whether the Scott Act was a perfect law, but his position was that as long as it was the law it should be enforced. If elected he would vote every time to enforce the law and to enforce it through the constables. He referred to several improvements which he thought might be made, including the dredging of the lake shore, in regard to sanitary matters and getting the Government to do dredging.

MR. WINCH returned thanks for the honor done him in putting him in nomination as a candidate. He did not find fault with the old Councillors, but, if elected, would do all he could for the welfare of the Ward and the town.

A vote of thanks was tendered the chairman and the meeting closed.

WARD NO. TWO.

Mr. Chas. Cameron received the following nominations for No. 2 Ward at 12 o'clock:—

ANDREW MCNIEL was nominated by Joseph Griffin and seconded by George W. Hall.

THOMAS KELLY, by T. G. Hazlitt and James Stevenson.

ADAM HALL, by W. Paterson and W. H. Moore.

J. T. STENSON, by J. Best and T. Rountree.

J. R. STRATTON, by W. Paterson and Jos. Griffin.

Mr. Stratton being called on spoke briefly and withdrew from the contest.

Mr. MCNEIL was called to the platform. He said that he appealed to the people on the merits of his two years' record. He made reference to the kind words spoken by the Mayor in the morning as to the efficiency of the fire department. He said that it was with no little trouble that the department had been brought up to its present state of efficiency and that it cost him much labor in getting the rate of insurance down from D to B. This new rating gave the insuring public, not only in No. 2 Ward, but all over the town, the benefit of paying less in premiums while the increased facilities of the fire department gave them better fire protection. The new rating would save the town from $2,000 to $3,000 a year in premiums alone. He thought this was a consideration worth trying for, and which he was pleased to have accomplished during the past year. He had a pleasing consciousness of having done dis duty and if the electors of No. 2 Ward desired his services for another term he was willing to act. If they left him at home it would not hurt his feelings in the least. He claimed their support on the merits of what he had done. He then discussed the Temperance question for some time.

Mr. T. KELLY said a few words to the electors and wished them the compliments of the season.

Mr. A. Hall said he came out not as the representative of any party or clique, but as one who desired the welfare of the town.

Dr. FIFE and Mayor Stevenson presented different aspects of the Scott Act question to the electors present.

NO. 3 WARD.

Mr. John Irwin, Deputy Returning Officer for this Ward, recorded the following nominations:—

W. H. MOORE, nominated by W. R. Ferguson and seconded by R. W. Muncaster.

J. D. BAPTIE, by R. W. Muncaster and John Douglas.

JOHN DOUGLAS, by John King and J. D. Baptie.

WM. YELLAND, by John Somers and Ed. Sutton.

ED. SUTTON, by J. A. Fife, M. D., and Wm. Yelland.

NO. 4 WARD.

The nominations in No. 4 ward were made at the shop of Mr. W. Lee, on Smith street. There was a fair attendance but no speechmaking, though several matters of municipal interest were discussed in a conversational way. The old councillors came out in a body and smiled profoundly on their intelligent constituents. Mr. F. Mason was the Deputy Returning Officer for the ward —Mr. Lee, who was appointed, having resigned to become a candidate. The following propositions were stated:—

JAMES KENDRY, proposed by J. J. Hartley, seconded by Jas. S. Martin.

J. J. HARTLEY, by W. Lee and James Kendry.

W. LEE, by Jas. S. Martin and S. J. Griffin.

W. LANGFORD, by H. Denne and Thomas Menzies.

THOS. MENZIES, by H. Denne and W. H. Hill.

Mr. W. O'Brien was proposed but subsequently withdrew.

ASHBURNHAM.

Last Year's Village Council Elected Without Opposition for Another Term.

At the nominations at Ashburnham the old council of 1887 was re-elected by acclamation, the nominations being as follows:—

FOR REEVE.

JOHN BURNHAM, nominated by H. T. Strickland, and seconded by H. Calcutt. There being no other nomination, Mr. Burnham was declared elected.

FOR COUNCILLORS.

WM. WAND was nominated by John Smith and seconded by Robert Sheridan.

JOHN ANDERSON, by H. Calcutt and H. T Strickland.

J. T. CRAIG, by Richard Moore and H. Calcutt.

HENRY CALCUTT, by Jos. Phillips and Wm. Cook.

There being no other candidates, the four gentlemen nominated were the Councillors of the previous year, were declared elected. Mr. H. T. Strickland was called to the chair and short addresses were given.

Mr. BURNHAM thanked the electors for again placing him in the chair. He had considerable experience in municipal affairs, having served 21 years in the council, 15 years of which he had been Reeve. He thought there had been considerable improvements made during the past year. They had opened some new roads and had built additional sidewalks. He thought the taxes were as low as could be expected. There was one thing to be thankful for, that they had at last settled the Grand Junction Railroad suit, the demands of which company were unjust and unfair. He considered it his right and duty to forward the interests of the people and spend their money economically.

Mr. WAND said there was a considerable improvement in the village during the last year, especially in the north part of the village. A number of houses had been built there, property had been increased in value and more taxes would be received from them. He had served the council to the best of his ability for 12 years. He would practice strict economy and he hoped to see the taxes greatly reduced next year.

Mr. ANDERSON made reference to the improvements of the village and said that during the last year they had spent considerable money in cleaning away the ice in the creek. He thought the village was in a flourishing condition.

MR. CALCUTT stated that he had been in the council for about twenty years, and had always done his best to forward the interests of the village. He thought they could not have done better than elect the council of 1887 to office again. The creek had given them considerable trouble this last year, and had necessitated the expenditure of quite a sum of money. They had done a good deal in the way of improvements and opening new streets, but this was money well spent, and next year he hoped to see the rate of taxation reduced. He thought they were a flourishing village, they had all the advantages of a city. He was glad that he still retained the confidence of the ratepayers, as evidenced by his re-election, and he believed the ratepayers were perfectly safe in leaving the interests of the municipality in their hands.

A vote of thanks was tendered the chairman, who, replying, said he was sure they all regretted the absence of Councillor Craig through illness, and sympathized with him.

The meeting then adjourned.

Brevities.

—T. Cavanagh shipped thirty-four horses to Montreal this afternoon.

—The Charlotte Street Rink was crowded all day yesterday. The ice was good and everybody enjoyed themselves.

—The President's and Vice-President's curling match will take place on Thursday evening. All curlers are requested to attend.

—The result of the promotion examinations in the Separate School, Murray street, and other local matter has been held over till to-morrow.

—Cobourg Sentinal-Star:—"We see by the Peterborough papers that Mr. H. C. Winch, brother of our towns man, Mr. R. J. Winch, is a candidate for municipal honors in that town. Success to you Harry."

—The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, will be pained to learn of the death of Mr. Flavelle's son—a fine baby boy—which occurred suddenly on Sunday night. The cause of death is not definitely stated.

—During the course of his sermon on Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Wallace, of the George St. Methodist Church, referred to his departure from Peterborough and the pastorate of its church. He felt, he said, like one of a ship's comrades nearing the end of a voyage. He had spent the last two years among the people of the church very pleasantly, and should ever cherish loving recollections and effectionate remembrances, of much kind assistance given and of ernest prayers offered in his behalf. The lapse of time had brought to nearly all a fair measure of prosperity, while the retrospect was impered with the recollection that the aged and young as well had been called away. In withdrawing from active work in the church he did so with regret, satisfied, however, that he would find a field of usefulness where he was going. It was a satisfaction to think that he should be remembered in the town where he had labored, and with best wishes for the prosperity of the church he asked the prayers of the people in his behalf.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

Favorable Symptoms Continue—An Enormous Number of Christmas Presents.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The continuance of the favorable symptoms shown by the Crown Prince has enabled Dr. Mackenzie to postpone his return to San Remo until Tuesday. The Tageblatt refers to the recent attempts of a court clique to influence the Crown Prince to resign in favor of Prince William, his son. The accepted version of the affair credits Prince Bismarck with renewing the pressure on the Crown Prince by sending Count von Munster to San Remo to represent that the gravity of the situation and the imminence of a fateful war necessitate his abdication to enable Prince William to act beside the Emperor. The Crown Prince's reply to this was that so long as he drew breath he would not surrender his rights nor his duties. The Tageblatt goes to the length of suggesting that endeavors are being made to induce the Crown Prince to undergo an operation in order that a fatal termination may be hurried and end the political embarrassment. The National Zeitung refers to the insinuations in terms of indignation, but the assertions of the Tageblatt are known to have a solid stratum of fact. The defeat of the intrigue has strengthened the court opposition to Prince Bismarck.

An enormous number of Christmas presents have been received at San Remo from all parts of Germany. The gifts include wines, beers, gingerbread, sausages, woolen wraps, and all kinds of home-made articles. Pomerania, of which the Crown Prince is hereditary Governor, sends choice products of the province.

A Letter to the Freemasons.

BERLIN, Dec. 25.—The Crown Prince has sent a letter to the Prussian Grand Lodge of Freemasons thanking them for their address of sympathy and for their demonstrations of joy over the favorable symptoms in his case. The report that Dr. Mackenzie went to Algeria to select a residence for the Crown Prince was without foundation.

The New Conservative Organ.

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—The first number of The Empire, the new organ of the Conservative party in Toronto, appeared on the streets this morning, and was received enthusiastically by the public. It is very well written, and gives evident proof that its management is quite competent to make it a great success. The typographical appearance of the paper is highly creditable.

The Toronto Mayoralty.

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—There were four candidates nominated yesterday for the mayoralty, and three of them will go to the polls. These are Elias Rogers, E. F. Clarke, M.P.P., and D. M. Defoe. Mr. E. Gurney nominated the first gentleman, Goldwin Smith heralded Clarke, and Mr. Defoe was proposed by R. W. Elliott.

During his nomination speech Ald. Rogers was continually interrupted by an organized body of opponents. The contest between him and E. F. Clarke will be close and bitter. Ald. Defoe will fight it out to the end, but his chances of election are not considered very blooming.

Morgan Wants Heavy Damages.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—Henry J. Morgan, a clerk in the office of the Secretary of the State Department, will take action against The New York Herald for $50,000 damages for publishing an article reflecting on Mr. Morgan's probity. He will also enter actions against those Canadian journals which published the slanders.

Premier Mercier's Florida Trip Abandoned.

MONTREAL, Dec. 26.—Premier Mercier has abandoned his trip to Florida and returned to Quebec. The failure of a proposed provincial loan, the approach of several by-elections and a decision to assemble the Legislature at an early date have combined to decide this course on his part.

The Abyssinian Mission.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Advices from Massowah say that the British mission to Abyssinia was unsuccessful in its efforts to induce King John to sue for peace, and that the Italians are jubilant over the failure. During the journey the mission was harassed by Rasalula. The members will sail for Cairo on the next mail steamer.

Esmonde and O'Connor at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Dec. 26.—Sir Thomas Grattan Esmonde, M.P., and Arthur O'Connor, M.P., lectured here this evening under the auspices of the Hamilton Branch of the Irish National League on "The State of Ireland." There was a fair audience and no disturbance.

Parnell's Health Improving.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Mr. Parnell will spend the Christmas holidays with Mr. Shea at Eltham, in Kent. Mr. Parnell's health is much improved. He will probably address his constituents in Cork in January.

Turkey's New Minister of Finance.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 26. — Mahmoud Ogelaledden, the author of the new budget scheme for balancing the revenues and expenditure, has been appointed Minister of Finance in place of Zuhdi Pasha.

The Russian University Troubles.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 24.—The Official Messenger gives details of the recent trouble at Russian universities. It says that on Dec. 15 thirteen students of the Charkoff University suddenly left their classes and went into the streets, where they met a number of pupils of the Technological and Veterinary Institute and began acting in a riotous manner and smashed the university windows. On Dec. 14 the students of the Odessa University engaged in a riot, and on Dec. 16 the Kazan University and Veterinary students also indulged in riotous proceedings. All the university and technological lectures have been suspended.

THE CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT.

State of the Petitions for Repeal—Ottawa's Holiday Trade.

OTTAWA, Dec. 26.—Of the petitions for the repeal of the Canada Temperance Act, which have been referred to the Department of Justice for examination, it is understood that the one from Westmoreland, N.B., has been reported on to the Secretary of State, the petition being found in order, and it is probable that a date for polling will shortly be fixed. The petition from Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry is now under examination, and action in the case of Stanstead has been suspended until a date can be fixed for hearing the objections to the petition which have been raised by the supporters of the act. With regard to the petitions from Dufferin, Simcoe, Huron, Bruce and Renfrew, it may be said that no immediate action can be taken on them, as the three years from the coming in force of the act in those counties will not expire until May 1, 1888, and under the recent order-in-council declaring that voting on the repeal of the act shall not take place earlier than two weeks before the expiration of the three years, the earliest date on which polling on the repeal could take place would be April 13.

The alleged depression in trade and stringency in the money market does not appear to have affected the Christmas trade in this city, which, from all that can be learned, has been quite up to last year, in spite of the fact that want of snow has kept sleighing bad, and has no doubt prevented a great many country people who usually do their Christmas shopping in Ottawa from coming in.

The municipal nominations took place to-day, and as the result we have three candidates for the mayoralty in the field—McLeod Stewart, the present Mayor; ex-Ald. Brown, who was defeated by 500 majority by Stewart last year, and Ald. Lewis.

Sir Hector Langevin will return to the city on Jan. 4, and will meet the Toronto deputation with reference to the proposed extension of the windmill line on the following day.

MANITOBA AFFAIRS.

Speculation About the Cabinet Vacancies—Ex-Judge Ryan Dangerously Ill.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 26.—It is stated that Mr. Norquay formally sent his resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor on Friday afternoon, and that His Honor immediately sent for Dr. Harrison, who visited Government House on Saturday. It is not improbable that Governor Aikens will take exception to a Cabinet of three members only, following the precedent of the late Governor Cauchon in 1871, when he refused to allow Norquay to go through the session with only two colleagues. Of course, Hamilton and Wilson will remain in the Cabinet, and among the other names mentioned in connection with the vacancies are Drewry and Kirchoffer on the English, and Burke and Pendergast on the French speaking side. So soon as the selections are made writs for elections which may be necessary will be issued without delay. The House will assemble on Jan. 12, although an adjournment may then take place to permit the Government having time to complete its arrangements.

Rushbrook, who has been missing from Moosomin, N.W.T., has been found four miles from where he parted with his guide some weeks ago. His wagon was found overturned in a ravine running down to the Souris river, with Rushbrook under it. The edge of the wagon box had accidentally fallen on his neck, breaking it and causing almost instant death.

Ex-Judge Mathew Ryan is dangerously ill at St. Boniface Hospital, all hope of his recovery being abandoned.

Duncan MacArthur has issued a circular to the electors of Assiniboia. His platform is provincial rights and provincial progress. Frank Ness is the Conservative candidate.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

An Editorial Criticism of Mr. Chamberlain's Interview—The Railway Rumors.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The St. James' Gazette, in an editorial commenting upon Mr. Chamberlain's interview at Ottawa, condemns his rough and ready assertion that if Canada wants separation Great Britain would not object, and says the question has not come into the range of practical politics. Perhaps it never will, but if it does it will be the duty of Imperial statesmen to learn whether it is really the Canadian nation and not a mere faction that desires to secede.

The financial editor of The Daily Chronicle asserts that beyond the fact that a scheme seems maturing to cancel the Canadian Pacific Railway's monopoly in Manitoba, there is nothing authentic in the reports that the Government will be persuaded to take over the railway.

The crofters of the island of Lewis have passed a unanimous vote of confidence in Mr. Morrison as a delegate to report on the suitability of British Columbia as a future home.

At a meeting of the North of Scotland Canadian Mortgage Company at Aberdeen the report and dividend were approved. Mr. Barclay stated that the business was in a very steady-going shape.

The Canadian Phosphate Company, whose mines are situated at Portland, Quebec, has floated its shares at a premium.

The Dominion Dairy Society has decided to join the Wigtown Society in securing a Canadian instructor in cheese making next season.

COUNT ANDRASSEY HONORED.

The Emperor Sends Him a Portrait and an Autograph Letter.

VIENNA, Dec. 26.—Emperor Francis Joseph yesterday presented Count Andrassey with a magnificent portrait of himself as a Christmas gift. In the letter which accompanied the gift the Emperor said that the present was given in recognition of the hospitality to the Emperor by Count Andrassey during the military manœuvres. The gift is generally believed, however, to have a political significance, the opinion being that the Emperor wished to express his approval of Count Andrassey's energetic policy.

It is stated when the Count returned from the Berlin Congress the Emperor wished to raise him to the rank of Prince, and asked several of the Hungarian Ministers to try and induce him to accept the honor. Count Andrassey, however, refused the title, and also declined to accept an order, so that the Emperor's only way to honor the Count was to send him an autograph letter, which is the highest Austrian distinction.

MR. GLADSTONE'S JOURNEY.

A Welcome at Chester—Mingled Cheers and Groans at London.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—Mr. Gladstone left Hawarden to-day en route for the continent. Five thousand persons gave him an enthusiastic welcome on his arrival at Chester.

Mr. Gladstone was greeted with mingled cheers and groans when he passed through London. While waiting for the train he was visited by Earl Spencer, the Right Hon. Hugh C. Childers and other prominent men. The journey was made without a stop until Sandwich was reached where Mr. Gladstone addressed the crown. He subsequently proceeded to the residence of Lord Northbourne whose guest he will be to-night.

Large crowds gathered at all the places through which Mr. Gladstone passed, and he was everywhere warmly received.

Mr. Clemenceau Assaulted by an Actor.

PARIS, Dec. 25.—M. Garnier, a member of the company which Mme. Bernhardt took with her to America, assaulted M. Clemenceau in the street to-day. The cause of the attack was an adverse criticism on M. Garnier's acting.

An Editor Arrested for Praising Russia.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be oodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S price which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞ Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

MR. GLADSTONE AT DOVER

HE IS SNOWBALLED BY A CROWD OF ROUGHS.

In a Speech to a Delegation of Kentish Liberals He Says that the Liberals' Term of Minority in Parliament Will Cease at the First Election.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Mr. Gladstone arrived at Dover to-day, on his way to the Continent. A small crowd assembled at the depot. Mr. Gladstone was greeted with hoots. A number of roughs outside of the depot threw snowballs at him, none of which, however, struck him. A delegation of Kentish Liberals waited upon him at the Town Hall and presented him with an address. Mr. Gladstone, replying to the address, referred to the uncertain character of Lord Salisbury's declarations in reference to Fair Trade and said they indicated, as far as the majority in Parliament is concerned, that Free Trade is insecure. He relied upon the masses of the people to oppose a return to Protection.

The coming session did not promise well for the country. If it were true that the great measure of the session—a local Government bill—would not be introduced until April, the Government would inflict an undisguised mockery on the country.

Lord Salisbury talked about the consolidation of the Empire while pursuing a policy of national disruption. "How," the speaker asked, "could that be a policy of consolidation which disregarded centuries of national tradition and opposed the will of four out of five millions of the Irish people? Ireland continued within the boundaries of moderation because she knew that she had friends in England. So long as her moderation continued so long would the sympathy be continued.

"Not long," the speaker said, "could any government face a unanimous people. With the single exception of the Belfast Council all the elective authorities aided with Home Rule. The foreign imported Government stood alone. "The Liberals' term of minority in Parliament would cease at the first election. Their appeal lay with the country. The party had never inscribed on its banner the name of a cause without carrying it through. Having taken up the cause of Ireland the cause would assuredly triumph." (Cheers.)

AN EXTRA CREDIT TO BE ASKED.

The Roumanian Prime Minister Will Demand $12,000,000 on Account of Armaments.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 27.—In a secret sitting of the Chamber of Deputies recently M. Bratiano, the Prime Minister, alluded to the serious aspect of affairs abroad, and said it would force him to demand before the close of the session an extra credit of $12,000,000 on account of armaments.

The Senate passed an amendment to the Recruiting Bill under the operation of which the number of recruits will be largely increased in 1888.

The Austrian Consul here has intimated that Austrian subjects in Roumania should be ready to rejoin their regiments.

Ordered to Join Their Regiments.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—The Figaro's Munich correspondent states that workmen belonging to Austrian reserves have been ordered to rejoin their regiments forthwith.

The Fremdenblatt's Opinion.

VIENNA, Dec. 27.—The Fremdenblatt attributes the present comparative calm to the moderation and love of peace of those Cabinets, which The Invalide Russe, the war office organ in St. Petersburg, would induce its readers to believe are treacherously preparing for war.

TO WELCOME THE CZAR.

Preparations for His Visit to Trans-Caucasia—Lord Randolph Given Audience.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—Advices from Tiflis in Russian Trans-Caucasia state that extensive preparations are being made there for the reception of the Czar next spring.

The University Troubles.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—Count Schovemetreff, a prominent noble of Moscow, in an audience with the Czar to-day protested against the manner in which the university students were being treated. He charged the authorities with making grossly untrue reports regarding the situation of affairs in the universities. The Czar has given orders that a stringent inquiry be made into the charge.

An Audience to Lord Randolph.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says that the Czar gave audience yesterday to Lord Randolph Churchill. The Morning Post and Daily Telegraph both declare that Lord Randolph has no official mission.

An Interview With the Czarina.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—The Czarina gave audience to-day to Lord Randolph Churchill, who presented to her letters from the Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Edinburgh.

King John Advancing on Massowah.

ROME, Dec. 27.—Advices from Massowah state that King John of Abyssinia is advancing upon that place by rapid stages. He has under his command three bodies of troops.

THE READING STRIKE.

Traffic Generally Resumed—The Men Return to Work Unconditionally.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—General Superintendent Sweigard of the Reading road said this morning that the statement that he had agreed with the Knights of Labor to submit the questions in dispute to arbitration was incorrect. Last evening a committee representing employes of the company called at his office and he talked with them briefly regarding the threatened strike. He held out no inducements to the men, however, and would listen to no proposition which had for its object the reinstatement of the men discharged for refusing to deliver cars to Taylor's elevator. "These men," he said, "have been discharged, and will never again be employed by the company." He says no agreement was proposed either by the committee or by him, and that the committee left when he informed them that he would hold no conversation regarding the discharged men.

Traffic has been generally resumed. The men returned to work unconditionally. The leaders of the strike have been discharged.

Prospect of a General Strike.

SHAMOKIN, Dec. 27.—The strike at this place and Pottsville continues. Among the strikers are Despatcher Huffley, master workman of an assembly, and several laborers on the coal docks who had been discharged for refusing to work. The local officials declared their unwillingness to employ these men and the strikers refused to return to work on any other terms. It is not possible to move the coal or local freight traffic under present circumstances and therefore the collieries will not be worked to-morrow. There is again a prospect of a general strike over the entire system.

A HAMILTONIAN ROBBED.

By Highwaymen—Collapse of a Building—A Toronto Man in Custody.

HAMILTON, Dec. 27.—Yesterday afternoon Edward Carpenter, living at 121 Mary-street, took a drive out to Waterdown and stayed until late in the evening. Shortly before midnight he was returning and had just reached a very lonely spot of the road, about a quarter of a mile north of the Valley Inn, when three men sprang into the roadway. Two o them caught the horse and the other presented a revolver at Mr. Carpenter's head and demanded his money or his life. Carpenter, however, resisted any attempt to remove his wealth, but finally the whole three of them got on to him and he was forced to part with $24.55.

Yesterday afternoon the upper flooring of a portion of a building in Beasley's Hollow collapsed and several persons were injured. The building was formerly a brewery and it is very dilapidated. At present it is occupied as a workshop by George Jenkins, and he and a man named Mapham were almost buried in the debris, which also caught fire, but was extinguished. The injured are Jenkins, Mapham, Edward Connors and Robert Collingwood.

A young man from over the border, who gives his name as George W. Perry, was spotted on Saturday by Detective Doyle as a pickpocket. The detective had seen him delve into the pockets of three ladies who were in the market, but in no case did he succeed in fishing up a prize. He was then arrested, and yesterday, when he was brought up in the Police Court, he refused to say where he was from, giving as a reason that he did not wish his friends to know he was in trouble. He was remanded for further examination.

John Moses of Toronto was on his way to Buffalo and stopped over here. While going to the station last night, he said, four or five young men were approaching him with, as he supposed, robbery intent, and as he had some $20 on his person, he pulled out his revolver and began firing. A policeman heard the shots, and, after hearing the story of Moses, he concluded to lock him up. When the case was called at the Police Court this morning it was adjourned for a few days, in order that further inquiries might be made.

WEDDING BELLS IN LONDON.

The Nuptials of Dr. Aikins, Son of Lieut.-Gov. Aikins, and Miss Wood.

LONDON, Dec. 27. — Dr. W. H. B. Aikins, youngest son of the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, was married to-day to Augusta Hawkesworth Wood, only daughter of Mrs. F. R. Eccles, Ellwood Place, and granddaughter of Amasa Wood, St. Thomas. The wedding took place at Queen's-avenue Methodist Church and attracted a large attendance. Among the bridal party were Dr. D. G. and Mrs. Sutherland and Dr. and Mrs. Graham of Toronto. The first named gentleman, assisted by Rev. J. G. Scott, conducted the religious ceremony. Miss Lina, daughter of Judge Davis acted as bridesmaid, and Dr. Duffield as groomsman. The bride wore a handsome dress of white faille francaise, long square train, bodice trimmed with lessamine, myrtle and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids wore a dress of white China silk. After break'ast at Ellwood Place the newly wedded couple left for Government House, Winnipeg.

Miss Hillary, Mrs. W. Archer, Miss J. Stoke, Mr. Edward Fisher, Mrs. Tilley, Mr. A. E. Fisher, Miss Elwell and Mr. V. P. Hunt are representing Toronto at the third annual convention of the Canadian Society of Musicians, now in session in this city.

At to-day's meeting of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association Mr. Samuel Munro was elected president and G. H. Walker first vice-president. The assets of the society are $10,300 more than the liabilities.

About 8 o'clock last night as Mr. Pickard of Exeter was starting to drive home he was asked by a man named Henry Stewart to give him a ride. Mr. Pickard consented, and Stewart got in the rig beside him. When only a short distance from Mount Hope, Stewart started to quarrel with Mr. Pickard and accused him of owing him ten cents. He tried to reason with him, as the man was under the influence of liquor, whereupon the villain pulled two large stones from his pocket and attempted to strike Pickard, who, however, proved too much for him, and getting him in the bottom of the cutter drove at once to the police station, where a charge of "drunk and vagrancy" was entered opposite his name. No doubt the man was bent on robbery, but was a little too drunk to know where to commence the attack.

Detective Naegele's Christmas Turkey.

MONTREAL, Dec. 27.—Ex-Detective Naegele said he passed a tolerable Christmas in jail. "I had my turkey," he continued, "just as well as any other person, but of course it does not taste quite as good behind the bars." He added that he certainly could clear himself. He claimed that the public would be surprised when the detectives make their defence and tell what they know of some of their accusers. "We are only the victims of circumstances," he concluded. "I will not tell you what our defence will be, as it would only put our enemies on their guard." The examination was continued to-day.

Priests and the Gaelic Athletic Association.

DUBLIN, Dec. 27.—At a meeting at Limerick of delegates of the Gaelic Athletic Association the Fenian party defeated the members of the National League in the election of officers. The priests finding themselves out voted withdrew. Father Sheehy, on retiring, declared that henceforth the priests would have nothing to do with the Association.

Father Sheehy and delegates from thirty-one Nationalist clubs subsequently held a meeting and decided to act independently of the Fenian members of the Gaelic Athletic Association. A committee was appointed to attend a convention at Thurles.

THE OCEAN MAIL SERVICE.

THE CONTRACT NOT TO BE AWARDED UNTIL AFTER THE HOLIDAYS.

Canadians Cannot Take Horses into the United States to Work in the Woods or Elsewhere Without Paying Duty—The Russell Election Trial.

OTTAWA, Dec. 27.—A petition has been received from the Quebec Board of Trade in favor of making that city the terminus of the Ocean Mail service. The whole question of awarding the contract and fixing the terminus will not be decided until there is a full meeting of Council after the holidays. Meanwhile it is understood that the tenders submitted are largely in excess of the old subsidy, which was to be expected in view of the increased rate of speed required. The fastest boat in the present service is the Vancouver and her best voyage, made last September, averaged 336 miles a day, which seems rather slow alongside of the average of 456 miles a day made by the Umbria.

Frequent applications are made to the Customs Department by parties owning teams in various parts of the province adjacent to the boundary, to be permitted to take their teams into the United States for the purpose of working the woods, etc., to be returned to Canada free of duty. This concession the authorities say is quite impossible under the circumstances inasmuch as the regulations in force in the United States Customs for the bonding of teams taken across the lines for such purposes have been abrogated, and the only conditions upon which Canadians can now take horses and sleighs for the performance of any work, for more than a day, is that they shall be entered at the United States Customs and duty paid thereon. There is no provision for the refund of duty when once paid, and it ought to be understood by all parties interested that Canadians' property, carried into the United States or any foreign country, becomes denationalized and can only be regarded on its return to this country as foreign goods or merchandise, subject to duty as of the product of the country from whence they came.

The Captain of the Government steamer Lansdowne has reported that on Dec. 28 they were making fast at Summerside, P.E.I., and that the vessel being in danger he thought it advisable to discontinue trips on this route. Trips are now being made between Pictou and Georgetown.

Hon. Mr. Bowell returned from Belleville this morning, and this being his 64th birthday he was the recipient of many congratulatory telegrams, amongst them being one from a prominent Land Leaguer now on a visit to Quebec.

The greater part of the afternoon was taken up with the evidence of Wm. Craig, President of the Russell Reform Association, and other witnesses whose evidence was not of much importance. Mr. H. M. Bate, of the grocery firm of Bate & Co., was examined at some length and admitted having given his check for some sum between $500 and $600, he could not remember exactly how much, to a Mr. Lumsden "to pay expenses." Mr. Bate was not quite sure whether the check was payable to bearer or not, but thought it was, although it was not his habit to draw checks to bearer. He also admitted having got a check for $250 from Mr. Thomas McLaren of Buckingham, which he also gave to Mr. Lumsden. He could not tell exactly what this money was to be used for. At first he seemed inclined to indicate that it was to be used for printing and traveling expenses, but subsequently stated that he thought Mr. Edwards could pay for his own printing and traveling expenses. He admitted that he had sent a circular to the customers of the firm in Russell County asking them to support Mr. Edwards, but he did not think that anything unusual, as he had done it before. He could not say what the money he gave Lumsden was spent for, but he thought some $350 was paid to a Mr. Tremblay, a speaker who came from Montreal. He had given the money with the object of securing speakers for Mr. Edwards' meetings.

Sir John A. Macdonald has returned to the city from Kingston, where he spent Christmas with his sister. Sir Richard Cartwright arrived here from Kingston to-day. Mr. Gobeil, Secretary of the Public Works Department, is suffering from a slight attack of malarial fever.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain will leave for Toronto on Thursday to attend the Board of Trade dinner on Friday. A private skating party in his honor was given at Rideau Hall to-day. It is doubtful whether any members of the Cabinet will be able to attend the Toronto banquet owing to the press of business.

The Russell election trial was commenced here this morning before Judge Keler. Messrs. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., Martin O'Gara, M.P., L. A. Olivier and J. P. Fisher appeared for the petitioners, and Messrs. B. B. Osler, Q.C., D. B. McTavish and N. A. Belcourt for Mr. Edwards. About 200 witnesses have been summoned, and considerably more than half of them were present. It is expected that the case will scarcely be concluded this week. The Court met at 11 and sat until nearly 7, with only a brief recess for lunch. At the opening of the case Mr. Osler objected to the present hearing going on, as there was an appeal with reference to the preliminary objections now pending in the Supreme Court. He also objected that it was not competent for the trial to proceed, the six months within which the petition might be brought having expired. That question was also going to the Supreme Court and he asked that these objections might be noted. The examination of Dr. Wallace of Metcalfe, ex-President of the Liberal Club of Osgoode, occupied all the morning session. Very little information was got from him. His answers at times were very unsatisfactory, and the judge spoke to him several times about the manner in which he was evading questions. At one point the witness affected not to know what Mr. Robinson, who was examining him, meant. The judge said he was astonished at a man of his (Wallace's) apparent intelligence answering so stupidly. Mr. Robinson repeated his question, and again failing to get a satisfactory answer, remarked in disgust that the witness was a most ignorant man.

THE EX-MANITOBA CABINET.

The Number of Portfolios Reduced—Mr. Norquay's Institutional Bodial.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 27.—Dr. Harrison has lost no time in completing and re-arranging his Cabinet, which will be composed as follows: Premier Harrison, President of the Council, Minister of Agriculture and Provincial Treasurer; Mr Hamilton, Attorney-General; Mr. Wilson, Minister of Public Works and Railway Commissioner; Mr. Burke, Provincial Secretary. The latter was sworn in last night. There were formerly five members of the Cabinet but for the present, at all events, it will be composed of four only, one vacancy being left in abeyance, although it is quite possible the number of ministers will not be increased.

Premier Harrison denies most emphatically that there is any arrangement with the Dominion Government—or compromise—respecting the Red River Valley Railway, as stated, and Norquay indignantly repudiates the statement that he was offered an office by Sir John to secure his retirement. He also gives an emphatic denial to the wide charges of corruption, and says the best evidence of their baselessness is that he leaves office, after fourteen years' service, a poor man. When the proper time comes he says he will be able to defend himself against his defamers. He will remain in politics and give Dr. Harrison a loyal support. It is likely he will pursue the legal profession, but his future is not yet definitely determined upon. The writ for St. Francis Xavier will be issued immediately.

A Montrealer's Little Joke.

MONTREAL, Dec. 27.—A very foolish trick was attempted here last night. A man handed a dynamite cartridge to a fellow-boarder and told him to rap it on the stove. He did so and the cartridge exploded. Fortunately the man escaped uninjured, but the stove was blown to pieces.

Two American sneak thieves are badly wanted by the city police. One, a well dressed man, entered a jeweler's store on St. James-street yesterday and said he wanted a ring set in pearls for his daughter. He fitted the ring on to his finger and rushed out of the door. When the clerk came to give the alarm a confederate was there who knocked him down.

The East Elgin Election Trial.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 27.—The trial of the East Elgin petition against the return of Dr. Wilson, M.P.P., commenced this afternoon at the Courthouse before His Lordship Mr. Justice Street. W. R. Meredith, Q.C., and T. W. Crothers appeared for petitioner, and Mr. Cassels, Q.C., and J. H. Coyne for the respondent. After hearing the evidence of a number of witnesses concerning the manner in which the canvass was carried on by the officers of the Reform Association, charges numbers 4 and 52 of treating and payment of Ogden Snively's expenses from Toronto for the purpose of voting were taken up but not concluded when Court adjourned.

Canon O'Mahoney's Serious Charges.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Rev. Canon O'Mahoney, in a speech at Cork recently, charged certain local Government officials with systematically corrupting young girls. The Dublin Freeman's Journal to-day endorses and amplifies the charges, and demands that the guilty officials be arrested. The Pall Mall Gazette says it has information that only one man, a tried and trusted agent of Dublin Castle, is implicated. Four girls were his victims, and they are now inmates of the Convent of the Good Shepherd at Cork.

To Enlist Sympathy for the Fish Pirates.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—Mr. C. S. Crowell, one of the Philadelphia directors of the American Fishery Association, has received a letter from Gov. Beaver accepting an invitation to preside at a meeting to be held in Horticultural Hall in this city on Jan. 3, for the purpose of stating the grievances of the New England fishermen and enlisting public sympathy in their behalf.

A Railroad Collision at Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—A through train on the Long Island Railroad ran into the rear car of a Rapid Transit train at Ralph-avenue, Brooklyn, this morning during a fog. One car was telescoped and a dozen passengers were injured, but none seriously. The passengers had warning enough to enable them to get into the forward part of the car or the slaughter would have been frightful.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver a misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION.

The convention of dairymen which will be held in Peterborough on January 4th and 5th will be an important assembly in the interests of those engaged in dairying. An interchange of ideas, of the lessons of experience and the results of experiments by cheese and butter makers cannot fail to be helpful to persons employed in those industries, and several gentlemen who have made a special scientific study of the subjects will be present.

Several years ago a similar convention was held here. The attendance at that time was very good, but not as large as might have been expected, when every farmer is more or less interested in dairying. That convention was very successful, the discussions being practical and helpful, sometimes extending beyond dairying to general farming.

The importance of the dairy industry and the large number interested in it in this district should ensure a successful convention on the two days named.

TORONTO'S NEW PAPER.

The first number of the Empire, the new Toronto paper, appeared on Tuesday. It presented a fine appearance typographically and in the quantity of news it contained. The management has secured an able staff of writers and the paper is in the hands of men who are capable of producing a first class newspaper. The first number shows that they have the proper facilities for doing so, and it has at once taken a front place in Canadian journalism. As a metropolitan exponent of Conservative opinions the Empire will be preferred by the Conservative portion of the reading public, and the ability displayed in the editorial columns will do much in forcibly putting before the people Conservative ideas. At the same time the Empire is one deserving of patronage on account of the general news it furnishes, and it will not take it long to become a favorite paper. May the sun never set upon the Empire.

Hurley, $4; E. C. Hill, $15; Times Printing Company, $25 16; Nicholas Hospital, $192 41. The committee also recommended the payment of the following accounts when certified to, which had been handed to the clerk:—Rush Bros., 25 cents; J. E. Belcher, $302; J. P. Hurley, $3 20; E. C. Hill, $3; Nicholas Hospital, $408.74; T. E. Boddy, $2.40; Mrs. Elliott, $2; G. W. Coon, $3; the Dickson Co., $2,088.56; the Dickson Co., $135. 94; Wm. Snowden, $8.85.

The report was adopted.

COURT OF REVISION.

Councillor MOORE presented the report of the Court of Revision, the same as reported in the REVIEW a short time ago. The report, upon some minor discussion, was adopted.

THE FIRE BRIGADE.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor KELLY,—That the sum of $25 be granted to the members of the Fire Brigade to assist in defraying the expenses of their annual entertainment; and that this council take pleasure in placing on record their appreciation of the services of firemen, and wish them a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.—Carried.

POLICE COURT.

The MAYOR announced that the receipts of the Police Court was $9,186 for this year.

CHARITY.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON asked where the $2,000 charity appropriation had gone to. He said that $165 was spent in No 1 Ward and that the bulk was being spent in the other Wards. He would bet Mr. Hartley $100 to 50 cents that twice as much was given in No 4 than No 1.

Councillor HARTLEY.—No, sir: not as much.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON said that anyway the charity was being given away in the bloods in high toned wards.

Councillor MCNEIL.—Mr. Mayor, I can't stand that. I can't allow the people of my Ward to be called bloods. Mr. McNaughton is out of order. There's nothing before the chair.

The MAYOR.—Yes, Mr. McNaughton is out of order.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON continued to speak.

Councillor MCNEIL.—Mr. Mayor, I press my point.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON.—All right, I'll sit down.

FRONTAGE TAX.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS.—That a special committee be appointed for the purpose of ascertaining how the frontage tax works in Toronto and Stratford with a view to introducing the system here if found to work satisfactorily in the places named, such committee to consist of Messrs. Moore, McNeil, Kendry and Kelly, the first named to be chairman.

CHARITY.

Councillor KENDRY brought up a matter of charity and moved that the Charity Committee deal with it immediately. The matter was referred to the Charity Committe with power to act.

The Council adjourned till Monday, Janury 10th.

THE SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

Nominations of Trustees—Contests in Two of the Wards.

The nomination of trustees for the Separate School Board was held at the Murray Street school. Mr. John Corkery, Returning Officer, received the nominations.

NO. ONE WARD.

FUN, FUNNY, FUNNIER, FUNNIEST!

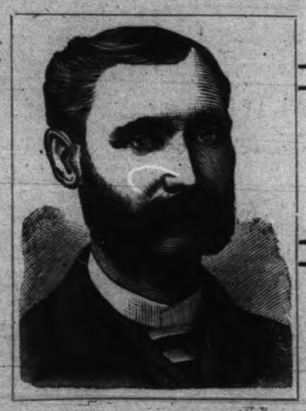
MEN'S OVEROATS guaranteed pure all wool by others and sold for $3.95 and represented to be worth $8.75, can be bought from GOUGH for $3.00. This is "fun"



BOY'S OVERCOATS sold by others at $2.95 and represented to be worth $6.50, [which is a lie] can be bought from GOUGH for $2.00. This is funny.

WHITE COTTONS sold by others for 6c, and represented to be worth 8c., can be bought from GOUGH at 3c per yard. This is funnier.

FACTORY COTTON sold by others for 5c per yard, and represented to be worth 7c per yard, can be bought from GOUGH for 2c per yard. This is funniest.

Don't forget that it will be a cold day in Peterborough when Gough will be undersold.

Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Mark Street Methodist Church.

The Christmas services of the above church were this year of unusual interest On Christmas morning the Rev. J. C. Wilson conducted a children's service, taking for his text "The Babe." He arrested and retained to the close the unflagging interest not only of the children, but also of the older members of the congregation. In the evening the sermon was based on "No room for them in the Inn." The preacher drew a contrast between the present and the age in which Jesus was born. The leading characteristic of the present age was the recognition of the importance and influence of childhood. The refusing room for Jesus in the inn was repeated every day by keeping him out of the heart and as a result not allowing Him a place in our houses, business, reading and pleasure. He concluded with an earnest exhortation to all prezent to allow Jesus not only a place but to reign in the heart, thus regulating the whole life. The musical part of the services by both the choir and the school added very much to the interest and profit of the days services. On Monday evening the entertainment connected with the Christmas tree under the auspices of the Sunday School was given, Mr. A.D. Russell, Superintendent, being master of ceremonies. A short but excellent programme, consisting of singing, readings, recitations and dialogues was given, doing credit to all who took part. Old Santa Claus then appeared, to the great delight of the children. He proceeded to make himself quite at home and from the way he acted showed that he was fully up to his business. It took him an hour to unload the beautiful tree of its precious burden and distribute to those whose whose names were called. Among the many valuable presents noticeable was a very fine plush album given to Mrs. J. C. Wilson by the members of her Bible class, also a beautiful writing desk given by the choir to Mr. Ivison Wilson, organist. At 10 o'clock the proceedings were brought to a close by the Rev. J. C. Wilson pronouncing the benediction.

PRESENTATION.

Mrs. Geo. A. Cox Presented with a Magnificent Silver Epergne.

A number of the lady friends of Mrs. Geo. A. Cox presented her with an address and a handsome silver epergne. Learning that she was coming to Peterborough to spend Christmas the gift and address was sent to Mr. Davis' residence. The epergne, which was procured from China Hall, is a very fine silver one, elegantly ornamented with embossed flowers and fruit done in gold and silver. It is a massive piece of silver plate and is considered the most complete specimen of workmanship in silverware ever turned out in Canada. It is valued at $200. The inscription was "To Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, from some of her Peterborough friends, Dec., 1887." The address was as follows:—

DEAR MRS. COX:—

Many of your numerous friends in the various churches of this town have felt that they could not permit you to depart from their midst without offering you in some way an expression of their loving regard for you and of their regret at parting with you.

Throughout the years of your life in Peterborough you have endeared yourself to the whole community by your genial disposition, by your unaffected cordiality of friendship, and by your generous devotion of your time, your energy, and your wealth to every good cause.

Neither your friendship nor your beneficence has been confined within the limits of your church. You have not turned a deaf ear to the cry of distress, from whatever quarter it has been directed to you; and in many an enterprise for the common good you have been a foremost helper.

As a faithful friend, as an earnest Christian worker, as a liberal almoner of God's bounty to the poor, you will be long and greatly missed.

Innumerable good wishes and fervent prayers will follow you from Peterborough to Toronto. May all earthly blessings brighten your future pathway. May you have abiding joy in your family. May you feel constant pleasure in doing good. And may you hear at last God's "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Kindly accept the accompanying piece of silver as a slight expression of the very warm sentiments cherished towards you in this community.

Signed on behalf of many friends,

MRS. E. PHELAN, MRS. J. BRADEN,
MRS. L. A. FOWLER, MRS. J. HACKETT,
MISS A. MERCER.

Peterborough, Dec. 23rd, 1887.

MRS. COX'S REPLY.

DEAR FRIENDS.—I assure you this expression of your kindness has taken me wholly by surprise; and at the same time my hand is filled with a sense of delight and humiliation, delight that you should think me worthy of a place in your hearts, and humiliation when I think of my own unworthiness of such a warm place in your affections. It deeply effects me to know that, not only friends of the church to which I belong, but also friends in other Christian churches in Peterborough have united together in this generous expression. While I sincerely appreciate your kindness, I cannot allow myself to think my life among you has been as you say, and certainly not as hepful to others as I could wish it had been. Of this I am sure however that I love to do some little good, and these words of yours I trust will nerve me in the future to serve others, and for the Master's sake, for in such service, as you know, is real happiness.

Believe me, dear friends, that the friendship expressed in this kindly worded address is sincerely reciprocated, and I trust no matter where my lot may be cast ever to think with the greatest pleasure of the association of these past years; and I shall always be much interested in your happiness and prosperity.

In accepting your very elegant gift as a token of your love and good will towards me and my family, I cannot find words fitly to express my sense of your act. Please accept my thanks the thanks I cannot speak, for a tribute so beautiful, and please convey my thanks to all the dear friends you represent, and I thank you for all your good wishes and prayers, and I trust the blessings you ask to be given us as a family may be your portion also.

Yours sincerely,
M. COX.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In the Peterborough Examiner of recent date and in the Toronto World of the 22nd inst. appear letters, the former signed "Justice" and the latter "Law," in reference to the meeting lately held in regard to the Trent Valley Canal. Their letters might have been more properly signed "Engineer" than have appended to them the fancy titles they have. I am accused of making a false statement at the meeting and of "attacking the reputation of a government engineer of well known ability and honesty who in the discharge of his duties has made an estimate of the cost of construction of the Trent Valley Canal, to do which entailed years of labor."

As to the statement I made as to the cost of a nine foot canal, I beg to repeat it. Such an estimate was made and it is on record in the department at Ottawa. The engineer that made it is a man of ability and honesty and as capable of estimating the cost of such work as "Law," "Justice" or "Engineer." He did not have to take the years of labor or spend the vast sum of public money that Mr. Rubidge has in getting at his figures, but still he made a thorough enquiry and estimate. Mr. Rubidge has certainly spent years (whether of labor or not I cannot say) in his work. Since 1881 he has been at it, and after six years labor he has brought forth (so it is alleged) a report. When we examine the public accounts and see what the expenditure on capital account of the canal works has been, and the amount expended in engineering and surveys, &c., the result is appalling. From 30th June, 1881, to 30th June, 1886, the total expenditure has been a little over $379,000, and of this nearly $68,000 is engineering, surveying, &c., over seventeen per cent of total expenditure. Assuming the expenditure on capital to date is $400,000, and allowing for engineering at the rate of former years, we find the engineering, &c., amounts to $85,000 or over twenty per cent. of the total expenditure. When we consider that Mr. Rubidge was practically verifying Mr. Baird's report as to a great portion of the route, the public, I think, will agree with me that some years of labor, and a good deal of money, have been wasted. I am referred to Mr. Rubidge's report of 15th November last, as to what the result of his labor has been, and I am reproached with withholding what it contains from the public. I thing before the gentleman that writes these letters finds fault with me for not reading a report that I verily believe does not exist, he had better read the reports made by as competent engineers as his friend, and which are readily accessible. Who has seen his report anyhow, but "Law" and "Justice?" Mr. Stevenson, M. P., knows nothing of it, for so late as Nov. 11th, last, he is reported in the Peterborough REVIEW as saying on his return from Ottawa, where he had gone to get some information about the progress of the survey, "That a man had been sent up to Mr. Rubidge's office to complete and finish the report at once." I suppose the Government thought enough years of labor and sums of money had been expended, and to stop it took this means of getting some return for the outlay I cannot get a copy of this report. Will "Law" or "Justice" lend me their copy? Mr. Rubidge having finished his report, his official connection with this scheme, which this town and county are so much interested in, ceases, and the work to be hereafter done will, I trust, be in charge of a man who will be more careful in his management than he has been. The figures I have given show the cost to the public, but there should be added the cost there has been to individuals through the blundering of contractors or engineers. Do the people of this place or the manufacturers below Lakefield using water power, forget the summary manner in which the water was drawn out of the river in the winter of 1885 when the temperature had been twenty or thirty below zero for many days? Has Mr. Rubidge ever assisted in getting them recompensed for the great losses they sustained at that time? I have no desire to injure Mr. Rubidge in any way and nothing I have said or done warrants the statement made by "Law." In conclusion I may say that the opinion I have of Mr. Rubidge is no more unfavourable than is held by the people among whom he has spent years of labor.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN BURNHAM.

Reviving Persons Apparently Dead.

At a meeting of the last congress of German scientists this subject was discussed, and Dr. H. Frank mentioned that there are but two ways to stimulate the heart—electricity and mechanical concussion of the heart. The first is considered dangerous by him, as it may easily destroy the last power of contraction remaining in the organ. But what is termed "pectoral concussion" is decidedly preferable. Dr. F.'s method is as follows:

He flexes the hands on the wrist to an obtuse angle, places them both near each other in the ileo-cæcal region, and makes vigorous strokes in the direction of the heart and of the diaphragm. These strokes are repeated from fifteen to twenty times, and are succeeded by a pause, during which he strikes the chest over the heart repeatedly with the palm of his hand. In favorable cases this method is early successful, and sometimes a twitching of the lids or the angles of the mouth appears with surprising rapidity as the first sign of returning life. As soon as the symptoms are noted, the simple manipulations above described must be earnestly continued and persevered in from half an hour to one hour, for, with their cessation, the phenomena indicating beginning return of life also cease. Generally the face assumes a slight reddish tint, and at the same time a faint pulsation may be felt in the carotids. By this method Dr. F. has seen life return in fourteen cases, among whom were such as had hung themselves, drowned and asphyxiated by carbonic oxide, and in one case by croup. In three cases of asphyxia by coal gas and in one case of apparent death by chloroform the method described alone succeeded.—Medical and Surgical Reporter.

DETAINED IN A MADHOUSE

A TORONTO HEIRESS' SAD EXPERIENCE IN A BUFFALO ASYLUM.

Her Father Charged With Maladministering Her Estate and Securing Her Imprisonment Among Maniacs—Sensational Case Before Referee Winchester.

TORONTO, Dec. 28.

A case is pending before Mr. Winchester-Official Referee, at Osgoode Hall, which, when the full facts are put onipublic record, will turn out one of the most sensational that Toronto has known for many years; in fact it will rival the famous experience of Nellie Bly in a New York madhouse, which twisted that city upside down for a few weeks.

The case referred to is that of Monaghan v. Monaghan, and Mr. Winchester is expected to hand down a decision in a few days, a large amount of evidence having been submitted for his perusal.

The plaintiff is Miss Catharine Monaghan, a prepossessing young lady of 22, who is connected with a well-known and wealthy family in this city. The defendant, in part at least, is her father, Mr. John Monaghan, who is an attache of the Postoffice. On Jan. 9, 1886, Miss Monaghan's mother died and left the young lady an estate which is said to return a revenue of between $1500 and $2000 per annum. The executors named in Mrs. Monaghan's will are her husband and Mr. James Beaty, Q.C. According to the young lady's evidence, as submitted before Mr. Winchester, she has ground for complaining that not only was her estate not properly administered, but she was the victim of a vile conspiracy by which she was incarcerated in the Providence Lunatic Asylum in Buffalo for a period of thirteen days, and then she was only liberated by the visiting doctors of the institution absolutely refusing to detain her longer.

Her involuntary detention in the madhouse occurred as far back as last April, but the evidence in the suit in question was not completed until quite recently.

Miss Monaghan was reared in the lap of luxury and her deceased mother doted on her to such an extent that she sought not even the slightest wish that was not gratified. Shortly after her mother's death her father, who has seen the snow of some 55 winters, married a lady about half his own age. Perhaps this may or may not have been the commencement of Miss Monaghan's troubles with the executors. Before the death of the late Mr. Justice O'Connor that judge gave Miss Monaghan's solicitor leave to make an application to him for the appointment of a receiver for her estate. The justice dying suddenly in the meantime, the application was never made, and the matter next found its way before Mr. Winchester in practically the same form: the proceedings by plaintiff being for the appointment of a receiver and an investigation of her worldly affairs.

The allegation of the plaintiff is that her father, in conjunction with others, conspired to incarcerate her in the asylum in order that he might get control of her income. The young lady is said to have made a capital witness and gave a startling account of how she was trapped. In April last Miss Monaghan went with a Toronto lady to New York, and stopped at the New York Hotel in Broadway. A telegram from Toronto called this lady home, and Mr. Monaghan went to New York to bring back his daughter. This is alleged to be part of the plot. When the father and daughter got to Buffalo the former stated if they went by the next train to Toronto they would be delayed four hours at Hamilton and he proposed remaining in Buffalo till the next train. They went to the Genesee House and engaged rooms. During the afternoon Mr. Monaghan took his daughter on what she supposed was a tour around the city. After a while she was driven to a large building which they entered, she supposing it was her father's intention to inspect it. When she got within the door the young lady was received by two or three Sisters of Charity. They invited her along a corridor. She saw around her the iron bars of what appeared to be prison cells. She wished to know where she was. The sisters informed her that she was to stay there. She protested. The father was behind and told the sisters to take care, that she was likely so have another "turn" or "fit." The plot then dawned on the young woman and she saw there was trouble before her. The sisters took hold of her and pulled her along. In the struggle Miss Monaghan's seal coat was torn and wrecked. She was placed in close confinement for a day or two, and afterwards put at large among the rest of the inmates. It is said the authority under which she was received into this asylum was the certificate of a Toronto medical gentlemen, against whom charges of gross negligence, and even insinuations of a much stronger character, are preferred by the young lady and her friends. It appears to be a regulation of the asylum in question that all new cases must be examined by official doctors of the state. It was upon her examination by these gentlemen that Miss Monaghan was ordered to be released. She declares that though she was sane when she went into the place it was a miracle she came out all right after living thirteen long days among maniacs. These are startling facts; but they are the sworn statements of the young lady herself.

Besides her experience in Buffalo the young lady was an inmate of a sanitarium at Dansville, N.Y., for a time. As to the certificate issued by the Toronto physician in question it was understood she was to be taken to Dr. Cronyn's private hospital in Buffalo, but instead of this it was used to secure her incarceration in the mad house named.

The solicitors engaged in the case are Mr. R. E. Kingsford for Miss Monaghan, Mr. McPhillips for Mr. Monaghan, and Mr. Allan Cassels for Mr. Beaty.

No News of Stanley.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—A despatch from the Congo says: "No news of Stanley has yet reached Boma, but no uneasiness is felt there." The steamers expected from Yamounga on Jan. 20 are almost certain to bring news of the expedition. Old native reports are reassuring.

CHRISTMAS CASUALTIES.

Fire at a Church Entertainment—Fatal Termination of a Debauch.

FAIRBURY, Ill., Dec. 27.—At the Christmas entertainment of the Fifth Methodist Episcopal Church a little cabin was placed on the platform to take the place of the pulpit. It was filled with presents for the children. Being built of cotton and other inflammable material it took fire from the lights, and in the stampede which followed hundreds were trampled under foot and a good many badly injured, some of them probably fatally. The church was saved by a great effort.

A Fatal Debauch.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 27.—At a Christmas debauch last night at Exeterboro, near West Pittston, Ed. McMahon, Annie McMullen and Bessie, their daughter, became so intoxicated that they went to sleep leaving Bessie's daughter, 4 years of age, in the kitchen. The child's dress caught fire and she tried to arouse the inmates but failed. The house took fire and the child was burned to a crisp. The mother died to-day from her injuries. The others were badly burned.

A NOTED CROOK.

Charles Leavitt Pleads Guilty at Buffalo to the Charge of Grand Larceny.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Charles Leavitt, the well-known crook, whose connection with the murder of Joseph Dain, of Yorkville, is yet well remembered in Toronto, was up for trial in the Court of Sessions to-day. He was under indictment for burglary, third degree; grand larceny, first degree, and receiving stolen property, enough, if convicted on all counts, to send him to prison for life.

Leavitt has spent most of his brief manhood in American and Canadian jails. He is a man about 35, with glossy black whiskers, clear complexion and gentlemanly appearance.

While the work of swearing in a jury was in progress his counsel reached an agreement with the District Attorney and Leavitt was allowed to plead guilty to the indictment charging him with grand larceny, first degree. He will be sentenced to-morrow.

THE SACO BANK'S BONDS.

McNeally is Said to Have Hidden them in Cairo, Egypt.

SACO, Me., Dec. 27.—The latest information received in regard to the defalcation of Frank C. McNeally is to the effect that he was taken sick with Nile fever while in Cairo, Egypt, and feeling himself physically incapable of taking care of the bonds he had them secreted in that city, where they now are. He will accompany the bank's agent to the place where the bonds were hid and will give them up.

He will not return to the United States until the indictment is disposed of.

The Wreck of the Cordelia Found.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Dec. 27.—Capt. McKinnon of the schooner Ada M. Hall, from the Great Banks to-day, reports that on Dec. 7 he boarded the schooner Cordelia, dismasted, waterlogged and abandoned in latitude 43, longitude 51. The body of one man was found in the cabin in a decomposed state. The schooner is supposed to belong to Shelburne, N.S., as a vessel by that name was lost on the Grand Banks in the gale of August last with all her crew.

A Riot of Workmen on Strike.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 27.—The Pioneer Press special from Duluth says that from 150 to 175 employes of the Minnesota Granite Works at Honesdale now on strike for back pay, are rioting. Jas. Leslie, telegraph operator at Honesdale, wires: "The rioters have gained possession of the telegraph office. I have now a revolver on each side of my head. They have demanded the money in the safe and are trying to open it." Here the message stopped and nothing has been heard since. There was less than $200 in the safe. Deputy Sheriff Free left with a posse this afternoon to quell the disturbance.

He Killed Her for Drinking.

BUFFALO, Dec. 27.—Mrs. Patrick Brennan celebrated Christmas by filling up with whisky, and when her husband, who is section boss for the New York Central Railroad, went home he found that the turkey had not been cooked. Mrs. Brennan and her husband then indulged in a fight, and her dead body was afterwards found on the doorstep. She had a black eye and her skull was crushed. The police arrested Brennan last night and charged him with murder. A son of the couple, who manifests perfect indifference at his mother's death, is held as a witness.

A Vessel Company Fined.

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—The steamer Roman, from Liverpool, which arrived here on Thursday last, brought a stowaway, a Scotch boy of 18, and permitted him to land. Commissioner of Emigration Corde has fined the company $100. The vessel is detained in port until the stowaway is produced or the fine paid.

The London Metal Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—After a four days' holiday the London metal market opened with a jump. Tin, which has been stationary for over a week at £167 per ton for spot and £145 for futures, advanced 10s on the price of spot and 5s on futures. Copper continued its upward tendency and advanced £15 on spot sales, which now brings the price up to £85 per ton.

Truth From the Rocky Mountains.

From The Edmonton Bulletin.

The recent loss of the old Reform county of Haldimand, Ontario, by the Liberals, and the sweeping victories of Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. A. W. McLelan in Nova Scotia, rather contradict the assertion that Commercial Union is sweeping all before it in these two provinces. On the contrary, it proves that the Commercial Union cry has greatly weakened the Reform party.

Election Petitions Dismissed.

QUEBEC, Dec. 27.—Hon. Justice Caron gave his decision in three contested elections yesterday—those of Quebec County, Quebec Centre and Montmorency—dismissing the petitions on the ground that more than six months had elapsed since their presentation without proceedings being begun. As a consequence Sir Adolphe Caron, Hon. F. Langelier and Mr. Charles Langelier retain their seats.

The Sault Grant to the C.P.R.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 27.—The bylaw granting $30,000 to the Canadian Pacific Railway was carried yesterday by a large majority. The company will proceed with the erection of their buildings immediately. A regular passenger service will be established before the New Year. There is great rejoicing.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

The countess suddenly rose to her feet. "No more of that," she cried. "Oh, Jem Maria! Do you think I want to be told what you saw? Do you think I don't know what it means for you and for me? Decide for yourself, miss. Examine your own mind. Are you well assured that the day of reckoning has come at last? Are you ready to follow me back, through the crimes of the past, to the secrets of the dead?"

She turned again to the writing table, without waiting to be answered. Her eyes flashed; she looked like her old self once more as she spoke. It was only for a moment. The old ardor and impetuosity were nearly worn out. Her head sunk; she sighed heavily as she unlocked a desk which stood on the table. Opening a drawer in the desk, she took out a leaf of vellum, covered with faded writing. Some ragged ends of silken thread were still attached to the leaf, as if it had been torn out of a book.

"Can you read Italian?" she asked, handing the leaf to Agnes.

Agnes answered silently by an inclination of the head.

"The leaf," the countess proceeded, "once belonged to a book in the old library of the palace, while this building was still a palace. By whom it was torn out you have no need to know. For what purpose it was torn out you may discover for yourself, if you will. Read it first—at the fifth line from the top of the page!"

Agnes felt the serious necessity of composing herself. "Give me a chair," she said to Henry, "and I will do my best." He placed himself behind her chair so that he could look over her shoulder and help her to understand the writing on the leaf. Rendered into English, it ran as follows:

"I have now completed my literary survey of the first floor of the palace. At the desire of my noble and gracious patron, the lord of this glorious edifice, I next ascend to the second floor, and continue my catalogue or description of the pictures, decorations, and other treasures of art therein contained. Let me begin with the corner room at the western extremity of the palace, called the Room of the Caryatides, from the statues which support the mantelpiece. This work is of comparatively recent execution: it dates from the Eighteenth century only, and reveals the corrupt taste of the period in every part of it. Still, there is a certain interest which attaches to the mantelpiece: it conceals a cleverly constructed hiding place between the floor of the room and the ceiling of the room beneath, which was made during the last evil days of the Inquisition in Venice, and which is reported to have saved an ancestor of my gracious lord pursued by that terrible tribunal. The machinery of this curious place of concealment has been kept in good order by the present lord, as a species of curiosity. He condescended to show me the method of working it. Approaching the two Caryatides, rest your hand on the forehead (midway between the eyebrows) of the figure which is on your left as you stand opposite to the fireplace, then press the head inward as if you were pushing it against the wall behind. By doing this you set in motion the hidden machinery in the wall which turns the hearthstone on a pivot and discloses the hollow place below. There is room enough in it for a man to lie easily at full length. The method of closing the cavity again is equally simple. Place both your hands on the temples of the figure; pull as if you were pulling it toward you—and the hearthstone will revolve into its proper position again."

"You need read no further," said the countess. "Be careful to remember what you have read."

She put back the page of vellum in her writing desk, locked it and led the way to the door.

"Come!" she said, "and see what the mocking Frenchman called 'The beginning of the end.'"

Agnes was barely able to rise from her chair; she trembled from head to foot. Henry gave her his arm to support her. "Fear nothing," he whispered; "I shall be with you."

The countess proceeded along the westward corridor and stopped at the door numbered Thirty-eight. This was the room which had been inhabited by Baron Rivar in the old days of the palace; the room situated immediately over the bed chamber in which Agnes had passed the night. For the last two days it had been empty. The absence of luggage in it when they opened the door showed that it had not yet been let.

"You see," said the countess, pointing to the carved figure at the fire place; "and you know what to do. Have I deserved that you should temper justice with mercy?" she went on, in lower tones. "Give me a few hours more to myself. The baron wants money—I must get on with my play."

She smiled vacantly, and imitated the action of writing with her right hand as she pronounced the last words. The effort of concentrating her weakened mind on other and less familiar topics than the constant want of money in the baron's lifetime, and the vague prospect of gain from the still unfinished play, had evidently exhausted her poor reserves of strength. When her request had been granted she addressed no expressions of gratitude to Agnes; she only said: "Feel no fear, miss, of my attempting to escape you. Where you are, there I must be till the end comes."

Her eyes wandered round the room with a last weary and stupefied look. She returned to her writing with slow and feeble steps, like the steps of an old woman.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Henry and Agnes were left alone in the room of the Caryatides.

The person who had written the description of the palace—probably a poor author or artist—had correctly pointed out the defects of the mantelpiece. Bad taste, exhibiting itself on the most costly and splendid scale, was visible in every part of the work. It was, nevertheless, greatly admired by ignorant travelers of all classes; partly on account of its imposing size, and partly on account of the number of variously colored marbles which the sculptor had contrived to introduce into his design. Photographs of the mantelpiece were exhibited in the public rooms, and found a ready sale among English and American visitors to the hotel.

Henry led Agnes to the figure on the left, as they stood facing the empty fireplace. "Shall I try the experiment," he asked, "or will you?" She abruptly drew her arm away from him, and turned back to the door.

"I can't even look at it," she said. "That merciless marble face frightens me."

Henry put his hand on the forehead of the figure.

"What is there to alarm you, my dear, in this conventionally classical face?" he asked, jestingly.

Before he could press the head inward, Agnes hurriedly opened the door.

"Wait till I am out of the room," she cried. "The bare idea of what you may find there horrifies me!" She looked back into the room as she crossed the threshold. "I won't leave you altogether," she said; "I will wait outside."

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137-f J. STEVENSON.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SOUTH WARD,

of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours respectfully,

d137 H. C. WINCH.

TO THE ELECTORS of Ward No. 2.

At the urgent request of a large number of the citizens of the town and of a very large number of the Electors of No. 2 Ward, I have consented to be a candidate for the representation of this Ward in the Town Council. Being identified with no party and having no personal interests to serve—no axes to grind—my sole aim, if elected, shall be to promote the best interests of the town, and on these grounds I claim, and respectfully request, your support both in canvass and at the polls.

I remain, Gentlemen,

Yours very respectfully,

CONTESTED ELECTIONS.

THE WITNESSES EXAMINED IN THE RUSSELL CASE.

Some Sensational Facts Developed—A Plentiful Supply of One and Two Dollar Bills—Continuation of the East Elgin Trial—The Dundas Petition.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28.—The Russell election case was continued this morning, when Mr. Christopher Robinson, on behalf of the petitioner, presented additional charges arising out of yesterday's evidence. They were that Alexander Lumsden and one Helmer, agent of respondent, employed speakers and, canvassers to promote the respondent's interests in the election, and paid them for their services as well as their traveling expenses, and especially one Tremblay was so employed. That the respondent employed such canvassers and speakers for such purposes and paid their traveling expenses, and such payment was made by the respondent through his authorized and official agent, John Henderson, with the consent and knowledge of the respondent. That Alexander Lumsden, as agent of the respondent, gave to Albert Dow the sum of $40 to induce him to procure, or endeavor to procure, the return of respondent. That Alexander Lumsden paid to Dow $40 with the intent that it, or some portion of it, should be expended in bribery or corrupt practice. That H. N. Bate, an agent of the respondent, paid to Alexander Lumsden, another agent of respondent, $700 or $800 with intent that such money or part of it should be expended in bribery or corrupt practice, and that the money was so expended, the traveling expenses of such speakers being paid by respondent. That Albert Dow was given the sum of $40 in order to assist in procuring the respondent's election. That Henry N. Bate paid to one Alexander, the sum of $100 to be used for the purpose of bribery. Mr. Osler objected to the adding of these fresh charges, but was overruled by the Judge, on the ground that the new charges could not have been known to petitioners until they were brought out in evidence.

C. R. Cunningham was the first witness, and testified that he had assisted in distributing literature through the county, but did not know that Mr. Bate or Mr. McLaren had subscribed any money and did not know that any had been used improperly. Tom Bate admitted that he had been in Russell during the campaign, but it was on a business trip. He had never subscribed any money, although he believed his father, H. N. Bate, had. Edward Phillips, a French Canadian, formerly of Gloucester, stated that he had met Lumsden on Rideau-street one day before the election and had told him that he was sorry he had worked for Mackintosh and intimated that if sufficient inducements were offered he would turn around and work for Edwards. He hinted at money but was told that none of that would be forthcoming. He then asked for something to treat his friend, and was taken to Neville's grocery on Rideau-street, where he was supplied with a gallon jar of whisky, Lumsden he supposed making the monetary arrangement. C. Neville was the next witness. He said that Phillips had got a gallon of whisky at his store but it had been charged to him, a Mr. Graham of Hawthorne recommending him as all right financially. When asked what Lumsden had brought Phillips to him for, he answered that he (Lumsden) had wanted to know his opinion of Phillips as a safe voter.

Counsel: "And what did you say?" A. "I said, to tell you the truth I don't think much of him."

Counsel: "And yet you would give goods to a man you didn't think much of." Continuing, Mr. Neville said he had billed Phillips with whisky and intended to sue him. Neville's books were produced and his bookkeeper was also examined with reference to the entry against Phillips, which was made in pencil and which Mr. Robinson pointed out appeared to have been recently made and rubbed over to give it the appearance of age.

Phillips, recalled, said that he had got a bill from Neville about three weeks after the election but did not pay any attention to it as he knew the whisky had been given him. On re-examination by Mr. Osler, however, he stated that Lumsden had never told him that he would give him the whisky, which caused so much applause amongst the supporters of Mr. Edwards that the judge threatened to have the court cleared if better order was not kept.

Michael McLaurin, Gloucester, said he worked on behalf of Mr. Edwards. He met Mr. Lumsden on one occasion. He got $50 from him, he could not tell exactly the time. It was given in the committee room, he did not ask for it.

"What was said that led up to it?" A. "I could not say."

"Did you ever say a little money would make things smooth?" A. "Not that day. I was at Ottawa one day and said we were in need of a little money. Mr. Edwards happened to be there and said: 'If that is going to be the case I would rather you would get somebody else to run.'"

"What did Mr. Lumsden say when he gave you the $50?" A. "I could not say. I intended to use it in a legal way. I never made any return as to what became of the money. I gave one man named Jamieson $7 who was coming twice to Ottawa. I could not say what he came for. I could not say whether he brought any people out on polling day." Witness further stated that he went into an hotel and saw a man named Dufresne to whom he said "Work." The man said he had nothing to work with and witness then went out into the back yard and placed $10 on his cutter. "The balance of the money I kept. I have it in my pocket."

In the afternoon Etienne Dufresne was called. The judge acquainted the witness with the fact that if he (the judge) was satisfied in the evidence witness was about to give he was telling the whole truth, he had the power to give a certificate of protection in any future proceedings. Witness stated that he was engaged on the day of the polling in taking voters to and fro. "We got $10 that day to send rigs to bring voters to the poll. Some of the money was spent in giving dinner to the men and getting refreshments." A sum of $2 he spent himself. When Mr. McLaurin gave him the money he said it was to work on. Witness also got $2 from Mr. Lumsden as expenses for going down to Duncanville where he had a vote. He could not say whether anybody else got any money. To Mr. Osler: The men voted before they got any money.

J. Roque stated that he had been given $10 by Mr. Michael McLaurin to pay election expenses. This amount he had divided between several individuals to pay for hotel expenses. He had worked hard for Mr. Edwards. He had never got any money from him (Edwards) but had received $25 from Lumsden to pay for use of committee rooms. He was a school trustee and received $10 from Lumsden to pay for two meetings held in the school house.

Mr. O'Gara: 'Did you pay this money to the treasurer?' Witness (hesitatingly): "Yes."

Mr. O'Gara: "When?" A. "On Monday last." Q. "What were the items in the account for?" Witness hesitated for a long time, and, being pressed, said that they were for buying votes.

Joseph Lalonde of Embrum, secretary of the Liberal committee of the township, testified that the members of the committee were Herbert Boyer, E. Lalonde, Wm. Guay and others. Was in Ottawa during the election and saw Lumsden, from whom he got $150. He had been told to put the money he received to the necessary uses. He took the $150 to Russell County. It was all in one or two dollar bills. He divided the money as follows: A Lalonde between $40 and $45, C. Stonge about the same, Duncan McDermott about $35. He had left about $23. When he distributed the money to the other committeemen he told them they knew what to do with it.

C. Stonge swore he had worked all the time for Edwards. Had been in Edwards' committee room in Ottawa. Had seen Lumsden in Russell Village and got $10 from him. He had not asked for the $10, but Lumsden gave it to him for expenses. He got money from Lalonde on the morning of polling day. It was about $40 or $45, in one and two-dollar bills. He kept all the money for his services.

Duncan McDermott swore that he got $27 from Joseph Lalonde on polling day in one and two dollar bills. He gave Bourdeaux, one of the committee, $2. He gave Eli Papineau $5 for driving voters. After the poll was closed he treated the crowd at Lachapell's Hotel; some of them treated were voters. He also gave them a supper. He paid about $2 to Lachapelle, who was on his side of politics. He also spent $1.30 at Napoleon Latremouille's. He kept the rest.

August Lalonde said that he got $35 from his brother. He put the money in his safe and kept it there. It was there yet. He knew the money was intended to be used at the election.

Dr. Boileau of Winchester Township, Dundas County, swore that he canvassed and spoke for Edwards during the campaign; he got $35 or $40 from Lumsden to pay speaker's and his own expenses. He had a vote in Russell. His expenses might have been about the same amount as he received from Lumsden.

Robert Hurdman, lumberman, swore he had not canvassed for Edwards except on polling day. He had spent no money.

A. Robillard, M.P.P., had no idea who supplied the money or paid the expenses of the campaign. Did not know how the speakers were paid. He thought there was more work done in Edwards' election than in his. The court rose at 6 o'clock.

Proceedings in the East Elgin Case.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 28.—The East Elgin election trial was resumed this morning. Charge 24 was taken up. It was to the effect that Chas. Mummery of Hamilton had received traveling expenses. The following witnesses were examined: Alex. Darnach, Secretary of the Reform Association, St. Thomas; Chas. Mummery, Wm. Burt, Hamilton; David Taylor and Wm. Davidson, St. Thomas. Mr. Meredith then asked that this charge stand until to-morrow for the purpose of obtaining further witnesses. Charge 60 was taken up, that of treating by Eli Rockey. Enoch Stanley of Port Burwell swore that Rockey treated him and asked him to vote for Wilson. Wm. Backhouse, Port Burwell, swore he saw no appearance of liquor on Rockey. The charge was not finished owing to the absence of witnesses. Charge 29, that Thos. Hortop, livery keeper, had been paid for rigs for Clarke's demonstration and on election day, was then taken up. Hortop said he received no money from Wilson or his agents. Charge 28, that an offer of money had been made to Duncan Zavitz was next. A number of witnesses were examined at length upon this charge, without any material result.

The Dundas Contest.

The Dundas Contested Election Case.

MORRISBURG, Dec. 28.—The trial of the Dominion election petition against the return of Dr. Hickey was commenced at 10 o'clock this morning, the Hon. Mr. Justice Ferguson presiding. The forenoon was taken up with the examination of the President and Secretary of the Conservative Association with a view to proving agency. Afterwards the investigation into the charges commenced, and at the rising of the court some forty out of the 150 had been disposed of by being dismissed. The charges are of a general character—offering money, paying traveling expenses, etc. So far nothing has been proved, all the charges as yet investigated having completely failed. The court-room was crowded, but so far the proceedings have been dull and uninteresting.

FOUND IN HAMILTON.

A Horse Stolen at Brantford Turns Up in the Ambitious City.

HAMILTON, Dec. 28.—The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Central Presbyterian Church was held yesterday. The society is in a very flourishing condition. Since its organization in 1880 $5601.98 has been raised, and at the present time there is $1612.77 in the banks to their credit.

Rev. Dr. Burns has accepted the invitation of the Montreal St. Patrick's Society to deliver the customary address at the concert in the Academy of Music on March 7.

Last evening the employes of the Ontario rolling mills, to the number of about seventy, held their anniversary supper at the Dundurn hotel.

H. D. Baker was charged in the Police Court to-day by Owen Nowlan with assault and uttering profane language. Nowlan had placed a small account for collection in his lawyer's hands, and it had been sued in the Division Court. Monday night Baker was sitting in the St. Nicholas Hotel, and Nowlan stepped up to him and wished him the compliments of the season. Baker concluded that the salutation was more ironical than festive, and gave Nowlan a blow under the ear, following it up with expletives. Nowlan then drew his cane to give Baker a cut, when the parties were separated. Baker was fined $3.

On Monday last a young man hired a rig from Hunt & Bennett's livery stable in Brantford. Yesterday it was found by John Cleaves near the corner of King and Bay streets, in this city, and handed over to the police. Mr. Hunt came to the city this morning and identified the horse and rig.

THE PONTIFICAL ARMY.

Gifts for the Pope—An Autograph Letter to Queen Victoria.

ROME, Dec. 28.—The Pope, in receiving sixty delegates from the former pontifical army, headed by Generals Kanzler and Charette, expressed sorrow at being deprived of his army, but this affliction was softened, he said, by the hope that the day was near when he would again be enabled to have his devoted soldiers around him. Upon receiving from the delegates the gift of a jeweled inkstand and pen, he said that he would use them on the day on which he signed a decree for the reorganization of the army.

The Pope to-day entrusted the Duke of Norfolk with an autograph letter to Queen Victoria. The Duke started immediately for England to deliver the letter.

The Dead.

Gov. Marmaduke of Missouri is dead at Kansas City.

Sir Robert Montgomery, K.C.B., formerly Chief Commissioner of Oude and Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjaub, is dead.

TORONTO CUSTOM HOUSE.

A NUMBER OF CHANGES IN THE PERSONNEL OF THE STAFF.

It is Stated That Senator Schultz is to Receive the Appointment of Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba and Hon. Mr. Royal of the Northwest Territories.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28.—As the result of an investigation into the working of the Toronto Custom House, and with a view to meeting the increasing demands of the trade of that city, the Minister of Customs has been recommended a number of changes of the personnel of the staff, retiring some of the older officials whose usefulness had gone and promoting others whose efficiency attracted the attention of the department. As was the case at the port of Montreal, which was similarly dealt with recently, there is every probability of the new arrangement proving thoroughly effective.

The changes made are as follows: Mr. R. J. A. Patton, now acting customs cashier at the port, has been transferred to the position of chief locker. Mr. Thomas Ferry and George Ray, messengers, have been retired from duty, on a gratuity of one month's pay for every year's service, owing to ill health. Mr. Timothy McCarthy, chief landing waiter, owing to age and disability, has been placed on the superannuation list. He has had a service of nearly thirty-seven years and will receive an allowance of $700 per annum. Messrs. A. Scott, postoffice appraiser; T. Mitchell, assistant postoffice appraiser; W. K. Tinning, clerk; W. H. Ardagh, W. Howe, landing waiters, and T. Williams, messenger, have each been favored with an increase in salary of $50 per annum. The salary of Mr. W. B. Fleming, assistant cashier, has also been increased by the addition of $100 per annum. Mr. Bouchette Anderson, landing waiter, has received an addition of $200 per annum to his salary, on the conditions of performing the duties of chief landing waiter, made vacant by the superannuation of Mr. McCarthy.

It is understood on excellent authority that although the appointments will not take effect until May 1, the question of the Lieutenant-Governorships of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories has been positively settled, Senator Schultz to receive the appointment of Manitoba and Hon. Mr. Royal to the Northwest. It is said that the order-in-council appointing Senator Schultz has been passed, but this may be premature. The information received, however, is such as leaves no room for doubt as to its correctness.

It is said that at least one of the two senators from the Northwest will be called to the Senate before the meeting of the House, and Mr. Robert Hardisty will be the man. Rumor has it that the second senator will not be called until after Mr. Royal has been sworn as Lieutenant-Governor of the Northwest, and that then Mr. Dewdney will be called to the second seat.

Sir Richard Cartwright had an interview with Hon. Mr. Chamberlain to-day. In conversation with a reporter Sir Richard said: "The coming session will be short but sharp. I don't care about seeing it protracted until late in June."

By mutual consent the British Plenipotentiaries and the American Commissioners have agreed to postponing the date for the re-assembling of the Fishery Commission from Jan. 4 to Jan. 7. Sir Charles Tupper had a long interview with Mr. Chamberlain this morning, and it is understood that the Council was occupied all the afternoon in discussing fisheries matters. Owing to press of business Sir Charles will be unable to attend the Toronto banquet.

The agent of a Detroit company, it has been ascertained by the Customs Department, has been in the habit of entering goods at Windsor under false invoice, and disposing of the same to firms in Canada. A special agent of the department, on learning this information, made a seizure. The sales in question were made to merchants residing in London, Ont., and Montreal.

Dr. Oliver, of Barrie, Ont., has been appointed secretary to the Trent Valley Commission. It is understood that the commission will shortly meet to hear evidence at Peterboro and other places along the proposed route.

The Labor Commission will reassemble on Jan. 15, the meeting place being London.

The following customs appointments have been made: A. Coulter, Campbellton, N.B., sub-collector; Fred R. Champeau, outport collector at Lethbridge, N.W.T.; W. R. Wood, preventive officer at Shediac, N.B., and John J. McLaren, preventive officer at Arnprior.

Roger Goulet and N. O. Cote, the Halfbreed Commissioners, who have been engaged in the Northwest for the past two seasons, have returned to the city and are engaged in preparing their report.

Dr. MacDonald of Hamilton arrived in the city to-day on behalf of the Provincial Board of Health, and Dr. Bryce, the Secretary of the Board, arrives to-night. These gentlemen have come in consequence of the application made by the Civic Board of Health to ascertain if possible the causes of the recent epidemic. To-morrow they will inspect the various sites from which contagion is supposed to arise.

Hon. J. H. Pope is recovering but is still confined to his room. Hon. Mr. Thompson returned from Halifax to-day. Rev. Henry Pollard and a deputation from the Sons of England waited on Hon. Mr. Chamberlain to-day and presented him with an address.

LORD RANDOLPH IN RUSSIA.

A Moscow Journal Says His Visit Will Dispel His Prejudices.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 28.—The Moscow Gazette, commenting upon Lord Randolph Churchill's visit, says: "His visit will dispel his prejudices. He will find no trace of aggressive plans against India. He will discover a readiness on the part of Russia to solve questions in accord with England, a full guarantee being given for the security of India provided England does not oppose Russia's legitimate interests in Europe."

Lord Randolph will start for Moscow on Saturday. He will return to St. Petersburg, where he will remain during January. He has visited no political personages during his stay here with the exception of the Prime Minister and the Imperial Secretary of State.

PEACE IS ASSURED.

So They Say in Berlin, but British Officials Think War Inevitable.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—A despatch from Berlin to the Exchange Telegraph Company says it is stated that Austria, yielding to the pressure of certain friendly powers, has made advances to Russia by which continued peace is assured.

The Chronicle's Vienna correspondent, who had just been to Galicia on a visit of inspection, asserts that there are no unusual military preparations on the Austrian side of the frontier, and that no Russian troops have advanced near the boundary.

Will Support Austria.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 28.—The German Ambassador has officially informed the President of the Council of Ministers that Germany will give Austria active military support if Russia should provoke a war with Austria.

Bellicose Germans.

PESTH, Dec. 28.—Herr Esernatony, an intimate friend of Herr Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, writes to The Nemzet as follows: "The guiding spirits of the German army are in favor of war to stop Russian designs. They apprehend nothing from an attack by France, and are confident of success in the case of war against Russia. If it were not that Prince Bismarck favors peace the German army would already be fighting Russia, in company, of course, with Austrian and Italian armies." In conclusion, the writer says he expects peace will be maintained, now that Russia finds the powers do not fear her.

British Officials Think War Inevitable.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The Herald's London cable says: While confidence is still professed in high official quarters that peace will be maintained, great and increasing misgivings prevail. It is pretty certain that within the last few days the belief has gained ground among British officials that war is inevitable.

The Tension Relaxing.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 28.—The tension between Russia and Austria shows symptoms of relaxing. The Grosheland declares that an entente is possible, even on the most difficult points in the Bulgarian dispute.

Russian Assurances of Peace.

BERLIN, Dec. 28.—The Post publishes a telegram from Vienna saying that Prince Lobanoff, the Russian Ambassador there, has assured Count Kalnoky that Russia is pursuing a policy of peace and that the concentration of Russian troops on the Galician frontier is not intended as an aggressive movement. Count Schuvaloff, the Russian Ambassador to Germany, had a short audience with Emperor William to-day.

A Charivari at Lucan.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Details of a lively charivari in the somewhat notorious Village of Lucan have just leaked out. It seems that a short time ago Capt. Stanley married a girl young enough to be his granddaughter. The same night the Lucan youth assembled at Stanley's house, smashing the doors and windows and otherwise raising a great racket. The captain purchased a truce at the cost of $15 in cash and an I.O.U. for $10 more. Next day, however, he moved out of the house, and the landlady, Mrs. Fanny Johnson of this city, has had summonses issued against Robert Hodgens, John Hodgins, William Jackson, John Jackson and Thomas Collins—alleged to have been participants in the disturbance—for malicious damage to property. They will appear at Schram's office on Friday.

The Crown Prince Hopeful.

SAN REMO, Dec. 28.—Dr. Mackenzie states that for more than a month the Crown Prince has been free from the unpleasant sensation in his throat, which he first experienced in January. Dr. Mackenzie describes the Crown Prince as hopeful and cheerful.

Doctors Mackenzie, Schraeder, Hovell and Krause, after an hour's consultation, agreed to despatch to Berlin a favorable bulletin concerning the Crown Prince. Dr. Mackenzie will return to San Remo from time to time.

Mr. Gladstone Embarks.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Mr. Gladstone embarked upon the Channel steamer Folkestone this morning. He was cheered by a crowd which had mustered to see him off.

The Times, referring to the snowballing of Mr. Gladstone yesterday, says it was a discreditable act, though the Gladstonians set the example by their doings at Unionist meetings. The position and age of Mr. Gladstone, says The Times, ought to insure him against such insult.

Judicial Rents Reduced.

DUBLIN, Dec. 28.—The Gazette publishes an order signed by Commissioners Lytton and Wrench prescribing reductions of judicial rents throughout practically the whole of Ireland, ranging from 6 to 22 per cent., the average being 14 per cent. The aggregate reduction is estimated at £2,000,000. The reduction is permanent and applies to arrears since 1881. Judge O'Hagan attaches a note dissenting from the decision of his colleagues.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

A PLEASANT feature of the municipal election campaign this year is the quiet and orderly way in which it is being conducted. Too often, especially when there is a contest for the chief seat at the Council Board, excitement runs high, hard words are spoken and ill feeling is created. There has been none of these things this year. At the nomination the speakers stated their views plainly, and, without attacking the opposition candidate or his friends, left it to the electors to decide with whom they agreed or which one they considered was better qualified to fill the position. There is no reason for bitterness—bickering and spiteful speaking does no good—and neither candidate will lose by the course followed, simply putting before the electors his views without imparting asperity to the contest by assailing his opponent for the time being.

The facts brought before the electors at the nomination are creditable to the town. Some $72,000 worth of debentures fall due in 1893 and they will be taken up, the larger portion of the money being on hand now for the purpose. Large sums were spent this year in better equipping the fire department and on streets and bridges, some of the expenditure having been necessiated by floods, and yet the rate was compatively low—much lower, we believe, than in any neighboring town, and the assurance is given that not only will the rate not be increased, but that there are good prospects of it being further reduced.

The growth of the town has been very satisfactory, owing, principally, to three causes—its natural advantages and railway facilities, its low rate of taxation and the public spirit of citizens. The progress that has been made is not, however, a reason why efforts to build up the town should be relaxed. Its material interests still need careful attention. To preserve its prosperity and continued advancement its manufacturing interests require judicious care, with a view to the augmentation of the number of industries carried on in the town. If the town is to make such progress as its position and facilities would warrant the people in expecting, the municipal course must be guided by good judgment, business ability and experience. The town and city population of Ontario has been increasing more rapidly than the rural population, because the Province is engaging more largely in manufacturing. Peterborough has benefitted by this condition of affairs, owing to watchfulness and care, and with proper management it should continue to do so.

A matter referred to by Mr. Loch at the nomination is one that should receive prompt attention—the question of a system of sewerage. It is a question that must be faced sooner or later, and the sooner it can be done the better for the health of the people and the prosperity of the town. We would not urge that any large sum of money be expended at once upon this work, but the Council should be impressed with the necessity of looking forward to supplying the town with adequate sewerage. With this in view it is not too early to enquire into the best methods—several have been suggested—and plans could be prepared, so that any work done would be in accordance with a general plan. By this means every expenditure, large or small, would be a step towards a complete system, and eventually the requirements would be met.

Upon the choice of Councillors depends the domestic legislation and largely the administration of the corporation business. Each member of the Council will have power to assist in securing economy in expenditure, in preserving peace and good order in the municipality and in advancing the interests of the town. The vote of each elector will be a factor in deciding who will have charge of the municipal business and how it will be conducted. There are a number of good candidates in the field and it remains for the ratepayers to make a wise choice.

For the office of Mayor there are two candidates, both well known to the electors. Mr. Rutherford has had a long experience in municipal business as a member of the Council, and in his platform are planks that will appeal to the sentiments of a large number. He has been [illegible] their one important [illegible] in his long [illegible] does not claim no mistakes, he feels that he is entitled to the higher honor.

Mr. Stevenson's experience in municipal affairs has been very extensive. While the town was still connected with the county he represented its interests in the County Council, and afterwards, when the town became a separate municipality, he filled the office of Mayor. After a period of retirement from office he was again called to the chief place at the Council Board, being twice elected by acclamation. His position on the Town Trust Commission has made him familiar with all the business of the town for years, and his marked business ability has been of advantage in forwarding its interests. He has been on the alert to secure the location of industries in the town and has been watchful of its interests.

Mr. Stevenson is of opinion that the construction of a system of sewers should not be commenced till the maturing debentures are retired. Mr. Rutherford holds that the Scott Act should be enforced through the constables, a matter of which the majority in the Council has control, and members of this year's Council argue that fines have been well looked after and all done that should be expected. Whether that is the case or not the electors must decide. Both the candidates favor encouraging manufacturing to a judicious extent, and as to that the question is as to which gentleman the electors believe would be better able to direct negotiations, for it is to the Mayor that the conducting of negotiations with manufacturers largely falls, and upon his carefulness and judgment much depends.

It is to be hoped that the contest will be continued to the end in the friendly spirit show this far; that the choice of the electors will fall upon the best men for the positions, and that afterwards they may not have reason to regret their decision.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

TORONTO, Dec. 28.

The grain and produce markets show little change at home while abroad they are firmer.

At the Board of Trade to-day 1 car of Manitoba wheat by sample on track was offered at 86c, with 83½c. bid.

The report of receipts of hogs from the Chicago stock yards to-day is: Estimated receipts, 16,000; official yesterday, 11,273. Shipments, 5331; left over about 3000. Cattle—Receipts, 7000. Market fairly active.

LOCAL STREET MARKET.

The local market was rather quiet to-day and prices steady. About 200 bushels of wheat offered and sold at 83c to 85c for fall, 77c to 82c for spring, and 56c to 75c for goose. Barley dull; three loads sold at 65c to 72c, but the best would bring 78c. Oats are nominal at 40c, and peas at 65c. Hay in limited supply and prices steady; 25 loads sold at $10 to $12 for clover, and $13 to $16 for timothy. Straw quiet and prices steady, with sales at $11 to $12. Dressed hogs quoted at $6.75 to $7. Beef $3 to $5 for forequarters, and $6 to $7 for hindquarters. Mutton $6 to $6.50; lamb at $6.50 to $7.50; veal $6.50 to $8.

ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

The retail market was very dull and prices without change. Beef, 12c to 14c; sirloin steak at 13c to 14c; round steak 10c to 11c. Mutton, legs and chops, 12c to 13c; inferior cuts 8c to 10c. # POKING FUN!

The Publi at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be oodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞ Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

A CHOICE stock of Overcoats, and Clothing of all kinds for Boys at Remarkably Low Prices at TURNBULL'S.

The Rink.

The ice was smooths and crisp at the Charlotte street rink last night. There was a fair attendance, but no overcrowding. On Friday evening the Fire Brigade Band will occupy the orchestra stand in the gallery and the caretakers will see that the ice is in the very best condition.

Christmas Calls.

The Fire Brigade Band are this week doing their usual holiday seranading. Every evening now the cheery strains are heard in one part of the town or another, and the prominent citizens who are being called on are giving that encouragement financially which the band deserve.

FINE Sealettes made to order at greatly reduced prices, this and next week, at TURNBULL'S.

The Nicholls Hospital.

The superintendent of the Nicholls Hospital regrets that Mrs. Geo. Burnham's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of contributers to the Hospital at Christmas. Mrs. Burnham sent oranges, lemons and grapes, for the patients. Honey and books sent by Mrs. Burnham to a little patient in October are also acknowledged now.

The Danites.

Baird's Dramatic Company drew another large audience at Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday night, when the "wild west" drama, the Danites, was presented. The play was creditably set and the parts well rendered. The leading characters were supported in such a way as to give symmetry to the performance, and interest and amusement to the "house." To-night the society play "Queen's Evidence" will be given, set with special scenery and mechanical effects.

A Special Offer.

From this day Fur Capes at half price. Mantles at cost. Ladies' Felt Hats, 25 cts. Cretonnes, value 12½c. for 8 cts. 10 cent Towelling, 6¼ cts. Table Linen, 30 for 20 cts. Griffin & Co. will from this date; slaughter in price. Don't forget the place. H. S. Griffin & Co. 3d152-1w52.

TURNBULL claims to have the Cheapest Flannels and underclothing offered in Peterborough. Call and test it.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Mr. Chamberlain.

According to a report from Ottawa the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain will pass through Peterborough on the evening (5.50) train over the Canadian Pacific railway.

Oddfellows Attention.

All Oddfellows are invited to be present at the rooms of Otonabee Lodge No. 13, I. O. O. F., this (Thursday) evening to make arrangements to go to Norwood to-morrow (Friday) morning and evening, and other important business. 1d153

Hit on the Neck.

Mr. Chas. Pashley was lifting some bar iron at the new Central Iron Works premises, Water street, this forenoon, when the bar slipped and hit him on the side of the neck. He was cut little, but bruised so severely that he had to be taken home.

The Giant T Takes the Lead.

Coal oil! Coal oil! Coal oil. I will sell and deliver to all parts of the Town, Ashburnham and Auburn, the best brands of American and Canadian Coal Oil ever brought to Peterborough for the following prices.

The best Water White American oil at 25c per imperial gallon.

The best brands of Canadian oil at 15c per imperial gallon. ADAM HALL. d145tf

Quick way of Doing it.

This forenoon a load of hardwood stood on George street in front of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co's office. It was about four feet from the sidewalk and the sidewalk was about two feet above the street. All at once the dapple grey horse that draws Messrs. Breeze & Bain's delivery, started off up street. It neared the load of wood and made straight for the narrow lane between the load and the sidewalk. It galloped up. "Chuck!" went the sleigh and away went the horse stripped of the harness.

The Children's Day.

The 31st anniversary of the organization of the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School is to be celebrated with more than usual ceremony on Monday, 10th of January. A chorus of upwards of 400 children will sing carols under the direction of Messrs. Jacques and Millar. The Fire Brigade Band will play the accompaniments. A large platform will be erected all across the end of the church for the children to stand on. The festival promises to be a great success.

LONG or short Mantles, Dolmans and Ulsters at closing out prices, at TURNBULL'S.

A Sight.

The express train from the east on the Canadian Pacific Railway arrived at the Peterborough station two hours behind the schedule time this morning. It was a sight to see. The storm accompanied by a sudden cold blast blew freely all night, and through it the train came with comparative tardiness. When it arrived at Peterborough it was one mass of snow and ice. The puffs of steam from the engine served to fasten the snow into hard crust on the coaches immediately behind it, making the train look like part of a street procession at a Montreal carnival.

The Happiest Lot.

The argument at the regular meeting of the St. Peter's Cathedral congregation Debating Society held on Wednesday night was on the respective amount of happiness enjoyed by the civilized man and the savage. Mr. Cornelius Roach, assisted by Messrs. Doherty and Henry, upheld the merits of civilized happiness, and Mr. Joseph Hurley supported by Messrs. Lynch and R. Henry, gave forth amplified eloquence upon the joys of the savage. Mr. J. J. Sheehy, who occupied the chair, summed up the value of the arguments and decided in favor of the lot of the civilized man.

A Cold Day.

It was decided unanimously this morning (by those who came down town with coat collars even with their eyes) that the druggists had put out thermometers which did but do justice to the weather. With moustaches waxed by the frost and their coat tails coquetting with the breeze, they stood and anxiously peered at the weather glasses, only to hurry off with disappointment. "It ought to be 15 below," declared one to another with emphasis. "And they've only got it two," replied the other with fellow feeling. They stepped off together in search of last year's self-registrar.

Personal.

Mr. Mm. Casey, until lately of the despatcher's office in the Grand Trunk Depot, will not become the station agent at Stirling as was intended. He has accepted a position in Kentucky similar to that accepted by him here, and has left town to fill it.

Mr. Ed. Tierney, of one of the New York York city fire brigades, is home spending the Christmas holidays.

The Rev. Father Conway, Mr. E. D. Gough, T. Dolan, T. Kelly and J. W. Fitzgerald, were in Toronto on Wednesday evening, to hear Sir Thos. G. Esmond and Mr. Arthur O'Connor speak on the Irish question.

Church Notes.

—A watch night service will be held in the George Street Methodist Church on Saturday night next.

—On Sunday next at the George Street Methodist Church Rev. S. J. Thompson who comes to supply the pulpit until July next, will be welcomed, and assume charge of matters in that connection.

—Sunday, Jan. 8th, is announced as the date of the Sabbath School anniversary of the George Street Methodist Church. Special interest will attach to the services in view of which preparations of more than usual interest are being made. The Rev. T. Manning, B. A., will preach the sermons.

IF you are poor you cannot afford to buy trash, and if you are rich you can become richer by buying your boots, shoes, slippers, overshoes, &c., &c., from kidd the dealer in GOOD boots.

The Hymenial Knot.

The residence of Mr. Wm. Speer, Postmaster of South Dummer, was the scene of a pleasant ceremony on Wednesday afternoon, the 28th, when his second daughter Ella, was married to Mr. Steven Gaskins, son of Mr. Wm. Gaskins, of Peterborough. The Rev. J. Anderson, of the Methodist Church, Norwood, officiated. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Alfred Gaskins, and the bride by her sister, Miss Annie Speer and two little girls of twelve, sisters of the bride and groom respectively, prettily attired in white and bearing boquets. After the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to their new home in Peterborough followed by the well wishes of their many friends.

Lines.

—Two cats are said to have died in a George street grocery by getting "Rough on Rats."

—Brave cats! they, like the boy on the burning deck, died in doing their duty.

—Mr. Errett intended to be a candidate to represent No. 2 Ward at the School Board, but through some mistake he was not nominated.

—His services will be much missed on the board. He was conversant with school law, procedure and committee work, and while at the board was an efficient member. Mr. Sproule, who also retires, was capable in the performance of his duties.

—Mr. W. H. Hill is the newly elected trustee for No. 2. He is a young man, active, progressive and alive to the duties devolving on him.

—Mr. J. L. Hughes is the representative of No. 1 in place of Mr. Sproule. His moderate opinion and good judgment will be of value at the board.

—This is to certify that this is blowing weather.

—And that its likely to be breezy till after Monday next—election day.

"OLD king Cole was a merry old soul," but we believe that kidd sells boots with BETTER soles on than ever old King Cole wore, in fact we KNOW it.

Brevities.

—There was no business done at the Police Court this morning.

—The curlers are reminded that the President's and Vice-President's match will take place this evening. the rinks will be chosen from the curlers who are present in the rink at 8 o'clock.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Budden took place this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Through a typhographical error the hour was wrongly announced in the REVIEW yesterday as 2.30.

—Lindsay has two big candidates for municipal honors. Mayor Walters who offers again is reputed to turn the beam at 239 lbs., while his brother, Councillor H. Walters—running for for the Reeveship—has been entreated to step off the scales after the weights had been piled up to 310 and there was some apprehension that the machine would be wrecked. The pair are as jovial and hearty as they are weighty, and both popular men. Lindsay takes the diploma for heavy weight civic dignitaries

MUNICIPAL.—The nomination for Reeve and Councillors came off on Monday at the appointed time. There were no less than four for Reeve and seven councillors, or would be if there could be room for them, but, alas, six of the number will be elected to stay at home. No doubt we will have stirring times, if we may judge from the proceedings. There will no doubt be some tall talk, as it was hot and heavy on Monday, and that was only the commencement of the fight.

The names of the candidates are as follows:—For Reeve, T. M. Willan, Wm. Smith son, Jas. Perrin and Jos. Clark. For Councillors R. Parker, J. Buckham, D. Baxter, N. Dawson, R. Lang, jr., R. Fisher and Jas. Greer, and, oh, my! if I could have got a nomination, wouldn't I have given them scissors! Never mind, I expect to some future day. I fully expected there would have been some blood shed, but happily it passed off without.

NOT A CANDIDATE.—To the Electors of the Township of South Monaghan: Gentlemen,—Having been nominated for the office of Reeve against my wish, I beg leave to tender you my resignation, though much obliged to the Bailleboro tailor for his disinterested kindness, and not forgetting the merry Englishman. I remain yours truly JOSEPH CLARK.

HARVEY.

Correspondence of the Review.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Harvey council met at the Clerk's office on December 19th, 1887. Members all present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed Communications and accounts were read from Gilmour & Co., stating their willingness to grant the right of way on lands owned by them on cadge road, from the depot north to the boundary; C. E. Stwert's account for printing and advertising for the year 1887; estate of the late J. A. Moore for repairs on road scrapers; W. R. Hamilton for blanks and stationary for 1887. The application of John Tedford for a new road to be opened will be granted, provided the owners of the lands do grant the right of way for the same. The Clerk was instructed to write to the parties owning the lands, to be expropriated for road, and enquire if they will grant the right of way, and if the Clerk receives a favourable answer from the owners of the land, that he notify Jas. Dickson, P.L.S., of Fenelon Falls, to survey and describe the new road in the 3rd, 4th, and 9th Concessions, also the cadge road above referred to The Clerk was instructed to notify John Elliott, John Adams, So Hescott and W. A. Boates to remove their fences off the road allowance between lots Nos. 10 and 11 across the 13th concession. The Reeve was instructed to draw orders on the Township Treasurer in favor of the parties named respectively, as follows:—

CLOSING EXERCISES AND PRESENTATION.—The closing exercises of S.S. 16, Otonabee, for 1887, took place on the afternoon of Friday, Dec. 23rd. Quite a number of parents and friends of the pupils were present. After a test of the standing of the pupils had been made by the teacher, Mr. J. S. Ivison Wilson, a short programme was given, consisting of recitations and singing by the pupils. The prizes, awarded to the pupils taking the highest standing in the various classes, were then presented by the Rev. J. C. Wilson. The following are the names of the successful pupils:—

Fourth Jr.—Mary J. Guthrie, Minnie Rose.
Third class.—Maud Finnamore.
Second class Sr.—Albert Frost.
Second class Jr.—Nettie Stewart.
Part II class.—Ernest Welch.
Part I class Sr.—Jennie Huston.
Part I class Jr.—Lorne Brooks.

This had scarcely been concluded, when Miss Eva Holiday and Miss Minnie Rose came forward and, having in a few well-chosen words expressed their appreciation of their teachers services for the past year, and having wished him the compliments of the season, presented him, on beualf of the school, with an elegant scarlet plush album. Mr. Wilson being taken totally by surprise, thanked them for the beautiful present and also for their kindness to him while teaching there. He concluded by wishing all a happy Christmas, and a bright, joyous New Year.

SMITH.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBITUARY.—Mr. James Roseborough, an old and respected resident of this township, died at his residence, lot 16, con. 5, on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Roseborough fell about five weeks ago and injured himself, and, being of advanced age, did not recover. He became weaker and on Tuesday began to sink more rapidly and expired on Wednesday. The deceased was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1809, and was 87 years of age. He came to Canada in 1826. He lived for about three years in Port Hope and then came to Smith, being among the early settlers of the township. He first settled in the 7th concession, where he remained for a few years, and then removed to the farm upon which he resided until his death—over forty years. Mr. Roseborough was twice married, his second wife being Eliza Crawford, also a native of Ireland, to whom he was married 45 years ago and who preceded him to the other world in February, 1883. He leaves a family of nine children, five sons, three of whom are in Manitoba, and four daughters. One by one the old settlers pass away, and by the death of Mr. Roseborough one who was much respected has gone.

HONOR ROLL.—The following is the honor roll of S. S. No. 11, Smith, of which Miss E. L. McDonald is teacher, for November, 1887:—

Fourth Class.—Mary Northey, Edith Allen, Mable Fitzgerald.
Third Class.—Lizzie Heard, Mildred Fitzgerald, Laura Allen.
Second Class.—Clara Allen, Alice Fitzgerald, Melinda Wright.
Sr. First Class.—Ward Boyce, Clarence Fitzgerald, Willie O'Connell.
Jr. First Class.—Maggie Milburn, Elsie Allen and Josie Rosboro, Bertie Williams.

The following is the honor roll for the same school for December:—

Fourth Class.—Mary Northey, Edith Allen, Laura Northey and Bertie Allen.
Third Class.—Lizzie Heard, Laura Allen, Earnest Rosboro.
Second Class.—Clara Allen, Alice Fitzgerald, Richard Fairbairn.
Sr. First Class.—Clarence Fitzgerald, Ward Boyce, Willie O'Connell.
Jr. First Class.—Percy Fitzgerald, Effie Williams, Maggie Milburn.

SCHOOL PRESENTATION.—Miss Harrett M. Wright, teacher in S. S. No. 1, Smith, having resigned that position, the many friends and pupils of the young lady evidenced their esteem and regard by holding a fruit social and entertainment on the eve of her departure. The entertainment consisted of readings, recitations and dialogues by the pupils and others, interspersed with singing and instrumental music. At the close of the meeting Miss Wright was presented by her pupils with a silver sugar bowl and spoon holder combined, also a toilet set. The initials, "H.M.W" were engraved on the spoons and "From S. S. No. 1" on the bowl. Miss Ada Middleton read the following address on behalf of the school:—

DEAR TEACHER.—We learn with deep regret that you are about to leave us. During the five years that your have spent amongst us as teacher the earnest endeavours to advance us in our studies, the solicitude shown for our welfare, the kindness with which you have encouraged and assisted us, cause us to regard you not merely as an efficient teacher, but also as a sincere friend. Before bidding you goodbye we wish to present you with this sugar bowl and toilet set, hoping that you will accept them, not for any real value attached to them, but as a slight token of the esteem with which you are regaided by the pupils of S.S No. 1. Signed on behalf of the school,

ADA MIDDLETON, EDIE TULLY,
LIZZIE PAUL, LIZZIE MCHOOD,
BLANCH BROOKS.

Miss Wright thanked the children in a few very appropriate remarks. A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by singing "God Save the Queen."

GOOD TEMPLERS.—The District Lodge No. 10, of the County of Peterborough, met in the town hall, Bridgenorth, on the 22nd Dec. As the meeting was but an informal one, no business of any importance was transacted. It was decided to meet on the fourth Monday in January at Selwyn, when the regular meeting will be held.

MINE AND THINE.

The maiden said: "Oh, lover mine,
Tell me what is mine and thine?"
The youth made answer: "Sweetheart mine,
Thine azure eyes, sure they are thine;
But in their depths to gaze is mine.
Thy lips so rosy red are thine;
But then to kiss them, that is mine.
Now fold me in those arms of thine—
They join in wedlock thine and mine."

POWER IN THE FUTURE.

Possibilities of the Next Century—Power in Bales and Barrels.

Let any one consider what the steam engine was forty years ago, and then examine the very latest improved compound engine of today, with all its appliances for economy and efficient service, and then let him try to estimate what the electric motor of thirty years hence will be. The compound engine, with its wonderful performance, has come as a result of long practice, large experience, profound study, and the application of a wide acquaintance with principles. Why should not the electric motor gain as much from the same sources?

And, if it shall so gain, is it unreasonable to suppose that electricity may crowd out steam, in a good many cases, as a source of power? If large power can be stored in the form of electricity, so that it may be transported on a street car, why may it not be generated at one point, and then be shipped to another, like any ordinary commodity, to be used as it is wanted? Why, for example, should not the water power of Niagara be employed to generate power, which shall then be stored, transported and sold to operate mills in Philadelphia? There is a regular market now for coal. Why should there not then be a regular market for stored power? Why should not a mill owner then go out and buy his power, for the season, just as he buys his cotton, his wool or his dye stuffs?

If power can be baled up like cotton or barreled up like sugar, then we shall have power dealers, power brokers, and, may be, a power exchange—in fact, all the details of a new and important industry. Is this a fantastic supposition? Not half so fantastic as the notion of traveling from Boston to Philadelphia in a single night was to our grandfathers. It is rather a clearly indicated possibility, the promise of which is contained in the street car which is now moving about under an impulse derived from a steam engine that stopped before the car started.—Textile Record.

LATEST TORONTO NEWS.

THE CITY IN A FLUTTER OVER THE MONAGHAN CASE.

Mr. Chamberlain's Visit—Deaths at the Jail—A Roman Pantheon at Grimsby Park—Sir Edmonde and Mr. O'Connor in Town.

TORONTO, Dec. 29.

The Monaghan case was the general topic of conversation on the streets yesterday. Miss Monaghan is said to be one of the handsomest girls in the city, and her appearance bears out her reputation. She was 22 years old yesterday. She is anxious that nothing more should be said in the press about the matter, and she had hoped the whole thing would escape the notice of the reporters. She is surprised at the accuracy of the report telegraphed yesterday.

No copy of the evidence can be got, and the lawyer and the Referee claims that proceedings in cases of this kind are private. The public, however, have a right to know of such things as the locking up of heiresses in foreign mad-houses; of the possibility of a physician signing groundless certificates of madness, and of sisters of charity tearing the clothes off the back of a young girl in their endeavors to keep her a prisoner.

It is a duty that the press owes the people to make these things known. Of course it is rather unpleasant for young ladies like Miss Monaghan to so suddenly find their affairs talked about outside of their own circle; but Miss Monaghan has at least this result from the publication of her case—that no one will ever attempt to lock her up again.

Mr. Chamberlain and staff will arrive at Toronto at 8.20 this evening on the C. P. R. express train from Ottawa. To-morrow evening he will attend the dinner of the Board of Trade, and on Saturday morning he leaves for Niagara Falls on his way to Washington. The Fisheries Commission meets on Jan. 4.

Work on an immense building at Grimsby Park will be begun immediately. It will seat from 8000 to 10,000 people, and will resemble the Roman Pantheon. The dome of the new structure will be on a grand scale, and its 119,000 feet of lumber will be without truss or brace of any kind. It will rival in appearance the dome of the Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City.

Sir Thomas Grattan Esmonde and Mr. Arthur O'Connor, Home Rule M.P.'s of the Imperial Parliament, arrived in Toronto at 10.15 yesterday morning from Hamilton. The distinguished visitors were entertained by His Grace Archbishop Lynch in the afternoon.

THE RAILROAD STRIKE.

Knights of Labor Still Out—Conflicting Reports—Dissatisfaction of C. & P. Em.

SHAMOKIN, Dec. 28.—The Reading Railroad Knights of Labor here are still out and declare they will not return to work until their discharged associates at this place are reinstated. Three train crews of non-union men are at work but there are thirty-one locomotives here without crews. The colleries in this locality are all idle owing to the lack of transportation facilities.

What the General Manager Says.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—The General Manager of the Reading Company stated this morning that the operation of the road was almost without obstruction.

A Denial.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 28.—The officials of the Pennsylvania Company deny all knowledge of the trouble among their employes. The railroaders also deny the report except the Cleveland and Pittsburg men. There is some dissatisfaction among the latter."

Seven Crews Abandon their Engines.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—This afternoon the question whether the Port Richmond men would take up the gauntlet thrown down by the Reading Railway was settled so far as seven of the fourteen engine crews at work were concerned. They ran them on sidings and abandoned them there. This is only a beginning of the trouble, and it is believed that by to-morrow all the men who went out on Thursday afternoon will again be on strike. The cause is the positive refusal of the company to arbitrate the grievances maintained by the men.

Trouble on The Frackville Branch.

ST. CLAIR, Pa., Dec. 28.—Not a single coal train started out on the Frackville branch this morning. The Reading Railroad Company employ some twenty-five crews and engines on this branch.

Mines Still Closed.

MAHANOY PLANE, Pa., Dec. 28.—The plane here is not in operation and very little is doing. The mines have not yet started up. About twenty-five crews are usually employed on the plane and in this vicinity.

Electioneering on The Sabbath.

From The Canada Presbyterian.

The question, Who should be our Mayor or our member? is not of sufficient importance to merit calling a meeting on the Sabbath. Is it not a little singular that an Episcopalian and a lawyer (Mr. S. H. Blake) should be the first to raise his voice on this question, and express the views held by a large majority of Presbyterians? There was a time when Presbyterians were considered the boldest defenders of the Sabbath. Has that time past? Or is defence merely kept in abeyance until the elections are over?

Warlike Utes.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col. Dec. 28.—For several days reports have reached here from the White River country that Utes are off their reservation east of the Utah line, and that they are buying all the rifles and other firearms they can obtain. It is feared an outbreak will soon occur.

Emperor William Enjoying Good Health.

RAS AT BOSTON.

"Reciprocity" Discussed at the Banquet of the Merchants' Association.

BOSTON, Dec. 28.—The Boston Merchants Association banquet this evening was a brilliant affair. About 250 gentlemen were present. The post prandial exercises were opened by Hon. Jonathan A. Lane, President of the club, who extended a welcome to the visitors and announced that the commercial relations between the Canadian provinces and this country were at present of such an important nature as to demand the attention of merchants, and consequently the business men of Boston had invited eminent gentlemen from the provinces and from Congress to participate in a discussion of this question.

Governor Ames welcomed the visitors to the Bay State in a few words. A letter from Mayor O'Brien was next read in which he said, "If a vote was taken in Boston to-day I have no doubt that it would advocate reciprocity relations."

Erastus Wiman, being introduced as a Canadian by birth, and a business man in New York, said trade should be as free between this country and Canada as it was between the provinces. "If an arrangement can be reached by which the United States will invite Canada to a commercial union, I think I can safely say the Canadians will accept it. I do not believe that the Canadians want annexation, and only those in Canada who are not in favor of Commercial Union are those who fear that it will lead to annexation."

Among the other speakers were Hon. Peter Mitchell of Montreal, Hon. John Macdonald of Toronto, Hon. J. W. Longley, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, and Congressman Hitt of Illinois.

Oshawa School Meetings.

OSHAWA, Dec. 28.—The annual school meetings in the various wards for the nomination of candidates for school trustees were held to-day at 12 o'clock. All the vacancies were filled by acclamation. All the candidates for councillors for the Northeast Ward who were nominated on Monday last withdrew to-day except Messrs. Borsberry, Tamblyn and McLaughlin, who are now elected. The other three wards will go to the polls.

Death of an Inventor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—M. D. Babcock, inventor of the fire extinguishing apparatus bearing his name, died at the almshouse on Saturday, aged 70. At one time he was in receipt of $10,000 a month for royalty on his machines, but after selling the patent rights his money was soon spent, and for some years he wandered about the state in a destitute condition. Six years ago he was admitted to the almshouse.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or otherwise. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

She closed the door. Left by herself, Henry lifted his hand once more to the marble forehead of the figure.

For the second time he was checked on the point of setting the machinery of the hiding place in motion. On this occasion the interruption came from an outbreak of friendly voices in the corridor. A woman's voice exclaimed: "Dearest Agnes, how glad I am to see you again!" A man's voice followed, offering to introduce some friend to "Miss Lockwood." A third voice (which Henry recognized as the voice of the manager of the hotel) became audible next, directing the housekeeper to show the ladies and gentlemen the vacant apartments at the other end of the corridor. "If more accommodation is wanted," the manager went on, "I have a charming room to let here." He opened the door as he spoke, and found himself face to face with Henry Westwick.

"This is indeed an agreeable surprise, sir," said the manager, cheerfully. "You are admiring our famous chimney piece, I see. May I ask, Mr. Westwick, how you find yourself in the hotel this time? Have the supernatural influences affected your appetite again?"

"The supernatural influences have spared me this time," Henry answered. "Perhaps you may yet find that they have affected some other members of the family." He spoke gravely, resenting the familiar tone in which the manager had referred to his previous visit to the hotel. "Have you just returned?" he asked, by way of changing the topic.

"Just this minute, sir. I had the honor of traveling in the same train with friends of yours, who have arrived at the hotel—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barville and their traveling companions. Miss Lockwood is with them, looking at the rooms. They will be here before long, if they find it convenient to have an extra room at their disposal."

This announcement decided Henry on exploring the hiding place before the interruption occurred. It had crossed his mind when Agnes left him that he ought, perhaps, to have a witness in the not very probable event of some alarming discovery taking place. The too familiar manager, suspecting nothing, was there at his disposal. He turned again to the Caryan figure, maliciously resolving to make the manager his witness.

"I am delighted to hear that our friends have arrived at last," he said. "Before I shake hands with them let me ask you a question about this queer work of art here. I saw photographs of it down stairs. Are they for sale?"

"Certainly, Mr. Westwick."

"Do you think the chimney piece is as solid as it looks?" Henry proceeded. "When you came in I was just wondering whether this figure here had not accidentally got loosened from the wall behind it." He laid his hand on the marble forehead for the third time. "To my eye it looks a little out of the perpendicular. I almost fancy I could jog the head just now when I touched it." He pressed the head inward as he said those words.

A sound of jarring iron was instantly audible behind the wall. The solid hearthstone in front of the fireplace turned slowly at the feet of the two men, and disclosed a dark cavity below. At the same moment, the strange and sickening combination of odors, hitherto associated with the vaults of the old palace and with the bed chamber beneath, now floated up from the open recess, and filled the room.

The manager started back. "Good God, Mr. Westwick!" he exclaimed, "what does this mean?"

Remembering, not only what his brother Francis had felt in the room beneath, but what the experience of Agnes had been on the previous night, Henry was determined to be on his guard. "I am as much surprised as you are," was his only reply.

"Wait for me one moment, sir," said the manager. "I must stop the ladies and gentlemen outside from coming in."

He hurried away—not forgetting to close the door after him. Henry opened the window, and waited there, breathing the pure air. Vague apprehensions of the next discovery to come filled his mind for the first time. He was doubly resolved, now, not to stir a step in the investigation without a witness.

The manager returned with a wax taper in his hand, which he lighted as soon as he entered the room.

"We need fear no interruption now," he said. "Be so kind, Mr. Westwick, as to hold the light. It is my business to find out what this extraordinary discovery means."

Henry held the taper. Looking into the cavity, by the dim and flickering light, they both detected a dark object at the bottom of it. "I think I can reach the thing," the manager remarked, "if I lie down, and put my hand into the hole."

He knelt on the floor—and hesitated. "Might I ask you, sir, to give me my gloves?" he said. "They are in my hat, on the chair behind you."

Henry gave him his gloves. "I don't know what I may be going to take hold of," the manager explained, smiling rather uneasily as he put on his right glove.

He stretched himself at full length on the floor, and passed his right hand into the cavity. "I can't say exactly what I have got hold of," he said. "But I have got it."

Half raising himself, he drew his hand out.

The next instant he started to his feet with a shriek of terror. A human head, dropped from his nerveless grasp on the floor, and rolled to Henry's feet. It was the hideous head that Agnes had seen hovering above her, in the vision of the night!

The two men looked at each other, both struck speechless by the same emotion of horror. The manager was the first to control himself. "See to the door, for God's sake!" he said. "Some of the people outside may have heard me."

Henry moved mechanically to the door.

Even when he had his hand on the key, ready to turn it in the lock in case of necessity, he still looked back at the appalling object on the floor. There was no possibility of identifying those decayed and distorted features with any living creature whom he had seen—and yet he was conscious of feeling a vague and awful doubt which shook him to the soul. The questions which tortured the mind of Agnes were now his questions, too. He asked himself, "In whose likeness might I have recognized it before the decay set in? The likeness of Ferrari? or the likeness of?"—He paused trembling, as Agnes had paused trembling before him. Agnes! The name, of all women's names the dearest to him, was a terror to him now! What was he to say to her? What might be the consequence if he trusted her with the terrible truth?

No footsteps approached the door; no voices were audible outside. The travelers were still occupied in their rooms at the eastern end of the corridor.

In the brief interval that had passed the manager had sufficiently recovered himself to be able to think once more of the first and foremost interest of his life—the interest of the hotel. He approached Henry anxiously.

"If this frightful discovery becomes known," he said, "the closing of the hotel and the ruin of the company will be the inevitable results. I feel sure that I can trust your discretion, sir, so far?"

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THOS. KELLY'S

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry good over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practice to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

MONAGHAN V. MONAGHAN.

SOLICITOR PATRICK M'PHILLIPS MAKES A STATEMENT.

He Takes Exception to the Reports Published—Awaiting the Referee's Decision —What Mr. James Beaty Has to Say.

TORONTO, Dec. 30.

Mr. Patrick McPhillips, solicitor for Mr. Monaghan, stated yesterday that the reports telegraphed on Dec. 28 and 29 should not have been published on the ground that the decision is reserved and because the report only presented one side of the case. He added: "I can, on behalf of my client, when the proper time comes, show facts that will justify his actions towards his daughter. The reports were flowery and extravagant, and the evidence before the Official Referee does not justify all that those articles contain. Pending the decision of the referee, I may state that while I have the most perfect confidence in his ability, integrity and uprightness as a judge, still public opinion being so much waived against my client, I think I am called upon as his solicitor to at least make a reply at this date without going into the facts. I am convinced that the estate of the late Mrs. Monaghan, whom in her lifetime I knew most intimately, has been well administered by my client and by Mr. Beaty, and I think the passing of the accounts in the Master's office will justify my statement in this connection. Reference has been made to certificates granted by a local physician. I don't wish at this stage to implicate him or to say anything in connection with the real facts of the case, but complete silence in the matter might bring blame on my client for a good deal that does not rest on his shoulder. There are outside parties in the matter who took a more prominent part in this affair than my client did, and after the referee's decision is given in the matter I will be prepared to give the whole facts of the case, as shown by the evidence.

What Mr. James Beaty Said.

Mr. James Beaty, Q.C., in an interview yesterday, said he was an advisory executor of the late Mrs. Monaghan's will. He was sorry that Miss Monaghan had forced the matter into publicity. It was, he believed, on the strength of a letter from Archbishop Lynch and a certificate from Dr. Norman Bethune that the young lady was asylumed. He had done his best to keep the thing out of court, and even when there to withhold documents and evidence that was damaging to Miss Monaghan's contentions, but as her counsel had insisted on them they had to go. Now everything would come out.

MISS MONAGHAN AT BUFFALO.

Something About the Providence Lunatic Asylum and its Management.

BUFFALO, Dec. 29.—The Providence Lunatic Asylum, in which Miss Monaghan was incarcerated, is a private institution under the management of Roman Catholics, but is open to people of all religious denominations. It is situated near Buffalo Plains, and is under the charge of Sisters of Charity, Sister Mary Thomas and Sister Servant being at the head. The institution bears an excellent reputation in this city, and many inebriates and insane patients are sent there in preference to the public institutions. The rooms are large and commodious, and there are no cells such as Miss Monaghan thought she saw when she first entered. The windows are barred, and patients are placed under restraint as in other like asylums.

At the time Miss Monaghan was brought here Dr. Ring, now superintendent of the insane department at the Erie County Alms House, was the senior physician at Providence Asylum, but Dr. Flooda Orego, a well known physician, had charge of her. He is now senior visiting physician there. He said to reporter this afternoon that he remembered Miss Monaghan well, although not present when she was brought to the asylum. He visited her frequently when she was there. Prior to her being brought a woman representing herself to be an aunt called at the asylum and wanted attendants sent to bring Miss Monaghan here, but it was refused, and later on her father made arrangements and brought her and she was committed on the certificates of physicians whose names he could not now remember. He saw Miss Monaghan the day after she was brought and found her quiet and self-possessed, but she had evidently passed through some nervous trouble. She was willing to remain a few days to have her condition examined and he then found it was neither necessary nor beneficial to keep her in the institution. He telegraphed her father at Toronto to come for her, but received a letter saying that he didn't want to, and thought it rash to discharge her. Dr. Orego felt so fully convinced that he peremptorily telegraphed again to her father to take her home at once, and then he came. The doctor remarked to the reporter that it was through his insistence that Miss Monaghan was taken away from the asylum. He understood that prior to her being brought to Buffalo she was being treated at Dr. Jackson's Sanitarium in Dansville, N. Y., but that is not an institution for insane patients. He also understood she had been under doctor's care in New York.

Commercial Travelers' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada was held yesterday and was one of the noisiest sessions that body ever held. The election of officers for 1888 resulted as follows: J. C. Black, President; A. Allan, First Vice-President; John Burns, Second Vice-President; C. C. Van Norman, E. J. Orr, H. Morrison, T. P. Hayes, John Walker, H. S. Davison, George West, R. H. Cosby, James Haywood, Directors.

A Protest from the Board of Trade.

At a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade, held yesterday afternoon, a deputation was appointed to proceed to Ottawa and interview Hon. John Costigan, Minister of Inland Revenue, respecting the new grain standards. The council claim that any change should come through the regularly constituted Board of Examiners, the only authority by which a change in the existing standard of grain is possible.

Mr. Arthur O'Connor, the Irish M.P., left for Quebec by yesterday morning's Grand Trunk Railway train. Rev. Father Hand, Brother Tobias, Mr. R. E. Teefy and Mr. J. J. Curran were at the station to see him off.

Hon. John Beverley Robinson, Hon. John Macdonald, Hon. C. S. Wood, Dr. Larratt, Mr. Smith and W. B. McMurrich are the new administrators of Upper Canada College.

Hon. Jos. Chamberlain arrived here at 8.50 yesterday, and proceeded to Chestnut Park, the residence of Sir. David McPherson, whose guest he is.

THE ELECTION CONTESTS.

Mr. Edwards Loses His Seat and Dr. Hickey Retains His.

OTTAWA, Dec. 29.—The Russell election case was finished to-day by voiding the election on the ground of bribery by agents, each party paying his own costs. The personal charges on both sides were dropped.

Judge Osler said that he would report H. N. Bate, A. Lumsden, J. Jameson and nineteen others for corrupt practices, but in view of the fact that an appeal on the preliminary objections was pending in the Supreme Court he would not recommend prosecution.

The Dundas Petition Dismissed.

MORRISBURG, Dec. 29.—The trial of the petition against Dr. Hickey was resumed this morning. Some four or five charges were gone into, but as the petitioner could not make any of them stick the petition was dismissed.

After the conclusion of this case the trial of James Cooper, Reuben Cooper, James McIntosh and Richard McMartin, on charges of corrupt practices in the local election, proceeded. The four pleaded guilty and were fined $200 each and costs. In the case of Reuben and James Cooper the non-payment of the fines entails imprisonment for six months. In the other cases the complainant said he would be satisfied with a judgment of the High Court. Summonses were also issued against James Rose and William Thorp.

The East Elgin Case.

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 29.—The court this morning investigated charge 19, that Samuel Haggerty of Aldboro had received payment of traveling expenses. His Lordship reserved judgment. The time of the court has been taken up this afternoon investigating charge 86, a personal one, Dr. Wilson being charged with intimidating Henry Arkell, postmaster at Aylmer.

THE OCEAN MAIL SERVICE.

The Andersons Propose to Build 20-Knot Steamers of 7000 Tons.

MONTREAL, Dec. 29.—Mr. W. R. Anderson, who is here in connection with the Ocean Mail tenders, stated yesterday that the plans of the new steamships proposed by the persons whom he represented provided ample accommodation for the transportation of dressed meats, poultry, butter, cheese, etc., in refrigerated cold air machines when necessary, and thoroughly ventilated compartments—a better provision than has heretofore been provided on any Atlantic steamship. Mr. Anderson added: "From what I have been able to observe during my visit to Canada, this trade is capable of almost indefinite development."

The steamers are to be of about 7000 tons register, 525 feet long over all, the breadth being 54 feet and the depth 30 feet, with a speed of 20 knots, and they will be able to come to Montreal if the harbor improvements are carried out. The advantages offered by this route, Mr. Anderson thinks, will draw a large share of the American trade, and will attract large and increasing numbers of passengers to and from China and the East.

The Oriental Investigation.

KINGSTON, Dec. 29.—The investigation into the loss of the Oriental was continued to-day. Among the witnesses examined were Edward Doyle, carpenter, and Edward Arundell, caulker, who were employed to make repairs upon her last spring. They both testified that the vessel was sound and in good condition at that time. John Irwin, mate of the Scotia, detailed the particulars of the loss. One sail, such as the Oriental had, would not be sufficient to keep her off a lee shore. If on the morning they left Charlotte for Toronto he had been ordered to take command of the Oriental he would have done so without any hesitation.

Quebec Political Gossip.

QUEBEC, Dec. 29.—There is a rumor on the street, which is given for what it is worth, to the effect that a swap is on the tapis by which Hon. Mr. Shehyn and Mr. Francois Langelier will change positions, Mr. Shehyn going to Ottawa to sit in the Commons and Mr. Langelier assuming for the time being, during Mr. Mercier's illness, the post of Acting Premier of the Province.

Anxiety for an Ocean Steamer.

QUEENSTOWN, Dec. 29.—The British steamer Lord Gough, which left Philadelphia Dec. 15 for this port and Liverpool, has not yet arrived. Considerable anxiety is felt concerning her.

Hornsfords Acid Phosphate

THE RAILWAY TROUBLES.

THE CONVENTION OF LEADING EMPLOYES HOLD A SECRET SESSINN.

Officers of the Railroad Refuse to Recognize a Committee of the Strikers as a Knights of Labor Body—It is Believed That the Strike is About Over.

READING, Pa., Dec. 29.—The vanguard of the delegates to the convention of the Reading Railway employes, to be held in this city to-night, arrived this forenoon. Every local assembly in the Knights of Labor in the anthracite region, embracing the Schuylkill, Lehigh and Wyoming regions, will be fully represented, and the meeting will be one of the most important that has been held for a long time, as it will decide whether the Knights will pool their issues in the fight and stand together, or let the railroad men fight their own battle.

Of the company's working collieries in the Schuylkill region thirteen were at work today. Of the others twenty were idle for want of cars, four on account of the storm and two for repairs. Meanwhile all trains are running and it is believed here that the railroad strike is about over.

A Stormy Session.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—The officers of the Reading Railroad and a committee from the Executive Committee of the striking employes who belong to the Knights of Labor came together again this morning and parted after a short but stormy session, in which the company refused to recognize the callers as a committee, but agreed to recognize them as individuals. The committee refused to be so recognized and demanded a conference as a Knights of Labor body, and being refused they left in anger. Chairman Lee of the Executive Committee said it was the last chance the company would have of treating with a committee of the Knights unless apology was made for the treatment he and his fellows had received this morning and unless the company conceded recognition to the Knights as a body.

Uniformed policemen guarded every entrance to the Port Richmond coal wharves. There has been no trouble of any kind whatever to-day. The stevedores on the freight wharves, who struck yesterday afternoon, did not return to work this morning. A large force of stevedores was secured in the city and taken to the freight wharves and put to work under guard of twelve policemen. There was nothing at the Ninth and Broad streets stations to-day that would indicate the existence of a strike. All the trains moved as usual.

A Secret Meeting.

READING, Pa., Dec. 29.—Two hundred and fifty delegates, representing the Reading Railroad and Coal and Iron Company's employes throughout the territory covered by the company's tracks, met here to-night in special convention. The meeting was a secret one. The majority of the delegates seemed to think the strike on the railroad was for the most part over, and that the convention should devote itself to doing the best is could for the miners.

JUDICIAL RENTS.

Mr. Dillon, The Standard and The Times Discuss the Reductions.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The order for the reduction of judicial rents in Ireland applies only to the year commencing on the gale day immediately before Aug. 23, 1887.

John Dillon, M.P., speaking at Newcross, said that the reduction of judicial rents completely justified the policy of the Nationalists, and the plan of campaign. It was true that Lord Salisbury had said that the measure he now adopted was a Unionist measure, but that only showed that Salisbury and his colleagues were quite ready to do that which is dishonest n order to cling to office.

The Standard says it may be right in the interests of peace to make a haphazard present to the tenants, but the landlords have reason on their side in declaring that the boon ought not to be given exclusively at their expense.

The Times says some annoyance is perhaps excusable in landlords, but the majority will, on reflection, own that reductions awarded in general are more than just.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

A Bulletin Issued by the Physicians—His General Condition Satisfactory.

SAN REMO, Dec. 29.—Doctors Mackenzie, Schrader, Krause and Hovels issued a bulletin to-day in regard to the Crown Prince's condition, in which they say that the growth which last appeared on the Prince's throat on the left ventricular band has not spread further and now presents an ulcerous appearance, with indications of becoming cicatrised. In the immediate region of the growth there remains a permanent congestion of the ventricular band, with a tendency to a mucous secretion which, however, is also decreasing. The Prince's general condition for several weeks past has been perfectly satisfactory.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

It May be Expected to Become More Tranquil—Servia's Ministry Resigns.

COLOGNE, Dec. 29.—The Cologne Gazette's Berlin correspondent says: "Reliable advices from Vienna say that the European situation may be expected to become more tranquil, owing to a mutual explanation which is either intended or has already partly been given."

A Check to Russia.

BELGRADE, Dec. 29.—The Servian Ministry has aresigned. The resignation has been accepted by King Milan. The retirement of M. Ristichs is considered a check to Russia.

YESTERDAY'S STORM.

A Violent Gale in Maryland—Cold Weather in the South.

FREDERICK, Md., Dec. 29.—This city was visited early this morning by the most violent wind storm ever known by the oldest people here. A number of houses were unroofed and large trees uprooted. Several wagons and the Jefferson mail coach were uplifted and dashed to the roadside and completely demolished. People were afraid to venture on the streets. Much damage is reported throughout Frederick County.

The Coldest of the Season.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 29.—The thermometer registered 13° above zero here this morning. Reports from the southwest say the weather is very cold and the thermometer registers below zero. This is the coldest weather of the season.

Extreme Cold in the Northwest.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 29.—The thermometer stood this morning at 22° below. Throughout Minnesota the mercury generally reached a point from 15° to 20° below and in some parts of the far Northwest it fell as low as 40° below zero.

A Sea' Easter.

ROCKLAND, Me., Dec. 29.—A southwest gale raged here all night, doing great damage to shipping in this harbor, washing away wharves, demolishing windows, blowing down chimneys and doing other damage.

A Cruel Captain and Mate Arrested.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Capt. Paynter and Second Mate Fisher, of the bark Embleton, have been charged at Sunderland with the grossest cruelty toward the crew of the vessel. During the voyage of the bark from San Francisco three of the crew jumped overboard to escape cruel treatment, another succumbed to his injuries, and a fifth was landed in an almost dying condition. Paynter and Fisher were remanded.

President Carnot Receives the G.O.M.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—Lord Lytton to-day handed his credentials to President Carnot as British Ambassador, when the usual formal addresses were made. President Carnot received Mr. Gladstone to-day. Mr. Gladstone left Paris this evening. He will go directly to Florence. He has written to Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt that he will return to London for the opening of Parliament.

New Guinea's Waterways.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Advices from Brisbane state that Mr. Bevan has returned to that place from Papua. He explored the interior of the island and found there splendid river systems which form highways for a large agricultural country.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1887.

MUST DO NOTHING BENEFICIAL.

Some persons can see political corruption in almost anything. No government could so manage the affairs of the Dominion as to escape their criticism. If money is expended on improvements, no matter how necessary they may be, they detect an intention to bribe, and if no expenditures were made they would no doubt find that it was owing to a sinister plot to bribe the electors by allowing them to keep the money in their pockets.

The Trent Valley Canal is used by the Montreal Herald as a text for a sermon on corruption. It bewails the demoralization that must follow when men announce that they will only support a government that will construct what will be an important and useful waterway. Why? Oh, because the canal would benefit the country, and, that being the case, put money in the pockets of the people, and if they support the government with the understanding that the work will be done, it is bribery. The Herald does not frame the charge that way; it uses more expressive and less explanatory words. But that seems to be the basis of its trouble—the pin that causes it to weep.

Such an argument, if it prevailed, would prevent a government from ruling. Every policy adopted is intended—or at least the profession is that it is intended—to benefit the people, and according to the view these Reform papers take of the canal question, advocating or carrying out any policy that would benefit the people materially would be bribery. That may explain why the Reform Government did so little in the direction of benefitting the country.

The construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway was a question in Canadian politics for some time, and does the Herald believe that those who contended that the railway should be built were doing a wrong? If they believed that the road was necessary for the development and prosperity of the Dominion as a whole, did they not do right in urging its construction? The Trent Valley Canal is a work of similar character, one that will afford a cheaper and quicker outlet for produce, and that will be of great assistance in developing the country. Then, how is it wrong to advocate the completion of the work? What political crime is committed in expressing the belief that the completed waterway will benefit the district through which it passes, the Northwest and Montreal in particular, and the Dominion in general?

Mr. Blake in the House of Commons wanted fuller information regarding the canal. He was not satisfied. The commission recently appointed has been given a wide field to investigate regarding the work, and the information it will gather will, we hope, satisfy even Mr. Blake and the Herald.

Canada has lost $3,000,000 within the past two years through embezzlers who have escaped to the United States with the money. As American embezzlers have taken more than $21,000,000 over into the Dominion in the same period, Canada may still claim that the balance of trade is in her favor.—Philadelphia Press.

But Canada would be willing for the United States to keep her embezzlers and the money. An extention of the extradition treaty is not hindered by Canada.

The King of the Sandwich Islands is again in trouble. He vetoed bills passed by the Legislature, the legislators object, and rebellion is threatened. What Kalakua and the people need is to be placed under the protection and guidance of some great power—England for instance.

Christmas Festival.—The entertainment held in the Presbyterian Sabbath school on the evening of Dec. 28th, was in every way a success. The various parts of the cantata were well renedered, especially the leading one, namely, that of the poor orphan, little Maggie Atherton, which was taken by a little girl of about 10 years. The "Keemo Kimoo" song was very amusing. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful silver set to Mr. and Mrs. Roxburgh, accompanied by the following address, which was read by Mr. I. Davidson, principal of the High School:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Roxburgh,—We, members and adherents of the Norwood Presbyterian Church, desire at this festive season to show in some small measure our appreciation of you services as co-workers in this part of the Master's vineyard. For more than a quarter of a century you have laboured with ability and faithfulness in the choir, in the Sabbath School and in all things pertaining to the welfare of the congregation. We commend you for your good judgment, your courtesy, and for your punctuality and zeal in the discharge of the many duties which have always been assigned you. Be pleased to accept this tea set, not for its value, but as a slight token of our regard. Our earnest prayer is that you both may long be spared to labor with us for the glory of Him who shall say unto the faithful "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you."

Signed on behalf of the congregation,
A. R. Anderson. John Finlay.
J. Davidson.

Mr. Roxbourgh in reply for Mrs. R. and himself expressed his pleasure and complete surprise at being the recipient of such a beautiful gift. Words completely failed him to express the gratitude and pleasure he felt in listening to the beautiful sentiments expressed in the address, he explained that his services to all branches of the church were given more from the pleasure he took in the work than from any sense of duty. The programme closed with the benediction. Proceeds $45.

The Nominations.—At the nominations held in the Town Hall on Monday, our present Reeve, Mr. John Finlay, was elected by acclamation and the following ratepayers were put up for Councillors, namely:—P. W. Reynolds, W. H. Breathen, J. Raddon, J. Baskin and James Cumming. We understand some of them are not going to run. Any of the seven would make a fairly good councillor.

Caught by a Freight.—A farmer from Belmont foolishly undertook to cross at the grist mill crossing in front of a passing freight train on the evening of Dec. 23rd. The hind wheels of his waggon were caught and carried about 60 feet. The horses fortunately broke loose and started for home. The man was considerably shaken up, but not seriously injured.

School Trustees.—At the annual meeting of the school section held on Dec. 28th the following candidates were nominated for school trustees:—Messrs. A. R. Anderson, T. Fraser, T. Armstrong, J. Raddon and R. W. Waters.

New Year's Entertainment.—An interesting time may be expected at the Methodist Church on the eve of Jan 2nd, in addition to a fine programme of vocal and instrumental music presents will be distributed to all. Any one living within driving distance that don't take it in will miss a good thing.

Mite Meeting.—A very successful Mite Meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Campbell, in Keene.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Skaters, attention. Band at the rink every Friday night. d151—tf.

Snow Shovels.

The favorite snow shovel is the best. Get one at Breeze & Bain's. d152

At Sam. Ray's Cigar Store

You can get fine Cigars, Tobaccos, Pipes, Pouches and smokers' supplies. Always glad to see his friends. d144-25

The Rink.

There will doubtless be a large number of people at the Charlotte Rink this evening. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance to give the skaters some clear all-very music to keep time to.

TURNBULL claims to have the Cheapest Flannels and underclothing offered in Peterborough. Call and test it.

Retired.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, who was nominated for the office of Separate School trustee on Tuesday, desires to thank the nominator and seconder for the honor they did him, and also to withdraw from the contest. He retires in favor of Mr. J. J. Sheehy.

Gospel Hall Meeting.

Messrs. A. S. Rolph, of Ottawa, Richd. Irving and F. G. Lockett, of Belleville, who are on their way to attend a convention of Christians in Orillia, will stay overnight in Peterborough and conduct a meeting in the "Gospel Hall" (over China hall), to-night, 8 o'clock. All are invited.

LADIES! Remember TURNBULL'S is the right place to look for beautiful Fascinators and Clouds, in all the New Tints.

Side Tracked.

The Home Rule delegates from Peterborough to Toronto were side-tracked at Pontypool last night for a whole hour. The reason was that the celebrated statesman, Mr. Chamberlain, was passing through on a special from Ottawa to Toronto. The Home Rule delegation claim that under any other circumstances "Joe" would be side-tracked by them.

A Special Offer.

From this day Fur Capes at half price. Mantles at cost. Ladies' Felt Hats, 25 cts. Cretonnes, value 12½, for 8 cts. 10 cent Towelling, 6½ cts. Table Linen, 30 for 20 cts. Griffin & Co. will from this date; slaughter in price. Don't forget the place. H. S. Griffin & Co. 3d152-1w52.

The Giant T Takes the Lead.

Coal oil! Coal oil! Coal oil. I will sell and deliver to all parts of the Town, Ashburnham and Auburn, the best brands of American and Canadian Coal Oil ever brought to Peterborough for the following prices.

The best Water White American oil at 25c per imperial gallon.

The best brands of Canadian oil at 15c per imperial gallon. ADAM HALL. d145tf

Putting it Mild.

The Toledo Blade in its account of the visit of the delegation from Toledo to inspect the Cochrane mill in Messrs. Meldrum Davidson & Co's mill, describes how the party was received, the places visited, the Corhrane mill and proceeds to say of Messrs. Meldrum, Davidson & Co: "They have less than $5,000 invested in the mill and yet their net profits in the last six months have been the enormous sum of $12,000." Either the Blade man must be a humorist or we should all strike out as millers on the Cochrane plan. In a note the Blade says: "The Lord Mayor and Common Council of Peterborough expressed great pleasure in welcoming the Toledo gentlemen to the city."

The Grand Choral Festival.

The preparations already made indicate that the grand choral festival and Sabbath school anniversary of the George Street Methodist church will be a success. Not a doubt of it, and because the children are concerned. The 400 voices in training for some time will render a splendid programme of choruses. There will be solos and quarettes by local amateurs and the big organ will lend its service to add to the effect. Mr. J. E. Jacques and Mr. F. Millar are the conducts or of the musical part of the festival, which indicates that things are in good hands. Reserve yourself and lay out to attend the festival.

LONG or short Mantles, Dolmans and Ulsters at closing out prices, at TURNBULL'S.

At the Rink.

The match which was to have taken place between rinks chosen by the President and Vice-President of the curling club on Thursday night, was pretty much of a fizzle. Only two rinks out of the chosen ten turned up at the appointed time to take part in the contest, and only one fifth of the match was played, resulting in favor of the President's side. The rinks are as follows:—

| President's Side. | Vice-President's Side |
|---|---|
| T. Conal | A. Stevenson |
| J. Stanger | G. W. Hatton |
| J. Connal | H. A. Allen |

R. S. Davidson, skip 19. Judge Weller, skip 11. Points in favor of President's side, 8.

A CHOICE stock of Overcoats, and Clothing of all kinds for Boys at Remarkably Low Prices at TURNBULL'S.

Queen's Evidence.

The Baird Dramatic Company appeared to good advantage in "Queen's Evidence" at the Opera House on Thursday night. Miss Robinson took the part of Mrs. Medland, and in the scene where she is blind, appealed strongly to the feelings of the audience by the pathos she infused in the part. Mr. Baird, as a low comedian, scored another success in his role, Solomon Isaacs, the Jew. He took the character to perfection. Mr. Houghton's villian could scarcely be marked up among the best. The villian's hard hearted cruelty was too much toned down by the performer. Others in the support acquitted themselves satisfactorily. The stage setting was fairly good and the performance, taken as a whole, pleased the people. To-night the farce-comedy "The Lightning Rod Man" will be played, and the performance will be concluded by a farce.

"OLD king Cole was a merry old soul," but we believe that kidd sells boots with BETTER soles on than ever old King Cole wore, in fact we KNOW it.

Order of Procedure.

The Evangelical Alliance of Canada each year makes arrangements for holding a series of prayer services lasting a week This year's series will commence on Monday evening next when the Rev. Alex. Bell, of the St. Andrew's Church, will address a meeting in the George Street Methodist Church. On Tuesday evening the Rev. J. C. Wilson, of the Mark Street Methodist Church, will address a meeting in St. Andrew's Church; on Wednesday the Rev. E. F. Torrance, of St. Paul's, will deliver an address in the Charlotte Street Church; on Thursday the Rev. P. Clifton Parker, of the Baptist Church, will speak in St. Paul's; on Friday, the Rev. I. Tovell, of the Charlotte Street Church, in the Murray Street Baptist Church; and on the same evening, the Rev. E. F. Torrance in the Mark Street Church. The meetings will commence each evening at eight o'clock.

Little Folks Merry.

The Christmas tree entertainment given at the St. Andrew's Church School room on Thursday evening, was largely attended by beaming faced children. The pastor, the Rev. A. Bell, presided, and after the meeting was opened with devotions, a nice little cantata, arranged by Mr. D. D. Gallelly, "Little Red Riding Hood," was presented, greatly to the delight of the little people. Four boys recited a dialogue, and Master J. Van Every gave a recitation also. Six little girls then took part in a dialogue, and Master R. McClelland recited a piece. All the little folks were now radiant with expectancy. The presents were handed down from the tree and the Sunday School children were made happy. Special prize of handsome books and Bibles were given to twenty-one pupils at the Sunday School for regular attendance and proficiency. Not only the little folks, but the pastor was remembered. The young people of the Church presented him with a very seasonable gift—a beautiful pair of zeal gauntlets.

Personal.

Dr. Boucher has completely recovered from a long and painful attack of rheumatism. He is attending to his professional duties as usual.

Mr. R. H. Fortye, of Fortye & Phelan, has recovered from his recent illness and is now in charge of his department at the firm's place of business.

Mr. Albert Thompson is still suffering from muscular rheumatism. He is recovering slowly.

The Acta Victoriana (Cobourg University) for December says:—"The Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., has been appointed to the chair of New Testament Literature and Exegesis. Mr. Wallace is well known as a thorough scholar and an able lecturer, and will make his department one of special interest and value. He is a graduate in Arts of Toronto University and a gold medalist. He received his degree of B. D. from Drew Theological Seminary, where he took a course in Theology. He also continued his studies for some time in Germany. We congratulate Prof. Wallace on his appointment, and trust that he will find his new field of toil full of pleasant and congenial associations."

CORRESPONDENCE.

While correspondents will be allowed space to discuss questions of public interest, the Review does not hold itself responsible for the opinions expressed.

The Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to correct a false impression that seems to be abroad in reference to the temperance candidates for councillors. It has been urged by some who are opposed to the Scott Act that the temperance party wish to elect a council that will grant half the fines collected for violations of the Scott Act to the Scott Act Association, they also urge that too much money is being exacted from the hotel keepers, and that the hotel keepers are being persecuted.

In reply it does not seem to be generally known that as the law stood when the act came in force in May, 1886, one half the fines went to the private prosecutor. This, however, was very soon changed, the Scott Act Association receiving less than $200 from this source. The Minister of Justice, Mr. Thompson, promised that an order-in-council would be passed granting part of the fines to the private prosecutor, and on the strength of this promise the Association went on enforcing the act, spending money for inspector's and lawyer's fees and when cases were dismissed all the costs came out of the Association, but when fines were imposen the costs (all except the lawyers fees) were paid by the defendent, the fines went into the Town Treasury to be used, the law says, for "the purposes of the act." In this way the town recived some thousands of dollars in 1886 and over $8,000 this year. A large proportion of the convictions have been obtained on information supplied by the Association. Under the circumstances, as the town was richer by some thousands because of the efforts of the Association; it was thought unfair that a few should be called on to pay these necessary expenses when so much money was in the hands of the Town Treasurer to be used, according to the order-in-council, "for the purposes of the act." The amount asked by the Association from this fund is less than one twentieth of the fines collected, and yet when they undertook to enforce the act the law gave them half. This model council of temperance men, far so they all describe themselves, has taken these twelve or fourteen thousand entrusted to them for "the purposes of the act" and have refused to expend one dollar of it for the purpose specified. The money is clearly not the property of the town to be used for municipal purposes. All the temperance party want is, first, that a reasonable effort be made to enforce the act, that the officers of the town be instructed to enforce the Scott Act as well as all other laws and by-laws, that the salary of the inspector, which is now $400, out of which he has to keep a horse and buggy, &c., be supplimented by a grant from this fund of $200 a year. Let us have men at our council board who have the courage of their convictions, not men who declare they are in favour or prohibition, and yet are now canvassing and seeking the vote of the liquor interest to keep them in office and urging as a reason why they should be continued in office the fact that they had refused to grant any money for the enforcement of the Scott Act, or in other words, that they had done all they could to prevent a prohibitory measure from prohibiting. And, in conclusion, just one word about the persecuting, &c. If the hotel keepers were not law breakers they could not be persecuted, and not one dollar could be exacted from them.

Yours, &c.,
VERITAS.

REVIEWS.

A CHRISTMAS CHAT.—In a neatly printed pamphlet bearing this title Mr. T. Arnold Haultain, M.A., discourses under the cover of a fictitious conversation between a curate and one who speaks in the pamphlet in the first person, on "Love and Religion." Resemblences between love and religion—between affection for a beautiful creature and adoration of the Creator—are pointed out. All who read the pamphlet will not agree with the opinions expressed—in fact, the author intimates that he does not consider himself altogether bound by them—but the ability, the power of literary creation and the learning displayed cannot fail to attract. Space will not permit an extended review of the points in the pamphlet. They are many, strongly expressed, clothed in elegant language, and adorned with learned and striking illustrations. The pamphlet is interesting reading and will add to Mr. Haultain's reputation as a man of letters.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The number of Harper's for the first month of 1888 fully sustains its reputation from all literary and artistic points of view. It is full of interesting and seasonable matter. "The Adoration of the Magi," by the Rev. Dr Van Dyke, with fine engravings, records various traditions as well as the truth, about this incident of sacred history. Mr. J. S. Farrer gives an interesting sketch of "the Italian Chamber of Deputies," illustrated by portraits. The fiction includes a pretty story of life south of the Potmac, "Virginia or Virginia," by Amelie Rives, and Part I of "In Far Lochaber," a novel in Mr Wm. Black's best style. "Modern French Sculpture," by Mr. Theodore Child, is an exposition of the work of French sculptors of to-day, beautifully illustrated. Savannah, Ga., is described by Mr. I. W. Avery, assisted by engravings. Mr. Henry Watterson discusses the United States tariff from a free trade point of view. Archdeacon Farrar contributes a description of monuments in Westminster Abbey in which Americans have an especial interest. The engravings give an accurate idea of the monuments. The departments, as usual, are replete with interesting writing. The humorous pictures are excellent.

Brevities.

—There was another blank at the Police Court this morning.

—The spirits of the thermometer are depressed. This morning's register was 12 degrees below zero.

—County Magistrate Enmison is holding court in Ashburnham to-day. Several Scott Act cases are up for hearing.

—Mr. R. H. Baird will appear at the Opera House to-night as Kirby G. Hopper, the Lightning Rod man, and Mamie Harvey as Little Ferrett.

—The municipal elections interfered so much with curling last night that only two rinks, instead of ten, appeared on the native heather.

—An evening party was given at Blair Athol, the residence of Councillor Menzies, on Thursday night. Miss Menzies, assisted by Miss Mina Menzies, received the guests.

—A large number of town Oddfellows went to Norwood by the Canadian Pacific railway at noon, to take part in the ceremonies attendant on the installation of the new lodge of Oddfellows at Norwood.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

CHAT FROM THE CAPITAL.

AN EFFORT TO BE MADE TO REPEAL THE SCOTT ACT.

It Is Said that the Railway Committee of the Privy Council Has Decided in Favor of the C.P.R. in Its Dispute Over the East End Entrance to Toronto.

OTTAWA, Dec. 29.—There was a meeting of Council to-day at which it is understood little was done beyond further consideration of the fisheries question. Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Mr. Thompson will probably leave for Washington on Jan. 5. Hon. Mr. Foster will not return with them but may go on later.

It is understood that the Railway Committee of the Privy Council has decided in favor of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the dispute with the Grand Trunk Railway regarding the entrance of the Canadian Pacific Railway into Toronto by the East End, along the Don River improvements, as well as regarding the application of the Canadian Pacific Railway to cross the Grand Trunk yards. The details of the award have not yet been made public, but the Grand Trunk Railway will likely receive some compensation.

Mr. J. J. McLaren of Toronto, who was in the city to-day and who is solicitor for the Dominion Alliance, stated in conversation that he expected a strong effort would be made at the next session of Parliament either to repeal the Canada Temperance Act, or to so amend it as to make it useless. He thought that at the annual meeting of the Dominion Alliance it would be decided to have a test vote taken in the House on the question of Prohibition and was hopeful of the result.

Mr. S. Jones of St. John, N.B., has been commissioned by the Dominion Government to visit South America and the West Indies, to see what can be done in the direction of working up closer trade relations with Canada.

Hon. J. H. Pope is better and was able to attend Council to-day.

The announcement of the prospective appointment of Hon. Senator Schultz to the Lieutenant-Governorship of Manitoba is well received here. The Senator, it is understood, will take his seat in the Senate for about a month after Parliament meets and will then leave for Harrison Lake, B.C., where he owns a cotton mill, returning to Manitoba in time to be sworn in about May 1.

HOSPITALITY FOR CHAMBERLAIN.

The Hamilton Board of Trade Tender an Invitation to the Commissioner.

HAMILTON, Dec. 29.—The most brilliant society affair of the season was the third annual conversazione of the Hamilton Commercial Travelers' Association, held last night in the Grand Opera House. All the elite of the city were present. The attendance was much larger than usual.

At a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade, held yesterday, it was decided to invite Hon. Joseph Chamberlain to partake of the hospitality of the Board of Trade while passing through on his way back from Ottawa to Washington.

On Monday night Edward Carpenter told a sensational story about an encounter he had with footpads on the Waterdown-road. The detectives came to the conclusion that Carpenter had not been attacked at all, and that he made up the yarn as an excuse for the loss of the money, part of which did not belong to him. When Carpenter was confronted by the detectives this morning he acknowledged the corn, and said he was not robbed, but that he had lost the money.

John Moses, the young man who claimed to have been only defending himself when he fired off his gun down near the station, came up for a second hearing this morning. He was fined $30 or thirty days and chose the alternative. Moses was from the United States but had been spending his holidays in Toronto.

Detective Wilson, who assisted in working up the charges against the Montreal detectives, was at the Royal Hotel last night. He went to New York this morning.

THE QUEBEC ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Present ad Address to Lieut.-Gov. Angers —The Immigration Sheds.

QUEBEC, Dec. 29.—The members of the Associated Press of the Province of Quebec called upon and presented an address to Lieutenant-Governor Angers to-day. They were hospitably received. His Honor replied to the address at some length.

The Government immigration sheds on Louise-embankment were formally handed over to Sir Hector Langevin to-day. Sir A. P. Caron and other notables were present.

James Loveless, a railroad section boss, was riding on a railroad bicycle on the Pemberton and Seashore railroad, when he was overtaken by an extra train, consisting of an engine and Superintendent Bannard's special car, and his machine run down. He was killed outright.

Pain-Killer will cure Cramps or Pains in any part of the system.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button. It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or otherwise. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

"You can certainly trust me," Henry answered. "But surely discretion has its limits," he added, "after such a discovery as we have made!"

The manager understood that the duty which they owed to the community as honest and law abiding men, was the duty to which Henry now referred. "I will at once find the means," he said, "of conveying the remains privately out of the house, and I will myself place them in the care of the police authorities. Will you leave the room with me? or do you not object to keep watch here, and help me when I return?"

While he was speaking, the voices of the travelers made themselves heard again at the end of the corridor. Henry instantly consented to wait in the room. He shrunk from facing the inevitable meeting with Agnes if he showed himself in the corridor at that moment.

The manager hastened his departure, in the hope of escaping notice. He was discovered by his guests before he could reach the head of the stairs. Henry heard the voices plainly as he turned the key. While the terrible drama of discovery was in progress on one side of the door, trivial questions about the amusements of Venice and facetious discussions on the relative merits of French and Italian cookery were proceeding on the other. Little by little the sound of the talking grew fainter. The visitors having arranged their plans of amusement for the day, were on their way out of the hotel. In a minute or two there was silence once more.

Henry turned to the window, thinking to relieve his mind by looking at the bright view over the canal. He soon grew wearied of the familiar scene. The morbid fascination which seems to be exercised by all horrible sights, drew him back again to the ghastly object on the floor.

Dream or reality, how had Agnes survived the sight of it? As the question passed through his mind, he noticed for the first time something lying on the floor near the head. Looking closer, he perceived a thin little plate of gold, with three false teeth attached to it, which had apparently dropped out (loosened by the shock) when the manager let the head fall on the floor.

The importance of this discovery, and the necessity of not too readily communicating it to others, instantly struck Henry. Here surely was a chance—if any chance remained—of identifying the shocking relic of humanity which lay before him, the dumb witness of a crime! Acting on this idea, he took possession of the teeth, purposing to use them as a last means of inquiry when other attempts at investigation had been tried and had failed.

He went back again to the window; the solitude of the room began to weigh on his spirits. As he looked out again at the view, there was a soft knock at the door. He hastened to open it—and checked himself in the act. A doubt occurred to him. Was it the manager who had knocked? He called out, "Who is there?"

The voice of Agnes answered him. "Have you anything to tell me, Henry?"

He was hardly able to reply. "Not just now," he said, confusedly. "Forgive me if I don't open the door. I will speak to you a little later."

The sweet voice made itself heard again, pleading with him piteously. "Don't leave me alone, Henry! I can't go back to the happy people down stairs."

How could he resist that appeal! He heard her sigh—he heard the rustling of her dress as she moved away in despair. The very thing that he had shrunk from doing but a few minutes since was the thing that he did now! He joined Agnes in the corridor. She turned as she heard him, and pointed trembling in the direction of the closed room. "Is it so terrible as that?" she asked, faintly.

He put his arm round her to support her. A thought came to him as he looked at her, waiting in doubt and fear for his reply. "You shall decide the question for yourself," he said, "if you will first put on your hat and cloak, and come out with me."

She was naturally surprised. "Can you tell me your object in going out?" she asked.

He owned what his object was unreservedly. "I want, before all things," he said, "to satisfy your mind and mine on the subject of Montbarry's death. I am going to take you to the doctor who attended him in his illness and to the consul who followed him to the grave."

Her eyes rested on Henry gratefully. "Oh, how well you understand me!" she said. The manager joined them at the same moment, on his way up the stairs. Henry gave him the key of the room, and then called to the servants in the hall to have a gondola ready at the steps.

"Are you leaving the hotel?" the manager asked.

"In search of evidence," Henry whispered, pointing to the key. "If the authorities want me, I shall be back in an hour."

CHAPTER XXV.

The day had advanced to evening. Lord Montbarry and the bridal party had gone to the opera. Agnes alone, pleading the excuse of fatigue, remained at the hotel. Having kept up appearances by accompanying his friends to the theatre, Henry Westwick slipped away after the first act and joined Agnes in the drawing room.

"Have you thought of what I said to you earlier in the day?" he asked, taking a chair at her side. "Do you agree with me that one dreadful doubt which oppresses us both is at least set at rest?"

Agnes shook her head sadly. "I wish I could agree with you, Henry—I wish I could honestly say that my mind is at ease."

The answer would have discouraged most men. Henry's patience (where Agnes was concerned) was equal to any demands on it.

"If you will only look back at the events of the day," he said, "you must surely admit that we have not been completely baffled. Remember how Dr. Bruno disposed of our doubts: 'After thirty years of medical practice, do you think I am likely to mistake the symptoms of death by bronchitis? If ever there was an unanswerable question, there it is. Was the consul's testimony doubtful in any part of it? He called at the palace to offer his services, after hearing of Lord Montbarry's death; he arrived at the time when the coffin was in the house; he himself saw the corpse placed in it, and the lid screwed down. The evidence of the priest was equally beyond dispute. He remained in the room with the coffin, reciting the prayers for the dead, until the funeral left the palace. Bear all these statements in mind, Agnes; and how can you deny that the question of Montbarry's death and burial is a question set at rest? We have really but one doubt left; we have still to ask ourselves whether the remains which I discovered are the remains of the lost courier or not. There is the case as I understand it. Have I stated it fairly?"

Agnes could not deny that he had stated it fairly.

"Then what prevents you from experiencing the same sense of relief that I feel?" Henry asked.

Palmo-Sulphur Soap.

Is Marvelously Efficient in clearing the Skin of Impurities, and keeping it in a perfect state of health. It beautifies the complexion, while as a Healing agent for Sores or Wounds it passes all praise. There is no Form of Eruptive Disease for which this Renowned Soap has not proved efficacious. In the Bath it is as beneficial as the waters of the Renowned Sulphur Springs. Linens and Woolens washed with it are rendered superlatively white, and are disinfected when germs of disease linger in the material. The value of Sulphur as a Cleanser and Purifying agent is everywhere recognized. Ask for Palmo-Sulphur, and refuse all others, and you must be deceived.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
J. STEVENSON.

of Ward No. 2.

At the urgent request of a large number of the citizens of the town and of a very large number of the Electors of No. 2 Ward, I have consented to be a candidate for the representation of this Ward in the Town Council. Being identified with no party and having no personal interests to serve—no axes to grind—my sole aim, if elected, shall be to promote the best interests of the town, and on these grounds I claim, and respectfully request, your support both in canvass and at the polls.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Yours very respectfully,
ADAM HALL.

Peterborough, Dec. 24, 1887. d1

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
SOUTH WARD,
of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,
Yours respectfully,
H. C. WINCH.

A BRILLIANT BANQUET

WAS THE FIRST ANNUAL DINNER OF THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Makes a Great Speech—What He Said About Canada and Its Future—A Notable Gathering of Business Men and Statesmen.

TORONTO, Dec. 31.

The first annual banquet of the Toronto Board of Trade at the Rossin House last night was certainly the most brilliant affair of its kind ever held in this city. It was a success from every point of observation, and will long be remembered by those who attened as worthy of a place in the annals of the commercial history of the Queen City of the West.

It was an evening of trade eloquence, participated in by a a great English statesman, provincial statesmen, politicians and by the foremost men in our commercial and trade calendars.

The invited guests present, besides Mr. Chamberlain and staff, were Mayor Howland, Sir David Macpherson, Hon. O. Mowat, Hon. G. W. Ross, Hon. A. M. Ross, Lieut.-Col. Otter, Lieut.-Col. Grassett, Lieut.-Col. Alias, Lieut.-Col. G. T. Denison, W. H. VanHorne, W. R. Anderson of the Anderson Line of Steamships, and W. H. Gillard, President of the Hamilton Board of Trade.

Letters and telegrams from Lord Lansdowne and twenty-two other invited guests, who were unable to attend, were read by the secretary.

About 200 members of the Board of Trade were present, and for over an hour they energetically discussed the excellent menu prepared by Mr. Irish. Sweet strains floated into the room from an invisible quarter, the musicians being presided over by Prof. Bailey of the Citizen's Band.

On a scroll which stretched across the entire width of the room, at the rear of the invited guests' table, was the grand inscription, the Marquis of Salisbury being its anchor:

Two great and kindred nations, whose common origin, language and institutions constitute many bonds of unity and concord.

Mr. Chamberlain Speaks.

COMMERCIAL INTERESTS OF THE EMPIRE.
Westward the course of Empire takes its way.
The four first acts already past.
A fifth shall close the drama with the day.
Time's noblest offering is the last.—Berkeley.

This was the toast of the evening and was proposed by the chairman in a few remarks on the grandeur and importance of the commerce of the British Empire. He then called upon the guest of the evening to respond. Mr. Chamberlain rose and began to speak with great deliberateness, weighing his words with nicety and apparently meaning everything he said. He spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: I thank you most sincerely for the kindness with which you have received me, and for the assurance which this kindness gives of your sympathy and support. I am very glad to be here among you, and to have the honor of meeting so many of the prominent representatives of that activity and enterprise which has done so much for the prosperity of the Dominion, and which has made of the Queen City of Canada a great centre of commercial life and enterprise. [Hear, hear.] Mr. President, you said very truly that the subject to which you had called me to respond is a far-reaching one. It is the commercial interests of the Empire, not of a part alone. [Hear, hear.] I am glad that the Board of Trade of Toronto think me worthy of responding to so large an interest. It proves to me that you, at all events, have not been prejudiced by anything that you may have heard to my disadvantage. I read this morning in one of your influential journals an article that was addressed to myself personally and in which it was stated that I had declared that the interests of Canada must be subordinated to those of Manchester, and in other articles in the same paper I have seen it alleged that I came over here to represent British exporters. That is a most unfortunate misapprehension on their part. [Applause]. I am here as the representative of Great Britain, [hear, hear] acting on behalf of her colony, Canada, whose interests she is bound to honor, to maintain and defend. [Loud applause.]

If I had used any language like that which has been imputed to me I should have been unworthy of the position I hold, and gentlemen, I can assure you that, except so far as the interests of Birmingham and of Manchester are identical with yours, you may trust me to lay them aside on the present occasion. I regret these mistakes on the part of an influential organ of public opinion, not so much on any personal grounds as because they tend to discredit and to embarrass the negotiators who are engaged in your business—[hear, hear]—and of course to that extent they damage your cause. But I have referred to this matter for another reason, because I want to point out to you that we hear a little too much about antagonism of interests. [Hear, hear.] Our interests, yours and those of the Mother Country, and I will go further and say those of the United States, all lie in the same direction. [Hear, hear.] What the plenipotentiaries have to do is to show that there is no divergence but rather an identity of interests, and if it does not exist we have to create it. We have to deal with these points in such a spirit as shall show that we desire to reach a friendly agreement which will be mutually beneficial and satisfactory. [Hear, hear.]

I am speaking to-night under considerable difficulty. I confess that at first I hesitated to accept your hospitable invitation because I was afraid it would not be possible for me to make an adequate response to your kindness, since, as you are well aware, the mission that I have undertaken imposes restrictions upon me that I am compelled to observe. [Hear, hear.] I am not free to discuss as I should like some of those questions which have probably the greatest interest for you, but I was assured you would make every necessary allowance for me, that you would not expect from me any premature disclosure of confidential negotiations, or any full and complete discussion of the matters in controversy. And although I am afraid I cannot promise you a communication of any state secrets, yet I think there are some general considerations which affect my mission, and which I may, with your permission, lay before you.

In the first place, as to the spirit in which a mission of this kind ought to be undertaken. As I passed from England to the United States, and again when I crossed the boundary into the Dominion, there was one idea impressing itself upon my mind at every step, an idea which is indelibly written on the face of this vast country, and that idea is the greatness and the importance of the destiny which is reserved for the Anglo-Saxon race. [Hear, hear, and loud applause]. That proud, persistent, self-asserting and resolute stock, which no change of clime or condition can alter and which is bound to be the predominent force in the future civilization of the world. [Applause].

It is said that patriotism begins at home. I am an Englishman—[hear, hear]—I am proud of the Old Country from which I come, I am not unmindful of the glorious traditions which attach to it and to those institutions molded by slow centuries of noble endeavor, but I should think that patriotism dwarfed and stunted indeed if it did not embrace Greater Britain beyond the sea—[applause]—that strong and vigorous nation everywhere carring throughout the globe the knowledge of the English tongue and the English love of liberty and law. [Hear, hear.] Gentlemen, with this feeling I refuse to speak or to think of the United States of America as a foreign nation. [Hear, hear.] They are our flesh and blood. Still less am I trying to make any distinction between the interests of Englishmen at home and Englishmen in Canada or Australia. Gentlemen, what is the fact with regard to all these peoples, the older and the younger nation? Their past is theirs, their future is ours. You cannot if you would break the invisible bonds that bind us together. [Applause.] Your forefathers worshipped at our shrine, they sleep in our churchyards, they helped to make our institutions, our literature and our laws. These things are your heritage as much as they are ours. If you stood up to deny us your speech, your countenance and manner of life and your institutions would all continue to betray you. [Applause.]

Gentlemen, I urge upon you our common origin, our relationship, because while these things confer privileges they also entail obligations. We are all branches of one common stock. It behooves us to do all in our power to promote the good feeling, the affection which ought to characterize the intercourse between us. When differences arise, petty conflicts of interest and of rights, if we approach them in the proper spirit and with mutual respect and consideration, I do not believe that any controversy can or will arise amongst any portions of the English speaking race that will not be capable of satisfactory and of honorable adjustment—[hear, and applause]—and it is upon the existence of that spirit, that I base my hope and my belief we shall find an arrangement of this difficulty, of this controversy which will be satisfactory to every man who desires sincerely to promote the amity of English speaking people. [Hear, hear and loud applause.]

Gentlemen, I do not think it necessary that I should urge upon you your special interest in good neighborhood with that great Republic which for thousands of miles is separated from you only by an imaginary line. The great interests with which we are entrusted, important as they are, are really insignificant beside the importance of maintaining these good relations. [Cheers.] And to secure these good relations, to maintain and promote them all that is necessary is we should approach the difficulty in the spirit that I have indicated, we should deal with it as among friends who are anxious to come to a satisfactory arrangement and not as between adversaries stickling for petty points and for extremist rights and counting every concession as though it were a loss and a sacrifice to the party who made it. [Hear, hear.]

Another general observation I will venture to make, and it is one to which I anticipate a general assent. Anything which can increase and develop commercial relations between two countries is not only a good thing in itself but it tends to carry out the good feeling which I suggest. [Applause.] I think that the prospect of improved relations with the United States never looked more hopeful. [Hear, hear.] My hope is altogether independent of any formal bargain or negotiation. No man who considers intelligently what is passing in the United States at this moment can doubt that circumstances, at no distant date, will force the Government of that country to modify its tariff in a liberal direction. Whatever party may be in power, in my opinion, it is certain within a very few years that its tariff will be diminished—[hear, hear]—or altered so that it will cease to be what it is at present, a wall of commercial exclusion between the United States and the rest of the nations of the world. And, gentlemen, if this change comes about, as I predict, although I know how dangerous it is to attempt to prophesy, what influence will it have upon your policy on this side of the boundary?

It is quite true that you are not now, and I am afraid you are not likely at any early date to be embarrassed by a surplus of $120,000,000. [Laughter.] It is only the United States which is likely suffer from this plethoric condition, but there are other considerations which may tend perhaps in a similar direction. What is the pressing and most urgent need with Canada at this moment? It is the early development of the illimitable resources of your country—[applause]—which have been opened by your magnificent railway enterprise. [Cheers]. You want to get upon the ground at the earliest possible time an active, industrious population who will work your mines and your fields. [Hear, hear]. A tariff which is unnecessarily high—understand I do not presume to offer any opinion—I merely make a general observation. I do not say whether it is worth anything or not, and do not say whether your tariff is or is not unnecessarily harsh: that depends upon how you feel. [Applause and laughter]. But I say that a tariff which is unnecessarily high must have a tendency to shackle precisely the industry, the agricultural industry, which you wish to foster and to divert from it labor which will go into other industries stimulated by its operation. [Cheers.]

I am ready to sympathize with the inhabitants of a new country who repudiate any idea that their country shall be one in which existence will be monotonously connect to a single trade or industry. [Hear, hear.] I understand the desire. I can go further and say the need for the various pursuits and occupations, but I say that in the case of Canada any anxiety on this score is surely a little premature. The first object is to get the population on the land. [Hear, hear.] When you have multiplied these industrious producers you will find that you have created a vast population of consumers, and powerful industries suited to your local necessities will spring up and prosper whether there be a tariff or not. [Cheers.] You will see from what I have ventured to say that I am in favor of the widest possible Commercial Union and intercourse, not only with the United States, but with all the world. [Cheers.] That is the true unrestricted reciprocity. [Hear, hear.] That is a very restricted reciprocity indeed which would make you dependent for your financial freedom upon the Government of another State, and perhaps for something which is still more important—I mean your political independence. [Loud cheers.]

Some may adopt the well-known saying of Mark Twain, who appeared to think that as upon this continent the lion must lie down with the lamb, it would be better if the lamb consented at once to lie inside the lion. [Laughter]. I confess I am not entertaining that opinion. [Cheers.] And I do not think it worth while, even if it were proper to discuss to-night the various proposals more or less disguised, more or less insidious, for your painless extinction and possible absorption. [Laughter and cheers.] I have not discovered in the course of my stay in the United States any general desire on the part of the American people, who have a good stock of territory of their own, to increase it or to increase their responsibility at the same time; and any such arrangement as I have been considering, if it comes about at all, must come about after full discussion and with good will on both sides. [Hear, hear.] Gentlemen, when you become tired of the mild sovereignty of the Queen, when you cease to be proud of the institutions yourselves have framed with due regard to your local needs and requirements, and when the slender tie which still binds you to the Mother Country, and which like electric cable, although it exercises no force or pressure, still maintains the unity of sympathy and of interest, when that becomes an intolerable strain with you, then it will be time for us to consider the necessary measures of relief. [Applause and loud cheers.] But in the meantime I cannot but think that in working out the great problem of Federal Government, which seems to have been left in charge of the English people, that we shall quicker reach the perfection of our free institutions by diversity of method, and that this will prove to be more fertile and more instructive than the immediate and general adoption of a single and stereotyped experiment; and you may rest assured that if you desire to remain an integral part of the vast empire of the Queen that your interests will be maintained, your rights will be respected through all the influence that that empire can wield. [Loud and prolonged cheers].

Your fellow subjects throughout the world will rejoice in your prosperity, will take pride in your ceaseless activity, will look forward with confidence to the speedy development of your illimitable resources. It is only a short time in the history of the nation since the federatin, less than a human generation has passed away, and yet a new Canada has been revealed to us: not the ice bound deserts which imperfect information formerly pictured—[hear, hear]—but a vast stretch of fertile territory which is sure to be the home at no distant date of a teeming population of God-fearing, law-abiding and industrious men and women. [Cheers.] And if they are determined, as I hope they will be, to maintain, not only to maintain but to draw closer the bonds which unite them to Great Britain. I am convinced that their loyalty and affection will never lack a warm response. [Cheers.] And, gentlemen, they will be free citizens, free men in the Dominion, the like of which the world has never seen, whether in regard to its extent, its resources, its population or its beneficial influence on the people that owe it allegiance.

One of our poets, Mr. Matthew Arnold, has written of the overwhelming burden of this vast empire; he has spoken of Great Britain as weary, dying, staggering under the too vast importance of its fate. Yes, gentlemen, the obligations are vast, but we would not lessen them by a cowardly surrender—[applause]—or by a mean betrayal of the interests that are entrusted to our care. [Loud cheers.]

Relief must be found, if relief is to be sought, in widening the foundation of the great edifice, and not casting away an outpost or cutting away a bulwark. The tendency of true democracy is not towards anarchy and the disintegration of the Empire, but rather towards the linking together kindred races with similar objects. [Applause.] Gentlemen, it may yet be that the federation of Canada may be the lamp to light our paths to the federation of the British Empire. [Cheers.] That may only be the imagination of an enthusiast, but I say it is a grand idea. [Hear, hear.] It is one to stimulate to patriotism and statesmanship every man who loves his country. [Cheers.] Whether it be destined or not to practical realization, at least, we all cherish the sentiment it inspires, and let us do all in our power to promote the larger knowledge, the closer relations, the kindly feeling and the good will which ought always to exist between the sons of England throughout the world and the old folks at home. [Loud and prolonged cheers.]

Speeches were made by Sir David Macpherson, Hon. O. Mowat, Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Mr. W. R. Anderson, Mr. Van Horne, of the C. P. R., and a few others.

At 12.15 the feast was over, and three rousing cheers were given President Ince and the Queen.

BISMARCK FAVORS PEACE

GERMANY NEITHER EXPECTS NOR DESIRES WAR.

Constantinople Journals Assert That Lord Salisbury Has Assured Rustem Pacha That England Will Not Allow the Equilibrium of the Mediterranean to be Disturbed.

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—The National Zeitung, in an article on the political situation, says: "Germany neither expects nor desires war. Prince Bismarck has thrown into the scale the decisive word in favor of peace. It is hardly probable that Russia will be in a position to force a war upon Germany and her allies. The chances are therefore that peace will prevail, although this peace cannot be taken as synonymous with the restoration of European tranquility, a fact for which Russia must answer to the world."

An Assurance from Lord Salisbury.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 30.—The papers here assert that Lord Salisbury has assured Rustem Pacha, Turkish Ambassador at London, that England will not allow the equilibrium in the Mediterranean to be disturbed to the prejudice of Turkey.

Rifles to be Manufactured.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—Gen. Logocrot, Minister of War, has ordered the speedy execution of Gen. Boulanger's order for the manufacture of Lebel rifles, which was rescinded by Gen. Ferron.

Munitions of War.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 30.—It is reported that 50,000 troops are massed at Benderi, in Bessarabia, and that guns and munitions of war are constantly arriving there.

Prince Alexander's Mission.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—It is stated that Prince Alexander of Oldenburg, who has just arrived in Paris from St. Petersburg, is charged with a mission to settle the details for a common Russo-French action in the event of war.

THE VANDERBILT ROADS.

Meetings of the Directors Yesterday—Increased Earnings and Supplies.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The meetings of the directors of the three Vanderbilt roads which were held to-day were awaited with greater interest than any of the directors' meetings for the past two years. It was expected by many that all the roads on the Vanderbilt system would make an increase in the amounts paid to stockholders out of the quarter's earnings, but the directors though it best to retain as much cash as possible in the treasury and no increase was made. The reports for the year ending Dec. 31 were:

Lake Shore—Gross earnings $18,675,464 against $15,859,455 the preceding year; net earnings $7,684,197 against $6,127,833; surplus earnings $4,024,197; surplus, after the payment of dividends and various charges, $1,146,067.

Michigan Central—Gross earnings $14,140,000 against $12,260,000; net earnings $4,288,000 against $3,891,000; surplus $1,752,000 against $1,314,000; proportion due Canada Southern $540,000 against $407,000: surplus, after payment of dividend, etc., $367,472.

The Canada Southern received $540,000, out of which was paid for dividends $375,000, leaving a surplus of $165,000, which was reduced to $140,000 by the payment of $25,000 for land.

The directors of the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis Railroad decided that they would not declare a dividend. The surplus for the year is $333,000.

Mrs. Astor's Will.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The will of Mrs. John Jacob Astor has been filed for probate. Mrs. Astor bequeaths $25,000 to the Women's Hospital in New York State, $25,000 to St. Luke's Hospital, $25,000 to the Young Women's Christian Association, $25,000 to the Children's Aid Society and $10,000 for its corporate purposes, $25,000 to the corporation established at Hampton, Va., for the education of Southern freedmen, and $25,000 to the Committee for Domestic Missions of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church. A number of bequests in smaller amounts are made to other charitable institutions.

Don Carlos' Latest Manifesto.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—A Herald's Paris special says that Don Carlos has issued a stirring manifesto. He says a treaty, one of the clauses of which has been violated, forbids the union of the two crowns of France and Spain. "I have said that I would never abandon Spain. I repeat it to-day. She has bound me to her destinies by rivers of generous blood shed before my eyes. I swear never to abandon her. But having by my father's death become the head of the house of Bourbon it is my duty to preserve the rights which belong to my family."

The Next Presidential Battle Ground.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—W. C. Gody, a prominent Democrat, says he understood that President Cleveland's friends desire that the National Democratic convention shall be held in New York city, and his belief is that it will be held there. Mr. Gody's opinion is that the battle ground of the next campaign will be Indiana, and that the Democratic candidate for Vice-President will be taken from that State.

DIVERSE OPINIONS.

Among those politicians who aim at breaking down the present National Policy there are three sets of opinions. Without discussing them, or at this time enquiring as to which of the three is most objectionable, we will point out what their schemes are.

1. Unrestricted reciprocity. This policy has for its chief advocates Mr. J. D. Edgar and the Montreal Herald. Were it adopted, the produce and manufactures of the United States and Canada would pass free across the lines between the two countries, the customs houses would be retained as they are and each nation would have control of its tariff as regards the imports from all other countries. Of course, Canada would either discriminate against Great Britain or adopt absolute free trade.

2. Absolute free trade. The Globe is the chief apostle of this doctrine, although the Hamilton Times has advocated it steadily for some time. The adoption of this policy would mean the abolition of duties on imports entirely—or, in cases where a duties were imposed on imports a similar excise duty would be collected on similar articles made in Canada—and direct taxation as a mode of raising the federal revenue. The Globe is of opinion that the Liberal party made a mistake in not adopting that policy from the first and condemns the trimming on the National Policy indulged in by Mr. Blake and itself last winter. It would, however, accept free trade with the the United States alone.

3. Commercial union. It is of the movement to bring about the adoption of this scheme that we have heard so much. Out of it has grown the unrestricted reciprocity idea, owing to the strong opposition to commercial union, and it has stirred up the free traders. As to what commercial union means, we will quote Mr. Wiman, the "father" of the movement. In his speech at the Boston banquet on Wednesday Mr. Wiman said:—

"At the outset, then, commercial union between the United States and Canada meant that commercially the two sections of the continent should be as closely united as if a political union had been consummated between them. It meant that the commerce of the United States and Canada should be continental in its extent; that the customs line which now extended right across the centre of the continent should be made of uniform height and stretched not across but around the continent. The effect of a continental tariff of uniform height would be to shut out the products of the rest of the world, except on the payment of duty for the privilege of entering, while it would make entirely free the commerce of the continent itself."

It has been at other times explained by the promotors of the movement that the customs receipts of the two countries would be pooled and divided according to population. It would also necessitate uniform excise duties and customs regulations. A majority of the Liberal papers and leaders appear to favor this scheme.

These schemes are advocated by opponents of the present Dominion Government and the National Policy—by sections of the Liberal party. The Conservative party, on the other hand, is united in upholding the National Policy, while at the same time it is willing to adopt trade relations with the United States that would not minimize the control of Parliament over the Canadian tariff, except as to those articles that it would be agreed should be admitted free from the United States, that would not be inconsistent with the position of the Dominion as a part of the British Empire, and that would be beneficial to this country.

In the election courts on Thursday Mr. Edwards, the Liberal M.P. for Russell, was unseated, and Dr. Hickey, the Conservative M. P. for Dundas, was confirmed in his seat. Mr. Edwards, in giving evidence, said that he was disgusted with the actions of his supporters as exposed in court.

The Toledo Blade informs its readers that "Mayor Stevenson, of Peterborough, is an earnest advocate of commercial union." If there are no more earnest advocates of the union then Mr. Stevenson, it will be a long time before the [illegible] will give way to it.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash, and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be oodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 pet cent off.

QUAKING, - SHAKING, - CRASHING, - SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this, if merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost, to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARDS MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this is how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8.75, this is an all wool coat, well made and Sheppard's price to day is $3 95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6 50, Sheppard's price to-day is $2 95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the Man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, Sheppard is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—'Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2.00, Sheppard's price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, Sheppard's price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all 'Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

☞ Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straigh to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

BUSINESS FAILURES FOR 1887.

The Return Shows a Decrease in Number But an Increase in Amount.

New York, Dec. 30.—The year's return of failures, reported by Dun, Wiman & Co., shows a decrease of 200 in number for the year but an increase of $53,000,000 in liabilities, as follows:

| Year. | No. | Liabilities. | Average |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1887..... | 9634 | $167,560,944 | $17,392 |
| 1886..... | 9834 | 114,044,119 | 11,652 |

The returns for the Dominion of Canada show 1382 failures, with $16,311,745 liabilities; average $11,803. The failures in the Dominion were one in every fifty-four firms in business. In the United States they average one in every 111 firms.

A Treaty with the Sultan of Zanzibar.

Brussels, Dec. 30.—The Mouvement Geographique says advices from Zanzibar are to the effect that the British East African Association has concluded a treaty under which the Sultan of Zanzibar cedes to the association fifty years' sovereignty over the territory between Port Wanger, at the mouth of the Oumba River and Vita, a distance of over thirty-five kilometres. This will facilitate the opening of a route to Victoria Nyanza, and show that England is destroys of founding a colony which will extend her influence to the sources of the Nile. It is probable that when Stanley returns he will be asked to undertake the work of extending civilization.

American Aid Not Wanted.

London, Dec. 30.—The Standard's Paris correspondent says in an interview yesterday Senor Matens, the Colombian Minister, declared that neither by threat nor by cajolery would his Government be induced to allow America to have anything to do with the Panama Canal, even if De Lesseps failed to complete the work. They would rather do without the canal than see America complete it. He had perfect confidence in DeLesseps, and Colombia would protong the concession to De Lesseps if necessary.

An Experimental Alarm.

London, Dec. 30.—A despatch from Massowah says that last night the Italian camp was aroused by an alarm that the Abyssinians were about to make an attack. It was afterwards ascertained that the Italian commander had caused the alarm to be raised to test the troops. The experiment showed that everything was in perfect order. The Abyssinians continue to advance.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Improved.

The Minden Echo says:—"Mr. Cochrane, the well-known traveller for the Peterborough Biscuit Works, was in town on Thursday last. W. J. Minore, Esq., has recently purchased the business and has undoubtedly, made a large improvement as the goods manufactured are of a much better quality."

TURNBULL claims to have the Cheapest Flannels and underclothing offered in Peterborough. Call and test it.

Presentation.

The employes at the Peterborough Cheapside have showed their appreciation of their employer in a tangible way. On Thursday night they presented Mr. Shepperd with a beautiful pair of Acme Club skates with gold and silver mounting. The present is a valuable one and particularly useful at this season. The presentation was accompanied by a verbal address.

Skating.

There was a large attendance at the Charlotte Street Rink on Friday evening. The skating rink was filled with skaters and vigorous lunged curlers took possession of the three rinks. The attendance of spectators was fairly large. The sale of season tickets has so far been full up to the usual. They are to be had at the bookstores.

Baird's Company.

R. H. Baird's Dramatic Company will close a week's engagement at Bradburn's Opera House this evening. The attendance at last night's performance was fairly large and the people were much amused at the humor in the bill which was presented. For particulars for to-night's performance see advertisement in another column. Considering the low prices the attendance should be large.

The Polling Places.

The polling places in the four Wards for the municipal elections on Monday are as follows:—No. One Ward—Mission School House, Mr. Joseph Lundy deputy returning officer; No. Two Ward—the Old Music Hall Mr. Charles Cameron deputy returning officer; No. Three Ward—office of Messrs. Bathburn & Co., Mr. John Irwin deputy returning officer; No. Four Ward—Mr. Wm. Lee's shop, Smith street, Mr. Francis Mason deputy returning officer.

The Bell Telephone Company.

With regard to a paragraph appearing in a recent issue of the Globe stating that acting-Judge James Haverson had decided in court that "any person paying a rental for a telephone had a perfect right to let whom them chose use it, in spite of any rule of the company to the contrary," Mr. Haverson writes to-day that the Globe was mistaken, that no such decision was given, and that in the particular case referred to the defence was "the telephone had not been used by outsiders, not that the defendant could allow any one to use it."—Globe.

It Was Withdrawn.

The following case entered at the Victoria general Sessions, is thus reported in the Post:—McIlibargey v. Maher.—This action was brought by the plaintiff, who is a cattle buyer in Lindsay, to recover from the defendant, who is a cattle buyer in Peterborough, the price of 130 shipping sheep which he (the defendant) refused to receive according to aggreement. The parties having come to an agrerment, before the trial the case was withdrawn. H. B. Dean for plaintiff, F. D. Moore and G. T. Blackstock for defendant.

Only Once a Year.

A performance in which the children take part is sure to draw a good house. Think of the beauty of the spectacle. Four hundred little ones seated on the platform. Four hundred young voices joining in full chorus backed by the Fire Brigade Band and the Grand Organ. Such a volume of sound will sweeep out that the audience will be electrified. It is only once during the year that this can be heard. The opportunity is near at hand—Monday evening, January 9th, at the Methodist Church. Look up the programme and see the bill of fare offered.

ODDFELLOWSHIP AT NORWOOD.

A New Lodge Instituted by Peterborough Brethren.

A new lodge of Oddfellows was instituted at Norwood on Friday. Bro. R. W. Bell, Grand Warden, proceeded to Norwood on the morning train, accompanied by a large delegation from Peterborough, among whom were Bros. E. E. Henderson, P.G., J. Mathieson, N.G. elect of Otonabee Lodge, Capt. R. M. Roy, C. H. Clementi, W. Bunton, J. L. Hughes, A. Cox, H. Long, R. F. Perry, R. Sherlock, W. J. Minore, G. J. Early, W. F. Green, Thos. Marshall and H. P. Lindsay.

On arriving at Norwood the delegation was met at the station by a deputation of Norwood brethren and escorted in sleighs to the Brennan House, where dinner was served. At two o'clock the brethren proceeded to the new hall. The lodge was called to order by the instituting officer, Grand Warden Bell, the following assistant officers occupying the chairs:—Bros. J. Mathieson, V. G. as G. W., Bro. W. Bunton, G. S., Bro. G. J. Early, G. P. S., Bro. J. L. Hughes, G. Treas., Bro. C. H. Clementi, R. S. N. G., Bro. H. P. Lindsay, L. S. N. G., Bro. R. Sherlock, R. S. V. G., Bro. T. Marshall, I. S. N. G., Bro. W. J. Minore, W., Bro. R. M. Roy, C., Bro. W. F. Green, R. S. S., Bro. F. W. Perry, L. S. S., and Bro. H. Long, I. G.

The Grand Warden delivered a brief and appropriate address, referring to the occasion which has caused them to assemble in Norwood. He trusted that the step they were about to take would redound to the credit of the Society and that the new lodge would become an institution in the flourishing village of Norwood of which the citizens would be proud. He had no doubt from the array of names of charter members on the petition, that there was a sufficient guarantee that the new lodge would become one of the best and most prosperous in the jurisdiction. He then read the dispensation authorizing the organization of Norwood Lodge, No. 262, I. O. O. F.

Bro E. E. Henderson was appointed acting D.G.M. and G.M., and presented the following charter members:—Bros. G. J Pettigrew, M. D., W. E. Roxburgh, Rev. James Carmichael, John Davideon, Ira Cummings, Henry Bewell, John Finlay, R. J. Stewart, C. Waters and A. Scott, who were instructed according to the usual custom.

The election of officers for the new lodge was proceeded with, the following being chosen:—Bro. Dr. Pettigrew, N. G., Bro. John Davidson, V. G., Bro. H. Bewell, Rec. Sec., Bro. C. Waters, Per. Sec., Bro. W. E. Roxburgh, Treas., Bro. Ira Cummings, W., Bro. R. J. Stewart, C., Bro. the Rev. J. Carmichael, R. S. N. G., Bro. J. Finlay, L. S. N. G. Bro. A. Scott, I. G. The remaining officer's will be appointed at the next meeting.

An adjournment was then made for tea, and another large delegation arrived on the evening train from Peterborough, among whom were the team of Otonabee Lodge. At the evening session seven new members were initiated. The ceremony of initiation and conferring of degrees was performed in a superior manner by the team, who excelled themselves on this occassion.

In the evening the visiting brethren were entertained at a banquet at the Brennan House. The chair was occupied by Bro. W. E. Roxburgh, and the vice chair by the Rev. J. Carmichael. The usual loyal toasts were honored, and the following list was taken up:—"The Grand Lodge of Ontario," responded to by Bro. Bell, G.W.; "Otonabee Lodge," responded to by Bro. M. Mowry, N.G.; "Norwood Lodge," responded to by Bros. H. Bewell, John Davidson, J. Finlay, Dr. Pettigrew and others; "Peterborough Lodge No. 111," responded to by Bros. F. Foote, W. Galley and H. Long, and "the Ladies," for whom Bros. W. F. Green and W. Bunton replied. The health of Bro. Early, "the life of the party," was received with enthusiasm, and he made a happy reply. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" closed the proceedings.

The new lodge starts with eighteen first-class members and with the brightest prospects of success. The Peterborough brethren are enthusiastic over the cordial and hospitable manner in which they were received and entertained.

Not the least amusing and entertaining part of the trip was the presence of "Jimmy," a genuine goat, who was taken by the Peterborough delegation, clothed in all the insignia appropriate for the occasion. He was present in the lodge room an was a source of considerable merriment at Norwood.

—The snow shoers in connection with the Y. M. C. A. have nearly all been fitted out with brand new suits, which will be broken in on Tuesday night. A tramp to the country is on the programme.

—Says the Minden Echo:—"Mr. and Miss Leary left last Thursday for their home in Peterborough, where they intend spending the Christmas holidays. During their stay here they have made many warm friends, who will gladly welcome them back. We understand that Mr. Leary purposes going extensively into the timber and tie business immediately upon his return. Success to you, Charlie."

—It is said that Lindsay has adopted a new plan of municipal government. Instead of the council adopting motions and passing by-laws, the resolutions will be handed in and the clerk instructed to have the people vote upon them. This will relieve the council of the responsibility of saying where a crossing will be laid or a drain cleaned out. On Monday a vote will be taken as to whether the cow by-law will be enforced.

All are cordially invited. d155-1

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

FURTHER POSTPONEMENT.

IT IS STATED THAT PARLIAMENT WILL NOT MEET UNTIL FEB. 23.

Sir John Has Forwarded His Resignation For Carleton—Mr. Edwards' Appeal To Be Withdrawn—Speculation About the Candidates in Russell and Carleton.

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—There was a meeting of Council to-day at which it is understood that the date of the meeting of Parliament was changed from Jan. 31 to Thursday, Feb. 23. The announcement will not appear in The Canada Gazette to-morrow, but will probably be in next week. The reason of the change is reported to be that, since the adjournment of the Fisheries Commission took place, the negotiations which have been going on by telegraph between the three Governments have assumed a so much more hopeful phase that it is now believed there will be comparatively little difficulty in reaching a satisfactory arrangement in time to submit the proposition to Parliament by Feb. 23.

Sir John A. Macdonald to-day forwarded to the Speaker of the House of Commons his resignation for Carleton, he having decided to sit for Kingston.

It is understood that the appeal of Mr. Edwards to the Supreme Court against the decision on the preliminary objection in the Russell election case, either has been or will be withdrawn; and it is probable, therefore, that writs for both Carleton and Russell will be issued almost immediately, so that the elections will take place either just before Parliament meets or very shortly after. The question as to who will run in Carleton is still an open one, with half a dozen local aspirants, and it is probable that at least two, and perhaps more, Conservatives will run. It is very doubtful whether the Liberals will nominate a straight party candidate, but they may try to put in a temperance candidate who will poll the Opposition vote. In Russell it is likely Mackintosh will run again, with good chances of success, but whether Edwards will again be the Liberal candidate is doubtful, as he is said to be very much dissatisfied with the action of some of his friends.

It is understood that at the coming session of Parliament a select committee of the Senate will be asked for to enquire into and report upon the best means of access to the northern part of the Northwest Territories, and especially the Peace River district. Recent surveys made by exploring parties of the Geological Survey are said to have shown that the Mackenzie River is navigable for vessels drawing seven feet of water for a distance of 1400 miles from its mouth and that the divide from the watershed on the eastern slope is very much less than it has been supposed to be.

Messrs. Peter Clarke, John Vernon and John Rigout, soda water manufacturers of Toronto, waited upon the Minister of Justice this morning with a grievance. They explained that they used a particular kind of bottle in their business for which they had a patent, but parties were in the habit of buying the bottles at a cheap rate from their customers and selling them at the rate of 50 cents a dozen to other manufacturers. They therefore wished for protection of their patent under the circumstances. The Minister promised to consider the case.

Sir Charles Tupper left for Winnipeg to-night to join Lady Tupper, who has been spending Christmas with her son, and from thence he will proceed to Washington, where he will probably arrive on Jan. 6.

It is reported here that Mr. Norquay intends to article himself to a Winnipeg legal firm for the purpose of studying law.

An appeal has been lodged at the Supreme Court against the decision of Judge Pelletier of the Supreme Court in the Rimouski election case, dismissing the petition on the ground that it was not presented within six months.

Fire at Pickering.

PICKERING, Dec. 30.—About 6 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in Hoover's large flouring mills, near the Grand Trunk station. The mill and all the machinery and books, together with a large storehouse and dwelling house, were totally consumed. The insurance on the mill is $2300, on machinery $1800, dwelling house $1000, household effects $300. Most of the household effects were removed. About $500 worth of stock burned in the mill had no insurance. The fire is supposed to have originated from the stove in the office.

A Novel Ground for Divorce.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Charles H. Talmadge filed a bill for divorce to-day and advanced a hitherto unheard-of ground for his application. For some time after his marriage peace reigned in the household. At stated periods the husband gave the wife money for the household expenses but instead of using it for this purpose she threw it away in speculation on the Open Board of Trade. Soon the Talmadge home was desolated and the husband avers that when he told his wife she must stop speculating she left the house and has not returned.

Jew Can't Reside in Russian Villages.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 30.—The Grashdannin, a semi-official organ, says the higher government authority has rejected the proposal of the Imperial Commission to permit Jews to reside in any village of Russia.

Swift Retribution.

ST. FRANCIS, Ark., Dec. 30.—Wm. Herrig, who murdered his young wife and her paramour near here on Thursday, was hanged last night by a band of Vigilants. Herrig's wife's stage name before her marriage was Julia Bennett.

Mr. Gladstone Thunderstruck.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—In an interview while here Mr. Gladstone described the Irish rent reduction decree as a "tremendous decision," and said he was thunderstruck at the news. He also said that the Tory Cabinet, having alienated the tenants, would now alienate the landlords.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

"What I saw last night prevents me," Agnes answered. "When you spoke of this subject, after our inquiries were over, you reproached me with taking, what you called, the superstitious view. I don't quite admit that—but I do acknowledge that I should find the superstitious view intelligible if I heard it expressed by some other person. Remembering what your brother and I once were to each other in the bygone time, I can understand the apparition making itself visible to me, to claim the mercy of Christian burial and the vengeance due to a crime. I can even perceive some faint possibility of truth in the explanation which you described as the mesmeric theory—that what I saw might be the result of magnetic influence communicated to me as I lay between the remains of the murdered husband above me and the guilty wife suffering the tortures of remorse at my bedside. But what I do not understand is, that I should have passed through that dreadful ordeal, having no previous knowledge of the murdered man in his lifetime, or only knowing him (if you suppose that I saw the apparition of Ferrari) through the interest which I took in his wife. I can't dispute your reasoning, Henry. But I feel in my heart of hearts that you are deceived. Nothing will shake my belief that we are still as far from having discovered the dreadful truth as ever."

Henry made no further attempt to dispute with her. She had impressed him with a certain reluctant respect for her own opinion in spite of himself.

"Have you thought of any better way of arriving at the truth?" he asked. "Who is to help us? No doubt there is the countess, who has the clew to the mystery in her own hands. But, in the present state of her mind, is her testimony to be trusted—even if she were willing to speak? Judging by my own experience, I should say decidedly not."

"You don't mean that you have seen her again?" Agnes eagerly interposed.

"Yes, I had half an hour to spare before dinner, and I disturbed her once more over her endless writing."

"And you told her what you found when you opened the hiding place?"

"Of course I did," Henry replied. "I said, in so many words, that I held her responsible for the discovery, and that I expected her to reveal the whole truth. She went on with her writing as if I had spoken in an unknown tongue. I was equally obstinate on my side. I told her plainly that the head had been placed under the care of the police, and that the manager and I had signed our declarations and given our evidence. She paid not the slightest heed to me. By way of tempting her to speak, I added that the whole investigation was to be kept a secret, and that she might depend on my discretion. For the moment I thought I had succeeded. She looked up from her writing with a passing flash of curiosity, and said: 'What are they going to do with it?'—meaning, I suppose, the head. I answered that it was to be privately buried, after photographs of it had been first taken. I even went the length of communicating the opinion of the surgeon consulted, that some chemical means of arresting decomposition had been used and had only partially succeeded—and I asked her point blank if the surgeon was right. The trap was not a bad one, but it completely failed. She said in the coolest manner: 'Now you are here I should like to consult you about my play; I am at a loss for some new incident.' Mind! there was nothing satirical in this. She was really eager to read her wonderful work to me—evidently supposing that I took a special interest in such things because my brother is the manager of a theatre! I left her, making the first excuse that occurred to me. So far as I am concerned I can do nothing with her. But it is possible that your influence may succeed with her again, as it has succeeded already. Will you make the attempt to satisfy your own mind? She is still upstairs; and I am quite ready to accompany you!"

Agnes shuddered at the bare suggestion of another interview with the countess.

"I can't! I daren't!" she exclaimed. "After what has happened in that horrible room, she is more repellent to me than ever. Don't ask me to do it, Henry! Feel my hand—you have turned me as cold as death only with talking of it!"

She was not exaggerating the terror that possessed her. Henry hastened to change the subject.

"Let us talk of something more interesting," he said. "I have a question to ask you about yourself. Am I right in believing that the sooner you get away from Venice the happier you will be?"

"Right!" she repeated, excitedly. "You are more than right! No words can say how I long to be away from this horrible place. But you know how I am situated—you heard what Lord Montbarry said at dinner time!"

"Suppose he has altered his plans since dinner time?" Henry suggested.

Agnes looked surprised. "I thought he had received letters from England which obliged him to leave Venice to-morrow," she said.

"Quite true," Henry admitted. "He had arranged to start for England to-morrow, and to leave you and Lady Montbarry and the children to enjoy your holiday in Venice under my care. Circumstances have occurred, however, which have forced him to alter his plans. He must take you all back with him to-morrow, because I am not able to assume charge of you. I am obliged to give up my holiday in Italy, and return to England too."

Agnes looked at him in some little perplexity; she was not quite sure whether she understood him or not. "Are you really obliged to go back?" she asked.

Henry smiled as he answered her. "Keep the secret," he said, "or Montbarry will never forgive me!"

She read the rest in his face. "Oh," she exclaimed, blushing brightly, "you have not given up your pleasant holiday in Italy on my account?"

"I shall go back with you to England, Agnes. That will be holiday enough for me."

She took his hand in an irrepressible outburst of gratitude. "How good you are to me!" she murmured tenderly. "What should I have done in the troubles that have come to me, without your sympathy? I can't tell you, Henry, how I feel your kindness."

She tried impulsively to lift his hand to her lips. He gently stopped her. "Agnes," he said, "are you beginning to understand how truly I love you?"

That simple question found its own way to her heart. She owned the whole truth, without saying a word. She looked at him—and then looked away again.

He drew her to his bosom. "My own darling!" he whispered—and kissed her. Softly and tremulously the sweet lips lingered, and touched his lips in return. Then her head drooped. She put her arms round his neck, and hid her face in his bosom. They spoke no more.

The charmed silence had lasted but a little while, when it was mercilessly broken by a knock at the door.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—Contrary to my own wishes and interests, and at the solicitation of a number of ratepayers, I again offer myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor for the year 1888, and respectfully solicit your support.

I have been associated with the interests and progress of the town for the past thirty years and during that period I have endeavoured to the best of my ability to develop the material interests of the town and to promote its welfare. If I have in these endeavours met with any degree of success worthy of recognition by the ratepayers of the town, or if I have in my capacity as Mayor for half a dozen terms looked after the interests of the town to the satisfaction of the public, I can with confidence claim a renewal of your support at the coming election.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,

d137-f J. STEVENSON.

THE MAYORALTY FOR 1888.

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—At the request of a large number of ratepayers, who have promised me their support, I am before you as a candidate for the Mayoralty for 1888. I ask you to give me your support, therefor, on the following platform:—

ECONOMY!

TEMPERANCE!

MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

If length of public service is deserving of recognition I may modestly claim your consideration. During the eighteen or twenty years which I have sat at your council board I have endeavored to faithfully advance the best interests of the town. I have spared neither time nor work to consistently carry out my pledges to my supporters and have worked to the best of my ability for the general good. If I have erred I have done so unknowingly.

I offer myself as—in particular—the workingman's candidate. I hope to receive the solid workingmen's support. I consider I am fairly entitled to it. I am a working man myself and if elected—will endeavou to repay the confidence by advancing their interests in every honest way.

I may say that in taking the field I am not actuated by any feeling of rivalry with the present occupant of the Mayor's chair, but I feel that with the many demands on his time and services that the position is not sought for. Should I prove correct in my inference, you cannot fairly overlook the claim that years of service has on your consideration.

I recognize thoroughly what the necessities of the town demand. Thorough economy in all departments of municipal expenditure must be the rule. A liberal policy to encourage the growth and establishment of new and existing industries. In this regard I am opposed to any money bonus being granted, but in favor of exemption from taxes and possibly free sites under proper restrictions. I shall—I elected—give particular attention to matters as outlined above

Possibly one of the most prominent questions that will come before the ratepayers next year will be in connection with the enforcement of the Scott Act. I will maintain in this regard the position relative to temperance which I have held for the last 25 years. So long as the Scott Act remains in force I will to the extent of my ability and office, see that the law is strictly enforced, and that too through the proper officers of the town.

Such, gentlemen, are the grounds on which I ask your support. I may not have the opportunity of personally soliciting your favor, but venture to hope that the statement of my views will meet your approval.

Trusting that I may have your hearty support on the basis of

ECONOMY!

TEMPERANCE!

MUNICIPAL PROGRESS!

I am, adieu and gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

d136-w49 A. RUTHERFORD.

TO THE ELECTORS of Ward No. 2.

At the urgent request of a large number of the citizens of the town and of a very large number of the Electors of No. 2 Ward, I have consented to be a candidate for the representation of this Ward in the Town Council. Being identified with no party and having no personal interests to serve—no axes to grind—my sole aim, if elected, shall be to promote the best interests of the town, and on these grounds I claim, and respectfully request, your support both in canvass and at the polls.

I remain, Gentlemen,

Yours very respectfully,

ADAM HALL

Peterborough, Dec. 24, 1887. d1

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SOUTH WARD,

of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN.—I beg to offer myself as a candidate for election as Councillor, to represent Ward No. 1, for the ensuing year.

Should you do me the favor to place me in that important position, I will endeavour to faithfully watch after the best interests of the ward and town generally.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours respectfully,

d137 H. C. WINCH.

DEPARTED AMID GLOOM.

DARK CLOUDS HUNG OVER EUROPE AS THE OLD YEAR DIED.

The Situation one of the Greatest Perplexity Which Nothing Else Than Some Authoritative Deliverance From the Czar or the Kaiser can Clear Up.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—With the exception of The Pall Mall Gazette all the London dailies and weeklies insist that the year ends in general gloom. The Spectator declares that there is now less reason than ever for believing that peace on the Continent is possible. The Saturday Review generally commends the German policy, and says that Germany and Austria have been studiously peaceable for twelve years past, meanwhile suffering constant menace from Russia. The Review sees a single tangible peaceful glimmer in the decision of the Czar to permit the publishing of the forged documents in Berlin.

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—The year closes without the relations between Russia and the allied powers showing any symptoms of amelioration. The situation has become one of the greatest perplexity, which nothing else than some authoritative deliverance from the Czar or the Kaiser can clear up. Gen. Von Schweinitz, the German Ambassador to Russia, has frequent interviews with M. de Giers, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, one result of which has been an arrangement for the publication of the forged documents.

No decisive diplomatic issue is expected before the middle of January. After that events will develop with electric rapidity. The concentration of Russian troops in Poland appears to be suspended. The whole country lies deep in snow and ice. The roads are blocked and railway traffic is retarded. Galicia is in a similar condition. If an order were given to-morrow for the mobilization of the Austrian troops, it would be impossible to execute it except within a small radius of Vienna; but a few weeks hence, when the snow storm has abated and the surface of the country is settled into its winter's hardness, military operations could be easily effected. It is the opinion of military authority that Austria and Germany will agree upon winter as the best time for a campaign in Poland, and that if war must be it should either commence in February or be deferred until June. While the movements of troops in Poland are ceasing troops are being concentrated in Bessarabia, and this fact leads to the belief that Russia either distrusts Roumanian neutrality or has other plans than a campaign in Galicia. The forces now massed along the Bender and Odessa lines are estimated at 80,000 men. The stations are crowded with troops and artillery transports. Several corps in Southern Russia are already fully mobilized and ecbeloned along the Pruth and Duiester rivers and the railways converging to Roumania. The Black Sea fleet is being hurriedly equipped for active service. Four gunboats have been sent to the Kilia arm of the Danube and a numerous flotilla of vessels designed for river service is being concentrated at Odessa. The formidable extent of these preparations gives rise to the suspicion that the Czar contemplates a sudden descent upon Bulgaria, while acting on the defensive towards Galicia.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Emperor William in his remarks at his New Year's receptions yesterday avoided open political allusions, but in conversation with his military chiefs he referred to the improvement in the general political situation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 2.—The visit of Lord Randolph Churchill to Russia occasions a general press advocacy of an entente with England. The Novoe Vremya argued that British statesmen must admit that England during the last thirty years has lost more through hostility to Russia than she has gained by friendship with other powers.

VIENNA, Jan. 2.—The Fremdenblatt denies on authentic information that the movement of Russian troops and war material to the frontier continues. The latest news shows that the recent reports concerning the Russian movements referred mainly to displacements effected within the frontier provinces.

CAPITAL NOTES.

New Year's Receptions in the Eastern Block and at Earnscliffe.

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—The appointments of Mr. Richard Pope as Commissioner of Patents, and of Mayor Chapleau as Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, which were announced in this correspondence two weeks ago, came into effect to-day.

His Excellency held his usual New Year's reception to-day in his office in the Eastern Block. Probably owing to the municipal election being in progress the number of callers was somewhat smaller than last year.

The municipal elections passed off very quietly, and resulted in the re-election of Mayor Stewart by about 350 over Brown and 1500 over Lewis. The vote was the heaviest ever cast for Mayor. There is very general satisfaction at the result.

Hon. Mr. Thompson and his private secretary will leave for Washington on Thursday. Mr. Foster will not return to Washington at present, and it is understood that Mr. Wallace Graham and Mr. George Johnson will not return at all.

Earnscliffe was—as usual at New Year's—a great centre of attraction to-day, several hundred visitors paying their respects to Sir John.

Probably in Canada.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 31. — Assistant Cashier Wm. N. Smith of the German American Bank, of which Secretary of State Frederick Cook is president, is $9,000 short in his cash, and has decamped. Smith had always been regarded as honest and faithful. He has a wife and three children here. He is probably in Canada.

IN FULL OPERATION.

The Reading Railroad Able to Move all the Freight.

READING, Jan. 2.—Coal and freight traffic, while in full operation on the Reading Railroad, is not as brisk as it was before the present labor troubles. It is apparent that the new men are not able to move trains as rapidly as the old ones; the majority of the coal mines are idle and this likewise has its effect on the traffic.

There is now no fear by the business community that the shop hands in this city will strike. Advices from north of Reading say that at Gordon Plane a full complement of hands are at work. Superintendent Lawlor of Shamokin reports that he is well supplied with men and has more now than he requires to handle the trade. At Mahoney Plane the strike is more serious but with the collieries all idle the officials have not experienced much trouble in handling its business. At all other points in the Shamokin division everything was reported quiet.

All iron industries in this vicinity are preparing to shut down if a coal strike takes place. There is not enough coal on hand in this city to supply private consumers more than several weeks, and prices are going up.

A General Strike To-day.

SHAMOKIN, Jan. 2.—A meeting of Knights of Labor and railroaders was held here to-day, and as a result a general strike of miners and railroaders will be made to-morrow throughout the anthracite region except in the Wyoming Valley. The miners strongly condemned the course of the railroad company and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and made an appeal to men who contemplate coming into the region to seek work, to remain away until the strike is settled. They also advise hotel and boarding house keepers not to entertain "scabs" and declared their attention to fight to a finish.

The entire coal region was represented at the meeting. The sentiment of the meeting was unanimously in favor of the lock-out. Everything is quiet. Business is greatly depressed. The miners declare they can stand out six months.

PREPARING FOR THE FRAY.

The Junior Conservative Club of Montreal Organizes Permanently.

From The Empire.

MONTREAL, Jan. 2.—Ever since its organization the Junior Conservative Club of Montreal has done splendid service to the cause of good government, and in its ranks are to be found many of the brightest spirits of whom the Liberal Conservative party is justly proud. When the smoke of battle clears away, as is the case in most political similar organizations, the interest in the affairs of the club is unfortunately allowed to subside, and generally when the cry to arms is again heard and the din of conflict fills the air, it takes too much of an effort to get the soldiers at their posts and the little army of members worked up to that pitch of enthusiasm which, as all our politicians know, is necessary to ensure a complete triumph for the Liberal Conservative arms. To obviate a repetition of any such mistake in the future, it is proposed to hold regular meetings of the organization similar to the plan adopted by our French friends in the efficient administration of the several clubs for political study and discussion which have been founded in their midst, and which have been so eminently conducive in bringing our French brothers in arms to take a lively interest in the several political questions which constantly occupy the public mind. It is proposed that a member of the club prepare an essay upon some subject of national import, the reading of which will be followed by a discussion by the other members present. Mr. Robert White, editor-in-chief of The Gazette, is President, and Mr. E. J. Bedard, a promising young advocate, secretary. The Hon. W. W. Lynch, a most valuable acquisition to the political debating city talent of our city has kindly offered his valuable assistance in the work, I have just outlined, and it is hoped that within a very few weeks the young English speaking Conservatives of Montreal will have a splendid political training school in full blast, which no doubt will perform invaluable work in the cause they all have so much at heart.

THE MANITOBA OPPOSITION.

Unscrupulous Endeavors to Discredit the Government.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 2.—A number of leaders of the Opposition are in town and it is said a caucus will be held.

The Free Press this morning charges the Government with issuing a cheque on the half-breed minor fund, which was dishonored at the bank, and claims that the fund was issued for other and corrupt purposes. The Government denies that such is the case, and Manager Miller of the Merchants' Bank writes a letter explaining the whole affair, which does not, it appears, reflect on the Government at all.

It is denied that a special voters' list, excluding non-residents, is being prepared for the coming bye-elections.

THE ELECTIONS IN TORONTO.

Mr. E. F. Clarke Elected Over His Opponents—The Largest Vote Ever Polled in the City.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—Election day passed off very quietly, although real and earnest work was done by everybody as shown by the results. Contrary to the expectations of many, Mr. Clarke was elected over his two opponents, Ald. Rogers and Ald. Defoe, by a majority of 901. The three bylaws submitted were all defeated, the trunk sewer bylaw by a majority of 842; the bylaw for the reduction of tavern licenses by 401, and the bylaw for the reduction of shop licenses by 300.

Booming Manitoba.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The Manchester Courier publishes an article by a Canadian correspondent on the last Manitoba census, and says the province has had a checkered career, but her growth is nevertheless steady and rapid. The Winnipeg boom of 1881 produced disastrous results, but the construction of the Canadian Pacific, and the favorable reports of the farmers' delegates from Great Britain on the agricultural resources of the country have stimulated emigration and trade. The census returns are satisfactory in regard to population and the development of agriculture and other industries. The progress of the country has been great, especially considering that ten years ago she did not even possess railway communication. She is still in her infancy, and promises to become in time one of the most important provinces of the Canadian Confederation.

BLOODY RAILWAY WRECKS

THE LAST DAY OF THE OLD YEAR PROLIFIC IN CALAMITIES.

A Fast Express Meets a Freight on a Curve—The Killed Number Five, and Seventeen Badly Injured—Two Passenger Trains Crash Together in Kentucky.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Dec. 31.—A wreck occurred on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad, five miles west of this city, at 9.30 this morning. It is the most horrible disaster that ever occurred in this vicinity. The colliding trains were the "Thunderbolt," a through train from Chicago to New York, consisting of one express, baggage, smoker, ladies' car and two Pullman sleepers, due in this city at 5.30, and freight train No. 23, a west-bound double header. Both trains were over two hours late, and the express, being entitled to the right of way, was running without orders. Simply taking it for granted that the express was in, Conductor Murphy of the freight pulled out for Geneva, where he had orders against trains 28 and 82. Almost simultaneously the trains swept by the last two intervening stations, Geneva and Buchanan, only four miles apart, and as the word was sent to the despatcher's office in this city the inevitable result was certain. The two trains, the "Thunderbolt" running forty-five miles and the freight train fifteen miles an hour, met in a long forest-hidden curve with a crash that was terrible to witness.

Both engineers and firemen of the two colliding engines were crushed between the iron ruins. The baggage car, express car and smoker of the passenger train were completely wrecked. The baggage car was telescoped into the smoker like a wedge, splitting it open and sweeping every seat from the floor. The total number of passengers on the train was fifty-three, fifteen of whom were in the smoker. All of these were more or less injured.

The groans and cries that soon came from the ruins brought the people to a realization of the terrible situation and in a very short time a large force of men were at work, systematically doing all they could for the wounded and dying. The railroad company, after despatching two wrecking crews to the scene of the disaster, soon followed with a passenger train on which to transfer the passengers of the wrecked train and bring the wounded and such of the dead as had been recovered to Meadville.

The work of clearing the wreck was prosecuted in the face of a driving storm of sleet that lasted the entire afternoon. Trains were run around the wreck by the Meadville and Lanesville Road until the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio was finally cleared about 4 o'clock this evening. The killed and injured are:

Engineer E. P. Swan, Meadville.
Engineer William Googe, Meadville.
Fireman Arthur Irving, Meadville.
Fireman Edward Haines, Cuffbridge, O.
William H. Stephenson, Toledo, O.
H. E. Holm, New York, leg crushed; Ad. Wagoner, Buffalo, leg broken; A. D. Hosen, Paterson, N.J., leg crushed: H. L. Malvel, Middlefield, Ohio, one leg crushed, the other broken; Michael O'Brien, Buffalo, leg broken; F. N. Newton, Shinglehouse, Pa., leg bruised; D. Beauland, Titusville, leg broken; C. A. French, Sterling, Mass., leg broken; Horace Graham, Kent, Ohio, badly hurt across hip; M. F. Wyman and Jos. Boynton, railway employes, seriously hurt; P. Foulk, San Francisco, arm broken; F. A. Malone, Salamanca, N.Y., leg broken; Adolf Buser, Cincinnati, legs crushed; Fireman Crumb, badly bruised about head and shoulders; J. M. Woods, Greenville, Miss., hurt while leaving train.

ANOTHER CALAMITY.

Two Fast Mail Trains Collide on the Cincinnati Southern.

SOMERSET, Ky., Dec. 31.—The Cincinnati Southern Railroad experienced one of the worst wrecks to-day since the road has been operated. At 1.30 trains No. 1 and 2, the fast mail trains, met near Sloan's Valley and on a steep as well as a deep fill. The trains were running at full speed and dashed into each other so as to cause the loss of the lives of four persons and injuring several others. The facts gleaned are about as follows: The despatchers gave orders for the trains to meet and pass at Summit, and one of the engineers, mistaking the name "Summit" for "Somerset," went ahead. Both engines were demolished, together with several cars. The following is the list of dead and wounded:

Lee Withrow of Cincinnati, baggagemaster, throat cut, mouth crushed in and terribly mangled otherwise. Was dead when found.

Lawrence Collan, baggagemaster, from Ludlow, Ky., killed outright.

James Severns, jr., mail agent and son of James Severns of Stanford, Ky., traveling for the firm of J. M. Robinson & Co., Louisville, died to-night.

T. Candoe, fireman, Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. B. Powell, express messenger, Madisonville, O.

Miss Jessie Green, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Wreck on the Chicago and Atlantic.

KOUTS, Ind., Dec. 31.—Another disastrous wreck occurred on the line of the Chicago and [illegible] Railroad, six miles west of this place, between two sections of train 86, a fast stock train going east, the first section having slacked speed for the crossing and the second section following close. Being unable to see the first section on account of the blinding wind and snow-storm, it went crashing into the rear end, demolishing the engine and caboose. One car of cattle was destroyed. The cattle were burned. The rear brakeman was burned to a crisp. His name was L. Lyman of Huntington, Ind.

One Man Killed and Another Hurt.

BUTTE, Dec. 31.—A collision occurred yesterday on the Utah & Northern Railroad near the city of Dillon, M. T., which resulted in the death of one man and the very serious injury of another, besides heavy damage to railroad property. It was caused by the breaking away of a long train of ore cars at Springhill, sixty miles distant, the grade being downward. After running wild that distance it collided with the freight train. As a result of the accident Fireman Patrick M'Shane was instantly killed and Engineer John Sweeney was seriously hurt. The cars of both trains were completely wrecked.

Two Trainmen Killed.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 1.—This morning the south-bound passenger train ran into a slide south of Riddler and killed two trainmen.

THE FISHERY DISPUTE.

The London Journals Think the Commissioners Will Make Terms of Settlement.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Newspapers of all shades of opinion express the hope that the Fishery Commission will pave the way to a settlement of the Anglo-American disputes. The Times declares there is reason to hope the commission will be able to suggest terms or accept a compromise. It says that the selection of Mr. Chamberlain is a pledge that the British policy will not be governed by mere diplomatic traditions but by a business-like view of the whole case.

Mr. Goldwin Smith has a column in The Times contending that continental free trade is essential to Canadian prosperity. Mr. Smith's utterances on this subject are so numerous that they are ceasing to attract much attention. The Times says nothing. The St. James Gazette voices the feeling of a large section of Englishmen in saying that Mr. Smith implores Englishmen and Canadians to give up a struggle against nature and quietly permit Canada to drift towards her greater neighbor; but, with all respect to Mr. Smith, struggle against nature is what every nation is engaged in, nor are they always or necessarily hopeless. Canadians may think that the advantage of becoming a nation altogether outweighs the questionable inducements held out by the Commercial Unionists.

THE MONTREAL DETECTIVES.

The Evidence for the Prosecution Closed—The Prisoners to Be Committed.

MONTREAL, Dec. 31.—The proceedings in the Fahey-Naegele-Bureau Grand Trunk robbery case were unusually interesting this morning. At the opening of the enquete the presiding judge gave notice to the counsel for the defence that, as the private prosecution did not intend to produce Frank Wilson alias Hayner, nor the mysterious fifth man, Conroy, to make their depositions in the preliminary investigation, he would, after the other witnesses had been examined, commit the prisoners to the Court of Queen's Bench, which opens in March next; and that he would not admit them to bail.

Gilbert P. Girdwood, M.D., called in as an expert on handwriting, deposed that the letters and envelopes sent to Wilson from Montreal are all written by the same hand, and that the letters attributed to Fahey are written in Fahey's handwriting.

This closed the evidence for the prosecution.

Before Judge Desnoyers gave his decision as to the prisoners' committal a petition was filed by the prisoners for the production and cross examination of Wilson and Conroy. Judge Desnoyers has taken the matter deliberate until Tuesday next.

THE CORTES OPENED.

The Financial Condition of the Spanish Kingdom is Sound.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The King in his speech opening the Cortes to-day referred to the agreement with China regulating political and commercial relations, to the prospect of a settlement with Zanzibar, to the progress and prosperity of the Congo territory, and to the rapid development of the Delagoa Bay colony from the connection by railway with the interior. He said that the financial position of the kingdom was sound.

He announced bills for the imposition of a tax on alcohol, for the creation of a tobacco regie and for the formation of a government financial agency at Rio Janeiro to ensure proper management of Portugese funds in Brazil.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

The popularity of Mayor Stevenson and the confidence the people of Peterborough have in him received unmistakable demonstration in the result of the voting on Monday. Such a majority has, we believe, never been received by a candidate for the Mayoralty of the town. The Mayor's capacity for business and carefulness in office are shown by the number of public positions he fills and by the fact that he gives satisfaction in them all.

Some familiar faces will be missed from the Council Board as a result of the election. Mr. Menzies has for many years been a member of the Council and was one who always had an eye to economy. Mr. McNaughton, whom even those who often thought he was mistaken will acknowledge was honest and straightforward, will not entertain the members this year with his brusque oratory. Mr. Stinson who only served one year, was in a quiet way a useful member.

While these gentlemen will be missed it must be acknowledged that their places have been filled by men who will be good Councillors. Mr. Winch, who heads the poll in the First Ward this year as Mr. McNaughton did last year, will bring genial qualities and tact to the Board. Mr. Hall, the new member for the Second Ward, is a successful business man, and Mr. Langford, from the Fourth Ward, is a level-headed man who will be a capable Councillor.

---

The Empire makes a point against an argument of a United States commercial union advocate in a way that has special interest in Peterborough. It says:—"One of the speakers at the Boston banquet remarked as to Canada: 'We have taken fish and potatoes and given her hogs and hominy.' Well, in a county town in this province one firm of pork-packers has bought hogs this year to the amount of tens of thousands of dollars, and no doubt this has been the case elsewhere. How would the farmers, who have had the benefit of this local market, enjoy seeing the pork-packing establishment closed because of the influx of cheaper hog products of Cincinnati and Chicago?" The Empire might have added, How would the owners and employees of the factory and the business men of the town in which it is situated like to see it closed? And this is only a sample of the effect commercial union would have.

---

An increased population and a decreasing death rate speak well for the sanitary condition of this town.

---

In the Peterborough and Lindsay Town Councils the Scott Act party will have one less vote than they had last year, as a result of Monday's election.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

Mr. Howells' Opinion.

Reporter—Mr. Howells, whom do you consider the greatest modern writer of fiction?

Mr. Howells (after a moment's thought)—The Russian novelist, Toistoi—

Reporter—Thanks, Mr. Howells. Good morning.

Mr. Howells (hastily)—Beg pardon; but I had not finished. I was about to say that Toistoi is the second greatest novelist—Puck.

A bazaar was opened in Bradburn's Opera House under the auspices of the Young Ladies Sodality of the St. Peter's Cathedral. The arrangement of the fancy goods and other articles multifarious exposed for sale is very tasteful. All of the articles are arranged on tables, except what are clinging to the Christmas tree. Miss McCarthy, Miss Croft, Miss Corkery, Miss Hagerty, Miss O'Brien, Miss O'Reilly, Miss Crombie, Miss O'Brien and the Misses Vinette take prominent parts in the management of the bazaar. Besides the tables where the people can secure fancy goods there is a table where they can get refreshments of the choicest kind. On Monday evening Mr. J. A. Doucet's orchestra was present and enlivened the proceedings with instrumental Music. The bazaar was open to-day and will be open to-night and to-morrow. To-night a concert will be given.

Personal.

Mr. Wm. Chrow, who was at one time a clerk in T. W. Robinson's store and has been some time in British Columbia, is very ill in New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Croft, of Toronto, spent New Year's day in town renewing old association.

The Rev J. S. Thompson, the supply for the George Street Methodist Church pulpit for the next few months, preached his introductory sermon on Sunday. In the evening his sermon was one of advice to Christians to take courage and be firm in their work. He brought forward valid reasons why they should do so, and spoke of those who had taken courage and were firm in doing God's work. He held that to-day there are as heroic Christians as in the days of old—that as many were willing to go forth, and were going forth to the end of the earth to promote Christ's universal away. He spoke of those who had braved the treachery of central Africa, the fevers of India and the dangers of inland China to advance Christianity. Mr. Thompson is an earnest, effective speaker.

Mr. J. W. Flavelle, who has been ill with typhoid fever, in Toronto, is rapidly recovering. He will be all right in a few days.

Mayor Stevenson says that he was somewhat surprised that his majority should be so large, seeing that he did not ask a man for a vote—nor a woman either, he adds.

Compliments of the Season.

—To Mayor James Stevenson, and may his year's wielding of the civic sceptre redound to the prosperity and honor of our town.

—The top of the season to genial Henry Winch, brand new common councilman, and may he lead the poll for No. 1 as often as he offers.

—The returns of the season to Adam Hall, and may he give the town the benefits, municipally, of his clear headed business common sense.

—To William Langford, many happy returns of the season and all that that same implies.

—To William Drury, athlete and gas man, and may his light so shine before men that they may see that 21 candle gas is none too good for this constituency.

—To David William Dumble, Barrister and Police Magistrate, and may his justice—in the future as in the past—be tempered with mercy.

—Peace and good will to Arthur Rutherford, and may he remember that we see not ourselves as others see us.

—To the unmarried ladies of Peterborough, and may leap year opportunities be not wasted, for they come only once in four.

—To the bachelors of the 'borough, and may rememberances of past indifference be a spur to provoke much matrimonial alliance.

—To Mr, Thompson, The Reverend and may he find warm hearts and pleasant association, amongst the congregation of Methodist Church, George street.

—To Charles Alexander Weller, County Judge and Master in Chancery, many happy returns of the season, and may he assist in placing before Mr. John Henry Pope such a mass of evidence on the Trent Valley Canal that no one dare remark, "There ain't nothin' to it."

—To Charles D. Macdonald, Town Clerk and Treasurer, ever accurate and reliable, may he have a pleasant year and no midnight minutes of council meetings to record.

—To Edgcombe Pearse, County Clerk and Treasurer, may all the messages he has to convey to the Peterborough County Council be as pleasant as the one from Her Majesty's Privy Council.

—To the town readers of the REVIEW, the thanks of the Carrier Boys for their handsome New Year donations.

—Peace and good will to J. Dickson Morgan, poet, philosopher and crank, and may he never know what killed him.

—Happy new year to all, great and small, young, old, married and single, and the army of REVIEW readers, first, last and always.

FOR THE THIRD TERM.

MR. STEVENSON ELECTED MAYOR BY A MAJORITY OF 773.

The Vote in the Wards for Councillors —Three Old Members Drop Out and Three New Ones Take Their Places.

It is some time since Peterborough people spent New Year's day as that holiday was celebrated this year. From the time of the opening of the polls the voters came crowding in until five o'clock in the afternoon. In the Mayoralty contest both parties worked vigorously. When the result was announced at the town buildings some surprise was expressed at the large majority Mr. Stevensen gained over his opponent. Of course, nearly everybody, even some of Mr. Rutherford's supporters, expected that Mr. Stevenson would be returned. The only question was that of the majority. Frequent bets were made that Mr. Stevenson would have 500 majority, while pools were drawn from 400 to 700. Mr. Stevenson, who was at the civic headquarters when the result was known, seemed a little surprised himself when he found the majority was nearly 800. The ballots cast for the respective candidates in the different wards are as follows:—

| | Stevenson. | Rutherford. | Stevenson's Majority. |
|---|---|---|---|
| No. One Ward | 358 | 68 | 288 |
| No. Two Ward | 306 | 49 | 257 |
| No. Three Ward | 252 | 118 | 134 |
| No. Four Ward | 166 | 72 | 94 |
| Total | 1082 | 307 | 773 |

It will be seen by these figures that Mr. Rutherford, who was running on the temperance platform, did not succeed in getting the united temperance vote. Even in No. Four Ward, considered the temperance ward of the town, Mr. Rutherford was defeated over two to one. If Mr. Rutherford had contested the honors of the Mayor's chair with a less popular man he would doubtless have polled a higher vote.

THE SELECTED TWELVE.

There was a big crowd around the town buildings waiting returns from the wards as to the election of councillors. When Mayor Stevenson heard that the old standby of No. One was out he ejaculated "Oh John! John!" As was expected, Mr. Harry Winch received a good proportion of the No. One Ward suffrage, coming out at the head of the poll. In No. Two Mr. A. Hall replaces Mr. J. T. Stenson and in No. Four Mr. Wm. Langford replaces Mr. Thomas Menzies.

The plumpers given in No. One Ward are as follows:—Sawyer, 49; Cahill, 29; Winch, 13; McNaughton, 6; Davidson, 3. The plumpers in No. Two were bestowed as as follows:—Stenson, 79; Kelly, 47; McNeil, 3; Hall, 5. No. Three Ward the temperance ticket was Sutton—Yelland, there being about 100 of that team vote put in. There was only a few plumpers put in. The same was the case in No. Four Ward. Kendry—Hartley—Lee, was marked on 90 ballots these three being the temperance men. The ladies were out in full numbers in all the wards, particularly in No. Three, where nearly everyone in the ward registered her opinion as to who should do the civic business for the ward for 1888.

The vote cast for in the councilloric contest was follows:—

NO ONE WARD.

|---|---|
| H. C. Winch | 320 |
| Thos. Cahill | 284 |
| R. S. Davidson | 343 |
| John McNaughton | 150 |
| Bannell Sawyer | 137 |

NO. TWO WARD.

|---|---|
| T. Kelly | 274 |
| A. McNeil | 243 |
| A. Hall | 229 |
| J. T. Stenson | 208 |

NO. THREE WARD.

|---|---|
| W. H. Moore | 276 |
| John Douglas | 231 |
| Wm. Yelland | 199 |
| J. D. Baptie | 196 |
| E. Sutton | 169 |

NO. FOUR WARD.

|---|---|
| Jas. Kendry | 208 |
| J. J. Hartley | 156 |
| Wm. Langford | 128 |
| Wm. Lee | 104 |
| Thos. Menzies | 102 |

The three who received the highest number of votes in each Ward were elected, and the Council for 1888 will be composed as follows:—Mayor, Mr. James Stevenson. Councillors—Ward One, Messrs. Winch, Cahill and Davidson. Ward Two, Messrs. Kelly, McNeil and A. Hall. Ward Three, Messrs. Moore, Douglas and Yelland. Ward Four, Messrs. Kendry, Hartley and Langford.

A large crowd gathered about the Music Hall and town buildings after the close of the poll, and there was some disappointment because there was no public speaking.

AN ENJOYABLE TIME.

Pleasant Afternoon and Evening Spent in the Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

One of the pleasant features of the New Year's Day celebration was the reception given in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association during the afternoon and evening.

The lecture hall was transferred into a very pretty reception room. Sofas and chairs scattered about gave the place an air of easy abandon, while a collection of curios, valuable pieces of fine art, and instrumental music interested all who visited the rooms. Lots of fun was had at the electric battery, though the ladies pronounced it a "shocking" affair. Drapery separated the reception room from the handsomely appointed parlor. Here a large number amused themselves during the afternoon in playing checkers, and other games or in reading the magazines.

The ladies were in charge of the feature of the reception. In the reading room they had coffee and cake ready for all those whose appetites were sharpened by New Years Day's bracing air. Their hospitality was largely patronized and as largely appreciated. The ladies who kindly gave their services were:—Miss Rogers, Miss Moore, Miss Brown, Miss Rutherford, the Misses Taylor, and the Misses Sanderson.

In the evening a vocal and instrumental programme was presented. Several choruses were sung by the Glee Club and Mr. Schneider and Miss Smart presided at the piano.

During the day a committee of young men were present to welcome callers and make everybody feel at home.

CROWDED WITH PILGRIMS

PEOPLE OF ALL NATIONS ARE GATHERED IN ROME.

The Gifts to His Holiness—Tens of Thousands Attend the Pontifical Mass in St. Peter's at Rome—The Celebrations in Other Lands.

ROME, Dec. 31.—The eyes of nearly 300,000,000 of Catholics are to-day turned toward Rome. Never before in the history of the modern world has so brilliant or momentous a pageant been witnessed. From every nation delegates are in Rome to-day. Once more "All roads lead to Rome." The celebration of the Pope's golden jubilee was ushered in by a grand festival high mass in St. Peter's. The Holy Father received the members of the International Committee who brought to him a tribute of 1,000,000 lire. The city is already filled with church dignitaries, princes, princesses, nobles and prominent citizens from every quarter of the globe.

Every one is already looking forward to exhibition day when the countless offerings to His Holiness will be displayed. The first present of note came from the Sultan in the shape of an antique pastoral ring set with precious stones and valued at $50,000. The Queen Regent of Spain sent another ring of sapphires valued at $15,000. The Emperor of Germany has sent a miter worked in gold with rubies, emeralds, sapphires and brilliants, and the Empress sent a set of vestments valued at 30,000 francs, which the Pope will wear in celebrating his jubilee mass to-morrow. Many of the presents are of almost inestimable value, including gifts from the Emperor and Empress of Austria, the Duc de Nemours, the Princess Clotilde Bonaparte, sister of King Humbert, the Queen of Saxony, Queen Victoria, Protestant and Romish potentates and rulers alike vying in the expression of their friendship and veneration for the occupant of the Holy See. Cardinal Gibbons of America personally conveyed to the Pope the present transmitted by Mr. Cleveland. Addresses almost without number have been received from all parts of the world and the offerings of the faithful in various sums, it is believed, will exceed $1,000,000. The German-American Roman Catholic editors, some fifty in number, united in presenting a special offering.

Every reigning monarch of Europe, with the exception of the Emperor of Russia, has joined in showering compliments and costly presents on the Pope, and the aggregate value of the tributes it is now expected will exceed $20,000,000.

THE PONTIFICIAL MASS.

St. Peter's Packed With People—Enthusiasm of the Audience.

ROME, Jan. 1.—The pontifical mass to-day was a great success. Thousands of people thronged St. Peter's square early in the morning awaiting the opening of the cathedral. Sixty thousand admission tickets had been issued and the cathedral was packed. The Pope entered at 8.30 a.m., followed by the cardinals in procession. His Holiness was received with loud and long continued shouts of "Long live the Pope." The music of the mass was deeply impressive, and many persons in the audience were affected. The Pope blessed all present and left the cathedral at 11 a.m. The whole audience expressed its joy by clapping hands, waving hats and handkerchiefs and enthusiastic exclamations.

Later in the day King Humbert expressed himself to a deputation from Parliament as being highly satisfied with the smoothness of the ceremony, which he said was the best proof of the Pope's liberty in Rome.

Forty-eight cardinals and 238 archbishops and bishops were present at the mass, and it is estimated that there were 30,000 persons in the audience. The Pope prayed for a long time in his private chapel and then received the homage of the Court Cardinals in the Sala Ducale. While assuming the sacerdotal vestments the Pope was overcome with emotion and fainted. Strong salts were administered and he soon returned to consciousness. Just before he was fully vested for the altar he again fainted, remaining unconscious a few moments.

Special Masses in Great Britain.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Special masses in honor of the Pope's Jubilee were celebrated to-day in the cathedrals and other churches throughout Great Britain. The ceremonies were largely attended and fervent enthusiasm was manifested.

The Celebration in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 1.—The celebration of the Pope's jubilee was continued in this city to-day. At the cathedral the grand high mass was celebrated and Cardinal Gibbons preached, giving a history of the Pope.

At Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—The Pope's Golden Jubilee was celebrated with elaborate ceremonies in the cathedral in this city to-day.

CONGRATULATING THE POPE.

He Receives 2500 Telegrams—Autograph Letters to all the Sovereigns.

ROME, Jan. 2.—At the conclusion of the jubilee services yesterday the Pope retired to his private apartments and rested for two hours. His Holiness was not feeling ill, however, from the effects of his exertions at the mass in St. Peter's in the morning and to-day is in his usual state of health. Yesterday he received 2500 congratulatory telegrams.

His Holiness has informed all the special foreign envoys that he will grant them an audience for their leave taking whenever they desire. He intends to send autograph letters to all the sovereigns who have written to him. It is stated in Vatican circles that the letter to Queen Victoria will be of special importance.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

Agnes started to her feet. She placed herself at the piano; the instrument being opposite to the door, it was impossible, when she seated herself on the music stool, for any person entering the room to see her face. Henry called out irritably, "Come in."

The door was not opened. The person on the other side asked a strange question:

"Is Mr. Henry Westwick alone?"

Agnes instantly recognized the voice of the countess. She hurried to a second door, which communicated with one of the bedrooms. "Don't let her come near me!" she whispered, nervously. "Good night, Henry! good night!"

If Henry could, by an effort of will, have transported the countess to the uttermost ends of the earth he would have made the effort without remorse. As it was, he only repeated, more irritably than ever, "Come in!"

She entered the room slowly with her everlasting manuscript in her hand. Her step was unsteady; a dark flush appeared on her face in place of its customary pallor; her eyes were bloodshot and widely dilated. In approaching Henry she showed a strange incapability of calculating her distances—she struck against the table near which he happened to be sitting. When she spoke her articulation was confused, and her pronunciation of some of the longer words was hardly intelligible. Most men would have suspected her of being under the influence of some intoxicating liquor. Henry took a truer view—he said, as he placed a chair for her, "Countess, I am afraid you have been working too hard; you look as if you wanted rest."

She put her hand to her head.

"My invention is gone," she said. "I can't write my fourth act. It's all a blank—all a blank!"

Henry advised her to wait till the next day.

"Go to bed," he suggested, "and try and sleep."

She waved her hand impatiently.

"I must finish the play," she answered. "I only want a hint from you. You must know something about plays. Your brother has got a theatre. You must often have heard him talk about fourth and fifth acts—you must have seen rehearsals, and all the rest of it." She abruptly thrust the manuscript into Henry's hand. "I can't read it to you," she said; "I feel giddy when I look at my own writing. Just run your eye over it, there's a good fellow—and give me a hint."

Henry glanced at the manuscript. He happened to look at the list of the persons of the drama. As he read the list he started and turned abruptly to the countess, intending to ask her for some explanation. The words were suspended on his lips. It was but too plainly useless to speak to her. Her head lay back on the upper rail of the chair. She seemed to be half asleep already. The flush on her face had deepened; she looked like a woman who was in danger of having a fit.

He rang the bell, and directed the man who answered it to send one of the chambermaids upstairs. His voice seemed to partially rouse the countess; she opened her eyes in a slow, drowsy way. "Have you read it?" she asked.

It was necessary, as a mere act of humanity, to humor her. "I will read it willingly," said Henry, "if you will go upstairs to bed. You shall hear what I think of it to-morrow morning. Our heads will be clearer, we shall be better able to make the fourth act in the morning."

The chambermaid came in while he was speaking. "I am afraid the lady is ill," Henry whispered. "Take her up to her room." The woman looked at the countess, and whispered back, "Shall we send for a doctor, sir?"

Henry advised taking her upstairs first, and then asking the manager's advice. There was great difficulty in persuading her to rise and accept the support of the chambermaid's arm. It was only by reiterated promises to read the play that night, and to make the fourth act in the morning, that Henry prevailed on the countess to return to her room.

Left to himself he began to feel a certain languid curiosity in relation to the manuscript. He looked over the pages, reading a line here and a line there. Suddenly he changed color as he read—and looked up from the manuscript like a man bewildered. "Good God! what does this mean!" he said to himself.

His eyes turned nervously to the door by which Agnes had left him. She might return to the drawing room; she might want to see what the countess had written. He looked back again at the passage which startled him—considered with himself for a moment—and suddenly and softly left the room.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Entering his own room on the upper floor, Henry placed the manuscript on the table open at the first leaf. His nerves were unquestionably shaken; his hand trembled as he turned the pages; he started at chance noises on the staircase of the hotel.

The scenario, or outline, of the countess' play began with no formal prefatory phrases. She presented herself and her work with the easy familiarity of an old friend.

"Allow me, dear Mr. Francis Westwick, to introduce to you the persons in my proposed play. Behold them arranged symmetrically in a line.

"The lord. The baron. The courier. The doctor. The countess.

"I don't trouble myself, you see, to invent fictitious family names. My characters are sufficiently distinguished by their social titles, and by the striking contrast which they present one with another.

"The first act opens——

"No! Before I open the first act I must announce, in justice to myself, that this play is entirely the work of my own invention. I scorn to borrow from actual events; and, what is more extraordinary still, I have not stolen one of my ideas from the modern French drama. As the manager of an English theatre, you will naturally refuse to believe this. It doesn't matter. Nothing matters—except the opening of my first act.

"We are at Homburg, in the famous Salon d'Or, at the height of the season. The countess (exquisitely dressed) is seated at the green table. Strangers of all nations are standing behind the players venturing their money, or only looking on. My lord is among the strangers. He is struck by the countess' personal appearance, in which beauties and defects are fantastically mingled in the most attractive manner. He watches the countess' game, and places his money where he sees her deposit her own little stake. She looks round at him, and says, 'Don't trust to my color; I have been unlucky the whole evening. Play your stake on the other color, and you may have a chance of winning.' My lord (a true Englishman) blushes, bows and obeys. The countess proves a true prophet. She loses again. My lord wins twice the sum that he has risked.

"The countess rises from the table. She has no more money, and she offers my lord her chair.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be hoodwinked with trumpery in the way of pressuts. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 per cent off.

QUAKING, SHAKING, CRASHING, SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this. If merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices on which he is realizing a profit, who is to blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARD'S MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this it how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $8 75, this is an all wool coat, well made and SHEPPARD'S price to-day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6.50, SHEPPARD'S price to-day is $2.95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3 75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' Suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, SHEPPARD is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—Xmas Goods, Plush Albums, regular price $2 00, SHEPPARD'S price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, SHEPPARD'S price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPAR'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

CALLING OUT RESERVES.

IT HAS NO CONNECTION WITH THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The Roumanian Arsenal Working Night and Day—Large Supplies Purchased for the Russian Army in the Districts Near the Austrian Frontier.

VIENNA, Jan. 3.—The action of the Government in calling out the reserves in Moravia has no connection with the political situation, the intention being to call out the reserves of all the army corps in rotation for a seven days' drill in the use of repeating rifles.

Activity in Roumania.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 3.—A decree has been published, fixing the number of recruits for the coming year at 44,500. This is a notable increase, and is regarded as a proof that Roumania is preparing for coming events. The arsenal and State railway factories are working night and day, and their hands have been doubled. Premier Bratiano states that Roumania if obliged to enter the field can do so with 300,000 men.

Russian Army Supplies.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The Russian Government is about to adopt a new law to prevent private railway companies from nullifying the effect of prohibitive duties against Germany and Austria by largely reducing freight rates.

A despatch from Odessa says that Russian Government contractors have purchased 948,000 barrels of flour, 132,000 bushels of barley and 108,000 bushels of oats, at the cost of a million roubles, for the southern army in the districts near the Austrian frontier.

The Times correspondent at St. Petersburg says the new Finance Minister's budget estimates a surplus of several million pounds. This is partly due to the decrease in the military estimates. The Minister reports to the Czar to emphasize the necessity of peace as a means of developing the country's resources. The budget was compiled with the intention of making a good impression abroad.

Opposed to War.

VIENNA, Jan. 3.—Col. Zalell, who has returned to his duties as military attache to the Russian Embassy, says he found the Czar absolutely opposed to war.

THE DOCTORS WAVER.

High Authority Says That the Crown Prince's Malady Cannot be Cancer.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—A private letter from San Remo says the doctors are beginning to waver in their opinions regarding the case of the Crown Prince.

Prof. Thiersch of Leipsic University says according to the recent accounts from San Remo the Crown Prince's malady cannot be cancer.

An Auspicious Harbinger.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—La Liberte, in an unusually courteous and kindly article, congratulates the German Crown Prince upon his improving symptoms. The paper expresses the hope that this will prove to the Crown Prince an auspicious harbinger of the new year.

The Proposed Regency.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—The North German Gazette denies that any court circular has proposed to establish a regency to meet the contingency of the sudden death of Emperor William and the inability of the Crown Prince to assume the reins of power. It is not true. The Gazette further says, that the Crown Prince consulted a Baden statesman on the proposal that he should abdicate. Although The Gazette's language is emphatic the former statement, that the question of the abdication of the Crown Prince had been the subject of negotiations, remains authentic. The denial is understood to have been issued under a demand from San Remo.

A PAPAL ENCYCLICAL.

Better Enforcement of the Concordat Urged —Demands of the Nuncio.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—A papal encyclical to the Bavarian bishops urges a better enforcement of the concordat. It says: "The church has observed her pledges while the state has neglected its pledges. It is necessary to guard the religious education of youth. Secular schools are a danger to the state itself."

The encyclical precedes demands of the Papal Nuncio for extension of rights of priests to regulate schools.

Movement of Troops in Abyssinia.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—A despatch from Massowah says the King of Abyssinia, accompanied by the Queen of Volicgallas and a number of troops, has arrived at Aksum. Two columns commanded by the son of King John are nearing Asmara.

NECESSITY KNOWS NO LAW.

Dr. McGlynn Corroborated—Cardinal Manning on the Laws of Property.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The Times London despatch says the cablegram which Dr. McGlynn read at the Anti-Poverty meeting here on Sunday night, correctly reported Cardinal Manning's words. They occur in a little article in The Fortnightly. The exact words are: "I answer that the obligation to feed the hungry springs from the natural right of every man to life, and to the food necessary for the sustenance of life. So strict is this natural right, that it prevails over all positive laws of property. Necessity has no law, and a starving man has a natural right to his neighbor's bread."

THE LIZZIE BRAY INQUEST.

A Verdict of Murder Brought Against the Seducer of the Girl.

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—At the inquest yesterday, Coroner Powell and the jury severely censured a doctor for neglecting to report the case to the police, when it was clearly his duty to do so, instead of yielding to the desires of friends of deceased. The result of this neglect had been the escape of the man guilty of the crime.

Mrs. Ellen Smith testified how John Gamble came to her house on Church street, representing himself as a Northern Railway man, and hired rooms for his alleged sister. The couple passed under the names of Mr. and Miss Black. When witness learned that Miss Black was about to be confined they were turned out.

Mary Ann McNamara, a servant at Mrs. Smith's boarding house while Mr. and Miss Black were there, testified that shortly after the couple left Mrs. Smith's, she quit also and went to live at 67 Walton-street, next door to Lizzie Bray's aunt's house. Witness identified deceased as being the alleged Miss Black.

Dr. John Ferguson, 321 Spadina-avenue, who attended the girl through her sufferings, deposed that he had given a certificate of burial to the friends of deceased showing that Lizzie Bray died of peritonitis. From the symptoms witness concluded that the inflammation of certain organs was brought about by interference with the course of nature. At first witness did not suspect it was by abortion, but simply a miscarriage. He said nothing to the police about the matter, not from any motive to conceal, but thought it was best, considering the circumstances, to say nothing.

Dr. Geo. H. Corbeth, College-street, also deposed that in view of the circumstances it was not his place to say anything about the matter. He knew there had been interference with the course of nature, that something had been done before the miscarriage occurred to prevent deceased ever being in condition to recover.

Dr. Luke Teskey read the result of the post mortem which, after describing the appearances, concluded by saying the abortion might have been produced mechanically or combined with the use of drugs, but there were no distinctive signs of what had been used.

The anonymous letter that gave the detectives information of the crime was read to the jury. In summing up Coroner Powell said there was ample evidence to connect Gamble with the abortion and death of Lizzie Bray and such a crime was murder. "We medical men are all liable to make mistakes," he said, "and we are all guilty of errors in judgment, but a very grave error has been made in this case. The doctor who signed that certificate of burial made a grave mistake. Had that death certificate been refused properly, then the man guilty of this awful crime would have been secured. However, yielding to the very natural wishes of the friends of deceased, the certificate was given and the doctor was derelict in his duty. I have to tell you that Dr. Ferguson swore that the girl was murdered, and that he knew of this attempt being made, and knowing all this, gave a certificate to cover it up; and it nearly caused a murdered girl to be buried without the knowledge of any authority. Through carelessness and misplaced kindness a culprit has escaped and is now a fugitive from justice."

The jury returned the following verdict: "That on Dec. 19, 1887, at 69 Walton street, Elizabeth Bray died of peritonitis brought on by abortion, the said abortion being caused by drugs administered, or instruments used, by John Gamble. And we find that the said John Gamble did murder the said Elizabeth Bray. Farther, we are of opinion that Dr. Ferguson, the physician, should be highly censured for granting a burial certificate knowing and suspecting what he did."

THE MANITOBA OPPOSITION.

Will Even Accept a Coalition to Defeat Dr. Harrison's Government.

From The Empire.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 3.—Notwithstanding the protest of the Opposition that they would not enter into a coalition rumors are current that, to compass the defeat of Dr. Harrison's Government they are willing to take in Mr. Prendergast, who, it is said, is not unwilling to join forces with his political opponents if an English-speaking Conservative can be induced to enter the Cabinet with him.

At the nominations for Assiniboia to-day Mr. Ness, Conservative, and Mr. Macarthur, Independent, were nominated. The latter declined to define his position further than that he would support measures in the best interests of the province.

CANADIAN WHEAT IN ENGLAND.

Comments of the Leading Organ of the Milling Trade.

From The Empire.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The bountiful harvest in the northwest is leading British millers to consider the possibility of increased purchases of Canadian hard wheat. The Miller, the leading organ of the trade, to-day urges British millers, themselves or by deputy, to purchase wheat in the Canadian Northwest direct from the growers, and ship it straight to the British markets. It says there is every reason to expect that the co-operation of the Canadian Pacific Railway will make Manitoba and the Northwest the granary for British millers.

BUNCOMBE RESOLUTIONS.

MEETING OF THE AMERICAN FISHERY ASSOCIATION.

Sympathy Pumped Up for the Fish Pirates "Who Are Denominated the "Hardy Fishermen of the Eastern States"—A Demand for the Enforcement of the "Retaliation" Bill.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—A public meeting was held here this evening, under the auspices of the National Fishery Association, for the purpose of expressing the sentiment of American citizens on the fisheries question. Governor Beaver of this state presided and made an enthusiastic speech. Hon. W. M. Cogswell of Massachusetts, Charles Emery Smith of this city, and Rev. J. G. Bolton, also of this city, followed with addresses, after which the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The rights of American fishermen have been denied and the lawful prosecution of their industry hindered for years past by the authorities of the Dominion of Canada, and

Whereas, The proposals stated to have been made by the British and Canadian Governments for the settlement of the fisheries question imperil the very existence of our fisheries, therefore,

Resolved, That the hardy fishermen of our eastern states, who have served the country in a laborious industry in peace and defended it in war, are entitled to the protection our laws extend to them and also to the sympathy of every patriotic American in their present struggle for their rights.

Resolved, That as long as Canada and Newfoundland deny to our fishermen in their ports any of the ordinary privileges belonging by international law or usage to the vessels of friendly nations, the United States should refuse all such privileges in American ports to the vessels of those two colonies.

Resolved, That we call upon the National Executive to apply to the settlement of the fisheries question the peaceful exercise of the powers vested in it by the forty-ninth Congress for this purpose.

Resolved, That we protest against any re-establishment of one-sided reciprocity with Canada, such as existed in the years 1854-1867, and against any proposal to admit Canadian fish or other products free of duty to the markets of this country, and

Whereas, Canada now imposes upon salt fish caught by our fishermen an import duty of 2 cents per pound and upon fresh fish three-fourths of a cent per pound, while our import duty on salt fish caught by Canadian fishermen is at the inadequate rate of 1 cent per pound and their fresh fish enters our ports free of duty;

Resolved, That the duty upon Canadian salt fish should be raised as promptly as possible to at least 2 cents per pound and a duty of at least 2 cent per pound should be levied upon their fresh fish.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be forwarded to His Excellency the President of the United States, to the Honorable Secretary of State, to the presiding officers of the two Houses of Congress, to the Governors of each of the United States and the Senators and Representatives from Pennsylvania.

LONDON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Out of 147 Applicants Only 20 Passed—History Proves a Stumbling Stone.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Inspector Boyle's report, read at the meeting of the School Board to-night, shows that out of 147 applicants for admission to the Collegiate Institute only 20 passed, 13 girls and 7 boys. In history alone 103 were plucked.

By a clerical error Charles Taylor was announced as having been elected alderman for Ward 1 yesterday. It seems he was six votes behind Heaman, who consequently gets the seat.

Sir Thomas Esmonde Ill.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3.—Sir Thomas Esmonde was confined to his room in St. Lawrence Hall all day yesterday. He is unwell and was unable to fill his engagement to lecture in Ottawa. Sir Thomas will not leave his room or receive visitors until Wednesday. He will undoubtedly speak in Queen's Hall to-morrow evening and be present at the banquet on Thursday. About 200 tickets have been sold for the complimentary banquet. The reserved seats have all been secured for the meeting to-morrow.

Grit Nomination in East Northumberland.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 3.—At the Peform convention held here to-day Richard Clarke, Police Magistrate for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, was chosen to contest East Northumberland in the Liberal interest at the coming local election, made vacant by the unseating of Dr. Willoughby.

A Railway Station Burnt.

PETERSBORO, Jan. 3.—The old Grand Junction Railway station at Ashburnham was destroyed by fire to-night. It was worth about $500 and was insured. A quantity of flour and butter was damaged. The fire is supposed to be incendiary.

COASTING ACCIDENT.

A Hamilton Boy Breaks His Leg—Test of the Chemical Engine.

HAMILTON, Jan. 3.—In company with several other lads Lorne Sterling was engaged yesterday in coasting near the Victoria-avenue toboggan slide. In coming down the sleigh went so rapidly that the guide could not regulate the course and the consequence was that they ran into a log near the bottom of the slide. Young Sterling was thrown off and had his right leg broken. The rest of the boys escaped without any injuries.

Yesterday a test was made of the chemical fire engine. A combustible shanty had been built and made more so by the application of forty gallons of coal oil. At 3 o'clock the chemical made its appearance, and shortly afterwards the dummy house was ablaze. The spectators, who numbered about 2000, soon made room around the burning shanty, as the heat was intense. One minute after the engine had been directed towards the burning mass, the fire was effectually squelched.

While James Wilds was working in a well forty feet deep, a stone fell from above and struck him on the head, inflicting a severe scalp wound.

So far over $900 has been collected in Hamilton for the jubilee fund of Queen's College, Kingston, and $15,000 is expected.

PETROLEUM EXCITED.

The Highest Price for Over Two Years Reached at New York Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The petroleum market was active and excited all day, and the prices touched the highest point for over two years. The opening was excited at 90½c, and in the first half-hour the price advanced 3⅜c to 93¾c. There was a slight reaction from this figure, and the market was steady around 93 until afternoon, when the price suddenly jumped to 94⅝c. Another reaction followed but the heavy buying, which was a noticeable feature all day, continued and the market closed strong and excited at 95⅝c.

"Shorts" Squeezed at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 3.—The excitement in oil here to-day has seldom been equalled. The shorts made a great rush to cover but many of them were unsuccessful owing to the scarcity of certificates.

ECHOES FROM THE JUBILEE.

The Peter's Pence Collected at the Mass Amount to £80,000.

ROME, Jan. 3.—The Peter's pence collected at the jubilee mass amounted to £80,000.

The Shah of Persia sent a congratulatory telegram to the Pope.

The Pope has received a friendly letter from the Czar, in which he expresses a hope for better relations between the Greek and Catholic Church in Russia.

An Address to The Pilgrims.

ROME, Jan. 3.—The Pope addressed the pilgrims to-day in the presence of the whole Court. He said:

"You have not given faith to those who with the voice of calumny try to persuade you that the Pope is the enemy of Italy. The Popes have always been the greatest friends and benefactors of Italy. You, like ourselves, are convinced that the Church, by her holy mission, ought to be independent of whatsoever terrestrial authority—[cries of 'Yes,' 'yes']—that the church is a divine institution, and that to try to reduce its interests to a question of the laws of Italy can only be the result of most deplorable blindness."

THE CZAR'S WINTER RESIDENCE.

To Leave the Gatschina Palace for St. Petersburg This Week.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 3.—The Imperial family will leave the Gatschina Palace at the end of this week, and will come to St. Petersburg to reside for ten weeks. Special measures have been taken to protect the Czar. Several hundred special detectives watch the streets along which the Czar is likely to pass.

Mr. Sheehy Creates Excitement.

DUBLIN, Jan. 3.—Mr. Wilfrid Blunt and Lady Blunt, and Messrs. Evelyn and MacDermott, members of Parliament, were welcomed at Portumna yesterday by 2000 persons. Great excitement was caused by the simultaneous arrival of Mr. Sheehy in his prison garb. The police escorting Mr. Sheehy were considerably hustled by the people shaking hands with the prisoner.

Political Agitation in Central America.

PANAMA, Dec. 25.—Information has been received here that there is much political agitation observable in the Central American Republics. On Dec. 15 orders were received by the Commander of the Port of Acajutta to keep his men under arms, as it was suspected that the revolutionary party was preparing to strike a fresh blow.

Swinburne Burlesques Ignatius Donnelly.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Swinburne contributes to The Nineteenth Century a burlesque article to prove that Darwin wrote Tennyson's poems. He writes a short introduction stating his conviction of the value of what follows, and gives a contribution dated from the Hanwell lunatic asylum, shewing by intrinsic evidence in the poems of the "Princess" and "Maud" that Tennyson used a cryptogram revealing Darwin as the real author.

DISTRICT NOTES.

News of the Midland District Condensed From Contemprarics.

Two members of John Hall's family, Mariposa, are suffering from diphtheria.

G. H. Doxee is building a new planing mill at Campbellford.

Mrs. Samuel Vance, Desoronto, went to church on Sunday, retired in apparently good health, and died on Monday.

At Cobourg on Tuesday, Ralph Clifton and George Walk were tried for burglary and arson at Brighton. They were remanded for sentence.

Night work continuing till half past nine is being performed in the various departments of the Trent Valley Woollen Mills, Campbellford.

Parkin's restaurant and Young & Southern's barber shop at Trenton were destroyed by fire on Monday night.

Mrs. James Scrimgeour, of Port Hope, aged 70, died on Tuesday, the result of being knocked down on the street by a buggy.

Fire did damage to the extent of $300 on Sunday to a storehouse in Cobourg owned by C. R. Mallory and occupied by D. Rooney and Mrs. McCaffrey.

Two citizens of Hastings are the joint possessors of a piece of equine property which with judicious feeding and careful handling, is expected to rival "Maud S.," in the near future.

Mrs. Henry Puffer, of Hastings, was painfully burned about the face and arms while lighting a fire in a stove last week.

The Rev. D. C. Johnston, of Oil Springs, will be inducted into the pastorate of Knox Church, Beaverton, on Jan 10th.

John Martin, of Lindsay, engaged in a friendly wrestle with an acquaintance and by an unfortunate trip had his leg broken.

A house in Lindsay occupied by Wm. Herlihey was burned on Monday morning. Mr. Herlihey escaped through a second storey window.

James Givens, of North Mara, while partridge hunting, accidently shot himself, the charge entering his arm below the shoulder and coming out at the elbow.

Alex. D. Campbell, of Hartley, while chopping, let the axe slip and cut an ugly gash in his foot below the ankle.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

LAW'S NEW IRON WORKS

BRIDGES, NOT BRICKS, TO BE MADE AT THE RIVER SIDE.

The Tall Chimney Smoking once more—Description of the Factory, its Facility for Turning out Iron-ware—The Machinery—Personal.

The smokeless chimney at the "Romaine" brick works, which has for many years stood as a monument of ill ended enterprise, has been at length brought into use, and the white cloud that now curls from its tall top gives the evidence of renewed activity below.

In the beginning of the building season Mr. T. M. D. Croly and a staff of men started the work of transforming the building from a brick and tile factory to a place suitable for bridge building. Mr. Croly had quite a contract on his hands. First of all, he had to move away the huge piles of brick which built up the kilns. The quantity of brick in these kilns was two hundred thousand. Then the roof was to be supported by an extensive system of truss work, and other buildings were to be built. This has all been done so satisfactorily that Law's Central Iron and Bridge Works has among the most commodious premises of any similar manufactory in the country, covering, as they do, about two and a half acres of ground.

The labor of moving the plant from the factory on Simcoe street, is over and everything is in nice running order.

THE DEPARTMENTS.

The departments in the works are four in number: The blacksmith shop, two machine shops, and the offices. The blacksmith shop is situated at the north end of the main building. It is 40x90 feet. The large machine shop is an immensely large place, 156 feet long and 58 feet wide. It is entered from the blacksmith shop by an arch cut through the wall, while a similar aperture at the opposite end gives admittance to the smaller machine shop, or more properly the finishing department. The offices, 30x30 in connection with the works face Dalhousie street. There is two apartments both comfortably furnished and supplied with latest conveniences. Besides these buildings there is an iron house 28x60, and coal sheds 15x60.

ANALYSIS OF MACHINERY.

The works are fitted with the best fruits of the inventors skill in point of machinery. The whole establishment is equipped in such a manner as to turn out all kinds of bridge work, of the best workmanship, at short notice. The blacksmith shop contains, among other machinery, six forges, A number 4 fan blast raises the necessary wind for all six. It revolves at the rate of 2500 turns to the minute, and the breeze that it generates is conveyed to not only the forges in this department but to rivet forges in other parts of the works. The ponderous steam hammer which Mr. Law recently imported is fixed on a firm foundation in close proximity to the forges. Its capacity for tremendous execution has been fully described in the REVIEW heretofore, and no further mention of it, therefore, need now be given. The machinery in other departments consist of an automatic bolt cutting machine, heavy and light punching machines, both horizontal and vertical; shearing machines for both plate and bar iron; a straightening machine, for reducing almost any kind of iron in a proper curve or for taking out an objectionable curve; a sawing machine, used for sawing cold iron or steel. The cutter is capable of sawing a block of iron 8¾ inches thick by 24 inches wide. Drilling machines, horizontal borers, lathes, planers, shapers, and other minor machines make up the full complement necessary to successfully carry on a business of this kind. Mr. Law is determined to have his works so fitted that they will be classed at the head of the list, and to this end he has sent to England for a direct action hydraulic rivetter, a piece of machinery on the market only a short time. It is the first of its kind to come to Canada. A large emery wheel with 6 inch face and a diameter of 30 inches will be put up in a few days.

MOTIVE POWER AND APPURTANENCES.

The power to drive the machinery is derived from a 100 horse power English engine, manufactured by the Stephenson Co. Its two cylinders are each 14x24 and its 160 tubes are of brass. The smoke from the furnace is carried aloft by chimney 150 feet high, 12 feet broad at the base and five feet broad at the summit. The water to feed the boiler is pumped by a Northey steam pump from the Otonabee river to a cylindrical tank 4 feet in diameter by 12 feet long. The exhaust steam of the boiler passes through this tank and keeps it uniformly warm, so that when the boiler requires water it is not necessary to waste time heating it. One object in this arrangement is, that after awhile it is the intention of Mr. Law to heat the building with hot water, instead of by steam as at present. The boiler used to drive the engine and the whole machinery of the works, also supplies motive power for the steam hammer. The power is taken from the engine and given to a main line of shafting in the big machine shop. The various pieces of machinery take power from it by belting attachments. At the south end of this department the power is transferred from the main line to another line by means of belting and gearing, and that doles out the necessary amount of motive strength to run the machinery in the finishing department.

THE BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

The buildings are of a most appropriate kind for carrying on this kind of business The floors are the solid earth; the walls are of brick well penetrated by windows; and the roof is held up by about twenty complete trusses, the girder in each being capable of bearing twenty tons weight. Any heavy piece of work may be taken up and held by one or more of the girders in addition to the duty they customarily do The grounds extend from Sherbrooke street to Dalhousie street, and face the Otonabee River. They embrace about two and a half acres altogether. A branch of the Canadian Pacific railway runs into the yard of the works and this, together with the fact that a derrick, operated by power taken from the works, will render the shipping a much less arduous task than is ordinarily the case where heavy articles are to be handled.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. H. Law is a man thoroughly conversant with all branches of mechanics His ability in iron working, and especially in bridge building, is told by the fact that he has built up a flourishing trade here in a comparatively short time and has even "carried war into Africa" by entering successfully into competition with Toronto and other bridge works for the bridge trade of Western Ontario. With ample appliances at his command for turning out good work, and more of it in less time than was formerly the case, there is no reason why the Peterborough bridge trade should not continue to expand.

Mr. John Carnegie, who owns the property, has spent a large sum of money in making it available for present uses. In enhancing the value of his property by fitting it up in this way, he has also opened the way for the employment of more labor, a thing which the citizens will appreciate

EVENING CONCERT.

In Bradburn's Opera House by the Pupils of Notre Dame Convent.

On Wednesday evening a concert was given in Bradburn's Opera House by the pupils of the Notre Dame Convent, in connection with the bazaar being held under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Sodality of the St. Peter's Cathedral congregation.

The opening number was a grand entree "Royal Hunt," in which the orchestra, three pianos and an organ were used. A welcome chorus was then sung by about fifty fresh young voices, led by Miss A. Dunn. On the children leaving the stage little Miss Emma Timbers remained to recite a short salutatory, which she did in a distinct and graceful manner. After this a whole troop of little girls danced out all in pink and white and sang a chorus entitled "We really can't keep still," the words of which they emphasised every now and then by joining hands and dancing merrily around. Josie Morrow, Adele Doris and Daisy Dolan, three plump little misses just able to lisp nicely, took the solo parts and made the house ring with laughter and applause. They looked very pretty, indeed. Another orchestral selection "Esquisse Militaire," was given by the orchestra, assisted by the pupils at the pianos and organ.

Then came an operetta "Little Red Riding Hood," the story being sung through very creditably. Miss Gertie Sullivan was Red Riding Hood, Miss Jennie McCabe, Mamma; Miss Dunn, Grandma; Miss Stewart, Woodman; Miss Minnie Begley, Rose; Miss Maggie Doherty, Robin; and Miss May Donoghue and Miss Katie Griffin, Buttercups.

A galop de concert was given by the orchestra and six pianists with much spirit and brilliance. The ensemble was fairly good and the various movements were performed with much smoothness.

A pretty little vocal quartette called "a Bird Cantata" by Miss Stewart, Miss McCabe, Miss Scollard and Miss Fobert was one of the most successful numbers on the programme. It was received with much favor by the audience.

A comic dialogue "A Precious Pickle" came next, illustrating the experience of three city girls in the country. Miss M. Morrow, Miss M. Doherty and Miss A. Stewart were the city girls; Miss Ella Crowly, the Irish washerwoman; Miss Crummie, Juno, the darky; Miss Annie Simons, the washerwoman's daughter, and Miss McCabe, the hostess.

A vocal duet by Miss Dunn and Miss Tierney, "New Year," given with fine effect brought the programme to an end and the concert closed with "God Save the Queen."

The Sisters of the Convent, who trained the children, were very successful in their undertaking. The choruses of the children were highly pleasing.

"OLD king Cole was a merry old soul," but we believe that kidd sells boots with BETTER soles on than ever old King Cole wore, in fact we KNOW it.

REVIEWS.

THE CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE—The January number, which begins the twenty-seventh volume of this increasingly popular Magazine, is the most handsomely illustrated one yet issued. It opens with a graphic outline of Sir Walter Scott's greatest poem, "Marmion," with eleven exquisite engravings of feudal life and times. Then follows a racy sketch of recent experiences in China, with eleven fine engravings. Of special interest to all Irish readers will be the next article—the first of a series on Picturesque Ireland—with six graphic illustrations of some of the most romantic scenery in Killarney, Clare, Donegal and elsewhere. "A Boycott and its Consequences," an Irish Christmas story of to-day, gives a vivid account of the social disorganization of that country. "The Story of Metlakahtla," by the Rev. J. W. Annis, B. A., recounts a stirring tale of mission work in British Columbia. "The Trails and Triumphs of Prohibiton," by the Rev. J. S. Ross, M. A., is a paean of encouragement to all Temperance workers. Another story by Mrs. A. E. Barr, "The Lost Silver of Briffault," a tale of absorbing interest of Methodist life in the Southern States—is begun. This volume promises to surpass any previously issued.

DAIRYMEN IN COUNCIL.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE EASTERN ASSOCIATION.

An Address by the President, Followed by a General and Interesting Discussion.

The annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario commenced this forenoon in the Music Hall. Mr. D. M. McPherson, of Lancaster, President, presided and among those present were Messrs. D. Vandewater, 1st Vice-President; James Bissell, 2nd Vice-President; Harford Ashley, Secretary; Wm. Eager, Edward Kidd, F. H. McCrea, James Hagarty, Platt Hinman, Henry Wade, James Hamilton, N. H. Fields, Howard Bissell, Wm. Bissell, James Cheeseman (of the Empire), D. Derbyshire, Prof. J. W. Robertson, P. R. Daly, Prof. I. P. Roberts, T. Blezard, M. P. P., James Millar, Wm. Cluxton, D.J. Millar, Jas. Whitton, E. Barnard, T. E. Bell and about one hundred others.

The PRESIDENT said he was much pleased to meet them in the pleasant and progressive town of Peterborough, the surrounding country of which contained progressive men. They had met to acquire knowledge and to learn how to apply knowledge gained. The dairy interest was beginning to be recognized as the leading business in the country, and it had made marked progress. The value of the dairy export for the past year had been $9,000,000, and half as much more benefit had been received through adding to the fertility of the soil and in such ways. The dairymen of this country had had a monopoly of the cheese trade, but other countries were awakening to the profits of the business, and commencing to compete. This meant a larger production and lower price. He believed, however, that with the experience of Canadian makers and the hold they had on the large markets, they had nothing to fear. By an an application of the principles of the business he believed they would be able to produce at half the present cost. To do that, and at the same time improve the quality, they needed a fertile soil and good healthy animals. No fertilizer was better than that gathered from live stock. He dwelt on the necessity of good buildings. Healthy food, pure air, good water, and non-excitement were essential conditions for the health of animals. To get the best prices co-operation by the farmers, makers and buyers was necessary. By that means higher prices were obtained in Brockville than elsewhere.

Mr. WARRINGTON—Peterborough prices were higher than those of Brockville.

The PRESIDENT said that was another illustration of the benefits of co-operation. The Peterborough section was suited for the production of cheese, and by co-operating and producing a large quantity they attracted buyers and got better prices. Every poor cheese had a bad effect on the product of the district, as also had every poor cow or farm. By united action the quality of their herds would be improved and the farmers would then receive the prices paid in Denmark for Holsteins. The farmers, cheesemakers and buyers should unitedly form a fund to procure inspectors to instruct the makers, test the milk and settle disputes. He advised them to get at the leading principles and build upon them.

Mr. DERBYSHIRE emphasized points made by the President. A poor factory was a detriment to the business and the country, and there should not be too many factories in one section. There was a danger of holding cheese for speculative purposes injuring the trade of the section. It would pay each factory to give $20 to an inspection fund to employ inspectors.

Messrs. Haggarty, Fields and Warrington joined in the discussion, the latter remarking that the Peterborough cheese board was the board of Canada.

The PRESIDENT, in reply to a question, said his suggestion was to increase the flow of milk from the average cow by improving the herds.

Mr. W. D. HOARD suggested a series of conventions in the factories.

Mr. E. BARNARD spoke of the results of educational efforts in Quebec.

Prof. J. W. ROBERTSON suggested establishing dairy schools and the employment of instructors.

After further general discussion and the appointment of committees, the Convention adjourned till 2 o'clock.

A DIALOGUE.

JOHN—"I'm tir'd, yes, William really, of hearing give, give, give,
Our hands may in our pockets be every day we live,
For some church scheme or other in debt, or in sore straits,
As sure as death and taxes are the collection plates."

WILLIAM—"Let us discuss, John, calmly, the evils that you say
So tauntingly confront you in beggarly array,
It may be you have never considerately thought,
Of giving as a question with obligations fraught.

"'Tis not to please the parson or managers that we Give for church schemes, missions, at home or o'er the sea,
'Tis here some err nor marvel, if they shoul d grumble when,
They give just to get rid of, or please their fellow men.

"You go to church on Sunday, one service say at least,
And hear the glorious gospel on which your soul may feast,
And music so melodious, that if you have an ear
At all for sounds harmonious you must delight to hear.

"The heating and the lighting, each faultless in its kind,
Are not the gifts of nature, I beg you bear in mind,
Though generous she never agreement made to meet,
Expenses of providing you with a cushioned seat.

"Now, for church expenditure, is it not just and fair,
John, that you ungrudgingly your part should yearly bear,
Whether express'd, a tacit acknowledgement you make,
To do so when pew sittings in any church you take.

"Then for the claims of the heathen, take God's word as your guide,
And by its sacred teachings may you all times abide.
Before our Lord ascended, he gave this last command,
Proclaim the Gospel message abroa din ev'ry land.

"Now, John, I take for granted that we in this agree,
Our Lord's command is binding alike on you and me,
As on his first disciples, and if we do not go
Ourselves, we may send others by means that we bestow.

"Paul says upon the first day let ev'ry one lay by
Sums in the due proportion of income, low or high,
Now, you and I this counsel of Paul may never shirk,
Unless in case of sickness, or scarcity of work.

"Yes, John, since I have given this systematic way,
It yields a heartfelt pleasure that no one dare gainsay,
If favor'd with high wages, and I can set apart
Work to the Lord, 'tis done with great thankfulness of heart.

"And there's my friend, James Guthrie, who lately to me said,
He never knew the pleasure of giving till he laid
Past ev'ry month, or quarter, when selling grain or stock,
Something for God, like giving the firstlings of his flock.

"Likewise I know some giving their tenth of salaries
To God, besides thank-off'rings and sundry charities,
But if we seek God's guidance, and in His service live,
As steward's of His money, He'll teach us how to give.

"If from no higher motive than recompence it pays,
Give and it shall be given to you, our Saviour says,
'Tis His own words, not ours, that we ask you to receive,
Who said, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

"Give, for the soul that's liberal doth liberal things devise,
On it shall fall the dews of Heavn's grace in rich supplies,
May you and I give freely, and cheerfully as He Hath prosper'd us, thus praying, Thy kingdom come through me.

"Thus Paul says of believers, a true criterion not the spirit of Christ we're none of His,
Give then for Him who lov'ed us, and gave Himself that we
May share His throne of glory through all eternity."

JOHN—"I must confess, dear William, your Scripture views are clear,
For light shed on the subject you have my thanks sincere
Henceforth I trust by giving these sacred words to test,
That he who gives to others himself is doubly blest."

WILLIAM—"When souls are being garner'd from north, south, east and west, John, may His benediction upon us ever rest."

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FOURTH PART.

"Instead of taking it, he politely places his winnings in her hand, and begs her to accept the loan as a favor to himself. The countess stakes again, and loses again. My lord smiles superbly, and presses a second loan on her. From that moment her luck turns. She wins, and wins largely. Her brother, the baron, trying his fortune in another room, hears of what is going on, and joins my lord and the countess.

"Pay attention, if you please, to the baron. He is delineated as a remarkable and interesting character.

"This noble person has begun life with a single minded devotion to the science of experimental chemistry, very surprising in a young and handsome man with a brilliant future before him. A profound knowledge of the occult sciences has persuaded the baron that it is possible to solve the famous problem called the 'Philosopher's Stone.' His own pecuniary resources have long since been exhausted by his costly experiments. His sister has next supplied him with the small fortune at her disposal; reserving only the family jewels, placed in the charge of her banker and friend at Frankfort. The countess' fortune also being swallowed up, the baron has in a fatal moment sought for new supplies at the gaming table. He proves, at starting on his perilous career, to be a favorite of fortune; wins largely, and alas! profanes his noble enthusiasm by yielding his soul to the all defiling passion of the gamester.

"At the period of the play the baron's good fortune has deserted him. He sees his way to a crowning experiment in the fatal search after the secret of transmuting the baser metals into gold. But how is he to pay the preliminary expenses? Destiny, like a mocking echo, answers 'How?'

"Will his sister's winnings (with my lord's money) prove large enough to help him? Eager for this result, he gives the countess his advice how to play. From that disastrous moment the infection of his own adverse fortune spreads to his sister. She loses again and again—loses to the last farthing.

"The amiable and wealthy lord offers a third loan, but the scrupulous countess positively refuses to take it. On leaving the table she presents her brother to my lord. The gentlemen fall into pleasant talk. My lord asks leave to pay his respects to the countess the next morning at her hotel. The baron hospitably invites him to breakfast. My lord accepts, with a last admiring glance at the countess which does not escape her brother's observation, and takes his leave for the night.

"Alone with his sister, the baron speaks out plainly. 'Our affairs,' he says, 'are in a desperate condition and must find a desperate remedy. Wait for me here while I make inquiries about my lord. You have evidently produced a strong impression on him. If we can turn that impression into money, no matter at what sacrifice, the thing must be done.'

"The countess now occupies the stage alone and indulges in a soliloquy which develops her character.

"It is at once a dangerous and attractive character. Immense capacities for good are implanted in her nature, side by side with equally remarkable capacities for evil. It rests with circumstances to develop either the one or the other. Being a person who produces a sensation wherever she goes, this noble lady is naturally made the subject of all sorts of scandalous reports. To one of these reports—which falsely and abominably points to the baron as her lover instead of her brother—she now refers with just indignation. She has just expressed her desire to leave Homburg, as the place in which the vile calumny first took its rise, when the baron returns, overhears her last words, and says to her, 'Yes, leave Homburg by all means; provided you leave it in the character of my lord's betrothed wife!'

"The countess is startled and shocked. She protests that she does not reciprocate my lord's admiration for her. She even goes the length of refusing to see him again. The baron answers, 'I must positively have command of money. Take your choice, between marrying my lord's income, in the interest of my grand discovery—or leave me to sell myself and my title to the first rich woman of low degree who is ready to buy me.'

"The countess listens in surprise and dismay. Is it possible that the baron is in earnest? He is horribly in earnest. 'The woman who will buy me,' he says, 'is in the next room to us at this moment. She is the wealthy widow of a Jewish usurer. She has the money I want to reach the solution of the great problem. I have only to be that woman's husband, and to make myself master of untold millions of gold. Take five minutes to consider what I have told you, and tell me on my return which of us is to marry for the money I want, you or I.'

"As he turns away, the countess stops him. 'All the noblest sentiments in her nature are exalted to the highest pitch. 'Where is the true woman,' she exclaims, 'who wants time to consummate the sacrifice of herself, when the man to whom she is devoted demands it?'

"She does not want five minutes: she does not want five seconds—she holds out her hand to him, and she says: 'Sacrifice me on the altar of your glory! Take as stepping stones on the way to your triumph, my love, my liberty and my life!'

"On this grand situation the curtain falls.

Judging by my first act, Mr. Westwick, tell me truly, and don't be afraid of turning my head. Am I not capable of writing a good play?'

* * * * * *

Henry passed between the first and second acts—reflecting, not on the merits of the play, but on the strange resemblance which the incidents so far presented to the incidents that had attended the disastrous marriage of the first Lord Montbarry.

Was it possible that the countess, in the present condition of her mind, supposed herself to be exercising her invention when she was only exercising her memory?

The question involved consideration too serious to be made the subject of a hasty decision. Reserving his opinion, Henry turned the page and devoted himself to the reading of the next act. The manuscript proceeded as follows:

"The second act opens at Venice. An interval of four months has elapsed since the date of the scene at the gambling table. The action now takes place in the reception room of one of the Venetian palaces.

"The baron is discovered alone on the stage. He reverts to the events which have happened since the close of the first act. The countess has sacrificed herself; the mercenary marriage has taken place—but not without obstacles caused by difference of opinion on the question of marriage settlements.

"Private inquiries instituted in England have informed the baron that my lord's chief income is derived chiefly from what is called entailed property. In case of accidents he is surely bound to do something for his bride. Let him, for example, insure his life for a sum proposed by the baron, and let him so settle the money that his widow will have it if he dies first.

POKING FUN!

The Public are at the moment, somewhat amazed. They say the Tactics some business men are pursuing would lead one to believe that the General Community are taken for idiots; that they have only to make a statement, it matters not how grossly untrue it is, the Public, lamb-like, will take it all in and believe any word of it. Now, to place it mildly, this is expecting altogether too much. However, it is quite true that the public don't care a button how much a man lies about his actual purchases, or about his actual sales, they are after the best value, or in other words they want to find the House giving them the most for their money—all things being equal.

33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS! 33⅓ CENTS!

Now these are the figures representing the actual average SHEPPARD paid for his last purchase. The Goods were bought at Auction for Cash and comprises largely, just such Goods as are in actual demand at this season of the year, and in buying them to-day you will positively save DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR. Don't be misled, don't be hoodwinked with trumpery in the way of presents. All the stuff given away only represents about 10 per cent on the actual purchases, when SHEPPARD is giving you about 50 per cent off.

QUAKING, SHAKING, CRASHING, SLASHING,

But SHEPPARD cannot help this. If merchants pay too much for their Goods and then have to sell at less than cost to compete with SHEPPARD'S prices on which he is realizing a profit, who is to Blame? Surely not Peterborough's Great Cheapside. SHEPPARD'S MISSION is to sell Goods as Cheap as the Cheapest man living, and a little cheaper if possible, and this it how he will do it.

LOT ONE.—Piles of Men's Overcoats, regular price $3 75, this is an all wool coat, well made and SHEPPARD'S price to-day is $3.95. This knocks the bottom clear out of anything ever shown before. Also Boys' Overcoats running up to men's sizes, regular price $6.50, SHEPPARD'S price to-day is $2.95. Won't this shatter the prospects of the man who is after the earth.

LOT TWO.—Men's Suits $3.75 and a pure wool Canadian Tweed Suits in Men's all sizes $4.95, would be as cheap as dirt at $8.95. Boys' Suits really nice and lot of them $1.95, and an overcoat to match $1.95. Think of this, no trashy, shoddy goods, SHEPPARD is not in that business.

LOT THREE.—Xmas Goods. Plush Albums, regular price $2 00, SHEPPARD'S price 99 cents. Children's China Tea Sets complete in Gold and Cardinal, regular price $1.50, SHEPPARD'S price 50 cents. Satchels cheap—in fact all Xmas Goods at ½ regular prices.

Now don't be humbugged or cajoled out of your hard earned money, but go straight to SHEPPARD'S, where you will save DOLLAR for DOLLAR. This is a Monster Sale of Cheap Goods.

SIR JOHN AT EARNSCLIFFE

A BRITISH TRIBUTE TO THE CANADIAN PREMIER.

The London World's Latest Celebrity—The Canadian Ocean Mail Service Should Not Fall Behind the New York—Imperial Subsidy to the Pacific Mail Service.

From The Empire.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Sir George Stephen and Lady Stephen return to Canada on Saturday via New York. Political quidnuncs in Canada are doubtless making surmises as to the outcome of Sir George's visit. As a matter of fact there is no outcome. The details of the Imperial subsidy to the Canada Pacific Mail Service are still under discussion, and the steamer contracts will not be issued until the details have been finally arranged. Sir George's visit in reality partook of a social nature.

Sir John Macdonald at Earnscliffe is the subject of The World's article this week on celebrities. The writer speaks most appreciatively of the Premier's personal qualities, and of his great work, the creation of a national spirit in the Dominion. He regards Sir John Macdonald as an effective exponent of enlightened Conservatism, and really an Imperial statesman.

It is expected here that the new Atlantic mail contract will need an increased subsidy. A strong feeling is expressed that the Canadian ought not to fall behind the New York service.

Mr. Thomas Skinner, a recognized authority in city circles, read a paper before the Institute of Bankers to-night on "British Investments in American Railways." He strongly urged the companies to face the question of rendering the present so-called bonded debt a permanent part of the capital. He instanced the cases of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railroads to show the advantage of permanent stock to a company, and the popularity of the same among British investors.

Toronto municipal bonds are rising. This is expected to assist the issue of the new bonds.

MR. WALDIE'S CAVE-IN.

Judgment in the Halton Case to be Given on Saturday.

MILTON, Jan. 4.—The hearing of the petition to unseat Mr. John Waldie, M. P. for Halton, came on for hearing before Mr. Justice Rose to-day.

Mr. McGibbon appeared for the petitioner, and Mr. Lash, Q. C., for the respondent.

Mr. McGibbon, in opening, stated that an agreement had been arrived at on Monday evening last whereby the respondent agreed to admit bribery by agents and consenting that the election be set aside with costs.

On His Lordship holding that under the statute a charge of bribery by an agent must be proved in court, in order that the proper report under the statute might be returned by the trial judge to the clerk. Mr. McGibbon further stated that he had been engaged all day yesterday in Toronto, that counsel for both parties did not think proof of a charge necessary under the circumstances, and that it being reported that the case had been settled none of the witnesses subpœnaed had attended, and therefore he was unable to proceed to-day.

After discussion, counsel for both parties agreed that the hearing be adjourned to Osgoode hall, Toronto, on Saturday next, when one of the admitted charges could be proven.

His Lordship made the necessary minute of enlargement and the proceedings terminated for the day.

In view of the above facts both parties, feeling that there was no time to lose, are preparing for the coming struggle.

THE QUEBEC PRINTERS' STRIKE.

Adjournment of the Case of the Arrested Apprentice Until Saturday.

QUEBEC, Jan. 4.—This morning at the Recorder's Court, on behalf of the Typographical Unions, Messrs. Fitzpatrick and Miller appeared for the apprentice Lafontaine, who was arrested last evening on a warrant issued by Messrs. Demers & Co., alleging that he had failed in carrying out the contracts of indentures and was therefore liable to imprisonment. Mr. Lemieux appeared for Mr. Demers. Mr. Miller asked that the case be adjourned till Saturday next and the court granted that delay.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

Meagre Details of a Terrible Casualty on the Dutch State Railway.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Two express trains on the Dutch State Railroad collided near Meppe to-day. Twenty-six persons were killed and many injured.

A Train Wrecked.

SHAMOKIN, Jan. 4.—The Pennsylvania Railroad miners' train, carrying 50 men, returning from work, was wrecked here to-night. A sill was wedged on the road bed. This is the third attempt to wreck the train. No person was seriously injured.

AH FAT AND LEE SAM.

The Latter's Sentence Commuted, but the Former Must Hang.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—The cases of the two Chinamen, Ah Fat and Lee Sam, under sentence to be hanged at Victoria, B.C., on Jan. 31 for the murder of a Chinese woman, have been under the consideration of the Government, and it is understood that His Excellency has been pleased to commute Lee Sam's sentence to imprisonment for life, in consideration of his having assisted the officers of the law in bringing the facts of the murder to light. In the case of Ah Fat the law will be allowed to take its course.

It is understood that the Government has decided to locate the experimental farm for the maritime provinces at Nappan, in Cumberland County, which is nearly in the center of the maritime provinces and easily accessible from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island as well as Nova Scotia. The farm consists of about 300 acres of excellent farming land and fifty acres of marsh and cost $15,000.

Ex-Ald. Brown states that he is not satisfied with the result of Monday's election and that he will enter a protest against Mayor Stewart's return. He claims to have evidence of numerous cases of bribery and says that the price of votes varied from $2 to $5.

J. B. Gauvreau, an employe of the Department of Public Works, died suddenly of heart disease about noon to-day, just as he stepped out of the Bank of Montreal, where he had been cashing a check. He had been employed many years by the department and was recently inspector of the wharf just completed at Longueuil.

MAYOR MILLOY CANED.

Address and Presentation to the Mayor of Niagara on His Retirement.

NIAGARA, Jan. 4.—At the last meeting of the old Council of Niagara, held last night, Councillor Wilkinson requested the members to retain their seats as he had been requested to read an address to Mayor Milloy. After Mr. Wilkinson had read the address Reeve Bishop, on behalf of those who had contributed toward the object, presented Mayor Milloy with a very handsome gold-headed cane as a token of respect on his retirement from the mayoralty.

The Mayor replied at length. Mr. Milloy said that he had always endeavored to the best of his ability to do his duty, and the presentation caused him to feel grateful.

The Montreal Detectives' Case.

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—Argument of counsel, on application to admit the accused detectives to bail, was heard to-day by Chief Justice Dorion and Judges Church and Doherty, the application being taken on delibere until to-morrow. It is understood that if the prisoners are admitted to bail in consequence of this application they will be arrested on another charge.

CARNOT IS FOR PEACE.

Assurances From the President of the French Republic to Emperor William.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4.—According to diplomatic advices President Carnot has instructed M. Herbette, the French Ambassador at Berlin, to assure Emperor William that while he remains at the head of the Republic no French Government will be permitted to adopt a warlike policy.

Francis Joseph's Prayer.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—A despatch from Vienna to The Cologne Gazette says that in the message sent by Emperor Francis Joseph to Emperor William on the occasion of the New Year, this passage occurred: "God grant that the unsettled political situation may speedily be cleared so that our people may be reassured and the blessings of peace preserved."

Germany's Strength.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Herald's Paris special says: In an interview with Councillor Von Ledenberg, German Consul at Paris, who called to express the fears of German business people for the immediate future, Bismarck said: "Will people never stop bothering me about the attitude of France and the French preparations? Germany is stronger than France. We have nothing to fear—except an unforeseen and unjust attack—from any quarter. Even then Germany is strong enough to resist a simultaneous attack on two, or for that matter, three sides, but," added the Chancellor, smiling, "the best guarantee of peace is the bad powder used for the Lebel rifles."

THE POPE TO THE PILGRIMS.

His Holiness Confident of a Settlement—The Vatican and the Quirinal.

ROME, Jan. 3.—The Pope in his reply to the Italian pilgrims yesterday declared that the Roman question could not be regarded as merely an Italian one. It had a universal character throughout the Catholic world. The revival of the question made him confident of a settlement in accordance with justice.

France and the Pope.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Times' London despatch says: One of the most notable things at Rome during the past week is said to have been the way in which France, through President Carnot and M. Flourens, has been exerting herself to make friends with the Pope. This very obviously has been to widen the breach between the Vatican and the Quirinal.

THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST.

British Millers Considering the Possibility of Increased Purchases.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The bountiful harvest in the Northwest is leading British millers to consider the possibility of increased purchases of Canadian hard wheats. The Miller, the leading organ of the trade, urges British millers, themselves or by deputy, to purchase wheat in the Canadian Northwest direct from the growers and ship it straight to the British markets. It says there is every reason to expect the co-operation of the Canadian Pacific Railway in making Manitoba and the Northwest a granary for the British miller.

Concessions to the Russian Students.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 4.—The Czar has informed M. Delianoff, Minister of Public Instruction, that it is absolutely necessary to modify the University statutes. The reforms will be effected gradually, in order to avoid the appearance of the Government being influenced by the recent disorders.

THE WASHINGTON SOLONS.

UNITED STATES SENATORS DISCUSS THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Mr. Sherman, Republican, and Mr. Voorhees, Democrat, Lead in the Debate—A Bill Introduced in the House for the Creation of an American Zollverein.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Sherman (Ohio) spoke on the President's message. He said he was willing, according to the Republican national platform of 1884, to correct the irregularities of the tariff and to reduce the surplus—not by the vicious and indiscriminating process of horizontal reduction, but by such methods as would relieve the taxpayer without injuring the laborer or the arest productive industries of the country. He was willing, as recommended by the President, to join in a careful examination of the details of tariff laws with a view to reduction of taxes. He was willing, as the President enjoined, to take a broad and national contemplation of the subject, with a practical disregard of such local and selfish claims as were unreasonable and regardless of the entire country. But he could not do that and at the same time follow the recommendations of the President. He could not strike at the industrial interests built up by the tariff laws. He could not deepen and intensify the struggle now going on between employers and employed by inviting increasing competition, crippling manufacturers and reducing wages. He greatly preferred a policy that would encourage home industry, diversify home productions, discourage importations, add to the external and internal commerce, open new mines, increase raw materials, light new furnaces, establish new rolling-mills, factories and workshops and develop the wonderful natural resources of the country.

He preferred the development, increase and growth of the productions of this country without regard to the policy, or theories, or interests of other nations. Whatever might be said of other nations, protection to home industries, as embodied in the tariff laws, was the best for this country, and he for one proposed to maintain it even against the advice of the President.

Mr. Voorhees (Ind.) said the subject of taxation was as old as the Government itself, and yet it was as fresh and full of interest to-day to the laboring masses of mankind as ever at any former period of the world's history. The contraction of the volume of our money had always been a policy marked by disaster and suffering and accursed by every friend of the general welfare of the country. But when that abominable policy was still further aided and executed by snatching, as it were, the money of the people from their very hands at the rate of $10,000,000 a month, without necessity, excuse or pallliation, every honest man had to revolt against such wanton robbery. It was a crime against every home, every fireside and every living man and woman in the United States. It was a crime national in its proportions, gigantic in its strength, omnipresent in its visitation and brutal in its rapacity.

Discussing the details of the tariff, Mr. Voorhees continued that as a choice between reducing internal revenue and customs tariff taxes, he would labor to cheapen such as woolens, linens, cotton fabrics, salt, lumber, coal, iron, steel and all other staple commodities, rather than such articles as were indulged in from acquired habits or luxurious modes of living.

At the close of Mr. Voorhees' speech Mr. Sherman moved that the message be referred to the Finance Committee, but action on that motion was withheld to give Mr. Teller an opportunity to make some remarks.

Mr. Teller (Col.) denied that the people were suffering under burdens of taxation or were crying for relief. Whenever the voice of the people had been heard it had declared it to be a fundamental American principle that the public debts shall be paid. There was $230,000,000 to become payable four years hence, and how, he asked, was this debt to be provided for if the revenues were to be reduced to the level of current expenses?

HE WANTS A ZOLLVEREIN.

A Bill Introduced in the U.S. House for a Customs Union.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Among the bills introduced in the House to-day was one by Mr. Townsend (Ill.) to promote the establishment of free commercial intercourse among the nations of America and the Dominion of Canada by the creation of an American Customs Union or Zolvereiu.

This bill seeks to secure free commerce on this continent, and the increase of the American merchant marine, a common system of weights and measures, a common system of silver coins in all the American countries, and a plan of arbitration of all questions, disputes and differences among those countries that now exists or may arise.

Mr. Dingley (Me.) introduced a bill making liable to seizure any foreign vessel taking fish within three miles of the coast of the United States, unless under right conferred by treaty or reciprocal agreement. Also a resolution calling upon the President for information in reference to an alleged discrimination in tolls by the Canadian Government against vessels passing through the Welland Canal destined for United States lake ports.

DISASTERS ON THE SEA.

A Bark Wrecked and Twenty-five Lives Lost—A Steam Yacht Ashore.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—An 1800-ton bark, believed to be an American vessel, has been wrecked at the entrance to Waterford harbor. Her crew, consisting of twenty-five persons, were drowned.

The vessel is supposed to be the ship Eureka, Capt. Southard, which sailed from San Francisco Aug. 10 for Queenstown with a cargo of wheat, and which ran by Queenstown in a gale.

A Steam Yacht Ashore.

NORFOLK, Jan. 4.—A Norfolk, Va., despatch reports that the British steam yacht, Mohican went ashore on Willoughby Spit Shoals, Virginia, on Monday. She was in charge of her owner, Wm. Clark, the well-known thread merchant. There were also on board about ten guests. The Mohican was gotten off without damage.

AT COUNTRY HOMES.

SUGGESTIONS IN REGARD TO THE FIRST LAW OF HOSPITALITY.

An Invitation to an Englishman's House. What It Implies—The American's Way of Doing Things—Embarrassment of the Host—A Rule.

There are thousands of country—yet in one way city like—homes in the suburbs of our large cities today where twenty years ago they might have been numbered by tens. Nor is this only the natural effect from the cause of an ever increasing population. We are realizing that we want more pleasant daily living; that such sweet, simple home life as that of England is possible to a certain extent even amidst the rush and push and crush of American business. We are tired of seeing each face which passes us in the crowded streets more keen, more anxious, more sharp, more unrestful than the last. And we are seeing the possibility of much comfort and enjoyment without untold riches; we are realizing more and more that immense fortunes are not the only end of man, and so are taking time to find out what can be made pleasant on a comfortable income, and we gather our friends about us to be happy together. For certain it is that the pleasure of entertaining is one of the greatest in life.

It is admitted, of course, that for any standard or degree of living it takes an income from four to five times as large in the United States as in England, but our country is too large, too young to have developed all its resources as they have done to each little inch of space there; and we must wait many years for this thing to balance itself. Meantime we are philosophical enough to "kiss each joy as it flies."

ON BEING INVITED.

The first thing one realizes on being invited to an Englishman's house is that one is invited to come at a certain time and stay until a certain time. There is no indefinite invitation: "Come and make us a visit whenever you can," leaving one with a half certainty that one would be welcome, and a very decided uncertainty, should one go whenever one could, as to whether one's visit would not be very ill timed. No; one starts with a definite fact, and consequently with something to lay hold of and be at ease about—a knowledge that one is wanted at such a time and for so long.

An Englishman, hastily and correctly, from habit, reviews his engagements, both of a business and social nature, and replies at once, thus in his turn giving his host that certain ease of knowing. "I shall be happy to come to you on the day you state, and can arrange to remain until the ——." He then states the train he will take, or, perhaps, his host has suggested a train; or, if it is too far ahead to state positively, he adds: "I will inform you by post or telegram a day or two before of the hour of my arrival." The host then is ready, his plans are formed, the guest is sure of his welcome, and the visitor starts off with a pleasant ease. If he cannot go he declines as promptly and as definitely. But when an American receives such an invitation, what is his course? Very apt is he to think: "That's a pleasure. I'm too busy to write today. Anyway, I must have a few days to think it over," and the invitation is pushed aside for a more convenient season. Meantime the hosts are uncomfortable and wondering "why So and so does not write"—"if So and so received our letter"—"if we only knew that So and so could not come we would invite some one else."

HE WRITES AT LAST.

At last our American writes. Does he either decline or accept? Americans are a positive race—about business—but where social life is concerned it is only the women who are at all punctilious. No, he says: "Could not reply to your letter at once, and even now am not certain if we can accept it; will let you know in a few days," or worse still: "Don't believe we can arrange to come to you on the 15th. How would the 25th suit you?" Fancy the embarrassment of the host, who has asked some one else for that date! Or again, and to our shame be it said, this is often done: "Cannot come when you say, but think can arrange it later. Will let you know."

Oh, the thoughtless assurance of such a reply passeth belief, but the people who make it are often, in other things, the most unassuming persons. Of course it is only due to thoughtlessness and the habit of the land to regard social duties as secondary and unimportant. Many an American hostess has had her lunch table stand half the afternoon and her dinner wait an hour for the arrival of a guest who agreed to come but forgot to state the hour. After all, in life it is the little things which constantly rub against the grain, and the hosts who are put out and inconvenienced by uncertainty can never be so glad to see the guest who causes such annoyances as he who says when he will come, and comes when he says.

As a deduction the first law of hospitality should be that old rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." And Americans should learn to be more positive and exact about these little things. Be sure to accept or decline an invitation to a house visit as promptly and as positively as one to dinner, and do exactly as you agree about the time of arrival, no matter if it should at the time prove a little more convenient to go an hour or two earlier or later.—Chicago Herald.

An English lock maker claims to have perfected a door, to be used in public buildings, that will lessen the chances of accident in times of panic or real danger. It can be opened from the outside only by a key, but a slight pressure from within causes it to swing open outward.—New York Sun.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

During her twenty years of married life Mrs. John Guest, of Wichita, Kan., has presented her husband with twenty-two children. She has twice given birth to twins and once to triplets.

The store of a man named Windley, at Hunter's Bridge, N. C., was plundered by burglars recently. When he informed his wife of the fact she fainted and died before she could be restored to consciousness.

Lightning struck a basket of eggs in a farm yard near Meriden, Miss., not long ago, and a man who witnessed the descent of the electric fluid solemnly declared that it hatched out chickens from several of the eggs.

There is a man in the Kansas penitentiary who, beginning with a term at Sing Sing years ago, has served his time in regular succession in the penitentiaries of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Kansas.

A darky applied to the county clerk at Smithville, Ga., recently, for a marriage license, but on being informed that it would cost $1.75 he departed without one, saying that "he wasn't in any hurry, nohow, and he guessed they'd be cheaper after a while."

Farmer Liesman, who found a spring on his farm near Holland, Mich., that will make hair grow on most anything, has sold the cow and calf on which he had raised long whiskers to a Chicago museum for $1,300. He will ship some of the water to the animals each week.

A mill in Carlton, Mich., recently burned, and during the entire conflagration the big engine ran steadily, and so in some way was saved from destruction. The working of the engine kept the pumps going, so the boilers were kept supplied with water and there was no explosion.

A drunken laborer named John Davies, at Dowlais, England, on his way home lay down beside the railroad track so close to the rails that, a train coming along, the engine run over and cut off the heel of his boot. When the train stopped and backed up the man was still asleep, and was indignant at being made to get up and go home.

A Montana paper recently contained this remarkable notice: "Mr. Charles Johnson and Miss Fannie West were married by Rev. S. Hills on Wednesday. So far no trouble has resulted, and those best informed as to the situation say there will be none." The next day the editor apologized and explained that part of an item regarding an incipient strike had got in the wrong place.

George Frey, of Oil City, Pa., wrote a letter to his brother in Michigan a few nights ago, and after sealing it he happened to glance at the clock. It had stopped at 9:45. Mr. Frey set the clock from his watch, and the sound of the ticking seemed to him strangely like a low voice calling out: "I'm gone, I'm gone." In the morning Mr. Frey received a telegram announcing his brother's death, and a subsequent letter contained the information that he died at 9:45 and that his last words were: "I'm gone!"

SOME QUEER MISHAPS.

William Merritt, of Newark, lost the end of his leg by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting in the Berkshire woods.

Patrick Hannon, of Springfield, Mass., 17 years of age, must do without his right hand in future. He was shooting ducks when his gun burst, and the fingers of that hand went flying after the game.

Capt. Reynolds, of Radden Court, Latchford, England, lost his life by his gun exploding as he was climbing a fence. The charge shattered his left knee, and amputation did not save him.

James Evanson came into Washington, N. C., from the country to buy an ax. While departing from the store with his purchase he dropped it and it fell on his right foot, completely severing the second toe.

Miss Catherine Simonds, who lived near Reading, England, lost her life while hunting. Her horse stumbled in a rabbit hole, Miss Simonds fell and her horse kicked out her brains before she could be rescued.

With his hand hanging in shreds, William Erwin, of Morris Plains, N. J., walked to a hospital, where the wounded member was amputated. He had been hunting rabbits, and his gun was prematurely discharged.

John and Cyrus Mask, of Pueblo, Colo., went duck shooting, and, seeing a flock, were creeping upon them through the brush. Cyrus was just behind his brother. His gun caught in the brush and was discharged, and John fell dead, having received the contents in his back.

An Offended Window Gazer.

"I remember one instance of a seedy looking individual, who came regularly every morning and took a long look at a handsome diamond and ruby bracelet, worth nearly $800, and always went away with a satisfied smile. He came regularly for two months, and at first I suspected him of evil designs, but I soon saw my fears were groundless. Well, the morning after the bracelet was sold that man came up and looked high and low for the familiar object. Finally he walked in and demanded of my clerk where it was. 'Sold,' said he. 'What!' shrieked the seedy man, 'sold! Why, you fraud, what do you mean by putting goods in your window to attract buyers, and then selling them? You don't catch me buying anything here!' and he stalked off in high dudgeon. Some other dealer is probably 'attracting' his custom now. I have had many amusing experiences with the window gazers, but in oddity this one excelled them all."—Jeweller's Weekly.

The servant girl question in Australia takes on a novel phase. The rabbit plague in that country is well known. In three years 18,000,000 rabbits were destroyed and a bounty of $120,000 has been paid out for their destruction. When a servant enters a situation she stipulates that at least one day in the week she shall not be obliged to eat rabbit.—Syracuse Journal.

The Tired Boots.

A little Boston boy, aged 6, is of a very imaginative temperament. Quite recently his mother noticed that at bed time each night he laid his little boots together upon their sides, instead of setting them upright.

"Pray tell me why you always place your boots that way?" said mamma; and the child replied:

"Because they must be tired walking so much all day I lay them sideways so they can rest."—Springfield Republican.

"I would not mind their coming back, you know,"
The lady said, the day her verses went,
"If only they'd refuse the lines on 'Snow'
Before it's time for 'Roses' to be sent."
Upon the step a postman's eager tread;
Quick! take the envelope, serenely white—
"Returned with thanks"—and then the lady said
"I think they might have kept it over night."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The front street mains of the Belleville waterworks were flushed on Monday, the pumps working under 80 pounds of steam, and the water was turned into the pipes of private consumers.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

Memorial Tablet Unveiled.

At the commencement exercises of the Galt Collegiate Institute, we learn from the Dunfries Reformer, a memorial tablet was unveiled, contributed by the citizens of Galt as a mark of their appreciation of the indefatigable efforts put forth by the late Dr. Tassie (late Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute), in the cause of higher education. The tablet was unveiled by the Hon. Jas. Young, who referred briefly to Dr. Tassie's early life and his struggles in the backwoods of Canada, and paid an eloquent tribute to his worth as a Christian gentleman and as one of the foremost educationists of his day. The speaker traced the progress of the Galt Institute under the principalship of Dr. Tassie, whom he characterized as the Arnold of Canada. A man of marked individuality, courtly manners and great force of character, he left his impress upon the students under his charge, many of whom now occupy prominent positions in the professions and in public and commercial life. His fame was not confined to the Dominion, but extended to many States of the Union. At the conclusion of Mr. Young's remarks, a nephew of Dr. Tassie who happened to be present, acknowledged the tribute to the memory of his departed relative, on behalf of his aunt and other members of the family.

MR. McCARGER ON DECK

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE EASTERN DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The Financial State of the Association Satisfactory—Addresses on Ensilage and Cheese Making.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session opened at half past two o'clock.

The PRESIDENT announced that Messrs. D. Vanderwater, P. Hinman and F. H. McCrae had been named as the nominating committee and Messrs. Derbyshire, Eager and Haggerty as the financial committee. He asked if the selection was approved of. It was.

Prof. ROBERTS, of Cornel University, read New York a paper on milk production. He commence with making some remarks about pasturage and the value of pasture land untouched by plow or reaper, and the value of bran as an article of diet for cows. He gave a description of what he called a "business cow" that made the eyes of his audience sparkle. Here is a specimen of his style: "what we want is a business cow, and we want her so educated that she will attend to business and not go off on strike three or four months in the year. A business cow is not a monstrosity, nor one that attracts attention by her elephantine proportion or her sheep-like dimunitiveness. The leading points of the business cow differ less from the beef animal than might at first be supposed. In both classes prominent eyes, delicate horns, head and neck, and a fine boned frame is desirable. In the one, well developed brisket crops and shoulder; in the other these points should be so refined and reduced as to give the desired double wedge shape and yet not endanger vigor, vitality health." Other points desirable in a dairy cow were "a straight top line, long horizontal short ribs, a broad pelvis, a fine boned tail, abundannt soft mossy hair and a moderatly thick skin." It was not necessary to have pedigreed animals. Common cattle often developed the dairy aptitudes. He urged the killing off of all animals not found appropriate for dairying without delay. Comfort and good food of course was a very important point, more important than was imagined. With abundance of food and comfortable quarters the dairy should run 52 weeks in the year. Six weeks was allowed for calving.

The paper was comented by several dairymen and a discussion arose on some points in the paper.

Prof. BARNARD, of Quebec, read a paper on the "Relation of profits in Dairying and in Beef raising." He first read extracts from an Ontario journal which set forth that a 2 year old fat steer or heifer cost $47.70, and a 3 year old fat steer $93.90, and a 3 year old fat heifer, $78.35. The fat steer is supposed to have gained 1¼ to 1¾ pounds a day from birth and to average at 3 years of age 1640 to 1920. Sold at 5 cents a pound the loss would be $11.90 in the first place and a gain of $2.10 in the second. A good cow, however, at 10 years of age gave an average of 8400 to 8200 annually, pounds of milk, and sold at 80 cents per hundred gave good returns. From this data Prof. Barnard argued that it was altogether best to put cows to dairy uses in preference to turning them into beef, and that it was better to select cows at three or four years of age which could be bought up all over at $35 and $40, in preference to raising a heifer at an expense of $78. He proceeded to say that beef animals and dairy animals should be directed to their special work from calfhood. Their vocations were entirely dissimilar.

In the discussion which followed it was argued that it would be dangerous to purchase cows from common stock habitually. Instead of raising the standard of stock, the dairymen, if resorting to that, would be degenerating it. The best cows would be put forward for dairying, not for breeding. It was stated that a heifer or steer might be raised to a 3 year old for $35.

Prof. BARNARD would not adopt the principle to the detriment of breeding. But the method might be carried on to a certain extent with profit.

The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was held in the Council Chamber.

The President took the chair at half past seven o'clock.

Mayor STEVENSON welcomed the delegates and regretted that he had not known of the character of the convention. Had he known of it he would not have offered them the old hall. He hoped their deliberations would progress satisfactorily in this place.

The President and Mr. Derbershire replied suitably.

Mr. W. H. Hoard in speaking on ensilage said that the methods of a few years ago were out of date. The silos were expensive and the ensilage was an expensive production. The silos were now built more cheaply, sometimes inside the barn and sometimes outside. He described the way they were built and the manner in which the cut food was conveyed into the silo. Care should be taken not to fill the pits too quickly with the green fodder as it was liable to go into fermentation. In making a sweet silage the corn should be cut from one inch to one inch and a half, put in six feet deep and left four days. It would be then heated to 120 degrees or more. Put on another layer then and the cold silage would cool the under layer down. After four more days repeat, and so on till filled. The heat which each layer generated would kill the germs of fermentation. He noticed briefly the mode of raising the corn which should be used for ensilage. An ordinary sized cutter would out from 4 to 6 tons per hour. Five tons of silage was sufficient to feed a cow for 200 days. An acre would raise 30 tons. It was easy to see its economic value. Three tons of ensilage was equal in feeding value to one ton of hay, and while 30 tons of ensilage could be raised off one acre less than two tons of hay on the average could be raised off the same area. With 9 cents worth of ensilage feeding his cows could produce the same amount of butter that with hay, indian meal, bran and oil meal at a cost of 17 cents a day.

Mr. CHEESMAN—Are you sure you lost 20 per cent of the moisture by stocking the corn in the fields before drawing it to the silo?

Mr. HOARD—So far as we know.

The PRESIDENT—What is the relative value of the manure from ensilage and other feed?

Mr. HOARD—Well, we have had a feeble experience so far, but the cattle thrive much better on it.

A VOICE—Why do you object to stone silos?

Mr. HOARD—Because it freezes the silage. You know frost will follow a stone wall as far as the wall goes. (Laughter.)

Prof. ROBERTS—Is it not wise to aim at raising the greatest amount of corn, irrespective of the stock, for silage purposes?

Mr. HOARD—I don't know enough to answer your question conscientiously and I don't want to answer it any other way.

Prof. BERNARD argued that corn at an advanced age would be harder to digest.

Mr. CHEESMAN said that old corn developed woody fibre at the expense of sugar.

Prof. ROBERTSON, of Guelph, spoke on the subject of fine points in cheese making, giving information as to how to obtain evenness in consistency and color. The cheesemakers present catechised the speaker, and elicited some ideas of use to them.

The meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

THURSDAY—FORENOON SESSION.

Several of the dairymen availed themselves of Mayor Stevenson's hospitality in placing several pleasure sleighs at their disposal. They drove about town from half past nine till half past ten and then took their places in the assembly room.

The first business was the reception of the financial report, which was presented by Mr. P. R. Daly, the Treasurer. Mr. Daly showed that the Eastern Dairymen's Association was in a better financial position than it had ever been, there being a clear balance on hand of $469.17.

The PRESIDENT remarked that the receipts of this convention were not counted in the computation.

Messrs. Fields and Hamilton, the auditors, certified to the correctness of the accounts.

The nominating Committee's read as follows by Mr. Hinman:—

To the President, Officers and Members of the Eastern Ontario Dairyman's Association.

GENTLEMAN,—We your Nominating Committee, beg leave to report as follows:—

OFFICERS FOR 1888.

PRESIDENT.—D. M. McPherson, Lancaster.
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT.—D. Vanderwater, Carterton.
2ND VICE-PRESIDENT.—James Bissell, Algonquin.

DIRECTORS.

Div. No. 1.—W. Eager, South Mountain.
" 2.—Edward Kidd, North Gower.
" 3.—F. H. McCrea, Brockville.
" 4.—Jas. Haggarty, W. Huntington.
" 5.—Platt Hinman, Grafton.
" 6.—Henry Wade, Toronto.

AUDITORS.

James Hamilton, Foxboro; Thomas Miller, Spencerville.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

PLATT HINMAN
D. VANDERWATER } Committee.
F. H. MCCREA

City Hall, Peterborough, Jan. 5th, 1888.

The report was adopted.

A contest was called for in the selection of President. Messrs. Blezard, Derbyshire and McCarger all being nominated. Messrs. Blezard and Derbyshire withdrew, and the contest was left between the remaining two. Mr. McCarger was elected by 38 to 32, and President McPherson retired in favor of the President-elect. The report of the committee was then adopted. Mr. McCarger's name being substituted in place of Mr. McPherson's, and Mr. Foster's in place of Mr. Hamilton's, as auditor.

2ND " " —Mrs. H. Owens.
SECRETARY-TREASURER — Mrs. James Kendrey.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—Mesdames W. Bradburn, Braden, Nugent, F. Mason, J. Glass, W. Fitzgerald, in conjunction with officers of the Society.

The Treasurer's report for 1887 showed the finance of the Society to be in a fairly prosperous condition, considering that during the year no extra effort had been made in the shape of socials and entertainments. Money collected during the year from memberas' fees, Christmas tree, free entertainments and one organ recital amounted to one hundred and seventy-five dollars. The Secretary read the following report:

Dear President and Ladies:

Our Association has passed through another year, and, on looking back over the year we seem to have accomplished very little worthy of record. We have had a very quiet year, and to-day we would raise our hearts in praise to our Heavenly Father for His sparing mercies. Whilst bereavement has come very near to us, and some of our members are to-day mourning the loss of their dearest, yet, as a Society, our lives have been precious in His sight, and we have not lost one member by death. But as we make out new list for eighteen hundred and eighty-eight we are sad because of the removal to other homes of so many. Mrs. J. W. Flavelle, Miss Ellsworth, Miss E. Keele, and Mrs. Wallace are names that will be much missed. We follow them with our prayers and we will not forget them in their new homes. And very lovingly to-day do our thoughts wander away to Southern California to Mrs. Bradburn who is there seeking health. May our dear Heavenly Father bless her richly with renewed strenght; spiritual as well as physical; taking into His own keeping the separated family until they all meet again. And now as we enter on another year let us take for our watch work "Onward and Upward." Let us endeavour more than ever to obey the Divine injunction "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," and also "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," remembering that "Even Christ pleased not himself." Wishing you all a happy New Year, I remain yours sincerely,

E. KENDRY,
Secretary.

REVIEWS.

It is seldom that so great excellence is reached in so short a time as has been achieved by Scribner & Sons, in their venture, the new Scribner's Magazine. Although only having completed its second volume it ranks at once with the monthlies which have been for years before the public. The January number is a literary feast and the series of beautiful engravings which grace and illustrate the text are of the very highest character. Of the articles which go to make up the number that on "The Great Pyramid" is of special interest, and tells in fascinating style of the discoveries made in exploring these monuments of the builders art of centuries ago. "Japanese Art and Artists," is a subject of great interest well handled. "The Man at Arms," is an able and interesting description of old time arms our and battle equipment, richly illustrated. Other matter of great value assists to make up a number at once well adapted to meet popular tastes and to cultivate a love for pure literature.

ST. NICHOLAS for January is a rare treat for the children, and a delight to older heads. The varied character of the contents is so well arranged that there is something interesting for almost everyone who may look between its covers. The corps of writers who contribute are among the best known people, and the beautiful engravings form an attractive feature. St. Nicholas is the work for boys—pure, clean and healthful in tone while instructive in every department. Hand a years' subscription to your son or nephew as a New Year's gift and he will remember you with grateful feeling as often as the monthly installment comes to hand.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver a misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

SOME TALK ABOUT A NEW LINE OF STEAMERS TO MONTREAL.

Rumors That the Canadian Pacific Railway Company are Mixed up in it Denied—A Properly Equipped Line Would Pay

TORONTO, Jan. 5.

During the past few days several paragraphs have appeared in New York State papers to this effect (the extract printed being from the Ogdensburg, N.Y. News):

"The Canadian Pacific people have secured the controlling interests in the Richelieu Navigation Company, which has been running steamships between Toronto and Montreal, and has under contract the building of a number of new steel fire proof steamers to replace the old Richelieu boats, and will run them commencing with the season of 1889, between Kingston and Montreal, under the charter of the Royal Canadian Steamship Company recently obtained. The Canadian Pacific people will also put on Lake Ontario the finest line of steamships under an American charter that floats on any waters, and the line will run between Lewiston, Toronto, Rochester, Oswego, Kingston and Alexandria Bay. The boats will be of steel and fire proof, and will be run in conjunction with the Kingston and Montreal line. Mr. Archer Baker of Montreal has been selected as superintendent of the Kingston-Montreal Company, and Capt. George Crawford of Kingston will probably be superintendent of the American line. The capital of the steamship company is $1,000,000 in cash.
